The Goatee—Select-man

At our town election I was the goat, you know;

Must have been some error in the count, fifty or so.

I leave that to you to explain if you can;

By some hook or crook I was made a selectman.

Being the goat it seemed proper when you meet me

You should know who I am, so I've raised a goatee.

Just a casual glance you might think 'twas Buffalo Bill.

Who had returned from above those buffaloes to kill.

It's not him at all; you should know it's just me,

One of your selectmen with a new goatee.

B. H. S. Entertainment

The entertainment given by the High school seniors last Friday evening was unquestionably successful. The class satisfactorily increased its treasury; and, judging by the comments heard around town the next day, the audience was well pleased.

The program was varied and reflected credit upon the class and their school mates who helped them. The opening number, a piano solo by Irene Vezina, was followed by a reading by Myrtle Blackmer. Theodore Hazen sang "Kid Days" while Marjorie Peeso and Charles Scott posed in a tableau. Miss Coon read "The House by the Side of the Road." After another piano solo, the Sophomores read the trial scene from the "Merchant of Venice." It was a rather difficult scene to present, and their interpretation was quite commendable.

The most hearty applause was won by Eben Campbell. From the depth of an imposing derby hat, holding a realistic rifle, he sang in true comedian manner "Goodbye Ma," and "Katie."

Then followed a tableau in which Louis Osborne represented the care-free youngster with a fish pole, known in song as "Patches." Walter Dodge and James Aldrich gave a dialogue, each trying to tell a bigger fib than the other. They were well matched, and the contest closed as a tie.

After a reading by Harold Hazen, the Seniors presented a farce, "Borrowing Trouble." Newell Booth was Mr. Borrow, who lived up to his name, going so far as to borrow a counterfeit bill, thereby incurring danger of arrest by the detective, Cornelius Lynch. Alice Booth was Mrs. Borrow, and Gladys Gay, Miss Barrow. Eleanor Bardwell played very cleverly the part of Mahitable March, a talkative neighbor. Catherine McKillop was Mrs. Wiggins, the landlady from whom Mr. Borrow "borrowed nearly everything he bought for family use." The entire Borrow family and Mrs. March were suddenly stricken at supper with a terrible malady which they thought must be cholera. The doctor, Francis Allen, confirmed their suspicions and condemned the milk because of its peculiar appearance. The faithful servant, whose part was well played by Earl Witt, then confessed that he had spilled the borrowed mustard into the borrowed milk on the way upstairs. The family speedily recovered.

A solo by Theodore Hazen concluded the program. Refreshments were served and ice cream offered for sale. It was pleasant in this age of profiteering, to find perfectly good sandwiches, cake, and coffee supplied free of charge.

Wrestling Bouts

The first of a series of amateur wrestling bouts will be held in the Town hall Tuesday evening, April 6, at eight o'clock.

There will be three contests, one light weight and two heavy. Lincoln Cook and Leon Williams will participate in the first, and Harry Sessions and Eugene Flaherty, and Bert Shaw and Harold Ketchen in the latter.

Catch as Catch Can will be the style,—best two out of three falls. Dr. J. L. Collard will act as referee.

The management considers wrestling a clean, athletic sport and is going to insist that the bouts be conducted in sportsmanlike fashion.

Special Easter Services

Special Easter services of the Federated church will include a sunrise prayer meeting at 7 a. m. in the chapel led by Theodore Hazen and Earl Witt, a prayer meeting in the chapel at 10 o'clock led by Mr. Kilmer, morning worship at 10.45 with special music by full chorus choir and reception of new members, and an Easter concert by the Sunday School at 7.30 p. m. An Easter offering for benevolent purposes will be taken at the Sunday services.

The Extension School

A number of our citizens attended the two-day Extension school held under the auspices of Union Grange last Friday and Saturday. The school was opened by A. H. MacDougall of the Hampshire County Farm Bureau, who stated the reasons and the plan of the school.

Friday was poultry day and the speakers and demonstrators were Profs. Paine and Banta of the Mass. Agricultural college. Each manifested a desire to meet the specific needs of the company present and answered many questions from the floor.

Some of their statements, they admitted, overthrew old theories (which, by the way, they thought was sometimes a hobby) but they seemed to have the facts to back up what they said.

Prof. Paine, the first speaker, for the benefit of the back yard poultrymen, gave a few suggestions regarding the raising of chickens by natural means. He advocated sods as the basis of a brooding nest and cautioned against dusting hens with too much commercial lice powder at the time of setting them, as it had very serious results.

One theory Prof. Paine overthrew was that one can't count his chickens before they are hatched. He produced a chart made as a result of a test with more than a thousand eggs set both in machines and under hens. This showed the exact number of chicks dying in the shell each day with the percentage of the total number. Taken together, during the first thirteen days 39.4 per cent of the total mortality occurred and 60.6 during the last eight days. He said that after two weeks of incubation, upon this basis one could with comparative accuracy count his chickens.

Speaking of artificial incubation, Prof. Paine said that the more times a day the eggs are turned the better the hatches that are being procured. Prof. Banta figuratively took the chickens out of the incubator and prescribed for their comfort from the cradle to the grave. While he had everything figured out precisely, his knowledge was not purely academic as he knew a hen when he saw it, his education involving the caretaking (continued on page 4)

Dear Mr. Blackmer and the Sentinel:

I am enclosing a money order to cover the renewal of my subscription and that of — for another year. We are "Far frae hame" and the little old home town paper fills such a place in our lives that we would not like to miss even one copy.

Your paper and a letter from a dear old neighbor on Federal street tell of the big snow storms that you have enjoyed the last few months.
Now folks, you had better move out to the Pacific coast where you can indulge in other forms of recreation than shovelling snow six months in the year.

Puget Sound climate is not like California, where in the southern part it is always summer, but we have four regular seasons as the Good Lord intended we should, and most years when He sees that we need a little more of a good thing
He gives us two or three weeks extra of just the kind we want, and from the sun-kissed waters of the Sound to the mighty domes of Rainier and Baker and their giant satellites of the Cascade and Olympic ranges, covered with the eternal snows, the whole vast basin smiles a welcome to any and all who may want to come among us and share the good things.

Don't spend your money going to Europe to see the wreck that a lot of devilish Huns could make of other people's homes, but rather come out here and see what the Good Lord and a lot of honest, hard working men and women have done in the last forty years to build up and not to destroy. And then you'll want to stay here.

Everybody and his wife are busy in the garden now. The flowers are blooming in the yards and fields, plum and pear trees are in full blosom, and the clatter of the lawn mower and the song of the frog is heard in the land.

Good-bye, folks. Tell all the good happenings to the "Sentinel" and then we exiles can share your happiness.

CHAPTER IV

RESIDENTS OF THE NORTH ROAD

Commencing at the Shumway corner, my first recollection of this place is of Josiah and Phila Clark and their colt. He, the colt, was a long-legged equine, black as a coal, and lived to be more than thirty years old, but he was always "Uncle Siah's colt."

Uncle Siah was a thrifty, frugal man and disliked to see anything wasted. There were no mowing machines in those days; haying was all hand work. One morning Uncle Siah, leaning on his cane, was watching his two hired men swing their scythes. "Pare her down close, boys," he said. "My cattle like the fust jint." "All right, Uncle Siah," said the head man, "we will leave it for them."

Uncle Siah and Aunt Phila, as everyone called them, were a nice old couple; that fact can usually be safely assumed when the young people in a community thus speak of an elder when no real relationship exists. During their declining years they were cared for by two of their grandchildren—Alvira Clark, a teacher of much experience, and Napoleon Bonaparte Clark, who later came into possession of the farm.
"Bona" sold to Morrison Blodgett, and with his sister Alvira settled in Nebraska. Neither of them married and nothing has been heard from them for many years. Mr.
Blodgett sold to D. F. Shumway and he to his son, Edwin F.

The Eaton place was formerly much larger than now and there have been many occupants here. It was formerly known as the Ebenezer Barber place, but I first remember it as the home of Duane and Sarah Simms, brother and sister. With them lived two orphaned cousins, Sarah and Helen West. Sarah taught school and Helen was much interested in religious matters and in the summer she had the little children meet her in the school house for Bible study Sunday afternoons.
She allowed herself to dwell upon this subject so continually that her mind became affected and she was placed in an asylum.

The Simms family left town in the late 50's and the place was leased for a short time to Dea. E. G.
Bughee. He was followed by Flavius Putnam, grandfather of Harry
F. Putnam. I think the next own-

Will YOU Help ?

The letter below which is being sent to all of the stockholders of the Belchertown Community League Inc. in connection with the notice of the annual meeting to be held Apr. 9, is self explanatory. It is printed in this paper in the hope that some generous hearted citizens or friends may sense the situation and come to the relief of the League which has tried to save the hall for the people of Belchertown. The Community Club has recently come to its assistance and a boost all around just now will save the day.

To the Stockholders of Belchertown Community League, Inc.

Dear Stockholder :

With this notice of our annual meeting we call your attention to the crisis which we are now facing. We need not remind you of the circumstances which have handicapped our organization from its very start,—the World War, the influenza, the H. C. L.,—all of which have combined to hinder the realization of our ambition to provide a real community home for our citizens.

Some of those who agreed to take shares and upon the strength of whose promises the project was undertaken, failed to keep their pledges, thus leaving us several hundred dollars less than we expected (and had a right to expect) in the very beginning of our enterprise.

We have struggled along hoping to prove to the public the benefit to be derived from having just such a building and rooms as League Hall would furnish, but, while the public has found it very convenient to use the hall, it has been very slow to help carry the burden of its expense.

We need funds to make repairs, to fit up the lower floor for club purposes, to make needed changes in the auditorium, and to paint the exterior (for which paint was purchased two years ago, but we have no fund to pay for the labor required). We also need money to meet other necessary expenses such as insurance, taxes etc.

With the incoming of a large force of workers upon the State
Institution here for the next few years, we feel that better times are ahead, if only we can meet the present emergency. Will you help by taking additional shares or by gifts as large as possible, to place this project upon a self-supporting basis?

er was James Walker who removed the barn (which stood nearly opposite the Brooks house) and built a large new one across the street from his own home. In a few years he sold to Amos Lamson and he to Ol-ney Parent who lived here a few years, when it again became tenant property. Joseph R. Gould lived here for a season as also did Ransom Morse and others. In the meantime the place had been conveyed to Edward B. Gay, though he never occupied the tenement. Later it was sold to John Eaton and at his death became the property of his son, Wm. Eugene.

Eighty years ago the next place belonged to James Wentworth. He had a son, William, who early in life started business in Chicopee and accumulated considerable property.

He opened a new street there and erected several residences on it and forty years ago Wentworth St. was a desirable residential section.

There were two daughters in the Wentworth family; Olive, the elder, married Lyman Smith—sometimes known as Turkey Hill Smith—and they lived here for a time, later locating on South Main St. where Mr.
Smith was in business for many years. Martha, the younger daughter, I remember well; she was a large girl when I was a small boy.
She was then wonderfully dexterous with her fingers, and was not only the champion braider of palm leaf hats, but champion huckleberry picker as well. She married Charles Holcomb and I think all of the Bel-chertown Holcombs are her descendants.

Some years before the Civil war Cyrus Moody bought this place and in 1858 he made extensive repairs on the school house under the supervision of Joseph Atwood. Next came Munroe C. Heath with his young bride, but he soon sold to John V. Thompson whose home it was for many years. More recent owners are Harry Conkey and Mr.
Brooks, the present occupant.

For the ordinary size of coal burning brooder stove he advocated an 8x12 house, an 8x8 section to be utilized at first, and said that for the first few days a temporary wall should be placed around the hover a foot and a half outside it and be gradually moved outward. A temperature of 98 degrees two inches from the top of the sand at the hover's edge was well for the first day but should be reduced gradually. "Watching the contentment of the chickens is better than a thermometer," he said. The temperature in the room should be around sixty degrees.

Chickens at the college go out of doors the eighth day, no matter what the weather, although they may stay out only a minute. Prof. Banta said that getting out on the ground was absolutely essential. He advocated good ventilation, the feeding of green food on the eighth day—sliced onions or potatoes were especially good, he said—the feeding of bright grit, the necessity of making them scratch, the slogan of Feed Little But Often, the gradual change from fine to coarser grains and the need of a well balanced ration. His special hobby was the feeding of milk to chickens, exclusively during the first week and afterwards if possible. He said, "You can afford to pay the price of new milk to do it." He said that diluted, semi-solid buttermilk was all right.

At the conclusion of the morning's program some of the company stayed for lunch and a sip of coffee provided by the Grange.

Card of Thanks

The Community club takes this means of expressing its sincere thanks and gratitude to all who in any way helped to make its fair of Mar. 17th a success; to the merchants for their co-operation; to the Blackmer press for the write-up appearing in the Sentinel of Mar. 19; to the orchestra for its services; to Mr. and Mrs. Alderman for the use of the hall and to the townspeople for their generous patronage.

Community Club Notes

The club is quietly conducting a membership drive and each present member is expected to present one new name to be acted upon at the next meeting, Apr. 13. Will ladies of the town who are interested to take active part in the work that the club is doing, and whose membership has not already been solicited, kindly notify some present member to that effect.

If present plans operate successfully, the club will hold its next card party Apr. 19 in its rooms in Community League hall. Any persons having articles that they are willing to give or loan toward the furnishing of those rooms will please notify some member of the Executive committee before next Wednesday.

Dies in Montana

Belchertown friends of Mrs. Emily A. Bruce of Pompey's Pillar, Montana, have received word of her death on March 26th at the age of 87. Mrs. Bruce was well known in town, having spent the greater part of her life here. She came to Belchertown from Hadley after her marriage to Dexter Bruce who died in 1885.

During her residence here she was a member of the Congregational church and established a permanent fund for the help of its needy members.

She leaves one son, Charles, in whose home she died, also two grandchildren, Mrs. Frank M. Bumstead and Harold Bruce, both of Berkeley, California, children of her son, George, who died five years ago. Burial was in New Hampton, Iowa. Her son writes that she never lost her affection and interest in Belchertown people and that only distance and expense prevented her remains being brought here.

Large Attendance at Mass

There was a large attendance at Mass at the Catholic Mission on Easter morning. Fine singing by the members of the Kennedy family was a special feature. The next Mass will be on the 25th at 8 a. m.

The Wrestling Bout

The town hall Tuesday evening was the scene of the first public wrestling match that has been put on in Belchertown in many a day. The innovation drew a good sized crowd that was quite enthusiastic and voted it a success.

Not all the contestants advertised appeared on the mat but the vacancies were filled and three contests were pulled off. In the light weight class, McKillop, 135 lb., met Lincoln Cook, 125 lb., the latter scoring two straight, the first in six and one-half minutes and the other in seven minutes.

In the "heavy-light weight", Bertram Shaw, 187 lb., and Floyd Pease, 106 lb., the former won two falls easily in fast plays of one minute each.

Dr. J. L. Collard refereed the first two contests, but donned the jerseys himself in the last heat, meeting Harry Sessions in a fast scrimmage. Collard's 185 lb. outmatched Sessions' 190 and it was all over in four minutes. Geo. Williams refereed the last contest and Carl Aspengren was time keeper for all.

The matches were cleanly played and showed signs of developing into

Easter Accessions

Easter was a memorable day in the history of the Federated church. That it was such was due in part to the spirit of the Holy Week services which were held nearly every evening last week, to the cottage prayer meetings which have been held for some time, and to the seed sowing of previous months and years.

While the sunrise service Easter morning was well attended, while the ten o'clock prayer meeting was deeply spiritual, while the Easter music was excellent, while the flowers were most appropriate and while the concert by the Sunday school in the evening was of a high order, the feature that will be remembered the longest was the sight of twelve receiving the rite of baptism and the uniting of twenty-three with the church, twelve affiliating themselves with the Congregational church and eleven with the Methodist.

After the pastor, Rev. H. P. Rankin, had read the covenant vows, Rev. C. G. Burnham spoke words most appropriate to those who had just identified themselves with the church. The audience was then invited to greet the new members while the choir led in the singing of "Bless Be the Tie that Binds." Revs. Rankin and Burnham and representatives of the Federated committee assisted in receiving the large audience who were not unmindful of

Death of Mrs. Ira E. Damon

Mrs. Lillian Allen Damon, wife of Ira E. Damon, passed away between two and three o'clock Wednesday morning after a painful illness of more than a year.

Mrs. Damon was born in Springfield in 1865 but has spent most of her life in town. Her first marriage was to James Miller who died several years ago. In November, 1912, she married Ira E. Damon.

Mrs. Damon was a member of the Congregational church and had a large circle of friends.

She leaves besides her husband, her mother, Mrs. Jane Allen of Palmer, and a sister, Mrs. Alfred T. Wright of Springfield. The funeral will be held from the chapel Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. C. G. Burnham officiating.

The Easter Ball

The Easter ball in Park View hall Monday evening, for which elaborate preparations had been made by members of the Chauncey D. Walker Post of the American Legion, was well attended, even tho more favorable weather conditions would undoubtedly have brought out a much larger number.

The hall was one mass of red, white and blue, made so by the use of flags and bunting, and was attractively decorated with souvenirs and war trophies. Rifles, trench caps and gas masks adorned the walls, while near the entrance was a stuffed "apread eagle" surmounting a German helmet brought home by one of the members of the Post.

Cartier's orchestra of Holyoke furnished the music for the concert from 8 to 9 and also for the dancing from 9 to 1 which proved to be the popular feature of the evening. The Post has endeavored in all its public functions to furnish high grade entertainment and exerted considerable effort to live up to its motto on this occasion. One of its extras this time was free ice cream.

The committee in charge of the ball was Fred D. Walker, Jr., Edward Parent, Herbert Story, Kenneth Bristol and Dr. P. W. Stone.

For the ordinary size of coal burning brooder stove he advocated an 8x12 house, an 8x8 section to be utilized at first, and said that for the first few days a temporary wall should be placed around the hover a foot and a half outside it and be gradually moved outward. A temperature of 98 degrees two inches from the top of the sand at the hover's edge was well for the first day but should be reduced gradually. "Watching the contentment of the chickens is better than a thermometer," he said. The temperature in the room should be around sixty degrees.

Chickens at the college go out of doors the eighth day, no matter what the weather, although they may stay out only a minute. Prof. Banta said that getting out on the ground was absolutely essential. He advocated good ventilation, the feeding of green food on the eighth day—sliced onions or potatoes were especially good, he said—the feeding of bright grit, the necessity of making them scratch, the slogan of Feed Little But Often, the gradual change from fine to coarser grains and the need of a well balanced ration. His special hobby was the feeding of milk to chickens, exclusively during the first week and afterwards if possible. He said, "You can afford to pay the price of new milk to do it." He said that diluted, semi-solid buttermilk was all right.

At the conclusion of the morning's program some of the company stayed for lunch and a sip of coffee provided by the Grange.

Turkey Hill of Long Ago

RESIDENTS OF THE NORTH ROAD

The next house is the most pleasantly located of any in the district, having an extended and beautiful eastern view. Here lived a hundred years ago, Welcome Bennett, a native of the district and a very active business man. Among his many activities he dealt to some extent in real estate and seldom stayed many years in the same place. He died at a ripe old age in South Hadley but was buried in Mount Hope.

Anson Keyes with his wife, Ann Atwood, came next. They had three sons, John, George and Edwin Leonidas. Edwin was my chum and seat mate in school but he was seldom called by his name; to every one he was "Doctor Keyes". While in the employ of Mt. Holyoke College he was drowned at Smith's Ferry.

The next owner was John Snow, a brother of Mrs. S. D. Talmage. Then came Howard C. West who after a few years sold to Alvertus W. Morse whose home it was for many years. Mr. Morse was the father of the Belchertown Creamery which was his special pet and pride as long as he stayed in town. After he moved to Ludlow the place was occupied by various tenants until sold to Prof. J. B. Knight of Poona, India. It is now the property of G. I. Mead and John R. Newman, Jr., and is known as "New Mead Farm."

The next place, long acknowledged to be the best and most important farm in the district, was once occupied (so old residents have told me) by a man who owned nearly all of the surrounding territory and sold off farms as customers appeared. I remember it as it was seventy years ago; it was then occupied by two families, (connected, I think, by marriage) Luther Morse and Arba Stacy. A large, two story house with several L's stood where a part of the present structure stands, but nearly every occupant since has torn

To childish eyes there were two very wonderful things here; one was water constantly running to both house and barn from a "boiling spring" back on the hillside. It was a source of wonder as to what made the water in the spring house boil up with its constant cargo of sparkling white sand, and an equal wonder was what became of the sand as it never seemed to accumulate in the box.

The other remarkable thing was of a different character. It was simply a cider mill; it stood on the east side of the road midway between the house and barn. It was of the old fashioned kind, big oaken nuts, and when in operation it screeched and groaned in a way to delight the heart of a boy. Later this mill (under other ownership) was located just across the road from the school house and still later it was moved to a point half way between the home of the owner and E. E. Gay's home.

I have no recollection of the departure of the Morse and Stacy families but remember that John Keyes who married Georgiana Hinckley, a relative of one of the families, lived here for a time. Then came Joseph Atwood, an uncle of John. He was here when the Civil war broke out and his only child, Charles H., was among the first to enlist. The evening before he started for the southland he married one of the nicest girls in the neighborhood, Laura Morgan, but she was soon a widow for he never came back.

After Joseph Atwood came Randolph Hurlburt, then Joseph R. Gould and later Seth J. Bennett and his son in law, Charles Sumner Knight. His son, Jewell B. Knight, is the present owner.

In 1837 we find Welcome Bennett as proprietor of the next place. Following him came George Gay who with his good wife, Dimmie, lived here many years. I remember "Aunt Dimmie" as a young woman, one of the jolliest and most cheery women I ever knew, one who carried sunshine and gladness wherever she went. Few weeks passed that she was not a caller at the home of my mother; and I can see her now as, after an hour's social chat, she would skip down the lane on her way home; but would almost invariably stop when half way to the road and give her parting salutation which was always, "Come down, Miss Green, and I'll tell you something."

It was said that Mr. Gay had not a single tooth in his head—never had one; but he had the usual number of teeth, all double. He was a

The afternoon session consisted of very practical demonstrations. The first was by Prof. Paine on killing and dry picking a fowl. Dry picking is to be preferred for market purposes not only because the bird looks neater but because the flesh will keep longer. For home use there is little difference between dry picking and scalding. Although there is a slight loss of flavor in scalding, only an epicurean would be apt to detect it.

Prof. Paine exhibited the instruments used in this work. The first was a small, sharp pointed knife, known as a sticking tool. It can be bought for about 25 cents from Carroll and Lillie, 26 North Market St., Boston, Mass. From the same firm can be obtained also a picking knife which is really a clam knife and costs about 20 cents. This is used for removing the pin feathers. The bird instrument was a pair of game shears, the blades being curved and w toothed. These shears are not essential but are very convenient to get through bone, for instance in cutting off the head, but are of no use in cutting flesh and skin. These may be obtained from Landers, Frazer and Clark, Bristol, Conn.

The blood can, of home manufacture, is another convenience, catching the blood from the fowl and preventing spattering of both operator and bird. This was an ordinary tomato can with a coil of wire in the bottom, one end extending upward nearly to the top of the can and ending in a downward curve with a sharp point at the end. Upon the end in the bottom of the can, about a pound of melted lead had been poured, holding the coil firmly in place and making the total weight of the can about one pound. After sticking, this blood can is hooked through the upper mandible, thus holding the mouth open to insure free bleeding. The weight of the can also tends to hold the bird straight.

The string and block method was advocated for holding the fowl in position. This simple apparatus consists of a stout cord fastened by one end overhead, in this case to a limb of a tree, and the other end passed through a small block of wood and knotted. The cord is simply passed around the feet of the bird, the block holding it firm. The fowl is thus easily secured and easily released at will, while there is no possibility of escape unless the bird is allowed to flutter enough to raise its body above the level of the block.

With the bird in position, head downward, Prof. Paine demonstrated the process of sticking. With the head held firmly in the left hand, the sticking tool is thrust into the open mouth, sharp edge downward, thus cutting the jugular veins. Withdrawing the instrument and reversing it, that is, with the cutting edge upward, the stick is made. The object of the stick is to reach the brain at the back of the head, thus producing instant unconsciousness. To attain this objective the sharp edge of the sticking tool follows along the groove of the upper mandible, pointing somewhat down the throat of the bird until the point can be felt by the fingers outside. A good stick means no further motion on the part of the bird except the one reflex action which always follows a few seconds later.

After attaching the blood can, the picking begins at once. The long wing feathers are plucked first. It should be possible to remove these before the reflex action occurs. The rule is to pluck from the tender parts first, so the start is made on the breast, taking the feathers from either side of the feather tract. After the breast, the feathers are removed in order from the neck, thigh, tail and drausticks. A certain rolling motion is observed in plucking. Both hands can be used as the bird is held in place by the weight of the blood can.

Naming the Streets

A SUGGESTION

New Street should not be called an avenue. Alden street is good enough if there is sufficient reason for locating it there. Chapman street would not be bad, though Alden is a good Belchertown name.

Community League

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Belchertown Community League Inc. was held in the basement of League hall last Friday evening. Reports were read and accepted and the following officers elected: Board of Directors, Mrs. H. F. Curtis, E. C. Howard, Mrs. E. O. Howard, Arthur Bardwell, L. H. Blackmer, Miss Marian Bardwell, R. E. Fairchild, Roswell Allen, Wm. Orlando; Clerk, A. F. Bardwell; Treasurer, G. H. B. Green.

While the financial status of the League is not all that could be desired, the stockholders present were most optimistic as to the future. The coming of the State school was an opportunity to serve the community and at the same time put itself in a business like condition.

Some of the League's constituents have been heard from in response to its recent appeal and the chances are that substantial help will be forthcoming. The taking over of the basement by the Community club has revealed new uses for the building, and the energetic action which the ladies are taking in cleaning and wiring for prospective use is putting new life into the proposition.

The League is now getting the southeast room ready to pass over to the ladies and is cutting through a double door way to connect the rooms whose joint use on many occasions would be desirable.

The League desires some day to replace the stationary seats upstairs with movable ones so that the hall will be available for fairs, bazaars, socials, etc. He, therefore, who cares for his native town to any extent will have no reason to complain of any lack of opportunity to help along the community spirit in the town he loves and incidentally write his own name on the Community League roll of honor.

As far as the motion picture business is concerned, if previous arrangements are carried out, the hall will soon be open for such entertainments and, according to accounts, everything will start off with a "whiz" and a "bang".

Second Wrestling

Bout

The second in the series of wrestling bouts on Wednesday evening, proved a big drawing card. All four classes were pulled off as scheduled and two sets of contestants had to appear on the mat a third time to force a decision.

Harold Pierce, 124 lbs., and John Wood, 120 lbs., appeared in the first class, the latter carrying off the honors in two consecutive contests. The first was won in 7 min., 40 sec., and the other in 4 min., 50 sec.

The contest between Milton Wood, 133 lbs., and Paul Aldrich, 130 lbs., was of good length, the first requiring 14 min., 40 sec. This was won by Wood after a hard tussle. Aldrich staged a sudden come-back in the second heat, winning in 5 min., but the heavier man was on top again in the last grapple which required 6 min.

Floyd Pесо, 165 lbs., who appeared last week, was on the mat again, this time with Clarence Pierce, 155. He was, however, unable to score a victory, Pierce winning the first heat in 3 min., 25 sec., and the second in 2 min., 15 sec.

The last match of the evening proved the big feature. Bertram Shaw, 175 lbs., who had a rather easy time last week with a lightweight man, appeared against Erbe Tromley, 146 lbs., of Williamsett, and met his match. Tromley had been on the mat before and what he lacked in weight, he made up in head work. Shaw, however, did himself good credit and was not an easy mark. The first time Tromley won in 14 min. but had to submit to his opponent in the next heat in 8 min., 41 sec. The crowd awaited the last appearance with expectancy. They were rewarded by a long tussle lasting 29 min., 20 sec., but the visitor came off victorious.

The contests of Wednesday evening showed that Belchertown boys have a lot to learn, but that is what they are out for, and meanwhile the crowd enjoys it. The ladies are beginning to be evident at the contests and, like those of the other sex, find that it's good enough to stay through to the finish.

Death of Melvin C. Bardwell

Melvin Curtis Bardwell, 63, died at his home early Wednesday morning after a long illness, the result of a shock sustained last October.

Mr. Bardwell was the son of Daniel and Eliza Bruce Bardwell and was born March 27, 1857, in Hopkinton. After a brief residence there and later in Cambridge, he came to Belchertown at the age of fourteen. He was married to Mary Trainor in 1883.

Besides his widow and a sister, Mrs. Hattie Atkins, Mr. Bardwell leaves nine children, Daniel of the town, Mrs. B. C. Eastman of Peabody, William of Granby, Robert of Amherst, May, Roy and Raymond in the home, and Mrs. S. G. Hill and Herbert Bardwell of Providence, R. I. There are also three grandchildren, Sylvia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Bardwell, Marie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Eastman, and Robert, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bardwell.

The funeral will be held from the home Saturday afternoon at two o'clock with burial in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Talk on Hawaii

At the evening service of the Federated church Sunday, Rev. C. G. Burnham gave a most interesting talk on Hawaii where he spent six and a half years. His descriptions of life and scenery were very vivid, and much that he said we think would be of interest to our readers. Mr. Burnham visited five of the islands, and so his impressions were quite comprehensive.

He said that these islands were 2,100 miles from San Francisco and that the whole group comprised an area about the size of Massachusetts. They are very mountainous and, in fact, are the tops of volcanoes whose bases rest far below the blue waters of the Pacific. There is considerable coral, and fences are seen of that material. The Hawaiians are good sailors and take to the water like ducks.

Their early religion was very primitive. They worshipped sharks and dead persons, and their idols were enough to give anyone the chills.

nightmare. To these hideous objects they even made human sacrifices.

Mr. Burnham's description of the "taboo" system, a part of their religion, was quite revealing. By it, the women were deprived of many of the best things of life, prominent among them being some of the nicest things to eat. As it was man-made, it showed that the men of Hawaii knew how to keep the good things to themselves. This system, however, killed itself.

The islands were discovered by Capt. James Cook and soon traders began to touch there. Unfortunately for the ignorant and to the shameful disgrace of the white people he it said that the new comers not only took advantage of the natives, but taught them new forms of death and sin, introducing liquor and other means of degradation.

In this connection, however, Mr.
Burnham said that there was later an uprising against it and a prohibitory proclamation made in 1818, twenty-eight years before the Maine law was passed. But in 1839 the French compelled the natives, at the cannon's mouth, to accept French wines in spite of the fact that some of the rulers had stood firm against it, one of them saying, "I will never sign the death warrant of the Hawaiian people."

March 31, 1820, the first missionaries reached the islands. Not all of them were ordained preachers, the company including teachers in various lines of industry. Because of the efforts of these men, the Hawaiians were soon able to send quantities of wheat to California, attract students from the states to its schools and send missionaries to the other islands.

There was no written language until the missionaries came. This was one of their first tasks. Two years afterward school books were issued in their own language, in eight years they had the four gospels, in twenty years a constitution was provided, in twenty-six years feudalism was abolished and the land divided, and in thirty-two years they had a legislative government.

In 1898 the United States took possession of the islands. One of the sights that lingered in the speaker's memory was that of a company of children of various mixtures of blood and of many languages saluting the Stars and Stripes.

In 1820 they were a people without a religion. Of their own free will they had destroyed their idols.
After 45 years of missionary work the American Board transferred its work to the Local Evangelical Association of Hawaii. In 1840 the accessions to the churches numbered 21,000.

Mr. Burnham spoke of the leper church in Hawaii to whom more than one minister, daring contagion, had gone to help the people. Not only against the name of a Catholic priest but against that of many an unheralded man who had this spirit of sacrifice were recorded the words
"died a leper".

CHAPTER V

RESIDENTS OF THE WEST ROAD

Commencing at the Belchertown-Granby line, old deeds show that this land was owned in 1824 by Urijah Underwood. He probably died soon after this date, as it appears that Urijah, Jr., of Monson sold a portion of this farm to Reuben Green in 1825. I think that Charles Underwood, who was probably a son of Urijah, came into possession of the place at about this time. There were no buildings here then and Charles built a log house about a fourth of a mile south of the present farm buildings. He married Ebalina Bennett, a sister of Welcome Bennett. It was in this log house that several, and perhaps all, of their six children were born. Later he erected the buildings now occupied by his granddaughter. With Mr. and Mrs. Underwood lived Mrs. Underwood's mother, Aunt Easter, who at nearly ninety years of age had never used spectacles and could read and do fine sewing the same as in her youth.

At the death of Charles the place came into the possession of a daughter, wife of David M. Olds, and was subsequently purchased by Rosabel Olds Putnam, the present occupant and owner.

We come next to the "Fisher place", which, barring the Morse and Stacy farm, was once the most important one in the district. In 1785 one Joseph Fisher, an elderly man, and his son, Joseph, Jr., came into possession of the place and spent the remainder of their long lives here. Joseph, Jr., had a good, old fashioned family of twelve children. One of these, Salem, was born here in 1795; he also spent the entire 89 years of his life on this farm.

He married Amanda Barrett, a sister of Dea. Leonard Barrett, one of Belchertown's ablest and most honored citizens. Salem evidently inherited some of his father's Roos-veltian ideas and to him and Amanda there were also born twelve children. To meet the needs of his rapidly increasing family, Mr. Fisher converted the one story house into a two story one. Mr. Fisher was a good farmer, and I remember when a substantial annex was added to one of the two barns and even then when both were filled to their utmost capacity, it was found necessary to store both hay and corn fodder in stacks outside.

Smith Fisher, Salem's eldest son, married Betsey Abbott, daughter of Dea. Gurdon Abbott, and a neat little cottage was built for them near the old homestead. But the lure of the city soon enticed them away and for a few years the cottage was occupied by tenants.

On this farm is an elevation almost entirely of solid rock, which is said to be nearly as high as Mt. Holyoke where the mountain house stands. In the summer of 1853 or 1854 the faculty and students of Amherst college held a great celebration here and in the presence of a large company of townspeople and many from nearby towns, with oratory and music galore, Rock Rim-on was christened, being given a Biblical name found only in the last two chapters of Judges. G.

The second demonstration of Friday afternoon was on the selection of breeders and was conducted by Prof. Banta. He said that birds for breeding purposes should be selected in January or, at the latest, in February. The best breeders are those a year old or older. Only after they have been the round of the seasons can you really judge of their ability.

The first and foremost principle in selecting breeders is that the fowl shall be from diarrhea tested stock.
Only in that way can we be sure of escaping white diarrhea in the chicks. The test is made by taking a sample of blood from the wing vein, putting it in a test tube and adding a test fluid. If the blood reacts with the test fluid, there is diarrhea in the veins, which may be transmitted to the next generation.
Therefore the first absolute necessity is that birds for breeding purposes be diarrhea tested stock. The cost of this test at the college is seven cents per bird. A fowl which has diarrhea in its veins and is useless for breeding purposes, may be kept for laying if the owner so desires.

The second rule Prof. Banta laid down is that the bird should be pure bred. This does not mean that we must use only birds which would take prizes at a poultry show, but simply that they conform to the breed qualifications. They must also have constitutional vigor and health which is indicated by the brilliant color of the comb and wattles, a bright eye, etc. A well proportioned bird has a good, short neck, well arched; a massive chest, a long body, long back, long keel bone, short, stout shanks, and short stout toe nails.

The third qualification of a hen for breeding purposes is that she be a heavy winter producer. Most fowls are in laying condition at this time of year but by observation of the bleaching process (which Prof.
Banta explained at the culling demonstration last fall) the length of time a hen has been laying can be fairly accurately determined. For instance, if the beak is bleached out, the hen has been laying from four to six weeks. If the beak and shanks both are bleached, it would indicate a long winter production.
It takes about five months laying to completely bleach out a hen.

Prof. Banta also reviewed the characteristics of a heavy layer, as shown in the distance between the pelvic bones, the soft, pliable abdomen, like a dish rag; the position of the floating ribs, right out on the surface, spread out and thin and flexible, etc.

Saturday morning an entirely different class attended the school.
The difference was not in intelligence so much as in taste. This time the fruit men came out and took the front seats—in fact the audience was mainly composed of Turkey Hill-ites.

Mr. MacDougall introduced Prof.
Drain as the speaker of the morning who gave considerable information regarding spraying. He described the merits of the various guns and nozzles. He said the spray gun was convenient to handle and feasible where there was a pressure of 250 pounds, but care should be taken on the center of a tree as it was not as thorough in its work there.

Regarding spraying seasons and materials, he said that the introduction of $\frac{1}{2}$ of a pound of nicotine sulphate or tobacco into the spray would hit a good many diseases and was practical even though it doubled the cost of the material used. He said that the bud pink spray was getting to be a popular one and in cases where scale was well controlled could be used to advantage instead of dormant spray. This should be put on when the buds show pink and should be composed of $1\frac{1}{2}$ gallons lime sulphur, $\frac{1}{2}$ pint tobacco, and three to five pounds of arsenate lead paste.
He said that "new-fangled" preparations, among them being arsenate of lead and arsenate of magnesia, had been used on trees at the college with ill effects, among them being arsenate of lime and arsenate of magnesia. In the first case one-third of the leaves were affected and with the latter one-half.

His own opinion was that powdered lime sulphur was not as good as the liquid. Regarding the advocacy of bordeaux mixture by so many spraying concerns, he said that in states farther south it could be used all right but that in the New England states lime sulphur is essential.
Prof. Drain said that there was no necessity of putting on oil spray year after year as its use after a season or two should control the scale and its use thereafter would tend to be harmful to the trees.

Peach trees, he said, should be sprayed very early without the tobacco solution and later at the time of the codling moth spray.

After this talk the party repaired to the orchard of H. F.
Curtis where suggestions were made regarding pruning, and after lunch demonstrations were held at F. E.
Austin's and J. W. Jackson's.

A larger number might have availed themselves of the opportunities of the school and have profited by the exchange of ideas which always occurs at such times, but the accentuated desire on the part of even a few to go at their occupations a little more intelligently made the school worth while.

RESIDENTS OF THE WEST ROAD

In my youthful days all roads led to Fisher's. It was the social center and the general rendezvous of the young people of the neighborhood. The latch string was always out and we were made to feel that we were welcome.

After Salem Fisher relinquished the care of the farm, his sons, Erietas Newton and George Milam, managed the place in company for a few years, the former occupying the cottage and the latter the old homestead. Later George bought his brother's interest and assumed the entire management. The cottage was sold to a near neighbor and removed.

After being in the possession of the Fisher family for more than a century the farm was sold to Patriok Mahaney, Jr., and while owned by him the old house, around which clustered so many pleasant memories, was burned. Soon after Mahaney sold to Leon Williams.

Of Salem Fisher's twelve children two only are living, Mrs. Letitia M. Gray of Allston, aged 86 years, and George M. Fisher of Hampden, aged 70 years. When George moved from town three years ago, it was the first time in 132 years that the name of Fisher failed to appear on Belchertown's list of voters.

In 1825 the next place east was owned and occupied by Francis Wilson. Seven years later Dea. William B. Owen was proprietor. He was a prominent member of the local Baptist church. His last days were spent on the farm now occupied by John J. Garvey.

The next owner was an old lady named Paine. With her lived Daniel Abbey who, I think, married her daughter. It was here that "Dr. Eschial Abbey" was born and spent his early boyhood days.

Daniel Potter, a connection by marriage, also lived here with the Abbys. He was a visionary man, full of "get-rich-quick" schemes. Every now and then he proposed to undertake big "millions in it." At one time a fortune was in sight

Saturday Clean-Up Day

The Park association, which has the upkeep of the common in charge, at its annual meeting on Wednesday evening, designated Saturday of this week as clean-up day and invites all public spirited citizens to come out to this annual event.

The officers elected for the ensuing year are F. D. Walker, pres.; J. W. Jackson, vice pres.; H. A. Hopkins, sec'y; M. S. Barten, treas.; E. C. Howard, R. L. Bridgman, M. S. Barton, E. C. Witt, L. H. Blackmer, executive committee.

Interchurch Day

Sunday might be termed Interchurch day at the Federated church. In the morning Rev. H. P. Rankin preached a sermon on the movement and referred to the great meeting which he attended in Symphony hall, Boston, on the preceding Friday evening at which John D. Rockefeller, Jr., James Henderson and Governor Millikin of Maine, three prominent men of affairs in the world, spoke convincingly of this modern cooperative plan of the churches to meet the need of the world. The present day miracle of brotherhood and cooperation were striking points in Mr. Rankin's sermon.

In the evening, by means of a reflectoscope, slides were shown which revealed the program of the whole movement. Facts regarding the Interchurch survey carried out by thirty denominations showed an astonishing condition of the world in regard to its illiteracy, its lack of doctors and hospitals in unchristian lands and the enormous death rate in such countries due to a lack of proper methods of prevention and treatment of disease.

It seems that the total budget of the Interchurch movement is $336,777,572, $3,000,000 of which is to be cared for by the Congregationalists. The Methodists have already raised their share, but nearly all of the other denominations on next Sunday will solicit pledges from all their constituents, including "friendly citizens," many of whom are planning to give large amounts.

Due to H. C. L., especially in foreign lands, and the cost of exchange, it will take more than two-thirds of the proposed three million dollars simply to maintain present educational and philanthropic work.

After the pictures showing the needs in various lands including our own America with its Bolshevick tendencies, the particular part that the Belchertown Congregational church is to play was set forth. $875 is its quota, which with the regular annual apportionment of $500 makes a total of $1,375.

The most illuminating picture of the evening was a slide made especially for the occasion by the church treasurer, which showed the percentage of members pledging to church expenses or to benevolences or to both. Like every other picture shown, it revealed the facts, something with which the Interchurch movement is deeply concerned.

The slides were made doubly interesting for the reason that various individuals explained many of them as they were thrown upon the screen.

Next Sunday afternoon subscriptions will be solicited for the regular work of the Federated church and at the same time the Congregationalists will exert their efforts toward making their goal.

When it is considered that a dollar on the collection plate has decreased in exact proportion as it has at the grocery store, the sums which are required to help the world to a safe future are not as staggering as they seem, and to the man of vision afford the only sure way of meeting the world's need in its hour of unrest.

Historical Meeting

Next

Wednesday

The annual meeting of the Historical society will be held at the library next Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock. A special program has been prepared which will include an article by G. H. E. Green on Old Taverns, and selected readings by Mrs. M. G. Ward.

New members are always welcome. The membership fee is one dollar and the dues per year a like amount.

A Treasure We Must Not Lose

Many priceless treasures we are apt to let slip through our fingers during these abnormal days, and one is the treasure of service. We feel so hard pressed by the high cost of living; we are so forcibly reminded of searing prices that our salaries or income which once would have staggered us, now no longer startle us, and we are apt to look upon a dollar an hour as a small and meager wage. With such constant emphasis upon money we are apt to lose sight of the kind of service we render. Perhaps we deceive ourselves into thinking that no amount of money can be too high for the work we render.

It is our observation that it was never so difficult to secure service as at the present time. We hope that our eyesight is defective in this regard, but this is the way we see it. We hear complaints on all sides from people that they are unable to secure service at any price. Many men no longer ask the price, so eager are they to be served. The tendency seems to be to give shorter hours with every increase in wage.

We suggest that we turn our thought from wages to service. We would that men would focus their attention for a little while on the kind of service they are rendering. We do not see life whole if we fix our eyes constantly on wage. We commend the attitude of a manager of a hotel who, finding it necessary to increase the price of a room, rendered additional service.

No enterprise can succeed in the long run unless it is built solidly upon the idea of service. The business is doomed that keeps uppermost in its mind, "How much can I get?" and not, "How much can I give?" We are of the opinion that financial conditions will get back to normal when once people put in the foreground the idea of service. When this idea dominates every man, we shall have a better world.

A delegation from the Y. P. S. C. E. attended the Northampton-Amherst Local Union meeting in South Amherst on Monday.

About twenty from the United Young People's societies attended the "Smile" social at Fairview on the same evening.

Mrs. Henry A. Paine entertained over the holiday her grandson, Earl Paine, and daughter, Betty, of Springfield, and nephew, Wesley Stockwell of West Springfield.

Geo. L. Farley, state club leader of boys' and girls' work, with Miss Erhard and Miss Powell, visited the Blue Meadow economics club meeting on Wednesday and made suggestions as to the club's work.

Mrs. Geo. E. Alderman met with a painful accident in Amherst on Monday as she was getting off the train. The location of the coach made it necessary for her to step directly to the ground and in alighting she fell and sprained her knee quite badly, necessitating her being brought home in an auto. She was on her way to attend the Unitarian conference.

Many Ways for Wasting Other Persons' Time

How much of other people's time do you waste in a day? There are plenty of ways of doing it. Not one that comes in contact with others but has a chance to waste their time. The clerk who takes forever to wrap up a package; the passenger who consumes half a minute in stepping aboard a street-car; the street car conductor who opens the wrong door or who kills your 15 minutes of meditation by his whistling; the guest who is late or early—one is as inconsiderate as the other; the worker who quits 10 minutes too soon, so as to be ready for the street when whistle blows; the employer who chooses a busy hour for one of those "conferences," which are usually a monologue spoken by himself; the clubwoman who defies all the parliamentarianism in the world with her chatter; the traveler who holds up the line at the ticket window with a series of foolish inquiries; the caller in "business" hours who has nothing to do and has decided to do it in your office; yourself, when others are waiting for you and you might easily have been ready—there is no end to the ways of waste, and nearly everyone is guilty of them.

This is no argument for a regardless haste. There are many tasks which cannot be done in haste. Deliberation and sound reflection are necessary in many of the biggest tasks which men and women have to do. But do try and be quick, live and decisive in the matters as to which such qualities may reasonably be expected. You are not slow because you are clumsy or thick-headed. You are slow because you do not stop to think of other people's time and what it may be worth to them. Guide yourself by the other fellow's feelings and you can hardly go wrong. Be slow to annoy or affront him; but where you can aid him by your alacrity you have a chance to win a blessing.

and would be realized as soon as funds could be secured to develop an iron mine on the place; unmistakable proof of the existence of such a mine was evident in the water heavily coated with iron rust found in many places on the farm.

Again a summer hotel looked good to him and there was a beautiful site for one on the very pinnacle of a high, dry hill where there was a magnificent view of the country east and south, and one could almost look down the chimneys of near neighbors; the only question was regarding water. But he professed to be an expert with the divining rod, and the rod told him that water was here. For a whole week he worked diligently and Saturday night he had a hole some ten feet deep; but his staying powers were not good and the next two weeks he rested and at the same time got a new idea. He then selected a cool, shady site in a little grove of sugar maples and started to dig a cellar over which to erect his hotel; but this, too, was soon abandoned.

The rust coated water, the partly completed well and cellar are still in evidence; but the dreamer long since passed over; but who shall say that he planned and labored in vain. I fancy that he got as much enjoyment and happiness out of his dreams and the anticipation of their ultimate realization as many more practical men get out of the results of their more profitable labors, and after all, isn't happiness the main thing?

Some time in the 50's this place was sold and Daniel Abbey and family moved to a little house on Federal St. The old homestead was occupied for a time by a family named

Death of R. B. Hawkins

The death of Rufee Bachelder Hawkins, 74, at his home early Friday morning came as a shock to his family and the community, as he was in his usual health the day previous. Mr. Hawkins was born July 7, 1846, and came to Belchertown with his wife in May, 1910. About a year ago they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Hawkins had nine children, six of whom survive. Mr. Hawkins was an earnest constituent of the Methodist church with which he was connected for many years.

He leaves besides his widow, Bert A. Hawkins and Mrs. C. H. Williams of Long Island, Mrs. G. B. Bush of Newfane, Vt., George E. Hawkins of Brattleboro, Vt., and Charles W. Hawkins and R. Delmar Hawkins of Springfield, Mass.

The funeral was held from the home last Sunday afternoon at 1.30, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Wrestling Matches

Eyes of the local bout enthusiasts bulged wide and sparkled with delight at what a good many of them termed "real bouts" presented by the management Wednesday night. The last matches perhaps opened them the widest as not a very large proportion had ever witnessed contests where many professional tactics were employed.

The opponents, Trombley of Williamsett and Guiott of Holyoke, both 150 lbs., furnished the exhibition in which there was something doing every minute. The various holds and counters were demonstrated in quiet order and called forth the admiration of the audience. Trombley won the first match in 10 min. 29 sec., Guiott the second in 5 min. 33 sec., and Trombley the third in 9 min. 26 sec.

The first bout of the evening was not so one-sided as it might have been. Clarence Pierce, 140 lbs., was up against Trombley's younger brother who is making good progress in the use of his physical powers. Although outmatched in weight

Pierce proved himself a slippery article to handle. Trombley won the first match in 16 min., but in the second gave up after 10 min. on account of an injury to his ankle. The real excitement of the evening came in the Cook-Lachapelle contest. Here the scene reminded one of baseball days when the bases were full and none out. The visitor weighed 138 lbs. to Cook's 122, but the latter had enough brains and squirm to wriggle out of most anything and almost succeeded several times in getting his opponent but the other's strength stood him in good stead. However after 28 minutes and 58 seconds, "Link" turned the trick. The second scrimmage resulted in similar fashion but took only 20 min., 18 sec.

Dr. J. L. Collard refereed, "assisted" however in one instance by "Link", who, wanting to be released when told to "break" at the edge of the mat, reached up and gave his opponent a few slaps on the back which the latter in his excitement took to be "official."

There was a large attendance at the bout which lasted until late owing to some of the participants not showing up at the appointed hour.

Two Fires

There have been two fires in Belchertown during the past week, one occurring last Saturday afternoon when the homestead owned by E. W. Parker was burned to the ground. The fire broke out in the attic and was discovered by the children outdoors. The fire department responded but was unable to save the building. A good share of the household goods was removed and efforts to keep the blaze from reaching the ice house and barn near by were successful. Mr. Parker was at the center when the fire broke out. Only a few months ago the fire department was called to a chimney fire at the same house. The loss is partly covered by insurance. The owner expects to rebuild, meanwhile occupying the Kelley tenement on No. Main St.

The alarm for the other fire at the home of John Stadler was rung in about one o'clock Tuesday morning. The slaughter house was a blaze and the roof fallen in before it was discovered. The fire department responded and succeeded in putting out the blaze which had spread to the ice house. The barn which was near by was thus saved from destruction.

Annual Historical Meeting

Twenty members of the Belchertown Historical association met Wednesday evening in the library building for the annual meeting.

The old board of trustees was re-elected which consists of Maria D. S. Longley, Marion E. Bartlett, Myron S. Barton, Harry A. Hopkins, Herbert F. Curtis, Willard A. Stebbins, Daniel D. Hazen, George H. B. Green, Everett C. Howard, Alice L. M. Kendall, Merriek A. Morse, John W. Jackson, Lewis H. Blackmer, Fred D. Walker, Lucy D. Thomson.

The following officers were chosen: president, Willard A. Stebbins; 1st vice pres., Fred D. Walker; 2nd vice pres., E. C. Howard; recording clerk, Marion E. Bartlett; corresponding clerk, Mrs. H. F. Curtis; treasurer, Lewis H. Blackmer; auditor, H. F. Curtis; custodian, Mrs. M. D. S. Longley; janitor, H. F. Curtis.

The program of the evening was furnished by Mrs. M. G. Ward and G. H. B. Green. Mrs. Ward gave an interesting paper based on Alice Morse Earle's book, "Customs and Fashions in Old New England." She began with the little Puritan baby who during the severe winters must often have suffered many discomforts unless within four feet of the big fireplace. Furthermore, the first Sunday after birth the baby must be taken to the fireless meeting house to be christened where sometimes the ice had to be broken in the christening font. At least one person preached and practised infant immersion. Such hardships as these naturally resulted in many fatalities so that the "survival of the fittest" may account for some of the endurance of our forefathers.

The boys and girls were sent to a dame school where the girls learned knitting and weaving and all housewifely arts. Fine knitting was a source of great pride and this as well as weaving was done not only for home use but for the shops.

Seeing the Bright Side

If we find that we are becoming disgruntled and fault finding and pessimistic, it would be a good thing to feast our eyes for a time on that which is not sordid. No right minded man will shut his eyes to the evil, yet he must not blind his eyes to the good. The daily press have the habit of spreading out before us every day the ills and defects and shortcomings of society; they point out the weaknesses and foibles of human nature.

But this is only a small part of the picture. Where one man falls, 99 men stand erect, and the virtues of the 99 men and their good deeds are not portrayed. Our hearts would leap for joy if we feasted our eyes on the good in the world. Of course there are enough evils existing in America at the present time to cause the heart to sink, and yet there was never a time when there were so many devoted and consecrated men doing their utmost to rebuild the world. To meditate on this is enough to restore the most disordered soul.

There are enough narrow prejudices and petty jealousies and bitter animosities in any community to cause one to sink into the slough of Despond, but he would rise to the mountains of joy would he contemplate what a blessing to the community certain choice families are.

Sometimes we are so busy looking at the defects of our fellows that we do not have the eyes to see the gold in them.

We should take particular pains to look steadily at the virtues of those who may not be congenial to us or who may dislike us. No man is all black, and if we think so, it is because we have lost our sight.

Community Club
Notes

A special meeting of the club is called for Friday afternoon of this week at four o'clock in the club rooms. This is an important meeting. Every member please attend.

There will be a military whist party in the club rooms on the evening of May 12. Military whist is good fun. All card players are urged to attend and all those who do not play cards are invited to come and learn.

At the regular meeting held Apr.
27, the following names were voted for active membership in the club:
Mrs. Maria Shaw, Mrs. Charlotte
Trainor, Mrs. Elinor Blackmer, Mrs. Melvina Cutting, Mrs. Belle Peck, Mrs. Louise Kimball.

Grange Notes

At the regular meeting of Union Grange No. 64, Apr. 20, the 3rd and 4th degrees were conferred on 21 candidates. We were glad to have with us as inspecting officer, Rev. C. H. Smith of Granby. A large number were present; light so-freshments were served and a social hour with dancing was enjoyed.

At the next meeting, May 4th, there will be an address by Prof.
Franklin E. Heald, Special Deputy of the state grange. It will be an open meeting. A. M. W.

The colonists married young and married often. What could a bachelor do alone in a new country and how could a spinster get along by herself? Widows and widowers hastened to join themselves and families to the mutual benefit of both.

The minister, important though his position was, could not perform the marriage ceremony. Any important dignitary could do this but not the minister.

One of the privileges of the bride was to select the text for the sermon on the Sunday following her marriage. In some places it was the custom for the newly married couple to sit in the gallery and during the sermon to rise and turn around several times to display their wedding finery.

Mrs. Ward's paper was followed by a talk by G. H. B. Green on Old Taverns. It seems that they were first called ordinaries, a name brought from old England. This was superseded by the term tavern or inn, while the hotel of yesterday is now the Waldorf Astoria, the Copley Plaza, etc.

We are accustomed to think of the church and school as the first requisites of the colonists but early records show that the tavern was a prime necessity, second only in importance to the meeting house. In fact towns were obliged to pay a fine if they did not have a tavern.

Moreover, the taverns must be located within so many feet of the meeting house, and tavern and meeting house were used indiscriminately for certain things, though town meetings and courts were more often held in the meeting house.

Some of the rules governing tavern or inn keeping were curious.
No one was allowed to remain at the tavern during church services. No one was allowed to smoke at the tavern and many games like quoits which we consider perfectly harmless, were also forbidden.

Along the old stage coach line which ran from Albany to Boston, there were three or four taverns located in Belchertown. They are not famous in any special way perhaps, but this one thing can be said of them: Nobody in the past or present ever claimed that any one of the four ever sheltered George Washington. In this connection it may be added that Lafayette is said to have stopped at the tavern where Henry Witt now lives and to have danced with several Belchertown girls.

Before the close of the meeting money was subscribed to pay off the last of the notes on the Holland Glen property.

CHAPTER VI

RESIDENTS OF THE SOUTH ROAD

Commencing at the end of the public highway near where Belchertown joins Granby on the west and Ludlow on the south, once stood a set of good farm buildings on a very good farm occupied by two brothers, Andrew and Solomon Howard with their families. They were here a hundred years ago and probably much earlier. This was the early home of Theodosia of school teaching fame so often mentioned in an early letter of this series.

Solomon was an influential man in the neighborhood but during the 20's he sold to Jonathan Peck, an elderly man with three sons, Abner and Absalem, (twins) and Robert G. Each of the twins stayed with and cared for the old people a few years, but in 1855 or '56 Robert came home from the city and cared for his parents and had the farm at their decease.

Robert had two daughters, Adelaide and Alice. Adelaide married Wilbur Taylor who for a time managed the farm in company with his father in law. Soon after the Civil war Robert sold to Daniel Griffin and moved to Indian Orchard.

Mr. Griffin had a large family of children and found it difficult to do much more than feed and clothe them and give them a good common school education. But one son, John, was ambitious to become a priest, and by hard work, perseverance and self denial he secured the education requisite for that position and now ministers to a large parish in Worcester county.

After a few years Mr. Griffin sold to Andrew Sears and he to Edgar Lane. While Mr. Lane owned the place the house was burned. Mr.
Lane sold to John Shea who for several years lived in an outbuilding which escaped the fire. He then sold to Tilley and Lyman, lumbermen. They erected a small house which has since been occupied by transient tenants.

On a cart road running south from here across the town line into Ludlow was formerly a house the occupants of which considered themselves residents of Turkey Hill, and children from this home attended school in Rock Rimmon. This place was known as the "Lyon place". I don't remember much about the old people, but a son, Ebenezer, and Charlotte, his sister, regularly attended the Congregational church here and were often present at social gatherings of the young people of the neighborhood. Ebenezer enlisted in '61 and died in a southern prison pen. Two other members of this family, brothers in law of Ebenezer, met the same sad fate. The daughter of one of them, Charles Crowningshield, became the wife of Rufus Lane and was a long time resident of Turkey Hill. She recently died in Maine. The buildings on this place are now fallen to decay and the once fertile fields are fast returning to their original wild condition.

There was also another home near here, a little house in the center of an acre of cleared land entirely surrounded by forest. Here lived for many years an honest, industrious couple. The man, Jacob Story, was a mulatto, and the wife, Sarah Fa-gins, a full blood Indian, high cheek bones, straight, coarse black hair, and the true copper color.

Aunt Sarah, as every one called her, was the younger and the principal bread winner. She helped the neighbors' wives with their soap making, house cleaning and washing, while Uncle Jake tilled his little acre. When there was no outside call for work they both made baskets and huck mats and peddled them around the country-side. After Uncle Jake's death Aunt Sarah lived by herself. Failing health rendered it necessary for the Ludlow authorities to care for her. No one knew her exact age but it was proven that she was more than a centenarian.

Many years ago there lived on the next farm two bachelor brothers, John and Selim Shaw. They were quiet men, attending strictly to their own affairs, and mingled but little with their neighbors. They came here from Wales to which town they returned after selling the place to Freeman Smith in the early 50's.
Mr. Smith sold to Luther Clark, a brother of Gilbert and Rodolphus
Clark. Mr. Clark sold to Nelson
Sheldon, a veteran of the Civil war.

After his death the place came into the possession of Addison D.
Moore, Sr., who built up an extensive trade in moss goods, window decorations and other artistic novelties. For several years under the name of A. D. Moore & Co., a thriving business was conducted here.

They erected a good sized work shop and employed several hands, both in the shop and in collecting moss, etc., for miles around.

The family were peculiarly adapted to this work. A daughter, with much artistic ability and skill, would design and paint pictures of the proposed decorations; the father with great patience and close attention to detail would build the models and necessary patterns; while the mother, with her book of designs, her pleasing address and wonderfully persuasive tongue would take the road as saleswoman. She did what I believe no one else could do. Her field was large and her list of customers included such houses as Seigel, Cooper & Co. of New York, Marshal Field & Co. of Chicago, Jordan Marsh & Co. of Boston, and the leading firms of Philadelphia, Baltimore and other cities. To them and others she sold window decorations, the prices of some of which reached above the $1000 figure. One Chicago firm even sent her a check for $300 to pay her expenses to that city and return that she might inspect their windows and design something especially for them.

The receipts from the business were good; the expenses, too, were heavy and the profits were not commensurate with the labor and worry involved, and the farm was sold and is now in the hands of a foreigner with an unpronounceable name. G.

Overalls

The unexpected has happened. I am in style. Some years ago I was in style for a short time. I had a new suit of clothes, custom made by a fashionable tailor. The best dressed men of the city patronized him and he clothed them in the acme of style. I stood up in that suit of clothes before a minister, unabashed by his dignified presence and the solemn promises he required "me to make to the woman who stood by my side in bridal array. I never expected to have again such an acute and pleasant consciousness of being dressed in style as I had when dressed in that brand new suit. It is still my best suit but, alas, its newness is worn away and its style is only a memory.

But now I am in style again. It is an unexpected and amusing experience. No one who knows me would think me a votary of fashion in the matter of clothes. A glance at the cut of those I have been wearing shows that fashion does not walk hand in hand with me.

My being in style is purely accidental. This is the way the accident occurred: I foresaw the need of a new pair of overalls before my gardening for the season is over and prudently determined to buy me a pair and also a jumper before the "upward tendency of the prices of cotton goods" got too far upward; and now I am caught on the crest of this wave of fashion in men's clothing that is sweeping over the land. Ministers wear overalls, judges wear overalls, teachers wear overalls, scholars wear overalls, bankers wear overalls, overalls are the rage just now. It makes one smile to think that fashion has turned pedagogue to teach us economy.

Are we sure we want fashion to have the overalls? They have been a symbol of labor. They have been the unpretentious uniform of the mighty hosts of honest laborers. They have been the garb of the workers in the hive of industry. For overalls to become fashionable enough to attract the drones to wear them will be their degradation. For one I do not relish the idea of my overalls losing caste.

There is no reason why the drones should not work and wear overalls.

Special Program at Union Grange

Those who attended the open meeting of Union Grange Tuesday evening were treated to a fine program including an address by Special Deputy Franklin Heald of the Massachusetts state grange, who spoke on The Puritans of 1920. His remarks were especially apt in these days of social unrest.

He said that some of us are in the predicament of the farmer who started to take a load of beets to market. He left the tail board to his wagon down, and in going on the uneven road the vegetables spilled out. Finally in a bad mud hole the team got stuck and the driver went back to take out some of his produce only to find that there was nothing left to unload. So, some of us with practically the same salary, hardly dignified enough to be called even a source of income, with constant economy, find we have nothing further to unload. We are in the grip of circumstances that make it very evident that a great wave of selfishness has struck the people of the United States. It may not have struck us but it has struck somebody.

Mr. Heald would have us turn back to the Puritans of 1620 and see what made them succeed amidst such overwhelming odds. He said that last December he stood on the shore at Plymouth, and as he looked out over the ice-filled harbor, tried to realize the great courage our forebears exercised in coming to this country with its cold, bleak shores where no arrangement had been made for their comfort.

We make fun of them, he said, because they quarreled on religious freedom and drove out people who did not think as they did, but they came here for the freedom that would allow them to bring up their children according to a certain belief. They came here for freedom against the profligate rule of Charles and when they found people here upsetting their belief they protested.

Their contribution to the race was of great worth. They stood for great principles, they resisted hardship, and although they died by scores, still they stuck.

Is speaking of the old New England.

Big Bout Coming

The local bout management is planning to put on a big attraction next Wednesday evening, May 13. Johnnie Devers, the champion light weight of New England, 137 lbs., will meet Tony Maruca, 145 lbs. Both are of Springfield.

Dr. J. L. Collard has seen Devers wrestle and says there is none better. A large attendance will be necessary to meet the extra expense of the coming match.

Ladies are especially invited to the next bout. In the cities the gentle sex form a sizable proportion of the audience and the management would like to see it work out in a similar way here.

The preliminary bout will be between Lincoln Cook of this town and Lachapelle of Willimansett, the popular match of last week.

Tickets will be on sale at Clark's barber shop.

Dies in Athol

Pearl Munsell, a former resident of this town, died at his home in Athol last Saturday at the age of 58. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Munsell and was born on Great Hill. He moved away some years ago and has lived in a number of places since.

He leaves besides his wife and mother, five children and two grandchildren.

The funeral was held in the chapel Tuesday afternoon at one o'clock, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Annual Meeting of Federated Church

The annual meeting of the Federated church was held in the chapel last week Thursday evening. E. C. Witt, chairman of the committee of management, presided.

The report of the treasurer, G. H. B. Green, showed a balance in the treasury. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Secretary, Lewis H. Blackmer; treasurer, G. H. B. Green; auditor, H. A. Hopkins; welcoming committee, Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Curtis, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Morse; neighbors.

There is need of laborers. Statisticians tell us this country is 4,000,000 short of laborers. The farmers are crying loudly for helpers; and because they cannot get them must plant, necessarily, less cotton and corn and wheat, and produce less milk and butter, and raise less pork and beef and other articles of food. How can it be otherwise than that there will be a shortage of food in months to come because already there is a shortage of men to wear overalls on the farms. There is urgent need for men to don overalls, but as workers, not as followers of fashion.

We should welcome the wearing of overalls as a sign of economy. There are many and serious reasons for economizing in these days of high prices and extravagant buying; and there are fine openings for the practice of sane economy and thrift. These hysterical movements like the run on overalls will not bring the reckless spenders to the practice of real economy. Many overall wearers will "spare at the spigot and spill at the bung". Overalls covering one's legs and ten or fifteen dollar shoes on the feet is not economizing. To refuse to pay twenty-five cents for a pound of sugar and then pay two or three times as much for a pound of chocolates is not economy even though you wear overalls. Do not deceive yourself, Mr. Auto Owner, into thinking you are practicing economy when you put on overalls instead of high priced woollens and crank up your machine and burn expensive gasoline on a joy ride, even if your machine is only a "Tin Lizzie." Is it economizing to buy the cheap cuts of meat for a few days and keep on smoking the high priced cigars? The economizing that will bring prices down to more normal levels and make living easier for all of us will not be a fad but a serious and sustained effort. And this effort must be directed to saving not merely in some particular line for a specified time but to saving in all possible directions till high prices come falling down. Let overalls be the sign of a genuine and consistent economy.

I have not worn my new suit yet. I shrink from the surprised looks and possible remarks of those who may see me so fashionably dressed. I shall venture forth some day and brave the looks and the remarks, but it will not be a dress parade. I shall take my hoe and go to the garden to plant some seeds I want to grow there, or to hoe some plants that are growing there, or to cut short the life of some pestiferous weeds. I shall wear my overalls as a symbol of thrift and production. These are the two most pressing economic demands made upon us in these hard times that are knocking at our doors. — Buttons.

Community Club
Notes

A special meeting is called for this week Friday at 4 o'clock in the club rooms. The meeting will be brief but the business is very important and every member is requested to attend. The regular meeting of the club will take place next Tuesday evening, May 11th. The military whist party will be held Wednesday evening, May 12, in the club rooms.

The name of Mrs. Louise Kimball which was reported for membership last week, should have been Mrs. Lillian Kimball.

Town Items

Sunday will be Mothers' day at the Federated church. Carnations will be distributed to mothers and grandmothers. The American Legion has been invited to be present.

A delegation from the local church is planning to attend the meeting of the Hampshire East Association of Congregational churches which will be held in Granby on Tuesday of next week. There will be morning and afternoon sessions. Members of the Bird club and others interested are planning to "kill two birds with one stone" and turn the trip down into a bird walk. They plan to leave the post office at 8 o'clock.

There was a meeting of the local branch of the New England Milk Producers' Association in the town hall Tuesday evening. A representative of the association at large was present and spoke.

Grange Meeting

land stock he mentioned the fact that Norman Nightingale of Petersham had just won a three mile race against the best runners in England, finishing 40 yds. ahead. He ran with that dogged determination that characterized the stock from which he sprang.

This high point of efficiency has not been attained by all. At the time of the draft Massachusetts stood 48th among the states as regards fitness. Three things, he said, were contributing factors, birth, training and education, and in connection therewith asked the question, "Is it right to educate the mind and forget the body and soul?" We must perpetuate the best in physique, intellect and in morals, both in the old stock and that which is coming to us, also full of worth.

Regarding the necessity of having some of the young people stay on the farm, he said that it had sometimes been the rule, in the case of a bright boy to make a lawyer of him, in the case of a good boy to make a minister of him, and in the case of a dull boy to let him stay on the farm.

He said, "I am not pessimistic as to agriculture but I think someone is going to come mighty near going hungry before next winter. Since the Puritans landed in 1620, we never have come as near starving out as we shall this year."

What rural New England needs is to get together. The lack of co-operation on the part of the farmers is very damaging. The recent nation wide drive of the churches has been a splendid example of team work.

Speaking of how Hadley, his own town, had coped with the problem of interesting the youth in agriculture, he said that until something was done there was a constant dropping out of scholars all during the four years of High school, until a class numbering forty or fifty would dwindle down to a handful. In two years, after courses in agriculture and home economics were introduced, the enrolment of the school doubled and 100% of the scholars in the grades entered the High school; this with a large Polish population, supposed to be interested solely in getting the children out into the fields as soon as possible.

Mr. Heald said that it was a good time to get interested in farming, stating that it was a good principle to go on to get into any essential business when everyone else is getting out of it. Present conditions are getting us very near the end of the rope. God said we must earn our bread by the sweat of our brow. He stated this, not so much as a command as an eternal law.

A 48 hour week will never feed the world: We must produce and produce enough so we will have a little time for rest, a little time for play and a little money laid by.

In 1920 we are at as important a crisis as in 1620. We need the same sterling indomitable principles. We need a little of the Puritanic sternness and harshness in doing our duty. An organization like the grange which stands for welfare, education and the noblest in life, has a great opportunity in this day and hour. We must preach in season and out of season that it is not by cutting down on hours and making life easy but only by exertion that we shall ever get ahead in this world.

The musical part of the evening's program consisted of: Piano solo, Miss Vezina; quartet, Thos. Allen, Theodore Hazen, James Aldrich, Walter Dodge; autoharp selection, Mrs. Geo. Davis; duet, Pearl Dunbar, Bernice Cook; violin solo, Harold Kimball with Mrs. Wm. Shaw accompanist; boys' trio, Theodore Hazen, James Aldrich, Walter Dodge, with Miss Bernice Cook accompanist.

Rev. H. P. Rankin gave appropriate remarks at the close. The local grange is planning to neighbor with Ludlow grange on the 17th.

The earliest resident on the next farm of whom I have any knowledge was Abner Hunt. He lived here

110 years ago and was followed by Chauncey Howard, a brother of Andrew and Solomon; he sold to an elderly couple from Leominster named Hastings. They had four boys, Jonathan, William, (who taught penmanship) Martin and Charles. Martin was an overseer in a Thorndike factory, but resigned his position and came home to care for his father and mother and have the homestead at their decease. Jonathan, the oldest son, was a bachelor and somewhat peculiar and spent his last days here with Martin.

All the young people in the neighborhood looked upon Uncle Martin and Aunt Mary as their special friends. In all of our youthful perplexities, or our contemplated business ventures we went to Uncle Martin for counsel, and it was usually safe to follow his advice. And Aunt Mary was the recipient of many girl's confidences; having no children of her own, she took an interest in all the girls of the neighborhood and her counsel was of the best.

When the burden of years no longer permitted Uncle Martin to care for his farm, he sold to a young married couple, the groom 19 years of age and the bride 18. He did what few men would care to do. He took notes for the entire purchase price of the farm, stock and tools. But he knew his customer; he had watched his growth from a small boy and knew he had energy and enterprise and felt sure that he would succeed. And it was here that A. D. Moore, Jr., started to carve his fortune.

After starting several lines of farming which looked promising, he commenced the manufacture of ice cream, first by hand power, then by horse power and later by gasoline engine. He was eminently successful in this and soon outgrew the capacity of his plant and sought a wider field of activity. He then sold to Peter Smola. Though Peter is a son of Poland he takes readily to American ways, is honest, industrious and progressive. His wife is a worthy helpmeet and they enjoy the confidence and respect of their neighbors.

A little north of here, just off the highway, once stood a small, low, brown house. Many years ago Joseph Bennett and his good wife Easter lived here; their children whom I knew were Welcome, (whose name has many times appeared in these letters) Eberlina, (wife of Charles Underwood) Jefferson and Lemuel. Seventy years ago Lemuel lived here with his mother. He was a blacksmith and built a shop near the road where he did general jobbing for several years. Later when this small farm was merged with another and larger one, this shop was sold to Charles Combs and is now the dwelling where Mr. Humphrey lives.

When Lemuel tired of his shop, the place was sold to "Jimmie" Melvena who was the first Irishman to own land in this part of Belchertown. Like most of his nationality, he had a large family of bright children and when they were old enough to go into a factory to work he sold the place and moved to a mill town.

The Packardville church which has twice won in an attendance contest with West Pelham was defeated in the final race, and last Friday night provided supper for both of the churches. About 100 were present. Piano, violin and vocal music and two short plays "Answering the Telephone" and "Taking the Census", made up a very pleasing entertainment for the after supper hour. John D. Willard spoke in the church Sunday in the interests of the Interchurch World Movement.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Herrick have moved to the Hatch place for the summer.

Rollin Mead, who recently sold his farm in North Belchertown, has rented a place in Springfield and expects to move soon.

Wrestling Bout in Town hall 8 p. m.

The Wrestling Bout

The wrestling bout of Wednesday evening attracted a large crowd of sporting enthusiasts which included besides townspeople a number of former residents and others from neighboring towns and cities. Although the crowd was mostly masculine there were a number of ladies present who occupied special seats in the gallery. These seemed to enjoy the display of skill and strength which characterized the contests of the evening.

The main match between John Devers 137, and Tommy Maruca 147½ both of Springfield, the former the champion light weight of New England, gave the crowd a taste of the real article in wrestling. Devers lost the first contest in 2 minutes but in the second proved himself a real master of the game, although after 1 hour, 6 min., 10 seconds he was unable to secure a fall on his heavier opponent, who yielded on account of wrenching his arm, thus giving the honor to Devers, who after the strenuous hour was as fit as ever. The nerve and quick action on the part of both, together with many funny side plays, won the admiration of the audience.

The preliminary bout was between Jimmie Griffin 130, of Springfield and Lincoln Cook 120, of this town, the only local boy appearing on the mat this week. Cook was out with the goods but found himself up against a heavier staying proposition, and lost out in 16 min., 40 sec.

A new mat recently purchased by the management was used for the first time Wednesday night. J. L. Collard was referee and Hughes, timer.

Between the acts a darkey, L. F. Wilson of Springfield, amused and delighted the audience with his banjo music, plantation melodies, stories and sleights of mouth stunts.

Arrangements have been made for another bout between Devers and Maruca to be pulled off in the town hall here May 26. The colored entertainer has also promised to be present.

The management appreciates the patronage of the ladies this week and trust it means an even larger number later.

Loses in So. Hadley Falls

The Belchertown High school lost to South Hadley Falls High in an interesting game of baseball Wednesday afternoon, by a score of 10 to 7. The team the local boys played against has had a clean slate so far this season.

Following was the line-up for Belchertown: Whittier p., Barrett c., T. Hazen 1st base, J. Sullivan 2nd base, H. Hazen 3rd base, Lynch s. s., W. Bardwell l. f., F. Wood c. f., Fitzgerald r. f., subs., Guy Allen, 3rd, L. Osborne.

A return game is planned for a week from tomorrow. The local team went to New Salem last Saturday to play them a return game but owing to the rain there was nothing doing.

Priscilla Shower

An inadvertent reference late Monday afternoon to "the shower tonight" informed Miss Mildred Terwilliger of the coming event.

Although her attention was called to the black cloud in the west, the cat was out and refused to be bagged again.

A wedding without the groom is usually postponed, but a Priscilla shower without a "John" is merely delayed: And "John", in spite of obstacles, finally reached the side of his Priscilla in time for the last act and, incidentally, in time for refreshments. While awaiting the opening of festivities, the young people played games or gathered about the piano for a sing, while their elders sat around in cosy groups and were interested on-lookers.

The chapel and Priscilla rooms were a very attractive setting for this event, flowers, rug, sofa pillows, etc., giving a home-like touch. Hither the bride-to-be was escorted by her sister Priscillas. Soon she found herself "on a string." Blindfolded she followed it from kitchen to parlor, around stoves and chairs, upstairs and down, ever winding the cord which drew her to the goal. Here in a corner of the Priscilla parlor, with "Stace" at last by her side, she drew from their wrappings gift after gift, from her B. H. & classmates, from her fellow employees, from relatives, from friends. Everything was beautiful and useful, from the ten dollar gold piece of her classmates to the silver and linen, pyrex ware and pantry necessities from other friends.

Following their time honored custom of pre-war days, the Priscillas served ice cream (the real article) and cake with old fashioned frostings. Thus closed a very pleasant evening which, in spite of schemes "gang aft a-gley", was a most successful affair.

Dies in Hadley

The death of T. J. S. Parsons in Hadley Sunday removed a man for many years identified with the life of Belchertown. Although for the last twenty years a resident of Hadley at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Geo. E. Smith, he still maintained his citizenship here and was a perennial election day visitor. Age seemed to have little effect upon him and his last days found him with mind and will unshaken. He quietly passed on at the age of 95.

Mr. Parsons was the son of Benjamin Parsons and was born in Wilbraham Feb. 4, 1825. About seventy-five years ago he came to Belchertown and married Margaret A. Weston, who died in 1893. Mr. Parsons grew up with the old time industries of Belchertown, experiences relative to which he delighted in relating in later years. He was one of the founders of the Farmers and Mechanics club.

Mr. Parsons leaves two daughters, Mrs. Edward W. Smith of Amherst and Mrs. Geo. E. Smith of Hadley, and one son, Lawrence Parsons of New York City and of Belchertown. Seven grandchildren also survive, Mrs. Susie Hamilton of Boston, Walter Hawes of New York City, Mrs. Russell Dexter of Detroit, Robert O. Smith of St. Davids, Pa., Mrs. Max Clark of North Hadley, Edmund Smith of Hadley and Mrs. Chas. M. MacNeill of New York City.

The funeral was held in Hadley Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock with interment in Mt. Hope cemetery in Belchertown. The funeral and committal service were in charge of Rev. A. H. Hope of Hadley.

A Subscriber's Letter

Barre, Apr. 27, 1920

To the Editor of the Belchertown Sentinel,
Belchertown, Mass.

I am very much interested in the Turkey Hill articles. Bugbee and Fisher were familiar names. My mother, Irene Howard, came from that district. I wonder if your correspondent, "G", knows of my grandfather who lived there, Andrew Howard. He was an old Revolutionary soldier. I used to go up there when a small child. My uncle, Solomon Howard, moved with his family when I was six years old to Wisconsin, and my grandfather and grandmother, (who was Clarissa Clark of Easthampton) went to live with them and died in Wisconsin. My uncle, S. Howard, carried on the farm and my grandparents lived with him.

I very well remember at one Thanksgiving time, of being thrown out on the Bugbee hill. The harness broke at the top of the hill, and father, mother and I were all thrown out, none of us seriously hurt.

My father's first wife was Clarissa Howard. My mother was Irene Howard, a younger sister, who died at my birth. The third wife was Esther Williams, a sister of Jesse Williams. Merrill Williams, his son, still lives in Belchertown, as of course you know.

I doubt if the old farm house is standing. I would like to go into the neighborhood and see if I could find it; there was an Underwood family living not far from there.

Belchertown is a town of strangers to me now, but once I knew everybody. I visited Mrs. Hazen (to whom I sold my old home) two years ago. They have renovated it until I hardly recognized the interior.

Sincerely,

Irene Finley Bassett

Grange Notes

For the regular meeting for May 18, there will be a miscellaneous program followed by a box lunch. The final chapter by Mrs. H. F. Curtis of the original serial story will be postponed until a future meeting.

All essays on Spring, Summer, Autumn, Winter, must be handed in at this date. It is urged that the young members take part in these contests to the mutual benefit of themselves and the Grange. First and second prizes for best productions will be awarded. The prize winning essays will be read at the June 1st meeting.

Transportation of Grange members to Ludlow, May 17th, can be had by applying to C. R. Green, Wilfred Noel or Everett Howard.

Geraldine Howard, Lecturer

Dies in Dayton, Ohio

The death in Dayton, Ohio, recently of Mrs. Martha Hawes, a native of Enfield and later a resident of Belchertown and always interested in the town of her sojourn, calls forth the following comments from Mrs. C. F. D. Hazen, who is a connection of the family:

"Martha Tucker Hawes was the oldest of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Tucker's three daughters. She spent her girlhood days at the Tucker home on New St. She was married to Calvin Hawes by the Rev. Samuel Wolcott and went to Dayton, Ohio.

"There were two sons. One was drowned; the other married and his wife died and he soon followed her, and Mrs. Hawes was left alone. Her sister Clara and husband with two little girls were in Chicago and they moved into her home. When Mrs. Isenberg died three years ago, her home was nearly broken up again.

"Mrs. Hawes had a kindly interest in us and has helped in various ways when the people felt like calling on old friends for aid."

RESIDENTS OF THE SOUTH ROAD

Continuing north, at the top of the hill we come to the "Andy" Sears place. This farm formerly included land east of the highway, and long ago was owned by Levi Chapin who in 1813 sold it to Calvin Bugbee, who with his wife Betsy lived here nearly forty years.

But when they became enfeebled by the infirmities of age, Calvin decided that portion of the farm east of the highway to his son, Elbridge G. A house was erected thereon and when I came to Turkey Hill in 1850, Elbridge with his second wife, Amanda Bunstead, was living there with his mother, the father having died a short time before.

Some time prior to this, the old homestead with the land on the west side had been sold to Dwight Daniels. In 1852 Daniels sold to Samuel Sheldon who lived here about twenty years. In his family were six children, only one of whom, Mrs. Martha Shaw of Chicopee, an osteogenarian, is now living. The two sons, Simeon and George W., died in their early manhood. George was a singer of some ability and taught singing schools in nearby towns. He and I were very unlike, and perhaps for that very reason were mutually attracted to each other; at all events we were boon companions as long as he lived.

After his death Mr. Sheldon sold to John Keefe who after a few years sold to Patrick Sears, fresh from the gold fields of California, who came here with his youthful bride and spent the remainder of his life here, leaving the farm to his son, Andrew Jackson, the present occupant.

Now returning to the red house across the way where we left Dea. Bugbee and his family. The household included at this time besides his wife and mother, Calvin 2nd, a son by a former wife, (Eliza Ann Stebbins) and two children of his second marriage, Rose Ann Eliza and Albert Elbridge. Rose was a more than ordinarily attractive girl. She was bright, capable and of marked ability along certain lines.

In her life time she had many varied and interesting experiences both in the east and in the west, and one with a ready pen could weave a most entertaining romance, simply recording the real, unvarnished facts as she encountered them in her life's journey. But that journey is now ended and she peacefully sleeps in the same little plot in Mount Hope where rest the ashes of her father and half brother.

Albert, another of my intimate boyhood mates, before reaching his majority, adopted the advice of Horace Greeley; "Go west, young man, and grow up with the country." In 1868 he entered the town of Paynesville, Minnesota, driving an ox team. Here he was later joined by his mother and sister. For five years he taught school in Paynesville and vicinity, after which, until about ten years ago he was extensively engaged in farming. He was also senior member of the firm of Bugbee and Schwartz, druggists, though not actively engaged in the business. For many years he was school treasurer of his district and for twenty-eight years was secretary of the local Masonic Lodge. During his fifty years' residence in Paynesville, he was elected town clerk for forty-five consecutive years, resigning after his forty-fifth election. These facts indicate the esteem in which he was held by his townspeople. Aug. 3, 1919, after suffering a year and a half from an incurable disease, he was released from his sufferings; but he left a record worthy of commendation. Thus year by year my Rock Rimmon school mates are passing; four only are now left.

In 1869 the Bugbee homestead was sold to Reuben Green and his sixteen acres were merged with his other lands. That year the house was occupied by George Keyes, but in the spring of 1870 the writer of these letters took up his residence here where he remained for nearly twenty years, since which time it has been occupied by various tenants. The Social Guild will meet next Tuesday afternoon at 3.30 at the home of Mrs. M. D. S. Longley to complete plans for the sale and supper to be held the 26th.

Roland Sparrell of Boston expects to give an entertainment in Community hall in the near future. Mr. Sparrell lived in town for several years and during his residence here was quite marked in his ability to impersonate, an art in which he later took special training.

The Catholic Mission supper and play, which for one reason or another has been postponed from date to date, is now definitely advertised for next Tuesday evening, May 18. The supper will be served in the lower rooms of Community hall and the play, "Captain Jack," in three acts, will be given in the audience room above. This will be the first public supper served in the hall since its transformation into a community house. The renovating of the main room below by the Community club has helped to make the room available.

A carrier pigeon alighted on the premises of H. F. Curtis last Friday. The bird was evidently weakened from flight or had become disabled. It bore a band with a serial number and the owner's identification mark.

Will Run Famous Picture

The Chauncey D. Walker Post of the American Legion is to present a moving picture entitled "Heroes of the World" in Community hall, Monday evening, May 24.

This is a twelve reel drama and is called the greatest war picture ever produced. It was made from photographs actually taken on the field of battle.

The bringing of the show here will be a matter of $75, but the Post expects that there will be a large attendance, especially in view of the fact that the admission fee elsewhere has been anywhere from 75 cents to $2.50, while the price here will be 50 cents.

The Poverty Party

"That poverty party was an eye-opener for me, Cyrus, I can assure you. I went to it chiefly to get a few ideas regarding how to get along more economically on our meagre income and I tell you I'm just chuck full of real good ideas."

"Well, that's en—"

"You bet it is. Why Cyrus, here's one idea I got especially for you. It will like as not save from $8 to $10. Several of the folks had on shoes that didn't match. One would be yellow, another black, or one would be black and the other white, and 'twas the same with stockings. Lads and lassies matched up pink with white and all sorts of combinations you could imagine. It shocked me at first, but do you know, 'twant long before I just found my eyes following those pretty colors. Why, Cyrus, it came over me all of a sudden that if we use just a little bit of sense, you know, we could come out in something sort of distinctive."

"Well, say —"

"Yes, and of all the labor saving devices, Cyrus! Why, I've found that like as not I can save at least ten minutes a day just letting my hair hang as it will, and save expense on pins and ribbons and what not besides. These girls did look so charming that way too."

"Look here —"

"Yes, I wish you could have seen the whole business. Why Cyrus, you know that old stove pipe hat up in the attic. Well, it's all perfectly proper for you to wear that right out to your farm work. You've no idea how it will set off a pair of blue overalls, pink stockings and yellow —"

"Stop, stop —"

Catholic Mission Supper and Play

The long, double line of automobiles and filled horse sheds at the center Wednesday evening was sufficient evidence of the fact that another Catholic function was in progress. This time the favored spot was Community hall which, as its name implies, is the common meeting ground for the community. The christening supper in the lower rooms was served to a large number who came and went with hearts' content, thanks to the efforts of Mrs. Garvey and her loyal assistants.

The play which followed in the main auditorium was well given. Irish in setting, it was perfectly adapted to those who presented it. Capt. Gordon, in the person of William Costello, commands a detachment of his Majesty's soldiers hunting Irish outlaws. While English by birth, he has strong sympathies for the Irish and is reluctant to arrest his old friend, John Driscoll, (Robert Quirk) who, he finds, is the rebel leader. Squire Shannon in the person of John Sullivan, who has sued for the reluctant hand of the rebel's sister, Aline, (Bridget Griffin) will not use any influence towards his release unless she will accept him. This she will not do and the beloved brother is doomed at sunrise. Nellie Shannon (Mary C. Sullivan), the Squire's daughter, who has previously been rescued by the hunted outlaw, now seeks his rescue and invokes the aid of Barney Donovan (John Brown) who cleverly turns the trick. This leads to a real courtship between the outlaw and Aline. The unfortunate man is, however, retaken by the soldiers but is unexpectedly released by a pardon secured through the efforts of Capt. Gordon, who had resigned his position because of his strong Irish sympathies. Other characters in the play were Teddy Burke (William Donahue); the informer, Tim Burns, (Harold Donahue); the half-witted lad, Lieut. Rodgers, (Michael Donahue); Kate Kelley, a colleen, (Ella Hanifin); and Mary, a servant at the Squire's, (Mildred Sullivan).

The costumes of the actors were most appropriate and all the parts were well taken. The background of the stage consisted of three large

Motor Truck Fleet Visits Town

A fleet of nearly twenty motor trucks rolled into Belchertown Wednesday noon and caused the inhabitants to saunter forth to hear what was to be said regarding the "Ship-by-Truck" movement which is the latest "movement" in this locality.

This is "good roads week" and the motor fleet with several speakers on board is touring towns on the highways of travel, trying to emphasize the wisdom of shipping the motor way and the necessity of good roads in helping to make it possible.

After a dinner at the Park View, the party climbed aboard the "band wagon" and had their little say. D. D. Hazen, president of the Board of Trade, introduced the speakers, first calling upon Col. Anderson of Springfield who in his happy way told the story of the trip and impressed his hearers with the need of constant attention to the highways, which were in large measure to control the growth of the future. "It may mean high taxes," he said, "but people had just as soon pay double the taxes if only the roads past their homes are really benefited." He spoke of the motor way as the quick way in these days of congestion on the railroads and called attention to the importance of good roads to farms and country estates in order to attract the city dweller.

M. A. Morse followed, stating the prospects of Belchertown being on the highway of travel as a result of the Federal road (which he trusted would be given that distinct name) passing through Belchertown.

Mr. Starr of Springfield, introduced as the star speaker, paid Belchertown a compliment with an airy statement. He said that all those who had ever traveled from the Atlantic to the Continental divide or from Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, would hardly disagree with the statement that there were few places more naturally beautiful and attractive than Belchertown, and it was up to its citizens to capitalize that advantage and trusted that the future generation would help to make it a beautiful place for thousands. As a means in bringing this natural beauty to the attention of the world, he, of course, advocated better roads.

The Work of a City Planner

There has come to our office this past week a copy of a recent issue of the Lewiston (Me.) Journal, together with a large supplement containing a comprehensive plan for the city of Auburn, just across the river.
This plan is a definite proposal for the city's growth for a long term of years and is the work of Myron
H. West of the American Park
Builders of Chicago, Ill. Mr. West is a Belchertown product, and as in the case of others who have gone from town and made good, we desire to share the credit.

To one who is not familiar with the work of a city planner, it is somewhat of a revelation to discover the amount and variety of information necessary for the task. He must know the city's industrial past and its prospective future, its physical location as regards the great arteries of commerce, its needs as regards railroads, schools, public buildings, parks, playgrounds, water supply, sewers, etc.; he must be able to plot out new streets, new factory districts and the like so that with growth may come beauty and a sense of proportion; also he must be able to reshape with the least amount of effort and expense any distorted lay-out already existing; and in all his planning he must combine art, beauty, utility, simplicity and economy.

While there may be nothing compulsory about adhering to a city's plan, experience has proven that most municipalities are glad to have something definite to go by, and the plan of which we write is being given full publicity in the cities mentioned in order that every individual may glimpse the ultimate goal and so far as any decisions rest with him, to help him to shape his plans accordingly. Instead of every man for himself the idea involves the more modern way of each for all.

Besides, this new attitude saves for those who take the long look ahead an immense sum of money. We commend the painstaking work of Mr. West and the principle which his work involves.

Motor Truck Fleet

and closer connections with the cities.

In response to a question by Mr.
Morse at the close of the speech, as to whether Belchertown might be in line for any definite assistance from the automobile club of Springfield, Col. Anderson stated that if such appeals were put in black and white, he would present them at the proper time and thought that they would receive considerable attention.

The bugle meanwhile was sounding and the fleet sailed away; the school children with an extended noon hour hurried back to school, the store keepers unlocked their temporarily closed doors, the worker returned to his place of work and the men of retirement to their secluded abodes, each with his own idea as to the possibilities in this comparatively new field of endeavor.

Impersonator Coming

On Tuesday, May 25, John Randolph or Randolph Sparrell, a former Belchertown boy who needs no introduction, comes to Community hall with a program of impersonations and sketches from plays. We quote as follows from his advance notice:

"The death of Fagin' from Oliver Twist shows his dramatic talents to good advantage, while a burlesque of an 'Opera Singer' is the direct opposite.

"The program is mostly humorous until the final sketch from the famous play, 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr.
Hyde'. It is hardly believable to realize that there is but one person acting the two characters. A prominent New York producer recently said he had not seen it better given since Southern.

"The New York Times says of this program: 'We have never seen so varied a program so well acted; special mention goes to 'Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde.'"

The entertainment will begin at 8 o'clock sharp.

Although the attendance at Union pleasing end. The evening closed

THE LADIES' AID

The old church bell had long been cracked.

Its call was but a groan
It seemed to sound a funeral knell
With every broken tone.

"We need a bell," the brethren said
"But taxes must be paid;
We have no money we can spare—
Just ask the Ladies' Aid."

The shingles on the roof were old;
The rain came down in rills;
The brethren slowly shook their heads
And spoke of "monthly bills."

The chairman of the board arose
And said, "I am afraid
That we shall have to lay the case
Before the Ladies' Aid."

The carpet had been patched and patched
Till quite beyond repair,
And through the aisles and on the steps
The boards showed hard and bare.
"It is too bad," the brethren said;
"An effort must be made
To raise an interest on the part Of members of the Aid."

"Ah," said the men, "the way to heaven

Is long and hard and steep;
With slopes of care on either side,
The path 'tis hard to keep.

We cannot climb the heights alone;
Our hearts are sore dismayed;
We ne'er shall get to heaven at all Without the Ladies' Aid!"

Turkey Hill of Long Ago

RESIDENTS OF THE SOUTH ROAD

We came now to our journey's end, to the farm now known as "Fruitlands". It was here that more than sixty years of my life were spent.

One hundred ten years ago this farm was owned by Horatio Rice, but a few years later was sold to John Hunt. Early in the 30's it came into the possession of a certain widow who, with her son, occupied the small house then on the place.
The reputation of this widow was not all that might be desired. In fact her conduct was such that the good people of Turkey Hill were highly indignant. Matters finally reached such a stage that a godly number of them held a meeting to devise ways and means whereby the neighborhood might be relieved of her presence. Soon after when she and her son were out of town for the day, the plan adopted at this meeting was put into effect.

The men of the neighborhood gathered in true western vigilance committee style, broke into the house, carried all of the furniture out on to the lawn, then tore down the house, not even leaving the chimney standing. When the widow returned in the evening her only shelter was a dilapidated old barn. Becoming suspect that her presence here was unwelcome, she wisely gathered together her few belongings and like the Arab of old, "folded her tent and silently stole away," taking up her residence in another town and county.

In 1836 she sold the farm to Reuben Green for $450. At that time the place was incapable of keeping one horse and a cow. Mr. Green had a small amount of money left after paying for the place and at once commenced to build a very good house on his recently acquired property. When his funds were exhausted he would halt operations until more could be procured.

In those days our cotton factories were run almost exclusively by native born Yankee help. It was to the factories that many farmers' wives and daughters looked for their cash incomes, often working there a few weeks at a time as opportunity allowed. Both Mr. and Mrs.
Green worked in the mill a portion of each year to enable them to continue their home-making operations.
This was continued for eight years,
at which time the home was practically finished; a few thousand shingle to cover the roof of a shed was all that was needed to complete the house which had been furnished and occupied for a season.

One day in June 1845 Mr. Green drove to Pratt's mill on East Hill for those shingle. On his return in the afternoon, when about two miles from home he noticed a heavy column of smoke arising in the direction of his house. Soon becoming satisfied that a building was burning, he drove to the roadside, un-hitched one horse, and mounting him galloped home to find the work of eight long years going up in smoke.

The next event clearly illustrates the neighborly spirit of sympathy and helpfulness which for many years has been a prominent characteristic of Turkey Hill. A neighborhood meeting was held the evening following the fire. It was not a vigilance committee meeting this time to plan destruction, but a helpful gathering anxious to assist a neighbor in trouble. Among those present was a competent builder who quickly drafted a plan for a house similar to the one that was burned.
He made out a bill of the timbers required to build it, and said to Mr.
A., I want you to furnish so many timbers of given dimensions, passing him a memorandum fully describing the same. To Mr. B. and others similar directions were given. This was Thursday evening.

At sunrise Friday morning every stick of timber that is in the frame of the house which has sheltered the inmates of this home for many years (and is still doing service as an L to the larger part erected in 1883) was growing in the forests. But each man with his help and oxen went on to his own wood lot, cut the trees that would make the timbers required of him, hewed them and drew them to the scene of yesterday's fire.
Saturday the frame was raised, and before the fire was out in the cellar the building was covered, a good record, I think, not simply of speedy work, but of helpful, practical Christianity.

Reuben Green spent the remainder of his life on this place, passing on in 1886 at the age of 82. At that time the writer came into possession of the place which had been his home since 1850 and on which

American flags. The scenery, while not as elaborate as when presented in Bondsville on account of the inconvenience in getting it here, was tastily arranged.

Between the acts vocal solos were given by William Costello and Miss Mary C. Sullivan with Mrs. Marguerite Carter as accompanist. Miss Anna Shea also presented an instrumental solo.

Father McGrath of Bondsville, who was a prominent figure at the supper and in the management of the play, took the opportunity to explain between the second and third acts that it had been over two months since the play was put on in Bondsville. He also made a few general comments regarding amateur plays, stating that they tended to broaden one's vision of life and make the common days happier.

Nearly two hundred saw the performance and were highly appreciative of it. While some of the participants are not very frequently seen at the center, they belong in a real sense to Belchertown and are interested in it.

Memorial Day Exercises

Memorial Day exercises will be held Monday under the direction of the G. A. R. assisted by the Chauncey D. Walker Post of the American Legion.

The morning program, which begins at 10 a. m., will include the ceremony of decorating the graves of fallen comrades and the planting of three trees in memory of our boys lost during the World war. At the afternoon exercises which begin at 1.30, the principal address will be given by John D. Willard.

Fast Wrestling Match

A fast wrestling match was pulled off in the town hall on Wednesday evening. Owing to an injury received this week in the shop where he was working, Tommy Maruca was unable to appear against Johnnie Devers as scheduled. Bob Goodheart of Springfield, however, met the New England champion and proved himself a worthy substitute. He very soon won the admiration of the audience by the clean game which he put up, but lost the bout to Devers.

The first honors went to the champion whose 137 lbs. outmatched his rival of 135 lbs. The heat lasted 32 minutes. Goodheart however came back in the next contest and won in 19 minutes by a head scissors arm lock and body bar. The last match went to Devers in 18 minutes by an arm bar and arm lock. Birmingham of Palmer refereed and Dr. J. L. Collard was time-keeper. The skill of both contestants in maneuvering and in extricating themselves at critical moments brought forth considerable applause from the audience.

The preliminary bout was between James Aldrich 120, and Walter Dodge 116. The pair was evenly matched and it was 45 minutes before the contest was decided. Dodge proved himself worthy of his name but had to yield. The contest was served up with a number of flap jacks and turnovers. This bout was refereed by Collard.

Prof. Wilson, the darkey entertainer, did not show up to amuse the onlookers but Eben Campbell with his coon song, although given minus the costume, brought down the house and incidentally a shower of pennies on the mat. These he began to pick up with alacrity, but it soon became a discouraging task.

At the close of the contests Goodheart expressed the desire to meet

"Old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." Time was when the funny man of the newspapers could get away with almost any old joke about the newlywed and her ludicrous and pathetic attempts to cook even the simplest dishes. But today we are in a new world. "Old things are passed away."

You realized it Wednesday evening if never before, when the two Junior Home Economics clubs gave an exhibit in the chapel of their three months' work. You knew it when you heard a girl ten years old giving her recipe for short cake "which I often make for supper". From the measuring of the flour to the piling on of the whipped cream, I am sure that the work was done perfectly and that that short cake would just melt in your mouth.

You realized it anew when another member with a Dutch hair cut, who was doing second year work, told of her experiences in making her bloomer and middy suit. Her father had bought the material for her and, woman fashion, she assured him that it was all right, although at a glance she realized that it was not like the other girls' khaki. We can imagine how cutting and sewing the heavy material tested her courage and perseverance. Her record reads thus: "The cloth was pretty hard to cut. I broke five needles in basting and when I stitched it on the sewing machine I broke two needles. But I didn't have the right size of needle so it was simply a case of wait."

And when you saw the sewing done by these girls, the garments stitched with painstaking care, the beautifully fine stocking darning, the lovely crocheting, when you looked at the bread, the cake, the doughnuts they had made,

... the wonder grew That one small head could carry all (s)he knew."
Miss Erhart's comment after hearing the record of one member was, "I should think that girl had better go into business, either open a tea room or start a hotel." Surely, "Old things are passed away."

Miss Erhart explained that the Entertains with Impersonations

In the midst of a very busy week as regards social events, Randolph Sparrell came back to Belchertown to show his fellow townsmen that he was just the same, yet considerably different from his usual self.

His impersonations of Tuesday evening attracted a number who were very pleased with his ability which is quite marked in the profession in which he is engaging. He presented a varied program, the initial number of which was a scene at the station where a crowd of people with varying prospectives awaited the train for the town where the big circus was coming. This presentation, together with "So was I," "Willie's first attempt at reciting in school," and the "Shop Girl" were numbers appealing to those desiring comedy, while "The old man looking backward," "The death of Fagin," and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" were of a more serious or tragic nature and appealed to those desiring classical productions.

To those familiar with the classic in music, the burlesque of an "opera singer" was a good take off while the pantomime of a duel scene from David Garrick was a novel feature of the program.

After "Mr. Hyde" had died, the company parted with remarks complimentary to the entertainer of the evening.

Mrs. Wm. E. Shaw was accompanist on the musical numbers and rendered several piano solos.

Birthday Party

You knew all about the birthday party in the chapel Wednesday evening; you were invited to it; and still you were really surprised, weren't you? You hardly thought it was much more than a pretense to get you there, but you found that you were really wanted; that your place had been saved for you; that the decorations were in keeping with your natal day; that your birthday cake was awaiting you, replete with candles and that your fellow townsmen born under your lucky star were by your side. No matter where you sat or in what month you were born, the table decorations were both appropriate and attractive.

The Price of Freedom

Nothing that is of value to us is ours without the payment of a great price. We pay a good price for a meal or a suit of clothes or a field or a house. No man is patient without a cost which cannot be reckoned in dollars and cents. A kindly disposition does not come to us without years of toil and sacrifice.

Oftentimes the price is paid not by ourselves but by others. We have known of young men who secured an education because their fathers rose long before daybreak each day for years and because their mothers denied themselves necessities. Freedom, which is the special possession of America, did not come to us without the payment of a great price.

Our Pilgrim fathers established here a free country. They came to these shores to plant a free church, a free school, and a free government. They came here in order that they might worship God according to the "dictates of their own conscience." However imperfect a freedom they gave us, it is certain that they stamped America with the spirit of liberty. But these Fathers did not bring freedom without paying a great cost. They were despised and forsaken at the time. They were the most unpopular people in England. A so-called Christian king, James I, declared he would make these men conform or else he would harry them out of the land. They refused to conform; they resented the tyranny; they declined to be in bondage. They were driven out. That was the price they paid to give us freedom.

Our Revolutionary fathers founded a free nation and wrote for us the Declaration of Independence which was the most remarkable charter of human rights the world had ever seen. But these men signed it in blood.

Perfect freedom did not come with the signing of the Declaration of Independence. A race of people came to us, and we bound them in fetters, and forced them to our tasks. And the boys of '61 to '65 broke those shackles for the Negro race, and gave to America human freedom. And the price that was paid in order that this nation might not be half slave and half free, the few G. A. R. men who yet remain can tell.

And yet we were not free. It seems only yesterday when we were sending our men across the Atlantic in the defense of Belgium and France and England. Soon we were saying that we were out to establish democracy in all the world, to free all the nations, even Germany herself from tyranny, and to lift all weak peoples up into their proper rights, and to see that justice was done to nations small and large. The Allied armies won for us world freedom. And the price paid was gigantic, and can never be measured.

This freedom which has been won for us we must preserve. It is sometimes harder to maintain freedom than to win it. These dead must not have "died in vain".

Have You These Accessories?

- TIRE AIR GAGE: Tires do not have to be flat to be under-inflated. The only safe way is to test inflation of all tires—including spare—frequently.
- JACK AND JACK HANDLE: The first thing you need, if you have tire trouble on the road.
- PUMP: Inspect pump frequently to be sure you can get proper air pressure.
- VALVE INSIDES: Slow leaks or under inflation can often be traced to dirty or worn valves.
- SPARE TUBE IN BAG: You won't be sure you have a serviceable tube when you need it, unless you dust it with talc and put it away in a tube bag.
- BLOWOUT PATCH: A break on the inside of your tire will keep pinching your tube unless you insert a strong blow-out patch. The Goodyear patch is made out of several plies of new fabric.
- STRAP-ON-BOOT: An outside boot makes a fine temporary protection for a blown out or badly cut tire as long as it won't slip. Goodyear strap-on-boots won't slip and they are quickly applied.
- CORD PATCHES: Breaks or separations on the inside of either cord or fabric tires can be repaired by cementing in a Goodyear Cord patch with self-curing patching cement. Just follow directions which come with the cord patch.
- TUBE REPAIR KIT: A punctured or torn tube can be easily, quickly and permanently repaired by following the directions on this Goodyear "Tube Saver." Everything you need is in the Kit. Have you seen one?
- TIRE PUTTY OUTFIT: Cuts in the tread of your tire will soon destroy its usefulness. A Goodyear Tire Pump Outfit will save you this loss. Cement and putty and full directions in the outfit.
- TUBE OF TALC OR MICA: Like oil to the motor—talc or mica is the lubricant which keeps your tube from burning in the casing. Avoid using too much or too little.
- ANTI SKID CHAINS: Cheaper than a broken wheel or crumpled fender.

Baseball Notes

The High school team met defeat Tuesday afternoon at the hands of the So. Hadley Falls school team by a score of 14 to 11 in a game played on the common.

The game played last week Thursday between the B. H. S. Freshmen and Franklin school, briefly alluded to in last week's issue, is somewhat of a mystery. The Freshmen send us a modified account and the Franklin school insists they won fairly. We print both versions.

FRESHMAN VERSION

The Belchertown-Freshman team played the Franklin team last week Thursday afternoon on the latter's grounds with a score of 11-12 in favor of Franklin. The Freshmen, however, were playing under difficulties because the Franklin team had to use the Palmer battery. Under such conditions the Freshmen consider the game a tie. To cap the climax one of the Franklin men took home the best Freshman bat.

FRANKLIN VERSION

As manager of Franklin Grammar school base ball team and in behalf of my nine, I wish to contradict the item in your last edition relative to the game played by my team and B. H. S. freshmen May 20.

The game was fairly won by Franklin with a score of 12-11.

Protect the Native Plants

There is danger of extermination of many interesting and beautiful wild flowers through thoughtless and indiscriminate picking.

It is not our wish to discourage unnecessarily the gathering of wild flowers and ferns for decorative purposes. We ask only that they be picked with care and discrimination. Where there is an especially fine plant or colony, why not leave most of the flowers for seed?

It is hoped that the love of natural beauty which is encouraged in us by the nature books will lead us one step further, and induce us to pick few flowers instead of many, and to use moderation in breaking

Blue Meadow club was doing second year work while the center club was in its first year work. Each club has won a banner which means that every girl in the club has finished her required work. Older people can testify that it is easy to start a thing but for every member to carry her work through to successful completion is worthy of special commendation.

The work done by each girl includes four things: 1st, the sewing; 2nd, the record; 3rd, the exhibit; 4th, the written story. To every girl in the club work Miss Erhart presented a pin in token of her faithful work.

At the close of the evening, prizes were announced as follows: bread-making, 1st, Blanche Haesaert; 2nd, Alice Howard. Sewing, Blue Meadow, 1st, Rachel Randall; 2nd, Alice Randall; 3rd, Frances Sauer; Center sewing club, 1st, Gladys Hazen; 2nd, Irene Howard; 3rd, Minnie Squires. Although prizes are not regularly given, this year the Farm Bureau gave as first prize in bread making a recipe box and in the sewing contests silver thimbles.

Although all credit is due the girls who worked so faithfully, we agree with Miss Erhart when she said, "The determining factor in club work is the local leader. The success of the work is due largely to the efforts of Mrs. Randall who has given lavishly of her time and strength and has put a lot of "pep" into everything."

Doane-Hamilton Wedding

A marriage of interest to Belchertown people took place Saturday, May 29th, at Lunenburg, Mass., when Miss Mary Ernestine Doane, daughter of Albert E. and the late Lotje (Wright) Doane, and Clifton Morton Hamilton were married at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. T. C. Martin.

The ceremony was performed by the bride's uncle, Rev. T. C. Martin, using the single ring service. They were attended by Miss Grace Hamilton, sister of the groom, as maid of honor and William L. Doane, brother of the bride, as best man. The bride wore a blue travelling suit and carried a shower bouquet. The house was decorated with tulips and lilacs.

Mrs. Hamilton is a graduate of Natick High school of the class of 1915 and since her graduation has been at home with her father. Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton will be at home to their friends in East Granby, Ct., after July 1st.

Prin. Thomas Allen of the High school presided. Mrs. Frank Clough had charge of the music. A number of parents and friends availed themselves of the opportunity of hearing the program.

Memorial Day Observance

Ideal weather conditions favored the veterans of the Civil war and the veterans of the World war in their observance of Memorial day this year. That the day has not lost its meaning to the boys of '61 is attested by the fact that ten G. A. R. men were in the procession, four of them marching with their younger comrades who came out in larger numbers than last year, which is evidence that time intensifies the ties that bind together those who rally to the cause of their country.

The line formed in the morning in front of the Legion headquarters near the post office in the following order: Lafayette drum corps of Holyoke, American Legion, members of the G. A. R. The line marched around the common, stopping at the M. E. vestry where the Woman's Relief corps furnished the soldiers with flowers with which to deck the graves of departed comrades in Mt. Hope cemetery. Here also Sons of Veterans, invited guests, Woman's Relief corps and children from the public schools joined the ranks which then marched to the cemetery.

At the entrance the line parted, allowing the veterans of '61 to pass between and march beneath arched flags held by the color bearers of the Woman's Relief corps and the American Legion.

Services incident to the decorating of the graves then took place. F. G. Shaw read a special service and Rev. H. P. Rankin offered prayer.

At the soldiers' monument to which the line then marched, prayer was offered by Rev. Mr. Rankin and a wreath placed in honor of the unknown dead by F. G. Shaw of the G. A. R., who said that scattered

Franklin "Never Fail" Sewing Club

Tuesday afternoon, May 25th, Miss Harriman of Northampton judged the work of the Franklin school industrial class, which has been working since Jan. 25th under the direction of Miss Erhard, county club leader.

The club, numbering twenty-one and the largest club in the county, was a banner club as all completed the four things necessary.

Miss Erhard was very helpful to us. She brought Miss Norris, state leader, and Miss Harriman at different times during our school sewing period, which is held every Tuesday from 1.15 to 2.30, to inspect our work.

We chose aprons and slips as our garments. We crocheted the yokes and lace for our garments.

This is our first year in the sewing club but we will be second year canning club members.

Cassie Sullivan won first prize with a record of 92%; Irene Sullivan, second, 90%; Bronka Susiha, third, 85%. Eleven members had a record of over 80%, the lowest being 77%. Now that we are started on the right road we expect to outclass our record next year. Following are the officers:

President, Cassie Sullivan
Vice Pres., Eleanor Fitzgerald
Secretary, Staffie Klous
Club leader, Nellie G. Shea

We were very proud when Mr. Farley on hearing our club song requested Miss Erhard to have it printed in the "Farm Bureau Monthly" in order that other club boys and girls might see it.

President

Sears' Team Wins

The Belchertown Independent base ball team was defeated by the Henry G. Sears' team of Holyoke Memorial Day by a score of 12 to 4. Two umpires and four pitchers were utilized in the game, which although starting favorably for the home team soon turned in favor of Holyoke. The home boys lost heart, and the score sheets and even the score is now nowhere to be found.

all over the south are graves unknown, and on stones in Arlington cemetery are hundreds which bear the same inscription.

H. L. Hadlock of the G. A. R. then in a few brief words thanked the American Legion for sharing the responsibilities of Memorial day which he said was a sacred day and not a day of festivity.

The service at the monument concluded with the playing of the Star Spangled Banner by the drum corps.

The line of march was then taken to a place on the common nearly opposite the town hall where four trees were set out by members of the Legion.

Members of the G. A. R. placed wreaths at the base of the trees, after which Dr. Stone, commander of the Chauncey D. Walker Post, spoke appropriate words.

of everlasting democracy. Trees are emblems of everlasting life. May the memory of Chauncey D. Walker, Warren M. Wright, George Hannum and Francis Carew grow strong and endure forever.

As Commander Stone concluded his remarks, small American flags were set in the earth at the base of the trees by relatives of the honored dead; Mrs. Abbie Walker for her son, Chauncey D. Walker; Mrs. F. M. Wilson for Francis Carew; and Mrs. John Gould for George Hannum.

Immediately following the services of the morning, dinner was served on the common and at the Relief Corps headquarters for the veterans of the two wars and the school children.

The exercises of the afternoon were held in Community hall. Commander P. W. Stone was in charge. Prayer was offered by Chaplain Raymond L. Blackmer.

F. D. Walker, Jr., after words of welcome in which he referred to the significance of the occasion, introduced the speaker of the day, Prof. John D. Willard of the Extension service at M. A. C., and during the period of the war assistant supervisor or food disposition.

Prof. Willard said that sacrifice was the basis of human progress. We have more of a duty than to decorate graves; we must perpetuate the principles for which they died.

It was because of vision that our forefathers left Holland and England to come to Plymouth.

It is not a time to delegate to your representative the work of reconstruction and let his work go unchallenged. The world must be helped to a sense of justice. Too often precedent hinders it. We must hold the blessings of liberty for ourselves and for posterity.

We are in the midst of a mad campaign of spending. We must remember that nations that have lived simply for themselves have sealed their own doom. In building resources for the future shall we lay foundations for peace and prosperity.

In closing Prof. Willard said that no service for the dead, however complete or beautiful, would take the place of conscientious daily living and an honest endeavor to perpetuate the principles for which our forebears sacrificed so much.

The speaker was convincing in his argument and fluent in his delivery. The service closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner and benediction by Rev. H. P. Rankin.

Com. Stone was chairman of the committee of arrangements, and was assisted by F. D. Walker, Jr., and Raymond L. Blackmer.

Amherst 10 Belchertown 9

Amherst High defeated Belchertown High school in a close though loosely played game on the common Monday afternoon. Whittier and Barrett were the battery for the home team and proved very efficient but Whittier had poor support in the field, due to the home team's lack of practise. The battery for Amherst was Atkinson and Dorsey, and though Atkinson was hit freely, was saved from defeat by good fielding.

In the last of the 9th the score was 10 to 7 in Amherst's favor. Barrett came to bat and knocked a grounder down to short but was thrown out at first. Lynch then came to bat and got a two-bagger over left field and scored on Sullivan's single. Whittier got a single and let Sullivan in. This made the score 10 to 9 with Whittier on third. It was then that Bardwell came to bat and two strikes and two balls had been called on him when Whittier stole home but Bardwell in attempting to dodge the base runner swung his bat and knocked a short grounder and was thrown out at first. The question arose whether or not Whittier had touched home before Bardwell hit the ball. The umpire decided the run did not count.

The Wrestling Match

There was considerable interest manifested in the wrestling match of Wednesday evening, especially in the bout between Devers and Goodheart. Both have made many friends here as a result of their exhibitions, and the closeness of their previous contest made the bout this week a drawing card.

The first period was full of many thrills which kept the attendants almost constantly applauding, first for one opponent and then for the other. There was no marked partiality for either. The crowd recognized skill and head work.

Goodheart won from the champion in the first decision in 23 min., which made the remainder of the bout the more interesting. Devers, however, was not defeated as he won the second heat in 18 min. and the last in 20 min. Dr. J. L. Collard was referee and Roy G. Shaw timer.

As the crowd was dispersing, Goodheart showed his true sportsmanship by stating that Devers had won fairly, that he had met his match, that the champion was a better man than he thought he was, that he himself was in perfect condition for the bout and had no cause

Gentlemen's Night

To the Community club Tuesday evening was "Gentlemen's Night." The committee in charge named it "A Rainbow Evening," while the guests thought it was a "Midsummer Night's Dream."

Well, any how, things were in a dreadful tangle. All overhead in the club rooms was a net work of colored cords, a huge spider web of rainbow tints, which with hard work the company finally disentangled.

Beginning with a numbered rose on the curtains at either end of the room the victim followed the cord "above, about, around, among, . . . below, behind, beneath, beside," the ball of twine in his hand ever growing larger as he went on. Various complications met the wayfarer. To mount up with wings like a dove seemed desirable in many cases and there arose insistent cries of "The stepladder!" "Bring the stepladder here."

No one knew what sort of an obstacle would come next. Furnace pipes, electric light bulbs, picture frames, almost anything might be tangled up with his cord. But most heart-breaking of all was to be in sight of the goal only to find the cord passing through a screw eye too small to admit the passage of the ball of twine. The only thing to do if you played according to the rules of the game, was to unwind your cord, draw it through foot by foot, and then laboriously rewind it. "But do you think I would do that!" said the mere man. "No sir. Zip! she broke and I was through."

Every one found a pot of gold at his rainbow's end. For some it was a tiny wooden shoe. To others their ship came sailing in. But the really envied ones found a bug, a bug that would go, and bug races immediately became the diversion of the hour.

The first prize, a box of rainbow colored wafers tied with rainbow ribbons, was awarded to Roy Shaw. The booby prize, a bunch of "Life Savers", went to Alvin Cutting.

To entertain the company further, military whist was started and gave evidence of being very good fun, but the serving of refreshments proved a fatal interruption. And no wonder, for those refreshments included delicious salads, rolls, cake, ice cream and coffee.

The hall was very pretty with its many rainbow decorations of colored paper. All the hues of the rainbow were also found in the floral decorations.

The committee in charge of the evening's program consisted of Mrs. Sargent, Mrs. Barrett and Mrs. Kilder. The refreshment committee was Mrs. Robinson, Mrs. Howard, Mrs. Jepson, Mrs. Kelley, Mrs. B. E. Shaw and Mrs. Dwight Randall.

Children's Day at Packardville

It was Children's Day at Packardville last Sunday. No parent that morning had to ask his child twice to attend church. They were all ready long before time, for weren't they to take the place of the minister for one day!

The exercises began at twelve when thirty-five children marched in singing, Rejoice, Ye Pure in Heart. For one hour they did their part royally in preaching.

One incident not down on the program was, nevertheless, heartily enjoyed. Two of the tiny tots decided to remain on the platform and contentedly sat down to play with the flowers. It took some generalship on the part of an older girl to get them to their seats.

Following these exercises there was dinner at Mrs. Collis' for the children of the Pelham South school. After "doing dishes" these went to Pelham Hill where they repeated part of the morning program and gave in addition the patriotic exercise, Our Country's Call.

The children had really had, not a Children's Hour, but a Children's Day.

Speaks at Federated Church

Rev. John F. Brant, D. D., of the International Reform Bureau spoke at both the morning and evening services of the Federated church last Sunday. Taking as his theme in the morning, "Victories won and waiting to be won," he explained to some extent the work accomplished by the Bureau and what they are working for at present.

The text for his sermon was "Thanks be unto God who giveth us" (continued on page 3)

Turkey Hill of Long Ago

CHAPTER VII
CONCLUSION

When a school boy one of my teachers, as a copy in my writing book, wrote this: "All things change, and we change with them," and as I take a retrospective view of the years spent on Turkey Hill I am forcefully convinced of its truthfulness.
Many are the changes wrought in seventy years.

In one of my earlier letters I spoke of the changes in methods pertaining to the management of schools and the salary paid to teachers.
Changes in methods of instruction and discipline, also improvements in text books used are worthy of note.
These improvements are marked both in the mechanical construction of the books, and in the material contained therein.

The changes are no less marked in matters agricultural. I remember when every farmer on Turkey Hill, excepting one, had one or more pairs of oxen to do his farm work; today there is not an ox in the neighborhood. Formerly, excepting hay, the principal crops were corn and rye;
now apples are the staple here.
Then every farmer fattened beef, not only for his own family use, but many fattened for market. The butcher's cart going from door to door was a thing unknown, as was also a daily newspaper in a farmer's home.

Cash was scarce in those days.
Butter and eggs were taken to the village store and bartered for groceries and dry goods. Hired help both on the farm and in the house were often paid in products of the farm.

Every thrifty housewife saved every scrap of fat, and when spring came, soap making was an annual event. Along the cellar wall ranged side by side would be found a barrel of salt pork, one of salt beef, soft soap, cider apple sauce and numerous barrels of cider. Whale oil was used for illuminating purposes supplemented by scores of tallow candles made in the home.

The sentiment of the people here regarding church attendance has not escaped the demands of the universal law of change. In my childhood days, nearly every Sunday morning seven carriages passed my home on their way to church, and in the whole district there were not more than three non-church going families.
Today there are scarcely more than that number of families represented by church attendants.

Regarding the military record of the Rock Rimmon section of Turkey Hill, I know of only one—Andrew Howard—who participated in the Revolutionary war. Salem Fisher was a veteran of the war of 1812; and those who saw active service in the Civil war were Charles H. Atwood, Fernando G. Shaw and Richard F. Underwood; while in the world conflict just ended there was not one.

In the professional line Rock Rim-mon has contributed to the ministry
Father John Griffin and Rev. John West; to the legal fraternity Alvertus J. Morse and Geo. H. B. Green, Jr., and to the medical profession
Dr. Herbert S. Gay; while Jewell B.
Knight made a name for himself as Prof. of Agriculture in Poona College in India, with which he has been connected for sixteen years and in which he now holds the highest position, that of president of the institution.

In concluding this series of letters I wish to pay a tribute of affection and respect to the memory of the foster father whose silent influence during many years of close companionship had more to do in moulding my character and directing my line of thought than all other influences combined.

Reuben Green was in many ways a remarkable man. Left an orphan at an early age, his opportunities for acquiring an education were meager.
Yet by doing chores for his board and walking three and one-half miles and return each day, he managed to get a few terms of instruction at Monson Academy. He was an apt scholar and made good use of the limited privileges at his command. His first introduction to the science of the English language was through the medium of "Murray's English Grammar" and in seven days he had absorbed all that the book contained. In Mathematics, Philosophy and Astronomy he was proficient and before he was through his teens he was a school teacher of recognized ability.

He was a stern, silent man, seldom speaking unless he had something worth while to say; but he was a thinker, and had a wonderful memory. He would read a page or two of prose or poetry that especially appealed to him, re-read once or twice, and it would be so thoroughly impressed upon his memory that years after he would repeat it word for word.

He was a poet of some ability and the hymns sung at his funeral were of his own composition. He was an earnest, sincere student of the Bible, a conscientious seeker after truth.
His religious creed was summed up in few words, "Do unto others as ye would that they should do unto you."
This he not only preached, but he exemplified it in his every day life.

For nearly two score years I was in close companionship with this man; I know him thoroughly, I never knew him to make a statement which was not absolute truth as he understood it. I never knew him to misrepresent or attempt in any way to gain any unfair advantage over another in any business transaction.
He never exaggerated; he told things exactly as he believed them to be.
I never knew him to do a dishonorable deed.

Such was the man who extended a helping hand and offered a shelter to me, a homeless orphan. My father died before my remembrance and I had been a wandering waif, dependent on the charity of friends.
I was never legally adopted but the name, Green, was added to my own; though not as pleasing to the ear as my own lawful name, Bartlett, yet I am proud to bear the name of a man such as my foster father was.

We are told that an honest man is the noblest work of God. Such a man was Reuben Green.

the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ." He said that whenever they put a measure through Congress with even a small per cent of the ethics of Jesus Christ, they hung a new picture of Christ on the walls of the office and dedicated the victory to him.

Dr. Brant said that he left a very pleasant pastorate to take up this work, being literally driven into it.
As pastor he was powerless against many of the evils about him, the only cure for them being legislation.
And Dr. Brant said that working for state legislation was oftentimes not effective. National legislation was worth working for forty-eight times as hard. For instance, the struggle for prohibition in Massachusetts had gained its end only through national prohibition. Accordingly their efforts are directed towards influencing Congress, and with this in view their headquarters are in Washington.

Speaking of what the bureau had accomplished he cited the case of the prohibition of the sale of intoxicating liquors to the natives of the South Sea Islands and the letter of gratitude received from John G. Paton, saying that they had accomplished what he had long tried to do and that thenceforth his work would be comparatively easy. He spoke also of what had been accomplished at home against the white slave traffic, in regulating the sale and use of morphine and similar drugs; in fact they have taken up the fight against any and every evil which dares to rear its head among us.

WHO KILLED JOHN BAR-LEYCORN

Substance of Evening Address

Some people say he isn't dead yet —that he is more alive than ever.
We must remember, however, who John is. He is the legalized liquor traffic and that has been pronounced legally dead. Like a rooster with his head cut off and a snake with his head crushed, it apparently is much alive but it is really dead and it is proper to have the funeral.

Regarding who killed him, there are several who are responsible, first the W. C. T. U., who saw the evil and tried to remedy it long before the men did, and following them the work of latter day organizations.

The lowest reason of all was what caused John's finish. It was not the appeal of heart-broken wives and mothers. It was the appeal which reached the pocket book of business.
John Barleycorn was an economic failure from every standpoint.

England today could easily pay her war debt, but she is half drunk.
She is stubborn in resisting prohibition. A great Reform Bureau speaker in England has been driving home the truth about John and he has been mobbed nearly every night.
England, however, stubborn though she may be to reform, will be equally as stubborn in retaining prohibition when she does secure it.

We are too near this great transformation of our life in America to value its meaning. Being at the foot of Pike's peak, one does not realize its height. Only as we view it from the distance do we truly estimate it.

The killing of John Barleycorn, which was accomplished without revolution or bloodshed, overthrew the greatest slavery that ever throttled the world, liberated 110 millions of people and brought to the assistance of the forces of righteousness the strong arm of the Federal government.

However, as soon withdraw the forces from the Rhine, as to sleep in the face of achievements. This and other evils such as gambling and prize fighting require constant attention and vigilant watchfulness.

Cradle Roll Reception

Special greeting to the children from Mrs. F. J. Morse.

Greetings to all the dear mothers and precious babies gathered this beautiful afternoon, with earnest prayer that God's special blessing be with you.

How glad I am the dear little ones never troubled Jesus. The sweetest words He ever spoke were, "Suffer little children to come unto me." They who helped a little child stirred the heart of Jesus.

How auntie loves them! Also the dear mothers. I assure you of my prayers for all. Recollections of the past bring sweet memories to me.

Love to all,
Auntie Morse,
(Mrs. F. J. Morse)

A very pleasant program was carried out by the children at the gathering of the Cradle Roll babies and their mothers at the home of Mrs.
Geo. R. Davis, Wednesday afternoon. There were about thirty babies and forty-five mothers and friends present. The program follows:

Welcome song to parents and babies, older children; recitation, Welcome, Ellen Jepson; Welcome, Baby Band, and Prayer, four girls; Wee Babies, Marjorie Pees; reading, To Cradle Roll Babies, Mrs.
Dwight Jepson; song, Eben Campbell; a poem written by Emily E. T.
Ellis, read by Mrs. M. A. Morse;
Greeting, read by Mrs. Thos. Allen; Cradle Roll Prayer, Gwendolyn
Catepole; song and encore, Eben Campbell.

The hostesses wish it explained that it was by mistake that a collection was taken as it was not intended as a money making gathering.

If there are any mothers desiring their babies' names placed on the Cradle Roll, will they kindly give them to Mrs. Lewis Blackmer of the Congregational church or to Mrs. Mable Stebbins of the Methodist church before Children's Sunday.

The preliminary was between Andrew Ketchen and Louis Osborne, which to eyes familiar to the real thing, was, of course, what might be termed a good-natured, back-yard tumble. Ketchen won the first fall, and after ten or fifteen minutes in a second heat with no decision, the floor was cleared for the main event.

not understand, for, with the exception of one sixth grade boy of the Bondsville Grammar school, the nine was strictly Franklin.

I consider the statement regarding the taking of the bat as an insult to my boys, as the B. H. S. Freshmen knew that a Bondsville boy had taken it, for, to my knowledge, a Franklin district boy escorted them to the home in Bondsville where the bat was obtained.

I personally allowed the boys to have the Bondsville boy play as I knew positively that the center team was not wholly Freshmen.

The Lawn Party

Owing to damp grounds and threatening weather, the lawn party of Wednesday evening had to be given in the chapel. Although undoubtedly many stayed away on this account, it is also true that many came.

The usual lawn party attractions were there, save that American lanterns were substituted for Japanese. "Hot dogs" were somewhat of an innovation and proved a good part of a clever plan of the young people to keep the cash moving. From "hot dogs" to cold cream, from dry corn to wet punch, one went from one extreme to the other—there was no middle ground on which to stop.

Theodore Hazen and Newell Booth kept the dogs sizzling over the blue flame and put on the yellow streak; Harold Booth, William Kimball, Irene Orlando and Alice Booth put on the cool cream, Pearl Danbar dressed it with cake, Eleanor Bardwell and Dorothy Kimball satisfied those who wanted a punch, and Miss Marion Bartlett, assisted by Rachel Randall and Edith Shaw, furnished the good old reliable pop corn.

The booths were trimmed with green and white, yellow and white, red and white, and red, white and blue.

The entertainment, nearly all the numbers of which brought out encores, consisted of: song, Eben Campbell; recitation, James Aldrich; piano solo, Mrs. Wm. Shaw; song, Rachel Randall; The White-Footed Deer, Frances Sauer; song, six girls; Psalm of Life, Rachel Randall and Frances Sauer; solo, Theodore Hazen.

Children's Day Concert

Amid the singing of birds and the sweet perfume of flowers, the children of the Federated Sunday school gave their annual Children's Day concert last Sunday.

A large number of the young people took part and in an admirable manner. The elaborate presentation of Mrs. Bardwell's and Mrs. Gay's classes was a sermon in itself. On the platform were several girls dressed in white, bearing words designating Christian virtues and carrying in their hands garlands of green which they linked together one by one as they spoke. Other girls representing heathen children desired to be linked with them in their happy work, so, after suggestive words by Miss Alice Booth and songs by Eben Campbell, the half circle on the platform and the half circle below clasped hands in Christian fellowship.

The exercises were in charge of Miss Wins, while the program itself

Children's Night at Grange

In spite of the bad weather, children's night at the grange Tuesday evening was very successful. The children's coaching parade had to be in the hall and thirteen prettily decorated vehicles were shown, headed by a drum corps and Old Glory.

Following the literary program the children were made happy with ice cream and games. A good time was enjoyed by all.

Davis Home Burns

The old Davis homestead on the West Ware road burned to the ground last Saturday afternoon. The fire was caused by children setting fire to the barn which caught to the house and other buildings.

The place was owned by H. Chas. Davis of West Ware but was occupied by Chas. Lemon. Mr. Lemon was away and little was saved. There was no insurance on the house, barn, shop or their contents. The owner had several hundred dollars' worth of tools stored there and the neighbors also had some articles in the buildings.

The fire department was called but the buildings were flat when it arrived. The fire caught to the woods nearby which were badly burned. The blaze was put out with some difficulty.

Mr. Lemon and family are now at the home of his brother, Frank Lemon of Maple St.

Reminiscences of the Holyoke District

CHAPTER I

THE HOLYOKE SCHOOL

We begin this week a series of articles relating to the Holyoke district, a historic section of our town. They are similar in nature to those written by Mrs. C. F. D. Hazen and G. H. B. Green. For this series we are indebted to M. S. Barton.

There is no record of when the first school house in Holyoke district was built, and no reports or records of its committees or teachers are now believed to exist. The names of some of the teachers are recalled, however, and Josiah Clark, mentioned in the history of Turkey Hill, is known to have taught there more than one term. Ira Walker is another and is believed to have been the last teacher before the new and present building was erected.

Meetings of the voters of the district were called to discuss the question and fix upon the location. It was decided at last to have a survey made and to have the house placed in the center of the district. Ozias Norcross was engaged for the work and he found the center to be about the middle of Jeremiah Weston's saw mill pond. Another meeting was called and it was voted that the building be placed almost exactly where it now stands. It was voted also that it be built by contract and certain specifications as to size, etc., were drawn up.

The house was built by Theodore Barton and was to be finished in three months. The price for the whole job was the sum of $350, the contractor to furnish everything. This was in 1841. Rev. Chester Tilden, who was a mason by trade before he was a minister, did the plastering, and William Bascom built the chimney.

The first term of school taught in that building was by another Walker whose first name is forgotten. Both of these young men, of Belchertown families, died, it is believed, while still young, of consumption, that scourge of New England.

The summer term was taught by

The Essential in Life

The pupil in school has learned by experience that it is not enough to learn the rule. For if he knows only the rule he is likely to be helpless if the example is a concrete one and not expressed in the accustomed phraseology.

It is not enough to know the rule in anything in life. If a person wishes to be graceful, he can learn much from certain rules; but he is certain to be awkward if he stops to think what the directions are concerning the proper place for his hands.

If one would be a gentleman or a lady, it comes not by reading a book on Department or Etiquette or Manners—this aids, of course—but by having a kindly, considerate feeling for others.

It is not enough for the musician to know the rule in music. We have sometimes heard music which was faultlessly rendered, no defect could be found with the time or fingering, but the music did not move us because the musician had no soul.

So it is in reading. The elocutionist may have perfect gestures, an excellent memory, a correct voice, but if he does not throw his whole soul into the reading, he has utterly failed.

In this connection the question of zoning is of fundamental importance and I would commend to you two articles in the current issue of the Survey, May 22, 1920.

heart. For the heart is at the center of life and is the mainspring of all action.

Civic League on City Planning

We print the following letter from the secretary of the Massachusetts Civic League in response to our article relative to the work of M. H. West of Chicago.

In the Sentinel for May 21st I note an article on the work of a city planner. Having studied this question for a number of years, may I say that the usual impression is that only large places need to consider the subject.

Cities, like individuals, should grow towards functional perfection. If the feet, the muscles, the brain, the teeth, et cetera, are to function properly, they must develop properly. If the urban community is to function properly, it must do the same.

Another common mistake is to omit the taking for community purposes of such natural sites as high hills or other rugged points of natural scenery, a considerable portion of any available water front, or stream boundaries, and such other things as nature has given to the community, and should be for the benefit of the whole community and not turned over to industry, tin cans and weeds.

In this connection the question of zoning is of fundamental importance and I would commend to you two articles in the current issue of the Survey, May 22, 1920.

Miss Sarah White whose family lived in the district: The following winter term was taught by Charles L. Washburn who was so well and favorably known in town in all his after life.

Another teacher the next year was an Amherst College student by the name of Franklin Pierce. He believed in the "hireh", and in the room within reach of his desk, was always a half dozen of switches that reached to the ceiling. They were used so frequently that the pupils, certainly the younger ones like myself, were very well behaved.

The next three winter terms were taught by A. D. Randall who is also as well known and respected as was Mr. Washburn. Miss Margaret Weston taught the three summer terms. She came from the well known Weston family, afterwards the wife of T. J. S. Parsons who just died in Hadley at the age of 95. She was paid the munificent salary of $1.25 per week and boarded at home. She taught until her marriage and was always a loved and popular teacher.

Other ladies who taught in this district were Miss Julia A. Dwight; Miss Harriet Sykes who was an excellent teacher, long remembered as the wife of the Presiding Elder of the Methodist churches, Rev. Mr. Mansfield; Mrs. Abbie Waker, then Miss Abbie Stebbins was another fine teacher.

Col. Elliot Bridgman taught one term in winter, Nelson Dwight another. The first lady to teach in winter was Miss Amelia Baker of Shutesbury. After this girls were often sought as teachers in winter as well as summer.

About this time district school committees were abolished by the Legislature and town committees hired the teachers and did about all the rest that pertained to education. Laws along that line have been made more stringent from time to time until the people have very little to say about the education of their children. They are asked only to pay the bills. This is progress, but we sometimes think it overdone.

Rev. Samuel Wolcott, pastor of the Congregational church, took a great interest in education. He urged renaming the district with more up-to-date names. This district was then known as Dark Corner, originally the name of the first district west of Belchertown in Granby. This name was given from the fact that this section of land nearly to Granby was one vast tract of pine forest so dense that even at noon day the sun hardly penetrated its shadows. The Granby section was cleared early and was a wheat field while the forest in Belchertown was standing long afterwards. Thus the name came east and became attached to the first district in our town.

All the older people there without exception, and the writer, never having heard of any other explanation as to how the name was applied to what is now Holyoke district, believe it to be the fact. The name Holyoke was given from the fact that a good view of Mt. Holyoke is visible from the hill near the house owned by James Hebert of Holyoke. (To be continued)

Fords Go Fast

March broke all records ever made by the Ford Motor Company, Detroit, both for the number of cars produced in one day and one month. March 27th, 4,256 cars left the assembly lines at the home plant and branches, while the record for the month was 94,299 cars.

Here is an illustration of the amount of railroad cars it would take to ship this vast swarm of Fords. Loaded six in a freight car with fifty freight cars to each train, it would take 314 trains to carry them, and there would be enough left over to start a parade.

Articles in our columns from time to time regarding those who have made their mark in the world has called forth a letter from a friend in the west who desires to place on the honor roll the name of Frank Atwood of Anderson, Ind. A full page advertisement is enclosed showing the magnitude of the company which Mr. Atwood was the means of bringing to its consummation. The advertisement tells a lot, but we think the letter is the real story. Here it is.

Dear Sir:

It is not always the big cities that produce the big men, and knowing that you like to hear of those who have made good I take pleasure in sending you a clipping from the Indianapolis Star showing the progress of our mutual friend during the past two years. This was practically a bankrupt factory at the time Mr. Atwood was placed at the head of the manufacturing, and the capitalization as shown speaks for itself as to what it has been built up to.

The board of directors is the strongest and best that has ever been brought together in the middle west. This is only one of several that Mr. Atwood has been instrumental in putting "on the map."

The Remy Electric Division of the General Motors Corp. was built up from 700 employees to over 4300, and from 16 buildings to 66 during his term as factory manager.

With it all he is never too busy to tell you what a nice town there is back in Mass., and how the trout bite and what they taste like when caught in Jabish or any of the other brooks in that section. And he has from time to time persuaded some of us Westerners to come and see for ourselves, and we always want to go back and see it again. Aside from his business Frank likes to take some of his many friends and beat them at golf, billiards, fishing, hunting or at the trap. He is good at all of them and enjoys out door sports to the limit.

Sincerely yours, E. F. Creager.

The Wrestling Bout

The wrestling bout of Wednesday evening called out a good number of townspeople, also a large delegation of out-of-town friends of the participants who rooted for their men with considerable enthusiasm.

The preliminary bout was between Bertram Shaw of this town and Eagle Barden of Springfield. Both men weighed 175 lbs. and the contests were closely drawn. Barden won the first fall in 10 minutes, but Shaw won the second and last match in 14 minutes. Shaw is proving himself a worthy opponent of out of town men more used to the game.

The main bout was between Kid Mayer of Holyoke, 168, and John Robarge of Springfield, 150. Mayer won the first contest in 27 1/2 minutes. The second match was what kept the audience on edge. Time and again the lighter man nearly scored a fall on his opponent, only to lose it. Finally Mayer turned the trick quickly after 47 minutes of up-hill work.

Prof. Wilson, the entertainer from Springfield, was on hand and rendered a varied program before and between the acts.

Preaches Baccalau- reate Sermon

Rev. H. P. Rankin preached the Baccalaureate sermon to the class of 1920, B. H. S., at the morning service of the Federated church last Sunday. He took for his text John 11: 28, The Master calleth for thee. He said that in as true and as real a sense the Master is calling to each of us. There was never an hour in the world's history when a personal Christ was more needed than at this moment. He is calling the students from the primary schools, the boys and girls from the secondary schools, young men and women from the colleges, statesmen and leaders in public life; the Master is calling to all.

To the Hebrew there were two periods of time, the past and the future. Both are calling us today. The past is calling by the men and women who fought bravely their battles, endured poverty, pain and trial and went on to victory. Every discoverer in science and every writer in history bids us go on. The world with each new century has gone on in usefulness. Because our fathers struggled and wrought, we should follow in their train. We should excel them. The hour is calling the student today to do more and to be more than the great who preceded him.

The future is beckoning us on, and to youth the call is alluring. Recent advances in science are but typical of what is in store in all lines of endeavor. The future beckons us on to glorious and splendid sacrifice

B. H. S. Graduation

Classes may come and classes may go, but the interest manifested each succeeding year in the graduating class of the High school, still remains. This year was no exception as the large company of relatives and friends present at the festive gathering testified. In the Congregational church, trimmed with yellow and white, displaying the class numerals and the class motto "B2", the young people who for the last four years have taken the highest course that Belchertown educational facilities offer, delivered in oration, essay and declamation, testimonials of their school work, and at the conclusion were presented their diplomas at the hands of the school committee.

The graduates did well their part, the music by the school under the direction of Mrs. Clough was of great excellence and the presentation of the diplomas was done in whole-hearted fashion. Only one thing prevented the exercises from being what they might have been. The illness of Miss Eleanor Bardwell, a member of the graduating class, made the circle incomplete, but the part she would have taken was rendered by Miss Perry, assistant principal, so that as far as the program went, it was given in its entirety.

The themes were well chosen. Francis Allen, the salutatorian, took for his subject the much disputed League, stating that it was a matter of greater concern to the United States than to small nations as to how it was drawn up, for the reason that we, being one of the strongest nations, must be careful how we put our military power at the disposal of the world. The doctrine of Washington was maintained up to the time of the late war when we found ourselves faced with a new outlook. He ventured the hope and expectation that there would yet be drawn up a document that would bring to pass the required results.

The declamation by Miss Myrtle Blackmer entitled, "What Makes a Nation Great?" portrayed true greatness as being the result, not of wealth but of the highest type of manhood as illustrated by those who dare face the great issues, think for

Huff-Jackson Wed- ding

The marriage of Miss Edna Huff of Athol, and John W. Jackson, Jr., formerly of this town, took place at two o'clock Monday, June 21st, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Lottie M. Huff. The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. V. Hinchcliffe of Athol, pastor of the Methodist church of which they are both members. The double ring service was used.

The bridal party stood under an arch of laurel over which was suspended two white doves. The bride wore a gown of white georgette crepe with tulle veil and bandeau of pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of bride roses caught up with sweet peas.

The maid of honor was Miss Esther Jackson, sister of the groom. She wore pink georgette crepe and carried pink roses. The best man was Earle C. Parker of Coldbrook Springs, cousin of the bride. Helen Jackson of Bridgeport, Conn., four year old niece of the groom, was ring bearer and carried the rings in two pink rose buds. She was dressed in white.

Is Idealism Passing?

Someone has said that as far as America is concerned, we are to pass from a state of idealism to one of practicability. If this be true, then the graduation exercises of Wednesday evening and the graduation exercises that we have read anything about this year were somewhat of a farce.
The idealism presented by the class of 1920, B. H. S., in their essays and orations, and the idealism preached by the college presidents and commencement speakers does not make it appear that this important feature in our national life is passing. If it is, then so much the worse for us, for "where there is no vision, the people perish."

That we have been "passing through an idealistic state of mind is beyond question. The fact probably is that to many Americans it has been too artificial a state, and we are now passing through the days of a great reaction. The waters were a bit too deep for those unaccustomed to it.

In spite of the fact that it does not seem possible, it is nevertheless true that idealism is the very thing that is practical. "Be Square" is not only idealism, it is practicable, and sound business is built four square upon it. To many it does not seem feasible. "Look out for
No. 1" sounds more to the point, but it will not be safe or advisable to return to that theory. "Be square" is both ideal and practical in business.
We are now in the process of proving it in national and international affairs.

Germany said that America was too ideal in her doctrines; that they were not practical in this present world; that cold Prussianism was sufficient. But idealism won. America lost the life blood of her sons but she saved the ideal for which she strove.

The battle is on today and ever will be. Safety in personal affairs, national and international, will always seem practical, but we shall not long be satisfied with that ideal.
Commencement audiences will still want the higher "preachments," national political conventions will find it practical to build high platforms if they want to set the hearts of America's citizens on fire, they must nominate men possessed of ideals if they would still keep glowing the heart of America.

We do not fear for idealism, it is a craving that must be satisfied.
Somewhere it will find expression.
Men may debate it, they may warp it, they may circumscribe it, they may attempt to bury it, but because it is practical, it will live. It remains for each succeeding generation to give it "a new birth of freedom."

themselves and practise justice to all. The blending of the best blood of the nations on our American soil bids hope for the world.

Osborne Davis in his oration on "Books" pictured the progress of ways in which knowledge has been disseminated with its culmination in the modern printing press. Not only is one known by the company he keeps but by the books he reads.
Through them we get in touch with the lasting products of human effort.
Paintings may be effaced but books survive.

Miss Gladys Gay declaimed on the Weather — the New England kind with its endless variety and wonderful resourcefulness. One hundred and thirty-six kinds have been known to have appeared in twenty-four hours.

"Night brings out the Stars" was the theme of Earl Witt who said that the war had been the means of developing many inventions, e. g., standardized ships, tractors, aeroplanes, etc. The theme also developed several moral lessons.

Miss Alice Booth's essay was entitled "Beyond the Alps Lies Italy." Beyond the mountains of difficulty lie the plains of achievement. Those who have a goal are those who are happy. As we approach our goals they broaden and brighten. A true goal is never attained. New opportunities for service open. We should strive to reach the great Goal where life eternal opens.

The declamation, "The Highway man," by Miss Catherine McKillop was a pleasing variation in the program and was easily and realistically rendered.

1935 pictured Francis Allen an as-

Booth an all-round preacher in Petersham; Myrtle Blackmer a social worker among children, and Catherine McKillop a secretary in a school of Opportunity where students "find themselves."

Cornelius Lynch played his part well in his serious bequests, first expressing an interest in the salary of the teachers which he left as a bequest to the school committee. Characteristics of the various members of the class were individually named and bequeathed to specially indicated underclassmen.
The usual trinkets were dispensed.

Newell Booth, the valedictorian, took for his subject, "Diamonds." The purest form of carbon is a diamond.
They have varying degrees of value.
Foolish people are like soot; the majority are like coal—they supply the energy of the world and keep it going; some are rare diamonds, they conquer adversity, temptation and failure. Human, like real diamonds, have to be ground and polished. There are many in the rough whom we do not recognize.
Human diamonds fulfill our motto; they are "square."

At the conclusion of the valedictory, Prof. Allen presented the class to the school committee for their diplomas.
E. Clifton Witt, in presenting them, complimented the parents of the graduates, and the teachers for their management of the school. To the graduates he said,
"You have reached the great event. Some of you will attend other institutions and receive diplomas there, but none you will hold dearer than those you receive tonight. I have learned that the most successful men are those that no obstacle could turn aside.

Tonight you launch out for yourself.
All depends on you. Do not think the race is won; it is merely started."

At the conclusion of the ceremonies the reception tendered by the juniors was held on the chapel lawn decorated with Japanese lanterns.

A significant feature of the graduation this year is that nearly all of the graduates expect to enter some higher institution of learning.

While it may not be the record that with the graduation of Earl M.

Witt, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Witt call to mind the fact that for the last twenty-nine years they have had a child in the Belchertown public schools.

School work and articles made during the sewing periods were on exhibition.

The song which we print below was composed by Bronce Orlowski.

CLASS SONG

Now we must leave thee;
From the B. G. S. we part,
Where we have spent our days
With joyful heart,
Hailing our colors gay,
Remembering to say,
Hurray for the pretty rose,
The red and white.

Now we must leave thee,
From the B. G. S. we part.
We are about to start
In the High school,
Each one of us must work
If we desire to win,
So for our motto take
To "Work and Win."

and service. Not how much we can get out of life but how much we can give, should be our motto. Not how long we live but how well we live, will determine our success. Roosevelt, while he may have made many mistakes, is an illustration of one who lived intensely with a spirit of noble service and sacrifice.

We shall have many teachers in the life that is before us. Many obstacles and difficulties will beset us in our pathway but they will be stepping stones to our attainment.

If you have had dreams of a great and noble life, go out and make them real. May you realize the hopes and aspirations of those who have loved and prayed for you. Shun the wrong and put ill temper beneath your feet. Press on into life, circuitous, changing and rugged though it may be, with high ideals, and may you be victors in the conquest.

Death of L. W. Goodell

The people in this community received a shock last Friday morning when they learned of the sudden death of their most widely known citizen, Lafayette Washington Goodell, aged 68 years.

He spent his entire life in this community and was an example of the success which may be attained by a self-educated man. His large, well-worn library gives proof of many years' careful study of books which only a college educated man would appreciate. His remarkable collection of butterflies cannot be surpassed by any known collection and is equalled by few individual collections, containing many beautiful specimens from South America as well as from nearly every state in the United States.

Being of a retiring nature, only those who knew him best could appreciate his kind, generous and sympathetic life which was full of good deeds.

The three years of total blindness which Mr. Goodell suffered were endured cheerfully, hopefully and uncomplainingly, a test of character which few could have borne as bravely as he did. Although losing the use of one eye, he was not discouraged but continued the florist business as a wholesale dealer; at the present time there are nearly one hundred thousand plants for sale.

Funeral services were held in the chapel Sunday afternoon at 2 p. m., conducted by Rev. H. P. Rankin. Music was furnished by the choir of the South Amherst church. Interment was in the Goodell plot in Union cemetery.

One brother, W. M. Goodell of this town, one sister, Miss C. Goodell of New Haven, Conn., and nephews and nieces survive him. The community feel their loss and extend their sympathy to the relatives.

Terwilliger-Gay Wedding

A wedding of interest to Belchertown people took place Wednesday evening when Mildred May Terwilliger, daughter of Mrs. Minnie Terwilliger of West Springfield, and George Stacy Gay, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Gay of this town, were united in marriage at the home of the bride in West Springfield.

To the strains of the wedding march played by Miss Gladys Gay, sister of the groom, the couple, who were unattended, took their places (continued on page 3)

To Have Fire Alarm Code

To enable the townspeople to quickly ascertain the location of a fire, H. F. Shaw, chief of the fire department, has devised a plan whereby anyone by noting the number of strokes tolled, can tell in which direction to go to render assistance.

We print below the code numbers as they will be used henceforth. Cards with these numbers on are being printed for circulation and large cards are being placed in stores and public buildings.

The numbers will be rung in similar fashion to those on telephone lines. If a fire occurred on New Street, for instance; after a short ringing to call attention the bell would toll once, then after a slight pause would follow with four others in quick succession. That all might understand, the call would be repeated. When the fire is out, two strokes will be tolled once.

It is hoped that the public will familiarize themselves with the several numbers, or else keep a copy of them handy. It is expected that this new idea being put in operation here will add to the efficiency of the Volunteer Fire department.

Special Town Meeting

A special town meeting has been called for next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock. A copy of the warrant is given herein.

Most of the articles are self explanatory. More money is asked for the schools because of necessary repairs and upward tendencies in running expenses.

The appropriation for the highway department is requested because the unexpected heavy snows of the late winter caused large expenditures. Although some bridge repairs have been made, more are required. The bridge between Belchertown and Ware has been declared unsafe.

The article relative to the Whiting Street estate is made necessary by the fact that the last of the beneficiaries of the Whiting Street will has died, thus causing the money to be in direct charge of each town, instead of trustees as heretofore.

The town will receive the same amount of money as previously, but must now formally accept the bequest and guarantee to keep the fund intact.

Severe Electric Storm Does Damage

A severe electric storm passed over Belchertown Tuesday afternoon and did considerable damage. While there was no great rainfall in the center, the air seemed charged with electricity. Telephone and electric service was badly crippled. 69 out of the 79 telephone lines were put out of commission. At the house of Alfred Squires on Maple St., lightning severed the telephone wires from the house and caused an electric display.

The same thing happened at the house of Lewis Blackmer and in addition a bolt entered the house from an elm tree, shattered portions of walls and ceilings and set fire to articles of clothing in a closet. It was shortly discovered and an alarm turned in. Meanwhile water was thrown on the flames and with the arrival of the chemical the fire was soon extinguished. The fire department remained on duty but there were no further outbreaks.

A Modern World

As one reads article 10 of the warrant for the town meeting next Tuesday evening he cannot but realize that times have changed. Never before has there been posted on the outside of a church edifice in Belchertown a warrant containing an article, the adoption of which would legalize Sunday sports.

We are loth to believe that the world is growing worse; in fact we believe it is growing better, but to give it a clean slate in every single particular is quite another matter. If such were the case, any fad that came along would simply add to our ecstasy and sooth our conscience.

and some who have not been scientists have come to the same conclusion.

The best way to emphasize this law as laid down in Holy writ and as proclaimed by man in his searchings after truth is to set one day aside, for, if each chose his own day of rest, the necessity for the day would soon be lost sight of.

Regarding the keeping of this one day in seven the Law is not quite as explicit. It says, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

In recent months the subject has been much debated. Great and good men have been divided in their opinions. In many cases there has been great honesty in deliberation and an openmindedness apparent that has been encouraging to those who like to see the truth patiently wrought out rather than brusquely given by those who are not open to argument.

The churches and welfare organizations emanating from them have realized for some time that the normal man should be developed in three directions, in body, mind and spirit. The special duty of the farmer is the development of the spirit, which, according to numerous house organs and other business literature coming to our desk, is of supreme importance in the world of finance and is the rock foundation upon which sound business can be built.

The question arises as to how much of Sunday, which is the day of spiritual development, can safely be given over to recreation without loss.

There is no question, we believe, but that the highest thoughts and aspirations of men must be the supreme end of the Sabbath.

Considering these facts we are not enthusiastic over the intrusion and the added emphasis being placed on second best things on the "first" day of the week.

The humane law of freedom from work one day in seven has been proved scientifically beneficent. Scientists have found its wisdom; they find it unvarying in its operation; that nations who undervalue them or carelessly throw them away will gradually but surely give way to others who cherish what they have to give.

We are afraid that the demand for Sunday sports in many instances comes from those who do not value the things of which we have been speaking. We have the feeling that it is the result of a present day tendency to keep moving and keep indulging and keep spending, thoughtless of the great and high meaning of life.

If here and elsewhere we noted a strong feeling of determination to maintain the aspirations and high privileges of our fathers which have made America great, we might look with less suspicion on what apparently seems so safe and sane.

We have the idea that with more emphasis on amusement, there will be less emphasis elsewhere, a tendency that will be detrimental. We will hail with delight games on every other day, and, in fact, legitimate amusements of any sort—we much prefer them to a great deal that is going on in the world—but to our townspeople and to any people, with respectful consideration we would say, Be careful of your Sabbaths.

Although "everybody's doing it" they may not be doing it right, therefore think the matter through very carefully before you let down the bars into that unique day, the Sabbath.

Mrs. E. E. Sargent goes today to visit her cousin, Miss Foster of Wakefield, Mass.

Mrs. M. H. Jejeian has again been elected a delegate by the Springfield branch of the Armeno-American Red Cross Society whose annual convention will take place in Providence, R. I., from July 3-6. Mrs. V. R. Mederian of Springfield will keep house for her brother during the absence of Mrs. Jejeian.

N. W. Farrar of Northampton was in town this week. Miss Bertha Cook has been spending a few days this week with her brother, Howard Cook of Dwight.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Atwood entertained over the week-end, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Amidon, and Mr. and Mrs. Herman Miller of Springfield.

Work is progressing on the Ford Service station now being erected near the Highland grounds.

Repairs on the inside of the Congregational church, which have been carried out under the supervision of the Trustees and the Social Guild, have been completed. A new ceiling has been placed under the gallery, and the two small side rooms have been redecorated; the choir loft has also been reconstructed.

New Street Sign in Place

The committee chosen at the last annual town meeting to see to the naming and marking of the various streets in Belchertown has purchased a sign which has been placed in position at the corner of Main and Maple streets. The latter has been named State street, so the sign reads "Main" and "State" streets respectively.

State street was named such for the reason that the streets in Granby and South Hadley Falls on this same road are called by that name and it is the thought of the committee that the name should be preserved through to the Enfield line.

Other streets are in process of naming and more signs will be ordered later. The sign itself is all metal, indestructible, mounted on an iron post and set in concrete.

Splits Even on Two Games

The Belchertown Independent baseball team played two games on the Fourth. The morning game was with Pelham and was played on the common. Belchertown won by a score of 26 to 3. The feature of the game was the pitching of William Kimball, who struck out twenty men.

The afternoon game was not as favorable to the local boys. This game was played in Bondsville, the team from that town winning by a score of 7 to 4. Witter's pitching was of a high order, but through lack of support the game was lost.

Community Picnic at Packardville

"When in the course of human events it becomes necessary for a people not only to work and worship together, but also to play together, it seems best to set before the public the time and place of such play; therefore we, the people of Packardville, in order to form a more perfect union, establish justice in our judgment of others, insure neighborhood tranquility, provide for the common entertainment, promote general welfare and secure the blessings of good comradeship and pleasant memories to ourselves, our children and the stranger within our gates, do ordain and appoint a picnic at Mrs. Collis', July 5th, at 11 o'clock.

"Immediately after the people shall be assembled, they shall be divided into three classes. The first class shall prepare the dinner. This class shall be made up of the women of the assembly. The second class shall be composed of the men who shall sit by and see the dinner prepared and after partaking, shall do the dishes. The third class shall be made up of the children of the assembly. These shall have the right to play both before and after dinner. Each of these classes shall be drawn upon for entertainment."

About 90 responded to the call for the picnic and everyone spent an enjoyable day. It must be confessed that while class two was strong in sitting by and partaking of the dinner, they showed a woeful failure in performing their duties at the dish pan.

Special Town Meeting

The special town meeting of Tuesday evening developed considerable interest and had in it some of the "give and take" of regular meetings. It was voted to indefinitely postpone action on the article relative to the sale of the East Hill school house.

It was voted to accept the legacy of Whiting Street whereby the town will have the responsibility of the investment of same, the interest to be used for the relief and comfort of worthy poor outside the almshouse. The death of the last beneficiary of the Whiting Street will has caused the money to be transferred to the direct care of the several towns instead of being handled through trustees as heretofore. The same amount of money will be available each year as has been the case in times past. Under article three the selectmen were authorized to act as the town's agents in matters relating to the will.

It was voted to indefinitely postpone action on the article having to do with selling land around Union school-house. It was explained that more land than was necessary was bought at the time of the location of the school house there and it was reported that there was a demand for it at the present time. No one was present at the meeting Tuesday evening to give exact information as to why the article was inserted, so it was "sent by the board."

$1,000 was voted for bridges without argument.

$3,500 was voted for the school department after an explanation by W. F. Nichols, chairman of the school committee. He said that at the time of the annual meeting it was thought that the money asked for would be sufficient; but costs of supplies had nearly doubled, the sal-

Girl Scouts in Camp

Ten Girl Scouts, their captain, two lieutenants, a swimming instructor (who proved herself to be much more than that) eagerly awaited the dawn of that Monday morning. With bright sunshine, a cloudless blue sky, and rippling June breezes, they made the start for camp at Greenwich Lake. An accommodating truck took in the girls, bag and baggage, bed and bedding, until it overflowed to a waiting touring car which took in the remains, five Scouts, a roast chicken, (yum, yum), luscious, juicy strawberries, (yum, yum), a can of milk, two lanterns, a kerosene can, a frying pan, (which was never seen afterwards), suit cases, and "other articles too numerous to mention."

Arriving at camp all was hustle and bustle. The baggage was swiftly piled upon the cottage porch until it looked ready for an auction sale. Eatables were promptly sorted out and stored away, bed rolls hied themselves to their appointed places, suit cases separated themselves one from another, and blooming in bloomers and middies, camp began.

First came instruction, rules to be observed, the appointment of squads and their duties, and so on. Thus the machinery of camp life started and until camp broke up the next Saturday it ran wonderfully smooth, being well oiled with cheerfulness, mutual forbearance and the real Scout spirit of helpfulness. Even the mosquitoes, the worst of them, the most of them, couldn't annihilate the Girl Scout temperament. ("G. S." may stand for Girl Scouts officially, but privately it was "Good Sports".)

This is not the official log of the camp. To tell of each day's doings, its work and play, would be impossible. To give a fair idea of the fun and jollifications of camp life is equally impossible unless you have been there yourself. Without the pen of a ready writer, mere facts are dry bones; your imagination must clothe them with flesh and blood.

erous pests called mosquitoes drove you out at daylight. A cold plunge in the lake, a rub down, and you faced the day with a smile. Breakfast over and camp in order, you were free to follow your own inclinations: a book out under the trees, a hike to Enfield or Greenwich, instruction in second class Scout work, tentative rowing, or just lying on the pine needles and watching the sparkling, dancing waters of the little lake and the shifting shadows—on the slopes beyond.

12:30 dinner. If squad one prepared it, and two did the dishes; then squad two would clear the supper which was cleared away by squad three and so on in rotation, each squad taking its turn on breakfast, dinner and supper.

Following the work of the dinner hour came the hardest part of the day, the rest hour. Theoretically intended to sweeten dispositions, it was in fact a sore trial. To be compelled to rest! Nobody slept if she could help it. Reading was permissible but not even that took away the curse for some.

With the renewal of activities the sun shone again. Whatever the program of the afternoon, a swim in the lake was included. A swim, did I say? Well, at least a splash and a paddle, a duck and a dive. Other activities filled out the afternoon and gave every Scout a good appetite for the evening meal.

The evening was one of merry making. Sometimes it was a Jazz band, the leader of the orchestra "regularly receiving a salary of $45 a week," but rendering her services free of charge during the Scout season. Sometimes it was impromptu theatricals and dancing. Sometimes it was just songs and stories around the smudge fire. And always there were visits from the home folks, some of them bringing ice cream, and always there was the nightly arrival of the full milk can. Boat rides and auto rides varied the programs and a trip to the movies rounded out a series of most enjoyable evenings.

Bed time came all too soon and with it the inevitable war against the mosquitoes. Some still carry the scars of that fight. It was a losing battle for the most part, but no one was daunted. Even rain and more rain did not quell the spirits of these Girl Scouts. "If we could only stay another week" was the parting wail of all.

aries of school superintendents had been raised, and more money would be needed to retain next year the teachers we already have. Mr. Nichols said that because some of the teachers reside in their own homes in town is no reason why their pay should remain stationary.

The article asking for an appropriation of $125 for the tax collector's account caused considerable explanation, the gist of which was that in years past the tax collector has been responsible for collecting the entire amount of his year's assessment, drawing his pay in proportion as he collected. Now the new law states that each collector's time expires with his current year and can be paid in full. It is therefore necessary in order to meet overlapping salaries of previous years and to settle for cash, so to speak, henceforth, to have an extra appropriation.

Due to increased insurance being placed on the town hall and some of the town buildings, $75 was asked for to be added to the insurance account, and was readily granted.

The article to see whether the town would accept the provisions of the new act providing for Sunday sports was what drew considerable of the crowd to the meeting. The moderator and others argued that the act should be produced in order to have an intelligent discussion, but no one had a copy. A motion was made for indefinite postponement on this account but did not carry. Arguments based on general principles were made against granting the petition and several were not in favor of games being played on the common. At this the two selectmen present stated that they would not be in favor of granting permits for Sunday games on the common, and the ones eager for the privilege said it was not their desire to interfere with the church services. A speech to the effect that the boys had been orderly in their games heretofore and that they might be doing something worse if not allowed the privilege, was greeted with vociferous applause and the vote which followed soon after, granted the insistent de-

C. R. Nash

We quote below from an article in a recent paper, together with comments sent us by a friend.

"Clifford Roberts Nash, who was graduated last week from Amherst college, has the unique distinction of being the son of an Amherst graduate, Henry C. Nash, '83; the grandson of Henry Clark Nash of the class of 1851 and the great grandson of Rev. John Adams Nash of the class of 1824. He represents the fourth generation of the Nash family, which from the beginning of Amherst college has sent its boys to this institution to get their education. . . ."

Some of us remember Rev. J. A. Nash, proprietor of the Mt. Pleasant school. Belchertown also takes an interest in C. R. Nash as the grandson of the late W. C. Owen, once the proprietor of the Belcher House when it was always full of city boarders in the summer. Mr. Owen's daughter Grace was the mother of C. R. Nash.

The Owen family were prominent people here in the past. Ralph Owen, W. C. Owen's father, was a noted instructor of his time. The family were good citizens, some of them substantial farmers; (if we had more such now, perhaps it would not take a fortune to buy a bushel of potatoes.)

Charles L. Randall, Superintendent of schools in Lowell, is a graduate of Amherst college. His son, Guy Randall, graduated from Tufts college Medical school in June. C. L. Randall is a cousin of Mrs. Nash; his mother, Mrs. Amy Owen Randall, and her father, W. C. Owen, being sister and brother.

Guests at the home of L. M. Blackmer on the Fourth were a cousin, Fred Hillman of Pittsfield, Miss Jones of Amherst, also Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Blackmer of this town.

Miss Ruth Perkins, former assistant principal of the local High school, sails July 17th from Montreal, P. Q., Canada, on the White Star Dominion S. S. to travel in England, Scotland and later in Holland and Paris. She will spend the winter studying at Oxford. Before returning to the United States, she will visit Switzerland and Italy.

Mrs. M. D. S. Longley is entertaining her son, Herbert Longley of St. Paul, Minn., and Mrs. Daniel Reamer of Monessen, Pa.

Robert Upham of Boston spent the week-end with his brother, Warren D. Upham of No. Main St.

Mrs. Geo. Witt and mother, Mrs. Haskell, leave this morning for Ipswich, Mass., to spend a vacation with Mrs. Witt's brother, J. W. Perkins. From there they will go to visit relatives and friends in Salem and vicinity.

Mortgagee's Sale of Real Estate

By virtue of a power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Frank H. Carson and Mary S. Carson to Herbert D. Paine, dated May 28, 1919, and recorded in Hampshire County Registry of Deeds Book 747 Page 21, for breach of conditions thereof will be sold at public auction upon the premises on Saturday, the seventeenth day of July, 1920, at two o'clock in the afternoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed and described therein as follows:—

"A certain tract of land by him conveyed to us by warranty deed on this date to be recorded in the Hampshire County Registry of Deeds." Book 747 Page 9.

The description in said warranty deed is as follows:—

"A certain tract of land with the buildings thereon standing situated in said Belchertown, bounded and described as follows: Easterly by land of the late Horton B. Ward; Southerly by land now or formerly of Erud Randall and land of Henry A. Paine; West by Henry A. Paine and Herbert D. Paine; Northerly and Westerly by Ebenezer Ward; Northerly by land now or formerly of Horton B. Ward. Containing sixty-five acres, more or less, meaning hereby to convey the same premises that were conveyed to me by warranty deed of Albert P. Ward, excepting a point of land projecting from the Westerly side of the above described premises, said point lying between lands now or formerly of Henry A. Paine and Ebenezer Ward. Containing five acres, more or less."

The premises will be sold subject to all unpaid taxes and assessments, terms to be made known at the time of the sale.

CHAPTER II

SOME OF THE OLDEST FAMILIES

On the road leading from the center of the town on the north side of the district, the house of Henry Bridgman was first. He had two sons, William Henry and Elliot Bridgman, both well known in later years as prominent citizens and town officials. The father built houses for each of his sons where they lived for a few years. After their father's death Elliot sold his part of the farm to Henry Graves who occupied the place until his death, with the exception of three years spent as a soldier in the Civil war as a member of the 37th regiment where he was severely wounded. He was an honored citizen and a deacon in the Baptist church until his death.

The next two houses nearly opposite have long since been torn down. They were occupied, one by Solomon Marsh, the other by Julius Owen, the "Quilly" Owen spoken of in the Turkey Hill history. His wife was a daughter of a Mr. Prentiss whose first name is forgotten but who was always known as "Tinker" Prentiss. He was a blacksmith, a soldier in the Revolutionary army several years, was with Washington's army at Valley Forge and at the surrender of Cornwallis at Yorktown. He was famous as a teller of big stories; they were not all to be credited, but what has been told here is known to be true. His daughter, Mrs. Owen, I remember well. She was a tall, thin woman. She had a stone with which, so she said, she could look into the future and tell her auditors what was in store for them. Mr. Owen was a member of the Owen family of Westfield, wealthy and respected.

On the hill beyond their place lived Smith Arnold, known in all the neighborhood as "Squire Arnold", who died about sixty years ago. One of his daughters married the Mr. Marsh who was mentioned as living near him. She was the mother of Horatio Marsh who died in this town a few years ago, and grandmother of Charles Marsh who left town two years ago. The older members of the Marsh family moved to Iowa seventy years ago. The Arnold place is owned by a Polish family.

On a road that leaves the old highway nearly opposite the house where Wm. Henry Bridgman lived for many years, was the home of Jeremiah Weston whose family of nine children were prominent in the district and also in the town. They were an active, interesting family, always ready to meet their friends and entertain them. One of the sons, Roderick, graduated at Brown University, became a physician and was one of the first "49'ers" to leave for the mines of California where he spent most of his life.

Another son, John W. Weston, took to the sea, sailing round the world and visiting Australia, then a little known continent. He came home, engaged in the lumber business and built the house where Roderick Weston now lives. A few years afterward he sold the farm, moved to New York and became a broker on Wall Street, dying there many years ago. He was a good example of American character who make their way in any position with credit.

The youngest son, George Boardman Weston, spent seven years in different countries of Europe and was an authority on Russian and Turkish affairs, in which countries he lived several years. He was a fluent speaker and could entertain an audience as few native sons could.

Belchertown Independents Trim Enfield

Sunday baseball, favored by a "just right" atmosphere, got away to a good start on the State School grounds last Sunday when the Belchertown Independents used the whitewash brush on their old rival, Enfield, winning by a score of 6 to 0. A good sized crowd witnessed the game.

Larry Whittier was selected to twirl for the Independents and he certainly had a big day, letting down the Enfielders with six scattered hits, fanning twelve and issuing but two free tickets to first base. Roy Gage was on the mound for Enfield and pitched a good game also. He was touched up for six hits, fanned eleven and walked three. The game itself was one of the finest seen this season, the playing being fast from start to finish.

The fielding features were turned in by Davis, Atkins and Jones. Davis handled five chances at third, one of them turning into a double play. Atkins had three putouts in centerfield, all of them being difficult chances. Jones made a pretty, one-handed stop of Fairchild's swift grounder at third in the fourth inning.

The Independents scored two runs in the first inning. Hawes was hit by a pitched ball and stole second. Jackson walked and went to second on Davis' infield out, Hawes taking third and scoring when Metcalf dropped Walker's long fly in centerfield, Jackson taking third on the error. He scored on Sutherland's out on first. Atkins was out, Gage to Harwood.

With two down in the second inning, Whittier doubled to center and went to third when Hawes' infield fly went for a hit, as Jones and Avery stood near it, each calling for the play and allowing the ball to drop. Whittier scored before Jackson struck out.

Enfield got a man as far as third in the third inning, with one down but could not tally. Daigle singled and went to second while Avery struck out. Metcalf singled and Daigle took third, but stayed there as Whittier struck out Jones.

In the fifth inning, Harwood singled to right. Daigle hit a liner into Davis' hands, who then threw to Fisher, doubling Harwood off first. Avery struck out.

Enfield filled the bases with one down in the seventh inning but fail-

The Birds' Overture

Before the sun has risen to light
This earthly stage of God, While slink the shadows, horn of Night,
By coming Day unawed,

Though human actors sleep on still,
Who must their roles endure,
There come from every vale and hill,
Sounds of an overture.

It starts with just a chirp or two
From nearby maple tree; Increasing fast, it rises to Full-throated harmony!

A thousand voices, joining in,
Fill all the morning air
With one sweet, melodious din
That echoes everywhere.

The play has never been given
In country near or far,
With music like this, from heaven,
This feathered orchestra!

The chorus swells, the East is blazed,
And rosy beams have kissed
The fleecy clouds, and quietly raised
The curtain of the mist.

The chorus dies, the drama starts, Eternal Play of Life!
The sleepers rise, to take their parts
Of toil, or love, or strife.

Red Cross Car

A Ford Coupe has been purchased by the Hampshire County Red Cross for the use of Miss Judd, the district nurse, for her work in Belchertown and Granby. The car is the property of the organization above mentioned but social functions are expected to be put on by the local auxiliary to reimburse the county branch for part of the amount required to purchase the car.

The car was bought through D. D. Hazen, local agent, who went to New York this week to drive the machine to town.

Reminiscences of the Holyoke District

by M. S. Barton
SOME OF THE OLDEST FAMILIES

We will now go back to the old road where in the next house lived Ozias Norcross. Mr. Norcross was a native of New Hampshire and came here where he married and lived with his children. He had picked up a good education somewhere and was an authority on many things. He had taught school before coming here and taught a private school here for a time, even fitting some young men for college, but confidence in himself was lacking; he was never very successful and lived largely as a day laborer.

His sons went west, the oldest at the time of the Kansas trouble, and was with the Free state in their affairs with the border ruffians. When the Civil war came he started to organize a company to defend the government when he was shot from ambush and killed. His name was Eular; his brother was named Lagrange, both after eminent mathematicians. Lagrange went west, enlisted in an Iowa regiment and served throughout the war. After the war the old gentleman sold his place, went west and died at Fort Collins, Colorado, many years ago.

The next house beyond that of Mr. Norcross was Alonzo Warner's. He had a numerous family of boys and girls all of whom attended the district school as did the other children of the neighborhood, although a mile and a half distant over a poor road almost impassable in winter.

It is not known who built this house or when it was built. Near the house is a large brook where once was a mill for grinding corn built by a man named Giddings and run by him a number of years until a storm tore out the dam and the mill was never rebuilt. Only the old mill stones mark the site where one of the first old grist mills stood. Mr. Giddings is supposed to have built the house, a very old one. Amos Spaulding lived there after Mr. Warner's death, and some of his descendants still own the property although it is unoccupied.

Only a few rods in front of this house was a large cellar dug by an

Voices that Must be Heard

Some voices will not drown. The very righteousness of the causes they represent is sufficient reason why they are bound to be heard. "Truth crushed to earth will rise again." It cannot be avoided.

The cry for independence was both insistent and righteous and nothing else could result than the Declaration of Independence, the signing of which we have just celebrated. In like manner the cry for deliverance from the evil of slavery was for a time hushed, but it broke out and no man could stop it. People cried for independence and independence they secured. They cried for freedom from slavery and freedom they received.

In these latter days, people have been crying insistently that war should end. "War to end war" was the voice of millions. Leaders took it up and worked it for all it was worth until the battle turned. Since then the voice has been smothered, but here and there we still hear the cry that eventually will be heard and heeded.

If there was any one cry that was heard in the great baccalaureate addresses of the past month, it was the cry of world brotherhood whereby war shall end. Those who have expounded it have not been playing to votes; they have thought the matter out clearly and they have spoken courageously; they represent the most intellectual element in America and they know what true Americanism is.

If there was any one cry expressed at the recent International Council in Boston attended by 3,200 delegates from all over the world, it was the cry that the League of Nations must be supported and perfected, even though it might hold only a possibility of an avoidance of future strife.

Like the cry for independence, like the cry for freedom from slavery, is the cry today for something to safeguard the peace of the world. Months, even years may possibly elapse, but the cry cannot be smothered.

Millions of voices sleeping beneath the sod in France and in other countries, of every nationality, cry out to us to complete their task, and who shall say them nay?

July 4 will ever be a memorable date in American history, but the world is crying out for another day, similar to Dec. 25, when every man in every nation and under every sun can with thankfulness rejoice that life for each and all is at last secure.

Let us hear and accentuate in our own day the voices that eventually are bound to be heard.

Englishman soon after the Revolutionary war, and a large building erected for the making of potash. This man who intended to establish a small colony of immigrants there and whose name I may not even spell correctly, was Captain Mascarine, a name more Scottish than English, and was perhaps one of the searovers who made the name of England famous by their depredations on the commerce of England's enemies. He was reported to be very wealthy and to have returned to England for more money. He was said to have possessed a barrel of silver. He went to England but never returned, both ship and passengers being lost on the return voyage, his property here going to decay and his lands being appropriated by others.

The road here turns sharply to the west, past the old cemetery where the old inhabitants lie buried. Many soldiers of the Revolution rest

Mr. George Tapping Died April 6, 1769, 69 years."

The house south of the cemetery was built by William Bell who lived here a few years, when it came into the possession of George W. Coleman who greatly improved and enlarged it. It is now the home of his widow.

On the west side of the road about fifteen rods distant, nearby Mr. Coleman's place, stood a large, two story house built by Noble Baggs, with a farm of nearly 200 acres around it. Above the front door, cut into one of the solid oak timbers were the figures "1767," the date of the erection of the house. The place was not possessed by him long for in 1777 we find him owning and keeping the hotel in the center of the town, very near where George Jackson now lives. He is the ancestor of all the Baggs families in town, so well and favorably known ever since.

"The Good Old Days"
An extract from a letter written in Belchertown April 11, 1832, giving a report of a town meeting and incidentally throwing some light on "the good old days" which, on close analysis, possibly were not quite as good as the words might indicate.
"The result of the town meeting held April, 1832: J. Forward, Esq., moderator; Wright Bridgman, town clerk; selectmen, J. Forward, Esq., Dea. Towne, Leonard Barrett, assessors, J. Olds, Esq., J. Boudoin, Wm. Bridgman.
"The officers for the Sunday School were chosen Fast Day noon: Dea. Towne superintendent, assisted by Esq. Forward; Dr. Thomson, secretary; Mr. Burnett, librarian; directors, J. Forward, Esq., J. Bridgman, Esq., Theodore Bridgman, Col. Dwight, Capt. S. Strong.
"Mr. Coleman preached on Fast Day from Ps. 116: 25, "O Lord, I beseech Thee, send now prosperity." He said that what we prayed for, we ought to use all the means in our power to obtain. He applied the subject particularly to the town, and pointed out what we ought to do to gain prosperity. In the forenoon he took up the temporal side; in the afternoon, the spiritual side. It was an interesting sermon.
"Among other things mentioned as a means of prosperity was this: All should feel a common interest in the public good and unitedly strive to promote it. As a proof of the want of that in this town he mentioned the almost universal desire that was felt to get-away from here. He said there was hardly a man who was not anxious to sell and to remove to some more favored land, and nothing but dire necessity prevailed upon any one to stay upon this unwelcome spot and that a capitalist might, for a comparatively small sum, buy almost the whole town and that this indicated a state of society which could not be prosperous.

"Among the evils which had contributed to produce this almost general bankruptcy he mentioned the long and almost endless credits which had been given; the trade by barter and the facility for obtaining loans. He spoke of the Insurance Company at Boston as one of the greatest curses ever entailed upon our land. He said that this town owed $40,000 to that company, for the security of which four times that amount of property was pledged.
"He spoke of intelligence and education as necessary to the prosperity of a people and lamented that so little interest was here felt on this subject, that the neighboring school house stood desolate and neglected instead of being a blessing to the community as it might be."

Grange Field Day

Tuesday, July 27, has been set aside as Grange Field Day at M. A. C., Amherst. The Field Day affords an excellent opportunity to get better acquainted and it is hoped a large delegation from Union Grange will attend. The program follows:
10.30 Inspection trip around farm.
12.00 Basket lunch on campus.
1.30 Introduction, Leslie R. Smith.
Address by speaker from State Grange.
3.00 Inspection trip around farm.

Local Man Enters Race

Fred D. Walker is taking out nomination papers for representative of the Fourth Hampshire District. It has been some years since a Republican has cared to enter the field against Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, Democrat. This year Mr. Walker, acting in the capacity of chairman of the Republican town committee, went to Ware to meet the chairman of the Republican committee to see about putting a man in the race. Several Ware men were mentioned, but after some days of consideration, the Ware committee-men insisted that Mr. Walker be the one to make the race. This Mr. Walker was reluctant to do, but finally agreed rather than not to have a contest.

The Ware men assured the new candidate of their hearty support, as have chairmen of a number of Republican town committees in this district. Mr. Walker served as postmaster under the last Republican administration and was in the laundry business in Ware for quite a length of time, which should help him in his campaign.

Sunday School Night

Tuesday evening was a get-together night for the Federated Sunday school. The lawn in front of the chapel was a perfect bee hive of activity as the shades of night came on. Here under the elm tree are a group of children, one of them blindfolded and trying to hit with a stick a package of candy tied in a paper napkin so that those gathered around might get a chance to sample its contents when the fateful stroke was made; here are some more children just outside the inner circle who promised to let the others have a chance this time; here are some older girls playing "London Bridge," here are others playing that game which will never lose its charm, "Drop the Handkerchief," and here seated in chairs near the chapel steps, are some, older in years yet young in spirit, who are thinking of the days that are gone while they are talking with their friends of the

Meets Tragic Death

Burnace Elliot Dwight of this town met a tragic death Tuesday afternoon between the hours of two and three o'clock. The accident occurred on the Belchertown-Enfield state road at a point where the new construction is being carried on. Dwight was employed there with a team of horses, and while standing up on his cart to urge his horses to pull the load of gravel out of a depression, he was thrown to the ground and one of the rear wheels passed over his body, crushing it badly. Dr. J. L. Collard was called but Dwight lived only a few minutes. The body was taken to the home two houses below where the accident occurred and was later viewed by associate medical examiner Segur of Enfield.

The young man was 23 years of age. He was married on the 28th of last month to Miss Jerome of Enfield, returning only last week from his honeymoon to resume work this week on the road.

He leaves besides his wife, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. George Dwight, the latter in feeble health, a brother, Edwin, and a sister, Leila.

The funeral was held at the home yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, the services being conducted by Rev. Mr. Fuller of the Independent Liberal church of Greenwich. The co-workers of the deceased on the road attended and added to the floral presentations. Burial was in Woodlawn cemetery, Enfield.

The Privileges of Sunday

Any who attended the morning service of the Federated church last Sunday expecting to be treated to fireworks on the Sunday question, must have gone away disappointed. Instead, Rev. H. P. Rankin laid stress upon the great positive privileges of the day which affords recuperative powers to body, mind and spirit. He said it is a day of rest and a day of spiritual development, a day of recruiting our moral and spiritual strength. We need it as we need a bath for our bodies.

Some may say that the music does

The Measuring Party

The measuring party, given by the Ladies' Social Union of the Methodist church in the vestry on last Friday evening, measured up to all that was expected of it, with a few inches to spare.

The fun started near one of Conkey's white pine boards which had the sensation accorded to few of its kind in the matter of a friendly contact with so many of our worthy citizens. All who accepted the cordial invitation to the party, after more or less preliminary, sauntered over to this present day luxury and rubbed their backs on its health giving surface.

The measure of devotion varied with the personality of the guest. Some meekly and deferentially backed up to the feet and inches marked thereon, and quietly passed on their way; some, to whom pounds avoirdupois and altitude are perennial subjects of interest, made a supreme effort by means of high heels, pompadour hair, and a smile standing on edge, to reach the seven foot mark, or the six foot at least, while his

Independents Win 9 to 7

The Independents ran up against the M. A. C. summer school team on the park last Saturday afternoon and won out by a score of 9 to 7. The first few innings seemed to indicate that there would be a long string of zeroes as there was nothing doing on either side. In the fourth inning things came near starting. With none out, Dowd, the Amherst shortstop, made a big hit, good for three bases, but the coach wanting to put on something spectacular, told him to keep going, with the result that he was put out by Fairchild, just as he was about to cross the plate.

But things did start in the fifth inning and the score began to mount fast. Amherst started the fun in their half, scoring three runs. Belchertown soon followed suit. Atkins was the first local man to cross the plate but Witter, Hawes and Barrett soon found the way and the score stood 4 to 3 in Belchertown's favor when the inning closed. An

The Town Clock

A Letter to "Johnnie Jones"

Dear Johnnie:

I forgot to tell you in the letter I wrote you yesterday about our town clock. Say, it's a peach. The other morning it struck 48 times when 'twas only 9 o'clock. You bet we're running on now time all right. Done gone and got ahead of everybody.

Dad thought 'twas a fire. You know we have a new fire alarm code. Instead of banging the old bell away as we used to, they've got up a list with numbers for every street and district, and we can tell right off just where a fire is. When they ring a certain number like 32, they yank it 3 times slow like, then they give it two quick ones. But dad, he thought every stroke meant one, and so he commenced to count till he'd got up to 43 and he was dead sure 'twas Blue Meadow as that's the highest number on the card, but the pesky thing kept going, so he went off to the potato peace, a jerking out something about that town clock. It just tickled my ribs, you bet, for I've always been poking fun at it, but he's kept saying that a faithful old human it's been and all that; told the death, he said, of many an "octogeranium"—hanged if I know what that is.

But that day, Johnnie, he swung his old hoe declaring that he'd bring in a bill to the town for the time he'd spent standing their a listening to that bell—said he'd never vote for this board of selectmen again, hoped women would get into power right off and get things to running right.

I followed him along back of the wall as he went down where the potatoes are, and he still kept at it. I tell you I enjoyed it. Said he thought the town had voted to do something last spring—didn't know why it hadn't been done—or if it had been done, why 'twant done right—and if money 'd got shy, wondered why 'twant brought up at the last town meeting along with appropriating more money for schools, "trying to run on this pesky old time."

And as he swung into the first row he waxed kinder hot, as they say, and chopped the third plant right off even with the top of the ground as he let 'er go again with, "I declare, if something isn't done pretty quick, I'll be in favor of presenting the whole contrivance to that new feeble minded institution to be sort of a testing machine to determine when some of the fellers are entitled to graduate."

Ma's been calling to me for the last five minutes to go to the store, but I simply had to peel this yarn off which, to my notion, is pretty rich.

Bill

friends and relatives coaxed him on to more elongated activity. Some tried the opposite method in a pretended effort to save paying extra for any odd inches, only to find that they had blundered into a four feet, ten inches, or a five feet, eleven inches; and all of course had to pass the time of day with Mrs. Conkey, the official measurer, and with Mrs. Henry Witt, the official checker, the latter writing on a tag one's particular specifications so that he might correctly settle with Mrs. Green, the treasurer, who punched one through for a round trip of entertainment, ice cream, cake and a liberal punch.

Special features of the entertainment were tableaux representing "Jack and Jill", impersonated by Milton Chamberlain and Lillian Upham; and "Little Miss Muffet", by Irene Ayres and Stanley Rowe. These were made effective with readings given by Mrs. W. D. E. Morse and Mrs. H. H. Witt, respectively.

A most pleasing number was the drill, "The Young Harvesters", with tableau, participated in by fourteen girls with caps and sashes of gold, and carrying sickles and sheaves of rye. Those taking part in the drill were Olive Dunbar, Frances Sauer, Dorothy Blackmer, Minnie Squires, Stella Snow, Darcia Dodge, Esther Squires, Althea Dodge, Jane Shumway, Irene Ayres, Marjorie Peeso, Evelyn Shumway, Marjorie Ayres, Dorothy Peeso.

Other numbers on the program were a piano solo by Mrs. William Shaw; a reading by Miss Alice Booth, a recitation by Marian Shaw and a duet by Darcia Dodge and Stella Snow.

After the program, refreshments were served, and re-served to those who made an extra deposit, but the punch bowl was a "free-for-all" and defied all attempts to make it dry. To finish the evening's enjoyment,

Win 9 to 7

amusing feature of this inning was the losing of the ball out in the field by the Amherst boys, letting in two of the runs.

The visitors were unable to tally in the first of the sixth, but the home boys couldn't stop their pace, five crossing the platter to mount the score.

Amherst started a come-back in the seventh, putting across three runs. From then on to the end of the game, however, only one run was scored and that was by Amherst in the ninth. The final figures were Belchertown 9, Amherst 7.

Both pitchers stayed on the mound till the finish but the umpires were constantly on the move. Ed. Atwood started out to umpire balls and strikes, and Roy Shaw to have charge of the bases, but it got rather "warm" for Atwood in the third and he decided he'd rather sit in the shade, and while Shaw survived a while longer, he too sought a more comfortable spot. Parent took Atwood's place but had to leave soon after, so Riley finished out the game, umpiring the concluding innings alone.

not soothe them, some that what the preacher says does not suit them, and while it may be true that one can find God in the great out of doors, still he who goes to the sanctuary looking only on the crucified and risen Lord, can but go out strengthened.

It is true that one can be good where he is, can be good if he is alone, but it is also true that numbers lead to enthusiasm and uplift. Sundays are opportunities for service, for moral uplift and for spiritual elevation.

Rev. Mr. Rankin said that some people might spend the day hoeing potatoes, and as a result they might get a better crop than those who didn't, but while they were hoeing strength into their potatoes they were hoeing spiritual starvation and weakness into their own lives and the lives of their children. They might have better potatoes but not better boys and girls.

He closed by saying that those who made Sunday a day of service and of spiritual development would not find other things crowding into the day which is the golden link that binds time and eternity.

The various activities ceased while Rev. C. H. Smith of Granby, former pastor of the Congregational church, mounted the steps of the chapel and spoke a few words of counsel to the younger generation, emphasizing the importance of studying the bible and of Sunday School attendance. For the benefit of those older he called to mind the old brick hall which stood on the chapel site and its displacement by the present structure during his pastorate.

Soon after the close of the speech, the party repaired to the chapel where the youngsters and grown ups were served with that American necessity, ice cream and cake. Seated at a table in the Priscilla parlors was the pastor's class, or rather the "Ford" class, who in the Lincoln Highway contest are taking the lead on the journey from "Frisco" to "New York". This, by the way, was the real reason for the social, but each one entered into the enjoyment as if it was for him and him alone.

The management announces that the local team will be considerably strengthened for this series. A liberal patronage is asked for, as good backing is necessary to meet expenses.

The Lawn Party

The largest and most successful social function put on by the Young Peoples' societies of the Federated church since their coming together, was the lawn party of last Friday evening. Elaborate preparations were made, and the rain, for a wonder, held off long enough to permit of its really being true to name.

The space between the church and chapel was enclosed by means of a long heavy rope, which, at a point near the chapel, was elevated to form an arched doorway where those who wished to walk in in legitimate manner might have the privilege by producing the modest fee of ten cents to satisfy the demands of the toll keeper, H. Peck.

Within, one could still find opportunity to get rid of any extra ten cent pieces he might have, or in fact coins of larger denominations. One of the first attractions to do a land office business and succumb for lack of stock was the fish pond. Here one used a pole and line and could actually feel the nibble of the monster within the screened off pond. Here Miss Connors rented the pole, Miss Hales took the change and Mrs. Cook furnished the nibble.

On the opposite side of the grounds was an equally popular spot. Back of a table bordered with red were three large ice cream freezers beside which bent two husky chaps, viz., H. Booth and Kimball, laboring continuously to keep the crowd cool, while Miss Cook and Miss Dunbar took care of the cool cash.

Not far distant Francis Allen and Newell Booth enticed to their lair those whose weakness is hot frankfurts. Yellow and white was the booth and yellow and brown were the dogs.

Those with a sweet tooth repaired to the booth of pink and white, in charge of Miss Irene Orlando, who, assisted by Miss Gladys Gay, dealt out the home-made sweets.

It took three to run the pop corn counter next door, arched with shimmering green, matching to perfection the green waists of some of the attendants. Miss Edith Peeso, Miss Madeleine Orlando and Miss Gertrude Story had charge here.

While the weather failed to be wet, the crowd ran in that direction

Death of Charles L. Loveland

Charles Lyman Loveland died suddenly at his home on the Ware road last Sunday morning at about 10.30 o'clock. He was shaving, preparatory to attending church with his wife, when he fell to the floor and died before she could reach him.

Associate medical examiner W. B. Segur was called and pronounced death due to heart trouble. Mr. Loveland was born in Greenfield 67 years ago, but spent most of his life in Chicopee where he was employed for twenty years as a baker. Mr. and Mrs. Loveland came to this town seven years ago and have made many friends. Mr. Loveland has been for the last two years the faithful and efficient janitor of the center schools. He was a member of the Methodist church and of Union Grange.

He leaves besides his widow, Mrs. Ella J. Loveland, a son, Charles R. Loveland of Chicopee Falls, and a sister, Mrs. Clara L. Crawford of Brookline. There are also two grandchildren.

The funeral was held at the home Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. Burial was in Fairview cemetery, Chicopee.

Shall We Save It?

The purchase by E. A. Fuller of land around Lake Metacomet has raised the question of the advisability of the town or townspeople buying such part of the waterfront as may be desirable for use as a park or picnic ground for the people of Belchertown.

The matter has been on the minds of a number of people and has been discussed at occasional informal meetings in recent years, but nothing has been done about it.

The importance of a town securing such land has been emphasized by those who realize that before one knows it, such opportunities slip away and are gone forever.

When one peruses the work of a city planner, for instance the plan of the city of Auburn, Me., drawn by M. H. West of Chicago, about which we commented in our columns a few weeks ago, it is evident that a town or city's natural features are among its greatest assets. It will also be remembered that we were especially cautioned by the secretary of the Massachusetts Civic League that no town is too small to have a definite plan for the future, and he mentioned in his letter that waterfronts especially should be preserved to the people.

The time seems to be ripe therefore for a discussion and decision as to what ought to be done. A number of people have expressed a willingness to take a share in the enterprise provided a sufficient number would come in to make the burden light. M. A. Morse has done considerable promoting regarding the matter and would no doubt appreciate the opinions of any who may be at all interested in perpetuating to the people of Belchertown one of its natural beauty spots.

It is to be hoped that we may profit by the experience we have had in our other community enterprises. Only within the last month has Holland Glen been fully paid for, and the note of relief felt in some instances makes a trip to Lake Metacomet or some other resort desirable. And Community hall, while it is still a going proposition, has not yet reached the stage where its promoters can breathe easily.

The proposition of developing Lake Metacomet is of sufficient interest to all the people of Belchertown so that it should not be left to the old guard of public spirited citizens to bear the responsibility. Any one within the limits of the town

Dies in Ludlow

Mrs. Francesah Morse Towne, 83, died at her home in Ludlow on Monday. She was born in Belchertown, and was married to M. D. L. Towne of Bondsville. Mr. Towne later ran a store in Ludlow which since his death has been carried on by his son.

Mrs. Towne is the last of her immediate family, but leaves a half-sister, Mrs. Charles Walker of Springfield and some distant relatives.

The funeral was in Ludlow Wednesday afternoon at 1.30 with burial in South Belchertown.

A Full Sugar Bowl

This is presidential year. The coming event of the November election long since has cast its shadow over the land and darkened counsels in congress and elsewhere, and eclipsed vital concerns of the nation and of the world. We cannot help it very well for we must elect a president and take the risk of an approaching election projecting a baneful shadow far before it.

The shadow of this quadrennial election falls on every home in the land. It falls upon our breakfast table; it falls upon our dinner table; it falls upon our supper table and the center of the shadow rests upon the sugar bowl. There we see three times a day, this dark, depressing shadow, as we gather around the board that should be a festive board.

How does this happen, you ask. Well, I explain it this way: Politicians have a way of barking up the wrong tree and of seeing red on minor issues. This is presidential year. The politicians, big and little, are all barking. The two great political parties have had their great conventions. They have announced their platforms and named their candidates for the presidency of this great and glorious country of ours, with its vast territory, its untold, taxed and untaxed riches, its mighty power and its empty sugar bowls. The echoes of the noisy conventions are subsiding and we may hear more plainly the sighs of the housekeepers and the cries of the children over the sad condition of the sugar bowls.

The politicians barked up the wrong tree at Chicago and at San Francisco. The great issue is not a partisan matter of getting out one set of legislators and office holders and of getting in another set of a different party; it is not financial like the tariff and federal taxes; it is not a question of foreign policy, whether or not we shall join the league of nations; it is a domestic, or social, issue and touches every home in the land. And the politicians made their convention pronouncements on some issues, beautifully straddled others and entirely ignored the empty sugar bowls of this great, sugar consuming land.

Once a great party thought the dinner pails of the people who carry dinner to their places of labor needed attention and they raised the slogan—A Full Dinner Pail—and marched to victory. Not every one who works carries a dinner pail, but three times a day he confronts a sugar bowl. What a chance the great parties have missed to consider your sugar bowl and mine and the sugar bowl in every home in the land, and raise the cry—A Full Sugar Bowl. O how short sighted the politicians of the conventions were. There is no great, burning, vital issue proclaimed in the platforms upon which they labored so perspiringly day and night. The issues of other days over which the old guards fought so valiantly have lost their power. A new issue is needed that will appeal to the multitude, a new cry that will stir the blood of all.

Here is an issue that is a live one. It touches every last one of us, rich and poor, democrat, republican, prohibitionist, progressive, stand-patter, wets and dries, men, women and children. We want sugar. We want to be able to get it when we need it and as much of it as we need. We are tired of having it doled out to us by an arbitrary grocer in pound or two pound packages at a price that gives us the disagreeable impression that some one along the line of those who handle this sweet and precious article of food is profiteering.

We, the people, are getting exasperated over the situation. Prices are high. The cow has jumped over the moon, and the pig and the sheep and the hen have jumped nearly as high. Clothing—well, the men were taking to overalls a few weeks ago to cheapen the cost of apparel. Gone are the days when we felt we were not getting our money's worth of sweetening if we could buy only fifteen pounds of sugar for a dollar. "The time is out of joint!"

To Peter Bell,

"A primrose by the river's brim
A yellow primrose was to him,
And it was nothing more."

Poor, dull Peter not to understand any of the deeper meaning of such visible objects as a yellow primrose!

The empty sugar bowl may be a sugar bowl and nothing more to convention delegates and party leaders but dull and shortsighted are they if they fail to understand its deeper meaning. The nominees for the various high offices are now busy interpreting the platforms to catch the votes of the people. They are pledging themselves to attempt this, that and the other task for various classes of people. Would it not be quite as useful a service to interpret the meaning of the empty sugar bowls of the land and pledge themselves to fill them?

Look at your sugar bowl O voters. Is it an empty bowl and nothing more? Look at your sugar bowl O housekeepers who are soon to have the franchise. Is it an empty bowl and nothing more? It is a symbol to me, a symbol of many things that have gone wrong in these days and need righting in order that people may live comfortably and have food to eat at a reasonable price and clothes to wear at a reasonable price and fuel to burn at a reasonable price and milk for the children at a reasonable price and sugar—sugar enough to fill the bowl and keep it full. In our house we discuss politics over the sugar bowl. We view campaign issues in the light of the sugar bowl. It is a new viewpoint but is not to be rejected because of that. Why not test an office seeker by his attitude to the family sugar bowl as well as by his view concerning the tariff or the eighteenth amendment? Will he go for the profiteers hammer and tongs? Will he cease to be a mere partisan and give attention to domestic and vital questions that concern the people? We shall vote for the party and candidates who will do most to give us a full sugar bowl.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Hurlburt and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Giles of Springfield motored to Somers, Ct. Sunday. They report the crops in that section in a very serious condition owing to the great amount of rain fall.

Charles Munsell and Mrs. Fosket of Orange and Mrs. Goodwin of Springfield visited at the home of J. W. Hurlburt on Monday. Mrs. Fosket, who has been a paralytic invalid for several years was much pleased with her first visit in this vicinity.

Charles Newcomb of Northampton is quite seriously ill at his home. Mrs. H. F. Putnam returned on Tuesday from Hubbardton, Vt. and Glens Falls, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Amos M. Root of Glens Falls announce the birth of a son, Richard Clayton, July 24th.

to some extent. Theodore Hazen and Earl Witt at their enticing table of red and white lured without much difficulty those who wanted punch or something with more ginger in it.

To satisfy those whose cravings were not all of an inward nature, a booth was provided, artistically trimmed in red, green and white, where flowers of many colors and varieties were sold as button hole bouquets. Here Miss Dora Blackmer and Miss Alice Booth, in person or by proxy, dispensed for the modest sum of five cents something that really lasted.

While some may not have patronized all the money making agencies, almost all got the benefit of the ten cents they paid for admission by taking in the farce, "An Interrupted Proposal," which was staged in the Priscilla room of the chapel, the sliding doors serving as a curtain and the main room as the audience room.

Earl Witt and Miss Bernice Cook took the part of Mr. and Mrs. Stone, concerned about the matrimonial prospects of their daughter, Helen Stone in the person of Miss Gladys Gay who was having some time "helping out" Belding Jackson, alias Tracy. Mrs. Nobby Rapusey (Eleanor Bardwell) was the inquisitive neighbor, Betty (Madeleine Orlando) was the maid, and Howard (Watson Bardwell) was the fellow from the shore who interrupted everything.

Miss Sarah Demarest furnished music on the piano between the acts. The play was given on short notice under the coaching of Miss Isabel Bardwell of Middlebury college. Previous to the play there was a dialogue between Miss Alice Booth, the deaf mistress, and Walter Dodge, the tramp.

Not only did the townspeople come out in good numbers, but large delegations came from Fairview, So. Amherst and Granby. Rev. Mr. West was present from Fairview and Rev. C. H. Smith of Granby. The out-of-town people departed in good spirits, bidding farewell in good cheer fashion.

owning an automobile, a horse or a pair of strong legs would benefit to a greater or less degree by the privilege of a park at the lake and it is only fair that those who receive the benefits underwrite the obligation, either by taxation or subscription.

If a sufficient number would come together on the proposition there would be no limit to what might be accomplished, and all the desirable features such as a ball field, boat house, boats, bath house and the like, would be made possible.

Holland Glen, Community hall, and Lake Metacomet are desirable assets of the town. All that is needed is a good dose of public spirit to make them all go.

Reminiscences of the Holyoke District

SOME OF THE OLDEST FAMILIES

Three families named Town once occupied the three houses about one mile south from the Baggs place. The direct road there was discontinued many years ago and they are reached by a road near the line between Belchertown and Granby that leaves the state road at that point turning south. The first was that of Jonathan Town, the next that of Deacon Amasa Town. No one living at present can remember when the first two houses were standing and the exact location of the first is not known as a certainty but it was near the house where Martin Bissell now lives.

Jonathan Town was the father of Salem Town, the author of Town's Readers and Spellers so familiar to school children in many places in New England. They were a real advance over any previous school books of that day and gave the pupil some idea of the meaning of the words read or spelled. Mr. Town moved away before any of his pupils now living ever saw him. He settled at last in Aurora, New York, and lies buried on the picturesque shores of Cayuga Lake.

The family of Amasa Town built their house on a hill in a pleasant place. It was the last to be demolished, some 65 years ago; I well remember it. Chester Randall married one of Mr. Town's daughters who became the mother of Deacon Nelson Randall, long a resident of the town and greatly respected and honored.

Another daughter married Humphrey T. Filer, one of the first of the carriage manufacturers to make the town known beyond its borders. I well remember during the Civil War while on a long march over the sandy roads near Goldsboro, North Carolina, seeing beside the road a carriage that looked familiar and finding on it the name of H. T. Filer, Maker, Belchertown, Mass.

About one-fourth of a mile north-east of Chester Randall's was the home of Reuben Barton who moved from Oxford, Worcester county, to Belchertown about 1767. Mr. Barton was a soldier in the French and Indian wars, was under those renowned colonial fighters, Putnam, Stark and Rogers, the first two being conspicuous in our Revolutionary struggle. Rogers, at the time of the Revolution, took the wrong side, got a General's command but never amounted to much and went to England soon after. Mr. Barton was at the disastrous attack on Ticonderoga where the English and Colonial troops lost 2,000 men in 4 hours. I was a visitor at Lake George nine years ago and found the breastworks behind which the French army was placed; they could be plainly traced although 150 years had passed since the battle. In the Revolution he was present at the capture of Burgoyne's army at Saratoga.

War Savings and Thrift Stamps

Postmaster Sargent has received from headquarters a report of the sales of war savings and thrift stamps that have taken place from January 1 to June 1 of the present year in the United States. The results indicate that the public is still interested in these exponents of thrift, even though this country is not actually at war.

Total number of sales: 369,566 War Savings and 1,845,701 Thrift Stamps.

Reports from but 12 per cent of the schools of the District show that school children to the number of 63,000 have purchased over $500,000 worth of stamps.

Placed end to end these would make a strip 45 miles long. Reduced to area they would completely cover Bunker Hill monument.

Mr. Sargent is also in receipt of a poster relating to a fund being raised for the erection of a battle monument to commemorate the 5,300 dead of the First division. Remittances and subscriptions may be sent direct to Major General C. P. Summerall, Camp Zachary Taylor, Ky.

Baseball Notes

We were informed last Friday evening by a man connected with the Amherst Summer School team at M. A. C. that it was not their team which played here on the previous Saturday, but the Amherst Canoe Club. He also stated that on the Wednesday preceding, the Independents did play the Summer School team in Amherst and were defeated by a score of 13 to 0. Regarding the latter we were "strangely" not informed and as to the former we were misinformed. Both were unlucky.

Wins First Game

The Belchertown Independents won the first game of the series with Bondsville last Saturday afternoon. The local team not only got the best end of the bargain but rubbed in nine layers of white wash and topped the score to the tune of 8 to 0.

The Independents advertised that they would strengthen the team to meet the visitors, and it was quite apparent where the strength was. Nash, who has pitched for the Amherst college team this past season, twirled for Belchertown, and Dowd, also of Amherst, played at short.

Nash hypnotized the Bondsville-ites, seventeen of their number going down before his swift delivery. Seven of the first eight men up to bat had to take a back seat because they failed to connect.

Kroll, the Bondsville twirler, bent the balls around in great style but had less success in charming the batsmen. Seven, however, struck out because of his delivery.

The scoring started in the third inning when Hawes and Atkins finished up the circuit on a two base hit by Davis, who later advanced to third but had no opportunity to go further. Barrett and Hughes each made a two-base hit in the 4th and scored. The fifth yielded three runs for the Independents. It was in this inning that Hughes knocked a home run by a clean hit into a neighboring door yard, which won for him for the remainder of the afternoon the title of "Babe Ruth."

The beginning of the 6th was the only time when there was any indication of the visitors scoring. Quirk, the first man up, made a two-base hit. Chase sacrificed him to third, but Donahue and Shabot both struck out and the rainbow faded.

Belchertown came near making the 7th interesting. With one out, Barrett hit to first, Hughes advanced him to second, and a hit by Fairchild filled the bases, but Hawes' pop fly fell into the hands of the enemy and Atkins fanned. Kroll tried to catch "Babe" sleeping in the 8th with a quickly pitched ball, but the missive shot wide.

Bondsville in the first of the 9th got a man on 2nd, but Donahue and Sullivan failed to connect and Kroll

To Inspect Grounds
Saturday at 10 A. M.

At an informal meeting Wednesday evening of some of those interested in procuring for Belchertown the last strip of land around Lake Metacomet available for picnic grounds and park purposes, it was thought best to ask the citizens to visit the spot tomorrow morning, find what the lay out really is, whether it is adaptable to the needs of the town or not, etc.

While a company of citizens can go ahead and buy up the desired property, and probably get out of it whole in selling it for building sites later on if the proposition fell thru, the predominating opinion seems to be that if anything is of interest to the citizens of Belchertown, the matter of holding some of the water front at this popular lake, ought to be.

There seems to be no difference of opinion as to its desirability. To be able to go to the lake with one's family or a party of friends and enjoy an afternoon without feeling that one is trespassing, is a privilege one might like to have, and future generations would be grateful for the boon.

Some of our townspeople are interested immensely along this line but have gone into all the community corporations they care to. They prefer to let the townspeople pay for what they will eventually enjoy, or else make a free gift outright of a subscription. It is obvious that grounds like these cannot be satisfactorily rented to private picnic parties to pay the bill, so that the only fair way seems to be to lay the privilege of supporting it upon all.

Should it be decided that the matter should be brought before the town, there would be plenty of time for discussion and the drawing of plans and recommendations by a citizens' committee.

For the reason, therefore, that this is in reality a community proposition, the citizens are asked to look the property over tomorrow and decide upon its desirability, its proper bounds, etc. The plan is to leave the post office at 10 o'clock. The invitation to go is extended to all.

Sells General Store
Business

E. A. Fuller has sold his general store business to Roland M. Shaw, who took possession August 1st and will conduct the business under the firm name of R. M. Shaw. Mr. Fuller continues the grain, coal, farm implement, roofing, lime, cement and fertilizer business as before. The business will be done at the mill building where he has sold grain for the last ten years, and at the railroad near the station, where he plans to erect a building at once.

Mr. Shaw, the new owner of the grocery and hardware departments, has for some time been associated with Mr. Fuller in his general business.

Another Severe Electric Storm

A severe electric shower passed over Belchertown Saturday evening, doing some damage. The electric light service was affected and a number of telephones were put out of commission, although not as many as in the previous heavy thunderstorm. A bolt entered the house of J. V. Cook over the telephone wires, splintered a few clapboards, tore off some plastering and burnt some wood work.

A barn owned by a Mr. McLane in the south part of the town near the Three Rivers line was struck and burned to the ground. A large quantity of hay and live stock including two cows, a calf and a pig were lost. The house was saved.

SOME OF THE OLDEST FAMILIES

He (Reuben Barton) was a school teacher before coming here and a surveyor of land employed by the state. At one time he owned nearly a thousand acres in Belchertown and Granby. His family consisted of three sons and three daughters. His oldest son, Josiah, enlisted in the army and was at Yorktown at the

Powerless Without Fire

There is one thing which will certainly kill the most fascinating game of baseball, and that is languor. We enjoy the game when it is played with vigor and with zest but we lose interest the moment we detect any indifference or apathy.

Languor is fatal in any game. Languor is fatal in any work. What we do languidly we do poorly. Soon it becomes a bore to us and we drop it altogether.

Success or failure depends upon the amount of fire we put into our work or play or organization. No man is of any power unless he is on fire. Do we believe in education or in religion? Do we believe in a League of Nations or in the brotherhood of man? All of us gladly respond in the affirmative. But our belief is powerless unless we believe enthusiastically. The important question always is: "With how much fire do you believe?" The measure of a man's influence depends upon the amount of his fire.

Do we give? Do we serve? Most certainly. But our giving and our service are ineffective unless there is some warmth to us. The only way to enjoy work is to work with all one's might. No man can conquer in any sphere unless he is aglow. Those only move the world who generate heat.

An Address of 1860

TO THE CITIZENS OF BELCHERTOWN IN BEHALF

OF TRADE AND BUSINESS

BY WILBUR FISKE POTTER

Among the recent gifts to Clapp Memorial Library is a framed copy of an address by the donor published previous to the Civil war. Mr. Potter served in that conflict and is now a resident of West Springfield.

Come ye who love your homes, your Belchertown Where ye have dwelt so long that not a place Seems half so pleasant.—The sun shines not so Beautifully bright on other land; the Moon not half so sweetly; and all the Hills and vales, and plains, fertile or barren, Are rich because 'tis home. Yes, every spot Is blithe and friendly, and greets us warmly As we pass, with flowery smiles and songs of Birds. And all the varied aspects, and Pleasant scenery, are deeply wound with Our affections; and every springtime, glad with Freshly waking life, and Summer, teeming With life perfected, and charming beauty, Re-stamp upon our hearts their loveliness, And bind us here. And Autumn, though it damps The glory rich of Summer, fails it not to Show us beauty. It blasts the flowers; they Drop resignedly at the touch; nor murmur The leaves it crimson; and they fall with meek Innocence to the ground. And thus, in these, Its works, it shows that e'en in death is glory. And when the sparkling coverlet of Winter Wraps all nature round, still there is beauty— Grand and noble beauty—and the cold Though still enchanting aspect, serves to seal the Soft impressions of the Spring and Summer. And thus, while loving nature round us, we Love our homes; and take an interest in All events transpiring round about.

Then kindly hearken to my words, while I Shall speak of things thereto pertaining.

Time flows continually away, And not a moment will it stay In all its journeying to eternity. No leniency it shows to fools or wise, But each a space sufficient gives, If well improved, for all their ends. And with resistless power it moves The human tide along; all in their various Life and various duties, onward, onward. Now, all the way in life, the wants of men Are various; and for more convenience, So that all may have their wants supplied, They deem it well that some should till the soil, And some keep stores and shops of various kinds, And many, carriages make. And there Be blacksmiths, carpenters, joiners, too, and Many men of similar avocations. While one or two, with noble aims, attend The suffering ones, and minister aid that Brings relief. And some there are—and one just Come—who solve law points of deeper meaning, And help from deep entanglement, who chance To fall therein; and by wise argument and Good advice they stay men's rising passions. And thus with other varieties of Life, society's grand machinery is Constituted; each part dependent On the whole, or some part beside itself Alone. So mutually it moves, that none Can boast independence from the rest. And now, while they who cultivate the soil Dwell yet in pleasant vales, or on the spreading Plains or verdant hills, the men of business Gather in villages, towns and cities, There they build them shops and stores, wherein to Carry on their different kinds of work, dwelling In houses near at hand.

surrender of Cornwallis at the end of the war.

Reuben Barton, 2nd, lived and died on the old place. Of his seven children, some settled nearby or in surrounding towns, some went west, and today only one of the name exists in this region. Mr. Barton was one of the founders and the first deacon of the first Baptist church in Belchertown.

South of the Barton home on the same road was the home of Ebenezer Greene who, with his family, came here soon after the Revolution. This family was of Rhode Island origin and related to General Nathaniel Greene who, next to General Washington, was the ablest officer in the army. This is conceded by all historians.

Mr. Greene was a schoolmaster many years before coming here and was a man of superior education for his day, but quiet and unassuming in character. One of his sons was graduated from Brown University, was a Professor there for many years, and was the author of Greene's Grammar, used for many years in the schools of New England.

Reverend John Greene was another son. William, another son, remained on the place, married and raised a family of four sons and two daughters, selling the farm and leaving town in 1854, mainly that his children might enjoy better facilities for an education.

They were a studious family. George Herbert, the eldest son, became a doctor, was in the Civil war as a surgeon. Arthur, the second son, was Major in a Pennsylvania regiment. Charles W. Greene, the third son, was a captain in one of the Massachusetts regiments and after that became a doctor. The youngest son, Edward, if living, is now in North Andover, Mass. They were a fine family and a credit to any place.

Some sixty rods south of the Greene place at the end of this road lived the Robinson family of two. They came here from Charleton. They were brother and sister, Josiah and Thankful Robinson, and, so far as is known, the last of their race. Neither was known to have a relative as none was ever known to visit them. Here they lived until they were obliged by extreme old age and feebleness at last to deed their place to a kind neighbor living in Granby, George Elliott, whom they both admired and who cared for them kindly for the rest of their lives, each of them being over 80 years of age at the time of giving up their home. The house consisted of only two rooms, with a large fireplace in each, without lining of any kind or clapboards, only one thickness of boards between them and the weather. That they lived in such a place in all weathers would hardly be believed possible by anyone in these days. Yet they were a kindly people, by no means ignorant or degraded, kept the Sabbath strictly and the old family Bible was always in sight.

View Lake Frontage

A company of citizens went to lake Metacomet last Saturday morning to look over the grounds which are available to the town for park and picnic purposes. They were accompanied by E. A. Fuller, the present owner, who designated ground that might be desirable for the citizens to own.

At a meeting in engine house hall Monday evening, a committee was named to set stakes marking definite bounds and secure a price on the same. This was done Tuesday morning.

To reach the land which has been staked out, it is necessary to turn in at the main entrance near Wilson's, keep straight on to the second line of woods and then turn to the right, going 300 feet. Here is the southwestern bound. On the south there is a frontage of 200 feet, which makes the southeast corner come at the corner of the clearing. It is approximately 300 feet to the water front so the plot therefore represents a piece about 300 feet by 200 feet. The plot staked out Tuesday shifts the bounds somewhat westerly from those first looked at, to allow for cottage sites to the east.

The trees are mostly white pine with a sprinkling of oak and other varieties. There is some underbrush but no great amount. There is considerable water brush which it would be necessary to remove. Half of the water front is very good; the rest is not as desirable but could be improved. The beach would be good for wading but not for swimming, provision for which would have to be made elsewhere. The land to the east would be desirable but its value as cottage sites would undoubtedly prohibit including it in the tract mentioned. The land to the west is low and marshy at the water's edge.

The land marked out could be developed very satisfactorily and made usable with comparatively little effort. In fact the predominating idea seems to be that no Coney Island development is desired, even if it could be afforded. It is intended that the quiet atmosphere of the lake be maintained—all that the town wants is simply a right to it.

Webster-Lewis Wedding

A wedding of interest to Belchertown people took place Wednesday when Miss Marian P. Webster of Newburyport and Alvan R. Lewis, Jr. of this town were united in marriage at the bride's home in Newburyport. Rev. Dr. Paterson of that place performed the ceremony. The couple were attended by William Webster and Miss Webster, brother and sister of the bride. Only the immediate families of the contracting parties were present.

Mr. Lewis has been for some time a teacher in the schools at Rowley and Mrs. Lewis has taught in the Ipswich schools. After a wedding trip in the White Mountains Mr. and Mrs. Lewis will make their home in Easthampton where Mr. Lewis has a position as principal of the grammar schools.

Bennett Reunion

The 27th annual reunion of the Bennett family was held in the grove, Grange hall, Ludlow Center, Wednesday, Aug. 11, with about fifty members present from three different states. A basket picnic was enjoyed.

Mrs. Mary Bennett Cooper of Manchester, N. H., was re-elected president and Chas. Bennett of Ludlow, vice-president.

The following short program was given: Reading, A Mere Matter of Clothes, Miss Addie Bennett; recitation, Rejected, Alfred Putnam; remarks, G. H. B. Green, Ralph Bennett.

The rest of the day was taken up with sports and music. It was voted to hold the next meeting the second Wednesday in August, 1921, the place of meeting to be decided by the executive committee, George Green Bennett of Ludlow, F. G. Shaw of Belchertown, Merton Bennett of Ludlow and Mrs. Lora Hawley of North Wilbraham.

Those attending from Belchertown were Mr. and Mrs. G. H. B. Green, C. B. Green and son, Bartlett, F. G. Shaw and Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Putnam and family.

Dies in Suffield

Lyman H. Rice, 68, for many years one of the leading farmers of Suffield, died at his home Tuesday afternoon after several months' illness, the result of two shocks. Mr. Rice was born in this town in 1851 and was the son of Daniel P. and Anne Burnett Rice who lived upon what is now the Antanovitch place.

He was educated in the schools here and then took up farming. Later he went to Iowa with other local men and stayed until forty years ago when he went to Suffield, buying a large tobacco farm which he owned up to seven years ago when he retired from active work.

In 1880 he married Miss Alice Remington who died eight years ago. Mr. Rice was a member of the M. E. church of Windsor Locks.

He leaves a brother, Frank Rice of Sandwich, Mass., three sisters, Mrs. Emma R. King of Monson, Mrs. Byron L. Sikes of Auburndale and Mrs. Geo. Olmstead of Prophetstown, Ill., and two daughters, the Misses Ina J. and Clara E. Rice in the home. The funeral was held at the home yesterday afternoon with burial in Suffield.

Can Get Licenses at Ware

E. E. Sargent has received from Rep. Sawyer the following communication:

"They are this year enforcing an amendment passed many years ago, that provides that a man using his auto for business purposes shall take out a chauffeur's license (if he owns the car or not. Formerly it was only the driver who took out a license.) To save going to Springfield there will be held at Ware district court room Friday, Aug. 20, an examination to issue such licenses. Persons presenting applications and $4 will be given license if competent."

Persons who directly or indirectly receive pay or compensation for auto hire must get chauffeurs' licenses.

Some Belchertown people have come near to getting into trouble for not possessing this class of license.

Mr. Sargent has received and distributed a number of application blanks and will soon have some more for those who may require them.

100 Per Cent

How easy it is to multiply by round numbers. A result may be very readily obtained; much more rapid it is to use 100 than 78 or 89 or some such number, although to get an accurate result, the latter should, perhaps, be used.

We have been reading a great deal of late of what the various political parties think of one another, what the various candidates say of one another, and so on, and with few exceptions the condemnation seems to be 100 per cent. Of course no one believes it, but the proper way is to multiply by 100, so as to cover all possible faults.

The opposite is also true; making out some people to be 100 per cent perfect is sure to cover all the good points, although, of course, no one believes that anybody is perfect.

In business it is the same. A given proposition is either filled with gold mines or else poor house certificates. Community propositions are no exceptions. 100 per cent perfect or 100 per cent bad is the usual story, and probably neither is correct.

Let us get out some of those figures like 7, 8, 9, etc., that show little marks of use. It will take more brain work on our part to use them, but the results will be, perchance, of more consideration.

An Address of 1860

TO THE CITIZENS OF BELCHERTOWN IN BEHALF OF TRADE AND BUSINESS BY WILBUR FISKE POTTER

And thus, long years ago, on Belcher's hill Men gathered. Most have gone now; scarce one Remaineth. They built them churches, and a house Wherein the rising generation might learn. They planted trees and vines and shrubs, and these Adorned their homes and made them pleasant. But these now rest. And they have left their fair Possessions to other generations. Yet the trees they planted, waxed larger now, Still stand. In summer cast their shades, in Winter bare their branches to the blast, Which, whistling through, make winter mournful music. And on the piece of ground they left there stands The pole of liberty: around are trees Of later planting, which, methinks, May one day stand as monuments of this Generation. Nearby, the churches, With spires still pointing heavenward, appear, And in the tower of one, the bell each day Proclaims the noontide hour: and every hour Will soon be struck, I trow, and dials soon Shall silently mark the passage of each Moment. Midway between the churches stands the Schoolhouse, and they on either side, seem to watch Like guardian spirits o'er the welfare Of the school within.

And in the row still further on, the Town House Stands. And these, the meeting house and school house, The house for voting and the pole of liberty, Do represent four characteristics Of our native land, religion free of Choice, free schools, with equal rights in voting, And general liberty. And thus time flies away. And thus men live.

Town Items

All the schools in town will open September 7.

Helen Snow of Holden and Robert Bardwell of Amherst have been visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Randall.

Ira Damon, who has been in the Wesson Memorial hospital, is at present at the home of his son, Henry Damon in Danvers.

Mrs. Mabel Holway of Holden is spending part of her vacation with her aunt, Mrs. Carrie Witt.

Mrs. Charles Rhodes of State St. is ill at her home.

Rev. and Mrs. W. R. Blackmer of Arcade, N. Y., who have spent a part of their vacation in former parishes in Ohio, will be guests for the remainder of the month at the home of Lewis H. Blackmer.

Miss Helen F. Hawley, who has been spending a few weeks with her cousin, Miss Dorothy Blackmer of New Street, returns today to her home in Leonia, N. J.

Mrs. John Peeso and two children of Springfield are at the home of her father, Henry M. Jepson.

Mrs. Emma Davis of Holyoke is visiting at the home of Dwight Jepson.

A bulletin board equipped with steel letters and electric lights has been donated to the Federated church by a friend and will soon be placed in position.

Mrs. Dora Bardwell and Mrs. Hattie Taylor have returned from a visit in Sterling Junction. Mrs. Bardwell stopped over in Warren to visit her sister, Miss Mattie Bailey.

Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Bartlett, and Francis Allen motored to Stamford, Conn., Wednesday and will remain for a visit.

G. H. B. Green, Jr., and family of Watertown were week-end guests at the home of his parents.

Has an Eye on the Women

It has often been stated by men in a position to know, that women make the best accountants. Why then should not a woman be appointed to the important office of town accountant in this town? There are several whom I consider well equipped for the position. Among them I might name Mrs. Louise Allen Sherman, Mrs. Ella Stebbins and Miss Margaret Moriarty. And still there are others who would no doubt adorn the position. It will be well with the powers that be if they lend an ear to the demands of the women who are sure to come to the front in the near future.

The official who tries to turn them down will surely be an ex when election time comes around. G. F. L.

American Legion Notes

The local post of the American Legion held its monthly meeting at the new headquarters in the Dillon block last Thursday evening. L. L. Dudley was accepted for membership. A permanent relief committee was formed, composed of the commander and chaplain. It was voted that the post give a play in the near future, and a committee was placed in charge.

After the business meeting, the move to new quarters was celebrated by refreshments and a smoker. An encouraging proportion of the members was present.

Meets Defeat in Bondsville

The Belchertown Independents met defeat in Bondsville last Saturday afternoon by the score of 4 to 0. Witter and Davis were the battery for Belchertown. Tomorrow afternoon the third game of the series will be pulled off on the common at 3 o'clock. Each team has gotten a game so far, so this will be the deciding show down.

The Misses Ludgate Coming

As previously announced, the Misses Ludgate of New York will conduct a ten days' mission at the Federated church, beginning the 29th. A special service for women will be held at 3 p. m. on that day and services will be held each night. Duets will be sung with guitar accompaniment by the two young ladies at every service.

REV. EVA LUDGATE

Rev. Eva Ludgate, the evangelist, will be assisted by her sister, who will have charge of the singing. Both are identified with the Congregational church but have served churches of other denominations. They come recommended by people in Holland, France and America. Among her testimonials is one by the late Rev. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman, who knew her for a long time and who stated that her work was truly remarkable.

Steal Auto But Are Caught

A pair of desperadoes broke into the garage of Roy G. Shaw a little before four o'clock Thursday morning and removed his Oldsmobile car which they took down the street, turned around and then started northward.

Mr. Shaw saw men working over a car down the road, but did not realize that it was his own car or that anything was up. Early in the morning he discovered his loss and then recalled his observations. He immediately notified the police in the surrounding cities and towns.

The car evidently followed the Amherst road, as people living along the way state that an auto went speeding by about that time of day.

It remained for the Greenfield police to close up the episode, as Mr. Shaw received word about noon that they had both the car and the men.

The desperadoes were arrested as they were boarding a trolley car, having abandoned the stolen machine. It is reported that the men were armed. The car taken was a valuable one and the owner is fortunate in its recovery.

days of her activity was faithful in church attendance and loyal in its activities. She made her home in town for many years, but at the death of her husband seven years ago, she went to live with her daughters. Her eyesight gradually failed in her declining years and for the past two years she has been a constant sufferer. She leaves to mourn her loss beside her children and six grandchildren, a brother, M. G. Ayres of Ludlow, and many friends.

Funeral services were held at the chapel yesterday afternoon, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating, assisted by Rev. W. R. Blackmer of Arcade, New York. Leslie Stearns sang two selections. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

Among those present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Walker of Springfield, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Stearns of Springfield, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Ayres of Ludlow, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Thayer of Ludlow, Mrs. Leon E. Bell of Keene, N. H., and Benj. Ayres of Worcester.

SOME OF THE OLDEST FAMILIES
 The first of the old time houses on the State road east of the Granby line was the Perkins place, so called when I was a boy. It was situated directly opposite the road that leads to Turkey Hill and Ludlow. It was a large two story house with a square roof and a large chimney in the center. I am told that it was built for a hotel but was never used as such, nor is it known who built it, which was about 1790.

The first occupant of this house that can be named now is Ivory Witt, one of the family of that name who settled in Granby. Others may have occupied the premises before Mr. Perkins did which was about 1832. Giles Perkins was the father's name and there were several children. A son and a daughter died of consumption and Mr. Perkins himself died about 1847 when the place was sold to a Mr. Carew of (continued on page 2)

been if such men had never lived, we do not know. If all men were like-minded, what this town and the world might be now and in the years to come, staggers our imagination. The only way we can pay our debt of gratitude is by dispensing a little of the spirit that animated men of other days.

The best way of handling a public enterprise like buying ground at Lake Metacomet would be for the town to take action; the next best way would be for a large number of individuals to form a park corporation; the next best way would be for some public spirited man who loves the town of his sojourn or of his birth to quietly pay half the bill and ask the old settlers to do the rest; and the next best thing would be for a man of exceedingly large proportions to say, "If you fellows won't do it, I will. If you don't want the honor, I'll take it. Only put my name over the entrance to let all who enter be reminded that public spirit is not dead."

ings so far, one and another have told how similar propositions in other communities have been allowed to lapse and have expressed the hope that history would not repeat itself here.

The enterprise so far has not been marked by the presence of controlling interests. Those who have had the matter on their minds, have given of their time while their fellow citizens have been at their tasks, earning their day's pay. The gentlemen have simply been trying to anticipate the desires of their fellow townsmen and future generations.

If the people desire to secure the land tentatively designated, no doubt a way can be found to obtain it. "Where there is a will, there is a way," but where there is no will, there is usually not much of a way. It is time that the citizens came forward with their opinions and suggestions and spoke their minds. Public grounds are obtainable in several ways—by gift in whole or in part, by subscription or incorporated individuals, or by direct vote of the town. We hope that some day Belchertown will take great pride in and come to such a realization of her "natural" capital that she will be glad to advertise herself as a community that is progressive in this regard. She has already advertised herself as a town containing many men and women who have supported community enterprises that as a town never could have been brought about, and while some of the enterprises are not pulsating very strongly, there are those back of them still infusing life.

The town has also been fortunate in gifts outright. Clapp Memorial Library stands as a monument to men who had public spirit. What the town and the world would have

Repair Work

A good farmer keeps his machinery in good repair; a good business man gathers together the ragged ends of his business; a good teacher mends the defective parts of school work.

Every man works with his body as well as with a hoe or a shovel. And if a man is wise, he will keep his body in good repair.

Most men also work with their minds, and our minds are certain to need mending if we have given them hard usage.

And most men work with their hearts. The strongest heart may be torn by an unkind word from a trusted friend; the stoutest heart may be rent by some one's carelessness and thoughtlessness.

often need to take time to mend the heart.

The summer is a good time to mend the tools we work with. Camping, fishing, hunting, hiking, bring color to face and vigor to body.

D. F. Shumway Dear Sir:

I am enclosing receipt for poll tax paid in Springfield. I had hopes that I might make my residence there permanent, but experience of the past spring and summer has shown that I cannot with any comfort or convenience do so.

I am enclosing stamp for return of receipt if you will kindly do so.

Rainbow in the Evening

Extract from an old diary, sent by a subscriber.

Monson, 10 o'clock Tuesday eve, July 2, 1833.

I have this evening for the first time had the satisfaction to behold a rainbow in the north or rather north-west formed, as I suppose, by the moon. The day has been very warm and towards evening showers appeared in the north and west. It rained a very little here between 8 and 9 o'clock. I first observed the rainbow about five minutes before nine which continued visible perhaps for a quarter of an hour afterwards.

Josiah Gilbert Holland

We print below a few lines of appreciation of J. G. Holland and his work from one who knew him personally. In a letter accompanying the lines he writes:

"Holland's lines 'God give us men' and 'Et Gradatin' and others of his lines will live forever. I met him first in the winter of 1871-72. He was one of Nature's noblemen who has done much to clarify our American life."

Holland, a son of the old Bay State, Was a man of pith and purpose great,

Who did not on Dame Fortune wait, But chose his weapon-'twas a pen— And struck at errors stalwart, when Some shrunk back like timid men.

Lines that he wrote will live, they say, Until mankind shall pass away, And while o'erhead the bright stars stay.

His noble, kindly face I see, Full of decision, sympathy For sorrow and humanity.

The evening service of the Federated church last Sunday was of special interest. The subject was, "Lessons from the Poets." Several responded with quotations from a number of noted authors. By special invitation some of Dr. J. G. Holland's poems were read by Miss Dorothy Holland and Nelson Holland, Jr., representatives of the Holland family. Miss Holland read, "Old Daniel Gray" and "Wanted—Men", while Master Nelson gave "Gradatim."

Instead of the lawn party scheduled for next Wednesday a reception will be tendered to the Misses Ludgate next Saturday evening on the chapel lawn from 8 to 9.30. Refreshments will be served.

Notes

The local post will present a three act comedy-drama, entitled "No Trespassing", in Community hall, Wednesday, September 8th, at 8 p. m.

The members of the cast have been selected from local young people who are experienced in like presentations. The drama is full of humor and abounds in amusing situations. The plot, although not especially involved, is very interesting and original.

Few midsummer "spoken" plays have been given in town for some time, and this one should provide a welcome diversion to Belchertown amusement seekers.

The Special Services

As previously announced, special evangelistic services will be held at the Federated church next week. The Misses Ludgate of New York will arrive in town Saturday, and arrangements have been made for a reception on the chapel lawn that evening. At seven-thirty all are requested to meet and go to the Park View to greet the young ladies who have been invited to render service here. Then all will repair to the chapel lawn where an informal reception will take place. Refreshments will be served by the Young Peoples' Societies of the church.

At 10.45 Sunday morning the Rev. Eva Ludgate will preach, in the afternoon at 3 o'clock she will speak to women and girls, and in the evening she will preach at a service to be held in the church. Her afternoon theme will be "The 20th Century Girl." She will speak on (The girl and her mother, The girl and her brother, The girl and her sister and The girl and her beau.

Services will be held every night next week at 8 o'clock. The Misses Ludgate will sing at each service with guitar accompaniment.

The next reunion will be held at the home of F. E. Austin on the third Saturday in August, 1921.

Grange Notes

Pomona grange will meet with Union grange Thursday afternoon and evening. The Fifth degree will be conferred in the evening.

Belchertown Loses

The Belchertown Independents lost to Indian Orchard in a game of baseball played on the common last Saturday afternoon. The third game of the series with Bondsville was to have been put on, but the Bondsville contingent cancelled the game at a late hour, so arrangements were made with another team.

The closing innings of the game were quite exciting due to the closeness of the score, but those who were looking for an errorless game, were hopelessly disappointed. Balls went high and wide, bounded out of mits, and every sort of thing, and there was always a plenty around to watch a fly ball drop in the grass while "George" caught it. Enough misplays were made to last a big league team a whole season.

Witter, who was on the mound for the locals, pitched a good game but was not supported. He struck out 13 men, while his opponent had only two to his credit.

Indian Orchard led off the scoring in the first inning with three runs, got another in the second and one in the third. But Belchertown got its wind in the last half of the third, Hawes and Davis each crossing the plate with a tally. The visitors were put out in one, two, three order in the fourth, while Belchertown secured two runs and came near getting more, as the bases were full at one time.

Indian Orchard secured a run in the fifth but Belchertown was quickly shut out. The case for the locals grew more serious in the sixth when they secured two runs to their opponents' three. It was in this inning that Sutherland and Ahern were put out on a double play. Slate of Indian Orchard was also called out because Supernaw deliberately interfered with the catching of a pop fly on his way from third base.

Neither side scored in the seventh, but the eighth put hope into the locals who rolled up four runs, making the score ten to nine in their favor. It was in this inning that Indian Orchard decided to run in another pitcher to save the day, but he had hard work in locating the plate, passing some men on balls much to the disgust of his team mates who tried to blame it on to Parent, the umpire. An effort was made to displace him but the Belchertown manager stuck fast by his man.

It was, however, the visitors' game. They scored two runs in their half of the ninth, thus swinging the game in their favor, and no amount of coaching could make the locals change the score in their half. The game ended with a double play, Witter's fly being caught and played to second whence Ahern had wandered too far.

Base on balls, Atkins 2, Sutherland, Ahern; Roy, Warsky, Noel, Swiread.

The Power of Joy

Gloom diminishes a person's power; joy increases it. Sadness detracts from an individual's usefulness; gladness multiplies it.

Joy aids even the digestion of food, and lack of it makes digestion more difficult. We are wise enough to know this without the word of a physician. There is better circulation of the blood when one is happy than when one is sad. It is quite as important to serve joy at the table as it is to serve appetizing dishes.

Joy aids the action of the mind. One thinks more clearly and accurately and with greater discernment when he is joyful than when he is gloomy. Beware of the reasonings of the joyless, grouchy, complaining man.

No man can do his best work anywhere if he is sad. Sadness will surely cause deterioration in one's labor. In an atmosphere of complaint and grumbling and fault finding and gloom, shabby work is performed.

It is joy which gives power to work or to play, to home or to school, to love or to faith. Music will never exhilarate anyone unless there is abounding joy in it. A lover will never win the heart of his beloved unless he loves with joy. If a baseball player does not throw joy into his game, his skill will be reduced. There is little power in any organization unless there is joy among the members.

One may accomplish much work from a sheer sense of duty, but it will be little in comparison with what one might accomplish if only joy were added.

One of the most important items to bring to any task is joy. It is more valuable than brilliancy, and it is worth as much as faithfulness.

A Moving Spirit

Current issues of the Anncoortes American (Wash.) tell of an Old Settlers' picnic, August 5, of the society of Pioneers formed seventeen years ago. What makes it of peculiar interest to Belchertown people is that Fred G. Abbey has been president of the Pioneer organization since its inception and is a moving spirit if not the moving spirit in its activities.

His call to the people to come out and clean up the grounds the day before sounds the same note that some of our own public spirited townsmen have struck at times in our own columns, while the account of the affair is of sufficient interest to warrant our quoting a few paragraphs.

Three hundred pioneers of Skagit county met at Weaverling's today (Thursday), and their friends numbered as many more. There were men and women from far up the Skagit valley, men and women who traveled up the river in canoes long before the big log jam was dynamited loose and allowed the first steamboat to come up the Skagit; there were those who settled on the flats in the sixties and seventies, and there were pioneers of the islands, all of them looking forward for months to the annual reunion, and all of them glad for months afterwards that they attended the affair and again met the friends of the long time ago.

United States Senator Wesley L. Jones was on the grounds and addressed the veterans of many summers and winters. Rev. J. D. Hudson of Seattle, formerly of the Anncoortes Congregational church, spoke as well, and met old friends. John Gellatly of Wenatchee was there, a big man with a big talk for the big crowd. W. W. Conner, who is a candidate for lieutenant governor, was also present. There were a half dozen other speakers on the program. Politicians and candidates were there by the dozen, but politics were barred from the addresses, all of which carried a burden of Americanism instead of partisanship.

The one man to whom much of the credit of these successful reunions is due, was busy for several days arranging for the affair, and gives much of his time to the service of the society, and he was busy yesterday. Fred G. Abbey of this city is the pioneer secretary of the society of pioneers, and promises to retain his office for as many years, to come.

An Address of 1860

And when for mail it is your chance to wait, Just view his goods and see if you can make With him a trade. Rich store goods he doth keep, And sells them pretty middling cheap, I'm thinking. And if you wish for bonnet fair So nicely made with beauty rare, Call on Mrs. Hopkins. She will show An assortment rich; 'twill please you, too. Or dresses if you'd like to get, Fitted so that they will nicely set, Or other articles that ladies wear, She will accommodate you with them there. R. Bridgman has a store on further still, Where he will sell you goods whenever you will. His store is richly filled, spacious and neat. Its nice arrangement doubtful 'tis to beat. And T. R. Green will sell you all the kinds Of articles that follow in his line:

For he has groceries, flour and dry ware And other things for which you chance to care. The grand Norwottuck where it proudly stands, Quite well becomes the common's northern end. A strong man keeps the place, you need not fear Of any harm, no harm shall hurt you here. For all who will be lodgings will prepare, And charge you but a moderate bill of fare; And any time as when you're having leisure, Would like to take a pleasant look for pleasure, O'er hills and vales, and mountains distant far, Just turn your steps and mount the euphonia. Before you, just as 'tis, old Belcher lies, With all her private walks and public ways. A goodly prospect all around you'll see, And quite delighted you are sure to be. And Mr. Hitchcock, who's more lately entered town,

A Friend

A son of Maine, A seer, a sive, A neighbor and a friend. Shall I explain? Do you desire To whom my fancies tend?

He lives in Belchertown And tills the soil. Takes part in current doings. His hair is gray, his cheek is brown; For he doth toil, And ties the knots of wooings.

Has sailed the greatest ocean far, Has preached to all the races; The Sandwich Islands thought him true, And he doth mend what others mar; His life a rural homestead graces, A man of sweeping, kindly view.

Such men as he in humble guise In rural paths are leading. This nation to a sager thought. They need no loud applauding cries, Who Wisdom's words are heeding, So Time shall say: "What hath God wrought!"

Accommodates quite finely all around. Before, for what he now sells handy there, We had to travel off to Palmer or to Ware. Stoves and all wares of copper, iron, tin, Can here be bought by simply stopping in, With pans and kettles, suction pumps and pails, With such as in metallic cargoes sail. When these you want, don't think of Palmer more, But come and purchase at his plentiful store. Next Thurston from his goodly store will sell,— With dealing fair,—things that will suit you well. His goods and articles, both great and small, Are such as will not fail to please you all. The steam mill, with its rumbling sound, Gives quite a business aspect to the town. Plaster it grinds, to help the grass look green, And this it does as well as you have seen. They there turn handles, spokes, and such like things, And plane the boards, and cut the logs you bring. There bring your grists—your bags of richest grain— And they will grind it back like dust again. Then let the fire blaze hot, And ye steam, still press your way, And with thy nervous power drive on Your grand machinery.

The market, where you get all sorts of meat That's good enough for any one to eat, Still kept by Hill, who ever has to sell, Pork, beef and chickens that will suit you well. And game and oysters, and his-kind of fish, With which you'll make a most delicious dish. With all the rest he groceries does keep, And papers for an intellectual treat. And Mr. Packard has for sale some more Of what we've just been naming o'er. His meat and oysters, take of them and try, And I presume you'll come again to buy. Sloan makes fancy harnesses so fine. They even make the poorest horses shine, And you would have to take them off to show Whether the horse was really good or no. (to be continued)

TIRED EYES?

The reason undoubtedly is EYE STRAIN. You can overwork your eyes in the same manner that you can overwork yourself physically. For that "run down" condition of the eyes nothing is so beneficial as a pair of our rest glasses. If your eyes are not badly strained you will be obliged to wear them only when you are doing close work. At all events let us determine by our scientifically exact examination the precise condition of your eyesight.

Peck-Cook Wedding

A quiet home wedding took place yesterday afternoon at four o'clock on the lawn at J. V. Cook's when his son, Lincoln Ambrose and Alena Augusta Peck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie E. Peck of Proctor, Vt., were united in marriage. Rev. H. P. Rankin performed the ceremony, using the single ring service. The couple were attended by Miss Bernice Cook, sister of the groom, and William Bridgman. Miss Isabel Bardwell played the wedding march from Lohengrin. The bride's gown was of blue silk taffeta and she carried a bouquet of flowers.

Guests were present from Leominster and Springfield. Many useful and beautiful gifts were received, including silver and cut glass.

Mr. Cook was overseas eleven months with the A. E. F. He has a position at present as watchman at the Ludlow reservoir. Mrs. Cook has been employed at the Park View for the summer.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Cook will be at home at the Kelley tenement on State St.

Death of Hjalmer E. Volley

The tragic death of Hjalmer E. Volley last Saturday morning has saddened all who knew him. Mr. Volley was a young man, 37 years of age, and well spoken of as a neighbor and friend. Coming to Belchertown with his mother five years ago, he purchased the Oliver Shannon place in the Federal district and carried on the farm very successfully. He made many improvements, among them being a fine set of hen houses.

For some time he had not been in good health and seemed to realize that he was mentally unbalanced. Fear that he might become worse in this respect resulted in the taking of his life.

Besides his mother, Mrs. Charlotte Volley, he leaves two brothers and one sister, Fred K. and William E. of Springfield, and Mrs. Helsa Johnson of Milrose, Conn.

The funeral was held Tuesday at the home with burial in Oak Grove cemetery, Springfield. Rev. H. P. Rankin officiated.

Evangelistic Services

Rev. Eva Ludgate and her sister, Miss Jennie Ludgate, who have been holding evangelistic services in the Federated church this week, have won the hearts of all who have heard them speak and sing the beautiful message of the gospel. If there were those who came to scoff, we feel sure they must have remained to pray.

Each meeting has a message that lingers with the hearer, some thought that each one takes home with him because of its truth or because it so exactly fits his need. Or perhaps it is some song sung by the evangelists which repeats itself over and over to the listening heart.

"Friendship with Jesus, Fellowship divine; O what blessed sweet communion, Jesus is a friend of mine."

This is the chorus of a hymn written by the young ladies' father, and sung around the world.

Meetings are held every evening at eight o'clock. Last Sunday afternoon a special meeting for women and girls only was held and next Sunday at three p. m. Miss Ludgate (continued on page 4)

Death of Simon Kelley

With the death of Simon Kelley, 95, last Saturday afternoon, Belchertown lost not only her oldest citizen but one who was a prominent figure in her life and thought. Simple in his habits and unassuming in his life, he nevertheless left his impress upon the community who will remember him for his integrity and as a type of the self-made man and good citizen.

Mr. Kelley was born in Ireland in 1825, the son of Margaret and Thomas Kelley. Coming to this country at the age of 22, he soon located in Belchertown where he was employed by the railroad as a barn man to care for the horses which were then used in construction work. A little later he was transferred to "York state" and then to Ohio, but the memory of "the girl" he left behind him drew him back to Belchertown where on March 24, 1854, he was married to Sarah Bishop

Fire Burns Barn

A barn belonging to F. A. Upham on his farm near Upham Heights burned to the ground last Saturday afternoon between one and two o'clock. The cause of the fire is unknown. The barn contained a considerable quantity of hay and farming tools, none of which was saved. Two automobiles in adjoining buildings were also consumed. One was the property of E. B. Thomas, the manager of the farm, and the other of Hollis Collins, a helper.

The fire department responded, efforts being made to save the house, which at times was in danger. The barn was comparatively new, having been built only a few years ago.

Although three miles away, bits of charred paper floated over the village streets.

In ringing the alarm the toll rope broke so that the new code numbers could not be used.

45 Women Register

Forty-five women availed themselves of the opportunity to register last Saturday. With twenty already on the list who had previously registered to vote for school committee, Belchertown now has a total of sixty-five women enfranchised. The number would have been larger had time permitted. While Saturday was the last opportunity for those who wish to vote at the primaries Tuesday, further registration dates will be provided for the fall elections.

Sunday School Picnic

About seventy-five bright faced youth (all were boys and girls together), with weighty lunches and light hearts appeared on the scene for the Sunday school picnic at Lake Metacomb Wednesday. Each one seemed resolved to make somebody have a good time, so no one had the ordeal of cheering up the other fellow. The boats were in constant use. All who wished had a sail on the lake or a dip in its cooling and exhilarating waters.

Evangelist Ludgate and her sister entered into the spirit of the merry (continued on page 2)

Labor Day

Next Monday is Labor Day. What a splendid opportunity for an editorial on Capital and Labor!

God works. Jesus, who knew Him better than anyone else, said, "My Father worketh even until now, and I work."

God did not finish his work upon this world in which we live, six thousand years ago; He has been working upon it all these generations.

God is a faithful worker. Through sun and rain, through heat and cold, through thunder and fire, He toils faithfully on river courses and mountains and canyons.

God is a patient worker. He never hurries. He never worries because the work moves forward so slowly.

God is a joyful worker. He is ever at creative work and every man who sees things take shape under his guidance is joyful.

God is a cooperative worker. He does not try to work alone. He is ever busy endeavoring to get men to work with Him.

God is an unselfish worker. God never asks, "How large a wage can I get?" or "How few hours can I labor?" or "How much can I loaf?" He is ever seeking to render service to man. God has created man in his own likeness, and he expects every man to work.

And God expects every workman to be like Himself, faithful, joyful, cooperative and unselfish. On Labor Day let every man look up to His Maker and resolve to be as good a workman as his pattern.

Sunday School Picnic

Buying a plot of land he erected a house which was soon destroyed by fire. A local merchant meeting Mr. Kelley remarked, "I hear that you lost everything in the fire, Mr. Kelley."

Besides carrying on his farm at "Kelley's crossing", his home for over 60 years, he was a pioneer in the lumber business which he developed to quite an extent.

Mr. Kelley is the last of six children. Eight nephews and nieces survive him, one nephew still retaining the old homestead in Ireland.

The funeral was held at the home Monday afternoon, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. The bearers were R. E. Fairchild, E. E. Sargent, M. G. Ward and F. B. Purdy.

Bubbles

"See the bubbles going higher and higher." I was sitting on my piazza at the close of an August dog day. The thunder-dog which had been barking much of the afternoon was quiet at last and upon the drenched street the children were playing again.

Children are not the only ones engaged in bubble blowing, and soap bubbles are not the only kind we may see from time to time, floating in the air a while before they burst.

Quite recently the press has been calling us to see a bubble. The press, however, was not, like the children, the bubble blower, but helped in the bubble bursting.

The Ponzi investment scheme had the marks of a financial bubble, a shrewd promoter, and the lure of an unusually big return in unprecedentedly quick time to draw good dollars from people whose necessities or cupidity or ignorance led them to take a chance in such a reckless venture.

There are many such bubbles. The mails are weighted with circulars and letters giving the unwary the chance to get in on the first floor of some worthless investment.

If you did not know of Mr. Ponzi and have lost the chance to get rich through him, do not be discouraged. Some one will come along, perhaps with a proposition less alluring than the Italian offered but with one no less sure to lose your money for you if you will accept it.

ing than the Italian offered but with one no less sure to lose your money for you if you will accept it.

Sam Weller was warned to "Beware of vidders." This quotation is taken, let me say, for the sake of its verb and with no intent of disrespect to that class of woman kind the noun indicates, and these lines are written to say: Beware of bubbles.

There are people who want to get rich quickly and there are people blowing bubbles for them. There are sick people who want to get well quickly and there are those who blow bubbles for them.

The politicians know how to mix soap and water and blow bubbles. Many a party slogan and policy and platform has been nothing but a bubble, its success depending upon its floating before the eyes of the voters till after election day.

O bubbles, bubbles, your name is legion. And in the name of business, of science, of philosophy, of politics and even of religion, you are blown to the four quarters of the earth.

What ails you? The doctors with all their wisdom cannot diagnose your case and label your ailment and name its remedy? O sufferers from such obscure troubles, do you not know you can send me a lock of your hair and I will shut my eyes to the scenes of the world and in a trance learn your trouble and find its cure, says another bubble blower.

What! you have a pain? You are mistaken. There is no such thing as pain. Pain is an evil. There is no such thing as evil. Here, buy this book, read it and learn the secret of health and the true science of life.

Bubbles sometimes have great influence in nations. The divine right of kings was a bubble that floated long in the air. "God with us" was a pleasing bubble to the German people, and when it burst the emperor journeyed promptly and swiftly to Holland and began to saw logs.

The great Russian people for generations were fooled and ruled and tyrannized over by bubbles they called czars, and they are today in the grip of bubbles no less cruel and despotic than any bubble who ruled by "divine right" and was called "Little Father".

There are social and political bubbles. The voice of the soap box orator is heard in the land, proclaiming his remedy for all social ills. He is like the blower of financial bubbles in that he thinks only of himself and of his class, and cares little or nothing for others.

The politicians know how to mix soap and water and blow bubbles. Many a party slogan and policy and platform has been nothing but a bubble, its success depending upon its floating before the eyes of the voters till after election day.

O bubbles, bubbles, your name is legion. And in the name of business, of science, of philosophy, of politics and even of religion, you are blown to the four quarters of the earth.

Dies in Springfield

News has been received of the death Wednesday evening in Springfield of Mrs. Sarah Bugbee Shattuck, daughter of Dea. Elbridge and Eliza Ann (Stebbins) Bugbee. Mrs. Shattuck spent some of her earlier years in Belchertown and was a teacher of the school at Turkey Hill. She moved to Springfield at the time of her marriage fifty-six years ago. She was always interested in Belchertown and only recently contributed to the columns of this paper.

The funeral will be held at the home this afternoon at 2.30.

American Legion
Play

The American Legion, whose hobby of late has been moving pictures, put on a movie of living actors on Wednesday evening when it presented the play, "No Trespassing". Perhaps the familiar title, "All Tangled Up", might have been fully as appropriate, for interest seemed to center around the young gens, Herbert Edmund Raymond (Orrin Davis) and Cleveland Power (Wm. Kimball), who changed their names, and the "twins" who looked so much alike that Raymond didn't know to whom he had proposed. Peggy Palmer (Pearle Dunbar) was one of the "twins" and her younger sister, Barbara (Isabel Bardwell), was equal to any situation. Raymond Blackmer and Irene Orlando constituted pa and ma, the former with his usual "hoss" sense and the latter with her nervous concern regarding her household responsibilities.

Lisle Irving (Gladys Gay) was the "invalid" young lady who came to the country home for recuperation, had an exciting experience with snakes in a brook, took the "No Trespassing" sign, lost one of her slippers and finally gave away her heart to Mr. Raymond, proprietor of the posted land.

The Meaders in the person of Bill (Belding Jackson), his son, Jim (Wm. Parker), and daughter, Almeda (Bernice Cook), furnished a steady stream of amusement. Bill, with trousers sometimes his own and sometimes not, was good for everything but work and rode out principally in an old wheelbarrow drawn by husky Jim. Almeda was a girl of wonderful acuteness.

Mr. Irving (Earl Witt) who had everything "planned" for his daughter, was quite concerned at the friendship formed by his offspring in the country, but meekly subsided when he found that the suitor was the very one of his choice.

Mrs. Wm. Shaw furnished music before and between the acts.

Pomona Grange Meeting

The Hampshire County Pomona Grange met with Union Grange last week Thursday afternoon. State Master Leslie R. Smith gave a very interesting address, "From Subordinate to National Grange." Remarks were made by G. H. B. Green, M. A. Morse and Guy C. Allen. Mrs. H. F. Putnam gave two readings, "Wanted, a Dog," and "Rejected." Dinner was served to 160 members.

In the evening the 5th degree was conferred on a class of fifty-four, thirty of whom were members of Union Grange. The 5th degree will be conferred again in Amherst during October.

Belchertown Wins

If two innings could have been obliterated, the score at the Belchertown-Indian Orchard baseball game last Saturday afternoon would have been 1 to 1, which would have savored of big league circles, but as these fatal innings had to be included, the score was 11 to 1 in favor of Belchertown.

At the start it looked like a pitchers' battle with honors tied. Of the first twelve men up to bat, ten fanned, five being put out by each twirler. In the third each struck out a man and in the fourth each had two victims.

It was the fifth that told the story, however. Nash of Amherst, pitching for Belchertown, struck out all three men, but the Indian Orchard twirler went skyward and a perfect stream of runs began pouring over the plate. Sutherland's hit filled the bases and when Atkins hit, the trotting began. It was in this inning that Nash made a clean hit and scored on erratic fielding. Six runs were made in this inning in which all nine men had a crack at the bat.

In the sixth everything sobered down as if nothing had happened. The first three men up to bat on both sides were retired, Nash striking out two and Stiruk one.

The seventh was another bad one for the visitors as Belchertown scored four more runs in this inning. Atkins and Blackmer landed safely before and between the acts.

Result of Primaries

Below is a summary of the primaries held in Belchertown on Tuesday afternoon. It is interesting to note that a larger percentage of women voted than men. More than twenty availed themselves of this first privilege of franchise. The first and probably the oldest woman to cast her vote on Tuesday was Mrs. Mary Hinds.

The Evangelistic Services

The Misses Ludgate concluded Sunday evening an eight days' mission at the Federated church.

From the first service until the last the meetings have been marked by the presence of a fine spirit of reverence, worship, deep convictions and lofty aspirations. While the sermon subjects, like "Lamps and Lamp Chimneys", have been catchy in their wording, the truths deduced therefrom have been simple and direct. There has been emphasis on the life that is to come but there has been equally as much on the life that now is.

The meetings have been well-attended and the response has been commensurate with the high challenge of the evangelists. No cheap, short-cut way to a strong, Christian life was offered by the new comers.

No one will ever be able to tabulate the results of the meetings. Some hands have been lifted, some have gone forward for prayers, but vastly many more hearts have been touched with a strong desire to live more earnestly the life that is life, indeed.

As Miss Ludgate stated in her sermon last Sunday morning, what is needed is not so much more church members as better church members. But whether church members or not, all who heard her knew that the call was to them personally.

If the free will offering which was tendered the evangelist at the last service was an index of value received, there are many who have been helped by these special services, calling out in some and accentuating in others the desire for the highest and the best.

Is Sincerity Sufficient ?

Sincerity is a virtue which we have always placed upon a pedestal, and oftentimes upon the highest pedestal. There is no virtue which a parent is so rejoiced to find in his child as sincerity.

There is no virtue which a man is so rejoiced to find in a workman as sincerity. If he can feel sure that the workman is doing the job according to specifications, and is not putting in any imitation or false work, he asks for nothing more.

Sincerity is one of the noblest traits in a clerk. Our hearts are satisfied if we can believe that the goods are exactly as represented.

Sincerity is the queen of virtues in friendship. As soon as we find insincerity in a friend, that moment friendship begins to die.

If there is anything we hate anywhere, it is hypocrisy. Sincerity is the most lovely of virtues; hypocrisy is the most disgusting of vices.

And having said all this, do we seem to try to spoil it all by raising the questions: "Is it enough to be sincere?" "Is there a virtue which shines more brilliantly than sincerity?" "Is there something which will bring greater satisfaction to the heart than to know that a friend is sincere?"

Yes, there is. We wish to know that he is right as well as sincere. The chemist may be sincere when he thinks the combination of two gases will produce a beneficial result; but if he is not right his laboratory will be blown to atoms.

be sincere in saying that the earth is flat, but if he says so, he is wrong. The doctor may be sincere in thinking that a certain medicine will act as a tonic; but if it acts like a poison, his patient dies.

No one questions the sincerity of Sir Oliver Lodge. The important thing to know is "Is he right?"

It is not enough to have a clear conscience. If a conscience is not educated aright, it cannot be trusted. We may intend to impart wisdom, but we may impart foolishness if we are not right.

It is not enough to be sincere; one must be right. It is not enough for a political party to be sincere; it must be right.

Lectures on Holland

Miss Eva Ludgate, who completed on Sunday evening a week's evangelistic services at the Federated church, gave a lecture on "What happened when the Kaiser went to Holland" at the Congregational church Monday evening. She contrasted the coming of the Kaiser to Holland as a refugee with previous visits in state.

She concluded her address by telling some of the customs prevailing in Holland. She said that while the peasant class wore clothing similar to that usually portrayed of the Dutch, the ladies and gentry buy their clothes in England and France and dress much the same as ourselves.

Miss Ludgate said that you have to tip practically everyone in Holland. You have to tip the conductor or on the trolley car to let you off at the right corner and you even have to tip the usher at church.

Especially interesting was her reference to the custom regarding church offerings. She said that the pews were long and the offering plates were velvet bags on the end of long poles. If one does not contribute, he makes himself conspicuous, although not quite so much as was the case some years ago when it was the custom to have on the end of the pole a small bell which was jingled in front of anyone not generously inclined.

Miss Ludgate spoke of the intense joy there was in Holland at the birth of Princess Julianna, which saved that small country from coming under the control of Germany. She also told of the great humility and spirit of service exercised by the royal family. They live simply and economically.

Miss Ludgate said that one of the things that impressed her most on her five visits to Holland was the great reverence for old age and the rare courtesy which these people exercise. It was quite in contrast, she said, with the customs of the neighboring state of Germany or even of our own America.

That interesting way of saying things which was quite evident in her week's evangelistic efforts, made Miss Ludgate equally attractive as a lecturer. The lecture was given under the auspices of the United Young People's societies.

SOME OF THE OLDEST FAMILIES

The next house on the east was the home of Asa Clark. This house is one of the oldest now standing in town and is still owned by the Clark family, descendants in an unbroken line. Few, if any, such families are found in town now. The west end of the house was built first, the east end being built later by Mr. Clark himself. There is no record of and no memory of when or by whom the first part was built. It is certain, however, that it was one of the first, if not the first, to be built in the neighborhood.

The Clarks were of Scotch-Irish blood, of the same race who settled in southern New Hampshire and were so conspicuous in the Indian wars and also in the Revolution, real pioneers of the best type. Mr. Clark through an injury to his hip always had to walk with a cane yet he was an energetic man of good judgment and business capacity. Of his children five were daughters. The one son left town early. The one daughter who remained in town married Mr. Elbridge Underwood whose only son Alfred now resides on the original homestead. Mr. Clark lived to the age of 96 years.

A few rods east of Mr. Clark's house is a road going north and connecting with the two roads leading west from the village. On this road lived Elijah Whitney, a farmer and also a carpenter who built many buildings for his neighbors. He was an excellent man. He had three sons and two daughters. The youngest son married and built another house on the farm. After the death of his father the son, Robert, sold his place and moved to Iowa where his two sisters had gone before him. The oldest son, Elijah, settled in Oneida, N. Y., the second son, Joseph, in New York City where he died many years ago. The house built by Robert was sold to Mr. T. S. Haskell who with his family is well remembered by many now living.

At the top of the hill east of Mr. Clark's was the home of Elbridge Underwood already alluded to as

State School Land Valued at $15,302

The question of how much money the town will receive from the state in taxes on account of its recently acquired property has ever been an interesting one to the citizens of Belchertown who have entertained a variety of ideas as to what the town would or would not receive.

It will therefore be of interest to quote from a definite statement made by Dr. Kline who in a communication to D. D. Hazen gives abstracts from the law relating to the subject and concludes by stating the valuation of the state property as of April, 1920 and the probable amount which the town will receive.

While the state tax rate is less than the town tax rate, thereby making the income from the property not as large as would otherwise be the case, it is to be borne in mind that this valuation is made on practically undeveloped property and that each year will see the valuation constantly rising so that there is no question but that the state will soon be paying a great deal more than the town would ever have received under private ownership. Even now the land (which is all that is taxable under state law) is valued at about $1000 more than the lands and buildings together under the old regime. Dr. Kline's communication reads:

"Chapter 607 of the Acts of 1910 provides that in the year 1910 and every fifth year thereafter the Tax Commissioner shall between the first day of April and the first day of June determine as of April 1st of each year the fair cash value of all land in every city or town owned by the Commonwealth and used for the purpose of public institutions. For the purpose of this determination he may require information from boards of assessors, from all boards and commissions, and from any other officers or agents of the Commonwealth or any city or town thereof, and it shall be their duty to furnish said Tax Commissioner with such information as he may require. The Tax Commissioner shall not later than the 10th day of June of every year in which he makes such determination, notify the assessors of each city or town in which the Commonwealth owns land for the purpose of public institutions, and any board of assessors aggrieved as to the determination of the Tax Commissioner in respect to the value of such land, may appeal for a correction of said value as provided in Section 68 of Chapter 490, Part 3 of the Acts of 1909. It further provides that the treasurer and receiver general in every year not later than the fifteenth day of November shall reimburse each city and town in which the Commonwealth owns land for the purpose of public institutions at a rate provided for under Section 43 of Part 3 of Chapter 490 of the Acts of 1909.

"In accordance with the foregoing the valuation placed upon the land at Belchertown as of April 1st, 1920, is $15,302.00. We understand that in all probability the rate will be $21.34 per thousand which would make the amount that the Treasurer of the Commonwealth will reimburse to the town of Belchertown $326.54."

Hampshire-Hampden Association Meeting

The fall meeting of the Hampshire-Hampden County Association of the Woman's Relief Corps was held with the local organization on Wednesday. Representatives from Springfield, Holyoke, Northampton, Westfield, Amherst, Palmer, Ware and Gilbertville were present to carry out the business of the morning session, to partake of the dinner served in the chapel at noon by the Ladies' Social Union, to enjoy the program of the afternoon and to participate in the good fellowship of the occasion.

The association sent greetings to Mrs. Viola Shaw, its past chaplain, who was unable to be present, and the delegation from Amherst called on her and presented her with a bouquet of lilies.

Following is the program of the afternoon: piano solo, Miss Sadie Demarest; remarks by E. E. Sargent; vocal solo, Mrs. Collis; reading, Mrs. Ella Witt; recitation, Lillian Upham; solo, F. G. Shaw; reading, Mrs. Nettie Allen; address, Horace Goodwin of Westfield, Department Commander of Massachusetts; remarks, Mrs. Loomis, President of the Hampshire-Hampden County Association; story, Miss M. E. King; solo, Theodore Hazen; singing, America.

More Reason and Less Rant is Needed

We found such an excellent editorial in the Boston Traveller that we are glad to quote it in its entirety.

During this impending campaign, all good citizens should seek to have their meditations regarding politics and government generate light instead of heat. Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad. The hot-headed man is hardly ever the clear-headed man. And the more voluble he becomes, the less valuable as a mentor and guide. Reason can well remain at a normal temperature in presenting its findings for its belief.
The man whose logic is the least sound is likely to make the most sound in setting it forth.

Something queer about politics.
If some one were to tell the average voter that his next door neighbor believed in a religion that has for its purpose the wrecking of his nation, he would tell his informant to clear out; that he knew his neighbor to be a good citizen and that what he was being told was all a lie. Tell him that his neighbor is in a business that means the overthrow of the government and he would scout the idea.
He would know his good neighbor too well for that. But tell him that his neighbor is a member of a political party that is bent on destroying our land and sending the ship of state on the rocks of criminal maladministration, and he will say, "That's so! He and all his kind ought to be shut up for life!"

The so-called mind of many voters seems to cease to function properly when politics enters into the issue.
Partisanship tends to put everything all on one side or the other. The voter who knows now just exactly what party's ticket he is going to vote "from top to bottom" next November, and all the following November, will be of no more use in steering the land toward better government than would a sawdust doll. This sort of man never admits that his party or anyone in it has ever made a mistake. Which means that he, himself, has always been in the right and never made a mistake. And the man who doesn't know that lots of times he has been more or less of a fool is likely to be a pretty big one all the while. Let's approach the political issues with an open mind and try to keep on good terms with the neighbors.

Reminiscences of the Holyoke District

having married Mr. Clark's daughter, Sarah, who became the mother of Alfred Underwood. This house was recently torn down and a nice house erected in its place by its owner, James L. Hebert of Holyoke.

The next house on the east was the home of the Bascom family of six sons and two daughters. Good neighbors they were and kindly disposed although they were never very intimate with other people. The oldest son, Leonard, moved to York State where he married and reared a family. Another son, Samuel, married but never had children.
None of the rest ever married. The only living descendants are in the west. One son, Dwight, dropped dead while plowing in the field.
This event was spoken of by neighbors for years as such sudden deaths were far less frequent than at the present time.

The last house in the district just beyond the Bascom place was built by Mr. Samuel Chapin a short time before the Civil war. It is and was a nice clean place. His children were all pupils in the Holyoke district school. Mr. Chapin himself was a soldier in the Civil war.

Ford

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford Sedan with electric starting and lighting system, with demountable rims with 3 1/2-inch tires all around, is a family car of class and comfort, both in summer and in winter. For touring it is a most comfortable car. The large plate glass windows make it an open car when desired, while in case of rain and all inclement weather, it can be made a most delightful closed car in a few minutes. Rain-proof, dust-proof, fine upholstery, broad, roomy seats. Simple in operation. Anybody can safely drive it. While it has all the distinctive and economical merits of the Ford car in operation and maintenance. Won't you come in and look it over?

Reminiscences

OF SOME ECCENTRIC CHARACTERS

by Mrs. C. F. D. Hazen

"Why don't you write up Ike?"
I don't know why I didn't when I was down at Cold Spring.

The Willis family lived in the brick house. Some of the sons were smart men. One was a doctor and married twice into a well-known family of Mill Valley. They tell us that Isaac was a bright scholar.

Every Sunday morning you might see Ike wending his way to the Congregational church. He carried a red bandanna handkerchief by one corner and maybe part of a newspaper. He was in no hurry, came early and took his stand about the steps of the church, watching, watching all who passed in. Sometimes he tried to flirt with the girls.

When all were seated he would come in and remain in the vestry in warm weather. He was never allowed in the front part; I have seen the deacons drive him out. He was a surly looking old fellow with long, red hair.

One Sunday there was no one in Mr. Blodgett's pew or below. Adolphus Strong was proprietor of the Belcher House, and Emily and Dolly Eggory who were milliners boarded there. In those days all wore big bonnets with lots of big roses and Dolly was sitting just back of me with her feet on a tall cricket.
We were well along in the service and down came Dolly's feet just back of me. Ike was picking at the roses on her bonnet. It created quite a sensation and Iks fled in haste.

Then there was Mrs. Nye. In her early days she was a fine woman but she began to be queer. She sat near the stove and when the singers rose she sat but during prayer she would stand alone in church. She wore a white woolen shawl with roses all round the edge, and a close black bonnet. All the girls knew Mrs. Nye and she would talk and tell them who they were.
Me she called "Miz" Bridgman and she would look so curiously at me.
She might have thought I was a half sister of my father's who lived where I was when she knew everyone. Her name was Abby Bridgman.

I thought some of the readers of the Sentinel were going to write up some of the town gentry.

Exchange of Bonds

Holders of temporary coupon bonds of the First, Second, and Third Liberty Loans, from which all interest coupons have been detached, should exchange them for permanent bonds in coupon or registered form. Holders of temporary bonds of the Fourth Liberty Loan, which by their terms are not exchangeable for permanent bonds until on and after October 16, 1920, should retain such temporary bonds until public announcement is made that the permanent bonds are ready for delivery, which will be some time after October 15th.

Registered bonds are already in permanent form and need not be exchanged, but 4 per cent registered bonds may be converted into 4 1/2 per cent bonds. Holders of temporary coupon bonds are urged to present their bonds for exchange for registered bonds, and in that event will promptly receive registered bonds in exchange.

Old Home Day at Pelham

Saturday, September 18, was Pelham's Old Home Day. A larger crowd than ever before took their way to Pelham hill and were ready for their dinner in the old Town hall. The County Gospel tent was pitched across the road and here dinner was served to children who were guests of Edward Nickerson of New York.

The president, Frank E. Cadwell of Amherst, presided at the afternoon meeting which was opened with prayer by Dr. Emrich of Boston. Then followed singing and a wand drill by the school children.

Several of those present spoke for "Ye Olden Times". Two former teachers, Mrs. Hall and Guy C. Allen, each spoke briefly of the days when they taught here. A long letter from Thomas Buffam, 84 years old, recalled his school days and early life here. Rev. John A. Hawley of Amherst gave a short address and Mr. Worthy of Amherst added much to the enjoyment with his selection of old songs. A chorus of Pelhamites sang several selections, humorous, original and otherwise, and a cornet and violin duet ended the celebration.

The officers elected for the coming year were president, E. P. Bartlett; secretary, Edward Nickerson; treasurer, Austin Kimball. It was voted to hold the next Home Day the second Saturday after Labor Day.

Los Angeles, California

Mrs. C. F. D. Hazen

It may not be a good time to write of her mild and green winters, but it is the first time in the year that the ground is all covered with green, so they call winter spring. In November, maybe, they look for rain. Every thing that is not irrigated is very dusty and bare, and a great rejoicing goes up when the water comes down. The first rain may not wet the ground enough to start vegetation, or if it does, it may not be lasting. There is a great deal of worry till the ground is well soaked.

The green on the hills is very pretty, the fox tail grass, wild oats and some other plants. They all come out of the ground like grain. There is no turf except the lawns about the homes.

There is a great variety of trees but only a few of some kinds, the big Sycamore with low branches as large as trees, the India rubber, also a large tree, the Magnolia, large with a large white blossom as big as a saucer, that is here and there, may be you don't see one in miles. Palms are quite plenty, the date palm with its graceful leaf coming out of the trunk three or four yards long, and the fan leaf; both are trimmed from the root and the trunk grows on and sheds its leaves till they are quite large trees. I think the people are quite proud of the palms.

Then there is the pepper tree. How handsome I thought it at first, with its fern-like leaf hanging from slender twigs, with the blossoms and red berries. The blossom is green with a yellow tint. Soon we had a home with pepper trees and wood came, "You must spray your trees or eat them; they have scale." Well, they were out and my love for the pepper tree grew cold. The scale is very bad on the oranges and lemons and who wants anything to spoil so valuable a crop.

Then frost comes later in the winter. They use smudge pots to keep low fires with; the oil they get from the wells; it is black. Some raise oranges under tents. You ride through an orange district after a frost and the ground will be well covered with frozen oranges. All of the land is not suitable for orange culture but most of the fruits we

CHAPTER III

MEN SERVING IN THE CIVIL WAR
It has been suggested that the names of some of the Civil war soldiers from the Holyoke district should be mentioned. The lists include the names of those enlisting elsewhere as well as those who went from home.

Norcross boys
Elliot Bridgman	Capt. 31st Mass.
Harrison D. Town	" "
Danforth Converse	" "
Charles Spaulding	27th Mass.
Austin Barton	21st Mass.
Myron S. Barton	46th Mass.
Charles McKinney	29th Mass.
George H. Green
Arthur M. Green
Charles W. Green
Mortimer Clark	10th Mass.

These men were all born here or received their education mostly in the Holyoke district. The Green boys left town when the oldest was seventeen years old and received their higher education elsewhere but all were born here.

Eular and Lagrange Norcross, sons of Ozias Norcross, attended school very little anywhere but received their education mostly from their father.

Elliot Bridgman was a Captain in the 31st regiment of Massachusetts volunteers and later Colonel of the First United States Colored Infantry. He was a fine looking, capable man, and was an honor to the military profession.

Charles Spaulding, a member of the 27th Mass. regiment, was wounded at Drury's Bluff.

The Green boys, two of them at least, served in Massachusetts regiments from the eastern part of the state but in what regiment I am not certain. Arthur served in a Pennsylvania regiment and was mustered out of service as a Major.

The Norcross boys served in western armies, Eular being shot dead in the early part of the war, the first from this town to fall. Lagrange served in an Iowa regiment and survived the war.

Charles McKinney, a member of the 27th Mass. regiment, was dis-

Upholding Ideals

There are people everywhere who are doing their utmost to lower ideals. They are working night and day to bring down the highest standards. They are laboring for the better things in order that they may defeat the best things. Since this is so, we must be continually loyal to the very best; we must not permit our own ideals to be one whit lowered and we must labor unceasingly to hold others to the loftiest standards. We must not listen for a moment to the man who suggests to us the "letting down of the bars".

We are not thinking, particularly of Sabbath observance as we write this; but how applicable it is even here! How often we are quite satisfied with a very shabby observance of the day, congratulating ourselves that, at least, we have not desecrated the day. All hail to those who will not lower their standard of what a Christian Sabbath should be!

But we were thinking rather of ideals for our nation. Many are impatient with the ideals presented by our greatest leaders and applaud vociferously those who advocate mediocre standards and commonplace ideals. Many endeavor to live just as near the precipice as possible without falling over and just high enough to be out of danger of a flood and just close enough to the Devil so as not to be on his premises.

Let us hold the standard aloft.
Let us keep every good purpose at high mast. Let us save society from the commonplace.

An Address of 1860

TO THE CITIZENS OF BELCHERTOWN IN BEHALF
OF TRADE AND BUSINESS

BY WILBUR FISKE POTTER

(Concluded from previous week)

And now at Belcher carriages are made;
With sleighs, etc., here 'tis quite the trade.
With rich perfection and with beauty rare,
When they're completed surely they appear.
You'd think them fancy chariots, as round
They lightly run, fast over all the ground.
And several companies employed are,
In making such for sale both near and far.
For one we find the firm of Filer & Co.
Shumway and Parsons manufacture too,
And Packard also has quite a concern,
And T. & S. D. Cowles, as you may learn,
With Dickinson & Burnett, with the Co.,
Make of the same as you may know.
Alanson Curtis shoes the horses' feet,
And Porter Bridgman, down on Federal street.
And silver plating is by Mr. Chapman done.
He works for far and near, for all that come.
C. Hayes makes shoes and boots, and mends;
So if you want such things, then to him send.

Amid the hills, down in the vale below,
Between its shaded banks the Jabish flows.
Onward it goes, its force employing well,
By helping men in running many a mill.
It helps the miller, Cowles, to make good flour,
And does his other business hour by hour.
It runs Root's circular saw, the first in town
That sawed the logs by going round and round.
When once 'tis through, the log shoots back;
Then through it quick appears another track.
Then on a little, Jabish trips the hammer
To pound the forks made by Shubrook & Blackmer.
Nice forks for pitching, and good garden rakes,
'Tis of this kind of articles they make.
Then resting through the mead it rolls away,
Until it runs some more machinery in which he saw service in the Civil war.

The Catholic Mission will serve a supper in Community hall next Wednesday evening. Supper will be served from 6 to 8. An entertainment will follow.

A dance will be given in Grange hall the same evening. Dancing will be from 9 to 12.

Mrs. Mabel Stebbins, Miss Grace Towne and Mrs. W. S. Piper attended the meeting of the Three Rivers district S. S. Association held in Ware last Friday.

A large delegation attended the Old Home Day festivities at Pelham last Saturday.

The library will open on winter schedule in October, being open Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday from 2 to 4.30, and Saturday evening from 7 to 9.

Guy C. Allen, Jr. has been appointed deputy sheriff.

The Misses Bardwell and Arthur
Bardwell will return from Brier Neck, Gloucester, on Saturday.

William Squires has been spending a few days with relatives in Dalton.

That makes for Ward & Tyler, cloth to wear,
Quite firmly wove and nicely finished there.
Then up from town, upon its meadow shore,
Stand other mills, some five or six or more.
E. Walker's saw mill, Holland's mill to grind,
Two Shumway's mills, along the stream you'll find.
Randall & Pratt's, Benitt's, and Chapman's too,
Where for the people sundry business do.

And, now again, if you would like to know
About some law point, intricate, then go
To Mr. Goddard, or Richards; they will tell How 'tis, and thus explain it well.
They'll make out deeds, and other papers, too,
And do all business such as lawyers do.
If fierce disease lays hold upon your frame,
Racking it wildly with fiercest pain;
When in your feebleness, you plainly see
That you must fall, if not a remedy
Be soon applied, then a physician call,
And of your feelings tell him plainly all.
Two Drs. Thomson and a Temple wait
To check the evils of your failing state.
They'll kindly nurse you, stilling every pain,
And fast restore you back to health again.
When out from town you think you'd like to go,
On business or for pleasure, as you know
The railroad runs about directly through,
And cars oftentimes stand waiting just for you.
So go with them; they'll speed you on your way,
And also take you home if thus you say.

And now we say farewell, and hope that fair Prosperity shall pour, with gentle flowing, Plentitude around, and bear you out in All good projects. May peace and happiness
Be with all, and plenteous harvests crown
The coming year. Let virtue's star grow bright
And knowledge pour its light
To men, and raise them to the noble dignity Original. Yet goodness help, for Knowledge cannot all restore, though much
Can do. And let progression mark the year
So that its end shall find men knowing more
Of science and of art than its beginning.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Reduction in Price of Ford Products

The war is over and war prices must go

Effective at once Ford cars, trucks and tractors will be sold F. O. B.
Detroit at the following prices

Touring regular	$440	Touring with starter	$510
Runabout regular	395	Runabout " " "	465
Chassis	360	Coupe with starter and demountable rims	745
Sedan with starter and demountable rims	795	Truck with pneumatic tires	545
Tractor	790

The Ford Motor Co. makes this reduction in face of the fact that they have on hand immediate orders for 146,065 cars and tractors. The company will suffer a temporary loss while using up the material bought at high prices. They are willing to make the sacrifice in order to bring business back to a going condition as quickly as possible and maintain the moment of the buying power of the country.

HENRY FORD SAYS, "The war is over and it is time war prices were over. There is no sense or wisdom in trying to maintain an artificial standard of values. For the best interests of all, it is time a real practical effort was made to bring the business of the country and the life of the country down to regular pre-war standards."

We are at your command with regular Ford efficiency in service and eagerness to fill your orders.

Austin Barton of the 21st Mass. regiment was shot through the body at the battle of Newburn, dying four days later in the field hospital. This was a peculiar battle, no artillery being used on the Union side. The Confederates behind entrenchments, with both infantry and artillery, received little damage. Col. Clark with Hawkins' Zouaves and the 21st were ordered to charge and take a battery that was doing fearful execution on the Union forces. This was done and the enemy was beaten. Two brass guns were captured which Col. Clark, who was a professor in Amherst college, had presented by the War department to the college where one of them is at the present time with the names of those who were killed and wounded in its capture engraved on its side. The bullet that killed Mr. Barton lodged in Capt. Fraser's coat and was carried by him until his death at the battle of South Mountain.

Big Game Tomorrow

The baseball atmosphere in Belchertown is quite tense by reason of the fact that the Independents are going to run up against Indian Orchard tomorrow afternoon in the deciding clash of a three game series with that aggregation.

The batteries will be: for Indian Orchard "Mike" Hogan and Daniels; for Belchertown, "Coy" Green and Fairchild. Hogan is of Three Rivers and is rated one of the crack pitchers of the east, but the locals think they have got his match in "Coy" Green, the colored twirler of Holyoke.

In fact four of the Belchertown squad will be outsiders. Keyes and Thompson of Bondsville will appear on the local slate as will also Dowd of Amherst who has assisted the locals on other occasions.

Parent and Flaherty will officiate as umpires. The game is scheduled for three o'clock.

Los Angeles, California

Mrs. C. F. D. Hazen

About January first, the acacia is in blossom, a pretty yellow. This is an early tree to bloom; I have seen ice and sleet under trees ready to blossom.

The most beautiful roses bloom later, in a month or two.

The eucalyptus tree is a nice tree. It sheds its bark and great pieces peel off. It is a clean tree. Soap and cough drops are made from the leaves. It has a queer blossom, white and queer shaped. The tree is a fast grower and trimmed out makes wood.

There is the gravilla, camphor and many trees that have handsome flowers but not many of them. You see here also a small leaved maple but it is not like our trees at all. The live oak is natural here. So is the sycamore that comes out of the winter with a new clean bark and leaves out in the spring as do the plums, prunes, peaches, pears—the fruits we have here; they fruit in the fall a little earlier than in the east. The locust has a yellow fruit in bunches; there are three big

Fire Burns House

Fire burned the home of Mrs. Clara Story of the Pelham road last Saturday afternoon between one and two o'clock. Mrs. Story and her daughter were a short distance away, when their attention was attracted by the barking of the dog. On looking toward the house they saw that it was in flames.

Assistance shortly arrived but one end of the house was completely enveloped in flames and the roof of the other end was burning. Prompt action saved some furniture in two of the rooms but a great deal was lost including paintings and many antique articles of considerable value.

The fire department responded but the fire had secured such headway that only the two or three men in the neighborhood who first saw the smoke and rushed to the scene were able to render assistance.

An oil stove which had been left burning in the kitchen was probably the cause of the fire. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

Mrs. Story moved this week to the Towne cottage on State street.

Hooper-Barrett Wedding

Paul Barrett and Miss Dorothy Hooper of Pawtucket, R. I., were united in marriage at the home of the bride on Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Barrett, and the bride is the daughter of Mrs. Nellie Hooper of Pawtucket.

After a short wedding trip the couple will reside in town where Mr. Barrett has a position at the Union station.

Rally Day

Rally Day will be observed at the Sunday school of the Federated church next Sunday. A committee has arranged special exercises to be held in connection with the regular school, and a most cordial invitation is extended to all past, present and prospective members to attend. Attractive opening exercises and a practical demonstration of what the school is doing should make a pleasing combination.

Catholic Mission Supper

The Catholic Mission held sway at Community hall Wednesday evening, serving one of those bounteous suppers for which they are famous. At six o'clock guests began to arrive in a procession of constantly increasing dimensions. While not as many were served as on some previous occasions, due to several reasons, still the crowd was a large one.

The committee in charge was Mrs. Garvey, Mrs. Vezina, Mrs. Sears, Mrs. Lapolice, Mrs. Carmody, Miss Margaret Moriarty, Miss Gertrude Riley, Miss Lucy Hanfin, Mrs. Dressell and Miss Cartier.

Following the supper there was an entertainment in the main auditorium. The opening number was a piano solo by Miss Vezina, which was followed by a vocal solo by Miss Anna Shea of Bondsville. The principal feature of the evening was a minstrel show put on by pupils of the Sacred Heart High school of Holyoke under the direction of Mr. Barry, a member of that city's board of Aldermen, who is quite proficient in getting up shows of this kind.

He also took the part of interlocutor. The show was greatly appreciated and the local hits by the end men were well received. Daniel Kennedy, who was instrumental in getting the entertainers here, was the chief "sufferer". All the numbers were encored and re-encored. At the conclusion of the show a quartet of young men sang, and three young couples gave an exhibition of dancing which captivated the audience.

The minstrel show program was as follows:

When Dixie is Dixie Once More
F. Gilhooley
Tripoli
John Vogt

Alice's Blue Gown
Miss R. Leahy
Hiawatha's Melody of Love
Daniel Woods

Who Discovered Dixie

To What Shall We Give Heed?

How everybody is clamoring for our attention! How multitudinous are the devices used to catch our eye! Advertising is a great science. Even the churches are doing more than ever to catch our attention. If we go to the postoffice we find that some publisher has sent a "personal" letter on which he has exercised his utmost skill in order to get us to read it. If we read a magazine we find that we are beset on every hand by people who are trying to interest us in something which concerns them. If we take an auto ride we find the landscape disfigured with advertisements of every description. Wherever we go, we find we are surrounded by men who are trying to get us to give attention to some philanthropic and benevolent enterprise. There are many noble causes in the world and each agent is trying his best to have us fix our mind on the particular organization which he represents.

Everything is clamoring for our attention on Sunday. In the old days it was only the Church which said, "Come." Now the auto says, "Come," and business says, "Come," and our relatives say, "Come," and the woods say, "Come;" people are pulling us in a thousand ways, each one anxious that we should give attention to him. Everybody realizes that no one can do anything with us until we give our attention.

We show what we are by the things and the men to which we give heed. The wise man must give heed to his home, his school, his work, his church, his community, his nation, and so on. He will, always turn a deaf ear to anything which is not worth while. He will pay little heed to the better in order that he may open every faculty of his mind to the best.

Los Angeles, California

brown seeds and it is ripe the last of the winter. Then there are the olive trees and their fruit. Wonderful flowering vines climb the walls of the nice residences.

Yet after all we have some trees. In California I never saw what we call a woods, and here we ride only a little way and find our roadway lined with woods of beautiful trees of which I think the white birch is not the least with its milk white trunk and green satin leaves which quiver with every breath of air.

I never was in the fruit district of California though Pasadena raises some oranges and I have seen trees cultivated with little ditches where they had run water around each tree. We lived in Los Angeles and there wasn't much fruit there though people with a city lot of 50 by 150 feet could have a few trees and plenty of rose bushes.

One morning I saw two men digging in front of the house so I asked what they were doing. "Going to put in a meter." "What for?" "Well," they said, "you have a good deal of shrubbery and maybe they thought you were using too much water." We were paying a dollar a month and after we had the meter we only paid for what we used, which was less than we had been paying.

We had young peach trees,—the like I have never seen. Peaches were so thick on the stem that when as big as walnuts they were close together so that they had to be thinned out, and certainly we had fine peaches. Then we had a seedless lemon, very fine, full, and large. We had orange trees but, though they blossomed full, no oranges. There are no oranges that I know of below Los Angeles.

They raise great fields of celery; there were men who became rich raising it. Then you see large fields of carnations, of violets, and calla lilies. Women have stands and sell flowers, and florists' shops are very attractive. Then there are the California poppy fields above Pasadena, very wonderful, acres of poppies. But more wonderful is a poppy plant two yards tall with a very handsome white flower as large as a saucer, the leaves of which look like wrinkled white paper. This is wild, but cultivated at nice places. Our yucca grows wild on the mountains and people bring it in on buck boards, two or three yards tall with a lot of blossoms. This they sink in the dirt and keep wet. It is called candle plant.

There are great orchards of English walnuts, both the hard and soft

Death of Mrs. George Dwight

Mrs. George (Clara Kimball) Dwight, 50, died at her home on the Enfield road yesterday afternoon after a long illness.

Mrs. Dwight was born in Palmer but came to this town at the age of three and has since maintained her residence here. Twenty-five years ago she was married to George Dwight.

Only recently she sustained the shock of losing her son Burnace who was killed in an accident on the state road.

She leaves besides her husband, a son, Edwin, and daughter, Leila, both in the home; also her father, three sisters and three brothers.

Funeral arrangements have not been made.

Belchertown Fair Oct. 12

Booklets containing the list of judges and premiums for the 63rd annual fair have just been issued by the Belchertown Farmers' and Mechanics' Club.

The management has contracted with the Victory band of Monson, comprising twenty pieces, to furnish music. A merry-go-round, a missing feature last year, is expected to be on hand this year.

One of the big features of the fair will be a mammoth display of farming implements which will be exhibited by local dealers.

Wins Prizes at Northampton Fair

The Franklin school won three prizes at the Northampton Fair, first in industrial work, second on float, third on canning exhibit.

Knowing that this was a contest of towns against towns of Hampshire county, the children are elated over their good luck.

Thirty-two pupils of the school have been doing club work during the year under Miss Erhard of the Hampshire County Farm Bureau and under the leadership of their teacher, Miss Nellie Shea. This work is done in the school room every Monday afternoon from 1 to 2.30, and carried on in the homes.

The children were invited to put on a float at the Northampton Fair to compete with other club workers of the county, and from twenty different towns Franklin scored second.

Much credit is due E. G. Childs who loaned his auto truck to the club members in order that they might put on a float. The money received is to go toward a sewing machine for the school.

The prizes in school club were as follows: first, Cassie Sullivan; second, Veronica Walas; third, Polly Strachan. N. G. S.

Wednesday Afternoon Closing Continued

The merchants have voted to continue the Wednesday afternoon closing, for the fall at least, and possibly through the winter. This is carrying out the policy being pursued in other places, and the reason thereof is that clerks put in more hours than some other classes of workers; this seems to be a way to equalize things and the merchants named below, entering into the arrangement, trust that the public will look at the matter in that light.

Women's Republican Committee

Miss Lucy L. Bardwell has been appointed chairman of the women's Republican town committee. Other members are Mrs. Jason W. Hurlburt, Mrs. Dwight C. Randall, Mrs. William D. Randolph, Mrs. Harry Ward, Mrs. Fred D. Walker, Mrs. Henry Witt and Mrs. Cora Burnett.

Some of the committee attended the regional meeting in Amherst yesterday.

Rally Day

Last Sunday was observed as Rally day at the Federated Sunday School. Over a hundred and fifty were present to appreciate the special opening exercises prepared by the Rally Day committee. After the program the school took up the lesson study in the usual manner.

The program follows: opening song; prayer; response, "O Jesus, I have Promised"; reading of Sunday School lesson; recitation, "We've a Story to Tell to the Nations"; Edith Shaw and Myrtle Campbell, song, "Jesus Loves Me"; Primary Department; notices, etc.; Pastor; song, Young Men's Quartet; song, "Onward Christian Soldiers"; school.

The committee in charge consisted of Mrs. H. F. Curtis, Miss Marian Bartlett and Rev. H. P. Rankin.

Dies in Beverly

Ira Earl Damon, aged 64, died in Beverly hospital Thursday, September 30, after a short illness.

He was born in Chester, Vermont, Sept. 11, 1856, the oldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Almon W. Damon. He was married Sept. 25, 1880, to Jennie A. McMonegle of Holyoke. They moved here with their family of two sons in 1886 and took up the home now owned by Palmer Taylor. For thirty-two years Mr. Damon ran a weekly express route to Holyoke. He and his wife both were members of the Congregational church. Mrs. Damon died November 21, 1910.

Mr. Damon leaves six children, a daughter, Miss Edna Damon of Springfield, five sons, Almon W. of

Grange Notes

The meeting of Union Grange Tuesday evening was very well attended and all seemed to have a good time. The paper, "October on the Farm," by Mrs. Frances Moore, was given many a cheer. A poem by Mrs. Putnam followed and remarks were made by Mr. Green. The meeting closed with a tableau, "Sipping Cider," and a light luncheon of doughnuts and sweet cider. All come to the next meeting.

October on the Farm

THE WOMAN'S WORK

We are glad to publish by request of Union Grange the following paper by Mrs. Frances Moore, read by her at the meeting on Tuesday evening.

A penetrating chill in the air; the faint flush of dawn in the east; a cock crows; doors swing back on their hinges; the lowing of cattle; the neighing of a horse; columns of smoke curl upward from chimneys; the clank of milk pails; odors of coffee and sizzling bacon escape through opening doors.—Thus begins another autumn day.

Soon the clatter of dishes may be heard; presently the whisk of a broom; bed clothes being shook from an upstairs window; then the patter of little footsteps on their way to school.

The Supreme Issue

The supreme issue before America at the coming election is the League of Nations. On almost all other matters there is little difference. Eliminate the League from the struggle and there is not much to fight over.

The case with reference to the League of Nations is covered with so much mist and fog that one is sometimes bewildered and knows not what to do. If the case were clear cut and he could decide between joining the other nations to keep the peace of the world, and refusing to join, his decision would be easy.

Since the issue has become so engrossed in politics and since the politicians have a way of keeping us much in the dark, there is need of great discrimination in one's thinking between now and November 2.

We are not surprised to find, for example, that some of the ablest thinkers we have, and some of the strongest supporters of the Republican party in the past, are going over to the support of Mr. Cox. This is simply because they think the issue of the campaign is over the League of Nations.

It is our belief that each voter should support the candidate which will quickest enable America to take her place with her sister nations to keep the peace of the world. America is discredited because she has so long stood aloof. Because America is so rich and strong, she ought to lead in any great, noble enterprise.

October on the Farm

Sounds of voices and the saucy snap, pop and whir of the engine rumping the ensilage cutter, come from the direction of the barn, but somehow a silence seems to have fallen about the house.

But what is that delicious odor that greets my nostrils on the morning air? Grapes, cooking! The housewife must be making grape sauce, or marmalade. Yes, and canning grape juice, too. Oh, how good it smells!

An hour or so later I retrace my footsteps and pass the farm house again, still thinking of the grapes. But no, this is not grapes in any form. What is this pungent odor that tickles my nostrils now? Let me see, - I have it - chili sauce! (Tomatoes, onions, peppers, cinnamon, etc.)

I wander toward the barn, the while, to watch the small particles of corn stalks continually flying up, over and down into the silo, and watch the saucy old machine below, continually swallowing up the bundles of corn stalks as if its hunger would never be appeased.

Hunger appeased, did I say! What's the matter with my own stomach? I am invited in to dinner along with the farm hands. On the long dining room table, neatly covered with white oil cloth, there await so many delectable and dainty dishes, mostly products from the farm; chicken fried to a golden brown; a platter of evergreen corn steaming and fuming away because some one doesn't take hold and eat it; a nappy of horticultural beans sweating away in their own juice; beets blushing to a crimson, all cut up about it; potatoes, wheat bread, brown bread, doughnuts, cottage cheese, baked apples and pumpkin pie.

Soon a scuffle of feet, more clatter of dishes, and silence once again. The housewife is finishing canning those late plums, left over from yesterday. She must get the last of those green tomatoes in the garden, for there is yet to be made the chopped pickle and green tomato mince meat. She hastens down the garden path, a basket on either arm. Oh, how invigorating the air is, how very, very yellow the golden rod nodding so gracefully in the strong sunlight. The purple asters hold up their little faces and smile so brightly as she passes by. She pauses for a moment to view yonder mountain range in its garb of red, yellow and brown. The little birds are gathering into flocks, getting ready for their southland flight, and the robins call with such a mournful chirp, as if loath to leave their summer haunts.

The green tomatoes are gathered and she turns toward the house with reluctant feet. But there is yet so much to do. The pickle must be chopped and covered with salt. She must see at once to getting the raisins, currants, suet and spices for the tomato mince meat. Then she remembers about the apple butter.

Her feet are so tired she sits down for a moment to rest them and busies her hands the meantime by darning a stocking or two, and rests her brain by trying to bring to mind that new receipt for citron and raisin sauce, she read somewhere. Oh, well, a cake must be baked and cooled before supper, and John's shirts and the kiddies' blouses must be ironed. Goodness, it is nearly six o'clock and supper not yet ready! Then the clatter of dishes, once again. A few bed time stories, to be told. Little toes to be tucked in, little faces upturned for a goodnight kiss. A general overhauling of clothes for tears and rips to be mended.

John looks up from his evening paper across the table where his wife is sewing on buttons, makes a casual remark or two about the weather and the crops, wonders for a minute or two why his wife doesn't look as young and animated as she used to when he courted her; then winds the clock and goes to bed.

She goes the rounds, and does the picking up and straightening out of the house, locks the doors, and just before she closes her weary eyes, she thinks of the few things she has accomplished; the many things she has left undone; offers a prayer to the loving Father for all the bounteous blessings she has received; all the good things the harvest brings to her and hers; prays for the protection of her loved ones and asks for greater strength to carry on.

Crickets chirp merrily; the night bird calls to his mate; the leaves stir lazily in the night wind; the October moon drops down behind the hill. The stars keep their vigil overhead. Thus ends another autumn day.

Whether or not the Belchertown 1920 baseball season died with the game of last Saturday afternoon, we do not know, but to all appearances death was natural. The end came slowly after three hours of tedious waiting and seven innings of play. Anyone would think an average of three innings an hour could be maintained, but such was not the case. One thing and another prolonged the agony until the shadows fell and the turning on of the street lights found the players in position. If it had been a night for an early moon, no doubt the game would have been going yet, but as it was, it was called on account of darkness—yes, and in spite of "Wilson's time".

There was trouble from the start. Rogers, the imported pitcher from Chicopee, was listless and inaccurate in his delivery. Even the catcher did not know where the balls were coming and suffered an injury to one of his fingers, probably in consequence.

Finally Griffin, the local manager, got tired of his new acquisition and told him he had had enough. Then what happened but the retired man showed up on the mound for the opposing team in the next inning! And who didn't show up on the mound for the visitors? They thought they had the game cinched and so gave everybody a chance to shine.

Finally the tide began to turn so that the A. C.'s restored their regular pitcher, but all too late. The Independents were one run to the good—at least, so the scorer had it—and, by the way, who didn't keep score—most as many officiated there as on the diamond. And umpires, too. Who didn't umpire? Sessions served till he had to go on the night shift, then Bardwell took it and then the job went begging. Finally Fairchild, who started to catch for Belchertown but had to succumb on account of his injury, tried to sit on the impartial fence. He had difficulty in staying on but had the honor of seeing the game through to the finish.

Yes, there was a finish, even though it looked otherwise. One ball got lost and that helped to post (continued on page 2)

Married in Springfield

Mr. and Mrs. Jason W. Hurlburt announce the marriage of their daughter, Blanche Emma, to Mr. George Hamilton Chapman on Saturday, the 9th of October. They were married in Springfield by Rev. Mr. Chapman of the Carew Street Baptist church, father of the groom.

Mrs. Chapman has been employed by the Norton Company of Worcester for the past six years. They will be at home after Nov. 1, at 10 Shelburne Ave., Worcester, Mass.

Woman's Opportunity

That the coming of the ballot to women has brought a change in their attitude toward public interests that are so closely allied to home interests is most gratifying. To be sure, few were left who cared to pose as mentally and morally delinquent, lacking mental energy to form an opinion and moral strength to uphold it, but now they have vanished and their places taken by those who are eager to know their opportunities and responsibilities. Gone too is the "slack-er" who smugly said, "My husband can vote for me!" She is replaced by the woman who knows she is responsible for her vote and that she can double her husband's strength in all that will uplift and improve in the community.

OBSERVER

Married in Springfield

Miss Alma M. Hannum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Hannum of Indian Orchard, formerly of this town, and Ernest H. Ruhe, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. D. Ruhe of Springfield, were married Saturday, October 9, at one o'clock in the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Edward A. Reed of Holyoke, who officiated at the wedding of the bride's parents, performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Avis Hannum, and Robert Ruhe, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Only the immediate families were present.

The Annual Fair

Beneath skies that in the early hours of the day augured none too favorably, Belchertown's annual fair was pulled off in similar fashion to the sixty-two of its predecessors, on Tuesday, the 12th.

While the cattle of other days were missing, while the signs, "No hitching here", have lost their point and automobiles have almost displaced the carriage horses, once a prominent feature of the day's program, there still remains, although some are unable to discover why, a very strong inclination on the part of thousands to attend Belchertown's annual fair. A double row of cars all around the park, dooryards filled and a common packed to the limit on the midway with a multitude of people, was sufficient evidence that they were there.

But why were they there? That was the question. I saw a youngster edging slowly away from the aeroplane merry-go-round, and ventured to ask him what there was about Belchertown cattle show that he liked. If I had been a little more observing, perhaps I might have noticed that he had a bag of peanuts sticking out of one pocket and a bag of candy out of the other, and a squawker in his mouth all ready to blow, so that I had no need to ask the question. But evidently he hadn't heard me for he said, "Say, mister, have you seen my dad? He give me fifty cents to ride on the planes and I hain't got a cent left. Guess it must have tumbled out up there in the air. I know mighty well I hain't had no five rides." And away he went, fishing in his pockets for the wherewithal of life.

I sauntered on up the midway and on meeting a middle aged woman of a little acquaintance I was about to ask her the same question, but it was needless, for in her hand on the off side from me she clutched a red ticket with "the last eight lucky numbers", and while she passed the time of day, correctly, her eyes were strained to a lovely looking, tan colored blanket on the upper rack. As I moved away the man called off the lucky number, the lady's chin dropped and I heard her say, real brave, "Well, I've only spent fifty cents; my man spent a dollar at Athol and (continued on page 3)

The bride wore a traveling suit of blue duvetyne and a hat of fawn colored duvetyne. She had a corsage bouquet of sweetheart roses. Miss Hannum wore a gown of brown satin in chamoise and hat of brown duvetyne. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

A reception followed the ceremony and refreshments were served. The house decorations were of asters, chrysanthemums and autumn leaves. The bridegroom gave his bride a platinum pin set with pearls. The bride is a graduate of the High School of Commerce, class of 1914, and has been a stenographer in the employ of W. C. Belding. Mr. Ruhe was born in Sprasburg, Pa., and was educated in Scranton, Pa. He served 18 months during the war in the 17th Division and is now employed at the Springfield Fire Department Headquarters.

Mr. and Mrs. Ruhe left on a trip to Albany and Buffalo, N. Y., Toronto and New York city. They will make their home in Springfield.

pone it, but it came. The Holyoke delegation was unwilling to stop when the game was 9 to 8 against them on even innings in the late twilight, so Belchertown added five more runs, and what with the coming on of night, the visitors decided to call it off while they were in the field, so the score reverted to that of the preceding inning.

Appended is a list of the players that started the game; who ended it, no one knows. Bili Bridgman took Rogers' place twirling for the locals and stayed on the job steady, but as night came on it was hard to tell who was occupying the out field.

Parade in Boston

There is to be in Boston on October twenty-eighth a big torch light parade—Harding and Coolidge Marching club; Hon. Channing Cox, Chief Marshal. In response to a request from the men that there be a women's division, it is proposed to have ten thousand women in line with Miss Caro F. Colburn, Chief Marshall.

The line of march will begin at Arlington and Beacon streets and will cover a few of the down town streets and will break up at Park Square. Easy marching and the Women's Division will lead!

Belchertown women who wish to participate should send their names to the chairman of the Women's Division of the Republican party in Belchertown.

Perfect Heat Regulation Means Perfect Baking

THE cook makes no mistakes in baking because she doesn't have to guess about the exact degree of heat in the oven. Note the special Herald Heat Indicator on range pictured below.

The oven of this range has an aluminized back. This, with the asbestos lined back flue (asbestos on outside of flue), retains full fire heat in oven. Particular housewives will appreciate this advantage.

The Model Home Herald Range gets equally good results from either coal or wood. We want to show it to you—demonstrate all its superiorities to you before you buy any range. Why not call and see it today?

Fair day of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Bishop.

Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Robinson of Chicopee, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Snow, and Dr. and Mrs. Abercrombie of Worcester were guests on Fair day of Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Peck.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Randall entertained on Tuesday Mr. and Mrs. C. Edmund Snow and family of Holden and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Randall and son of Sterling Junction, also Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bardwell, and son of Amherst.

Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Perry of Kalamazoo, Mich., are visiting friends in town while stopping for a week at the Park View.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Wesby of Worcester have been spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred F. Dewey.

Miss Ethel Dewey has returned to Worcester after spending a three weeks' vacation with her parents.

Mrs. Irene Finley Bassett of Barre with her three sons motored to Belchertown recently. Bernard, the oldest, and Arthur, the youngest, are engaged in the lumber business at Seattle, Washington. Charles lives with his mother. They visited the old home of their grandfather, Jacob Finley, but found that the Hazen boys had made many changes in their grandpa's garden. They were on their way to Easthampton.

The United Young People's Societies hold a Harvest Festival in the chapel next Wednesday evening, supper being served at 6.30.

Mr. and Mrs. James Robinson gave a surprise shower to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Barrett at their home on Walnut street last Friday evening. About seventy-five guests were present. The gifts were numerous and beautiful. The home was prettily decorated for the occasion. Dancing was enjoyed during the evening.

then didn't get any." Over near the agricultural exhibit I ran into my hard working, next door neighbor. "Goodness me," I said. "Thought you always worked—never stopped for anything." "Well," he said, "I do usually, but Fair day I sort of break the rule. I take that as a holiday. I'll be lots tired tonight though, than's if I'd worked home all day, but hang it all a feller wants some change. Guess I'll hike along and see the horses pull."

I crossed over to the street and made my way to the town house where I met a lady with a tired youngster. "Isn't it very tiresome, madam, to go to the Belchertown fair and have to tote that baby?" when all of a sudden a clump of hers gripped her by the hand and said, "Congratulations on baby's winning a prize." Yes, there was the answer, a red tag, a fussy baby, but a happy mother.

The next proposition was different. Sauntering over to the north end of the park I came upon a lad and lass, but as I was about to pop my question to them, they shied off to the dance hall, thinking well of one another but not much of me.

"Just once more," I said, "and then I am done," when I ran straight into a fellow I hadn't seen for a year. Anybody would have thought my question was written on my face for he said, "You know why I come to the Fair? My kid likes the merry go round, my sister likes to buy things, my hired man likes the horse pull, my wife likes to show off the baby, my housekeeper's relatives like to dance, but I tell you," and his eyes beamed right out at me, "I like to meet the folks."

"That takes first prize," says I. "I've asked half a dozen different people why under the shining sun they come to this fair, and it appears to me you've come the nearest to the truth of anybody."

THE ATTRACTIONS

There were tangible attractions, to be sure; not as many or as varied as in past years, but some worth mentioning. The first official event was the parade. Eugene Flaherty was chief marshal, Messrs. Parker, Bardwell, Parent, Dodge, Shumway and Sherman acting as aides. Then followed the Monson Victory band which furnished music for the day.

Next followed two oxen and two cows, the former owned and driven by E. R. Peeso, a familiar figure in the line of march at each annual fair.

Next came the goat, "Down on the Old Farm," entered by W. A. Sauer. Vegetables of every description raised on his East Side farm were displayed, and on either end stood two young trees loaded respectively with red and yellow apples. The farm products looked good and the jug of cider in the hands of the hired man appealed to those of sympathetic tastes.

The next float was entered by the B. H. S. Seniors and Juniors. This was a patriotic affair. Beneath a canopy of the national colors stood Theodore Hazen in uniform, attended, while at the opposite end with arms outstretched were school mates representing other nations imploring the aid of America's young men. The float was labeled both on the front and in back, "Art. X," and was a picturization of a popular attitude at the present time toward that much disputed article which is running the gauntlet of politics. In the rear of the float was Robert Dunbar carrying a banner with such inscriptions as, "Turkey says, 'Come.' Got to Go. Art. X."

The Girl Scout float was next in line. A company of the Pine Cone troop were seated before the fire near their tent pitched in the midst of pines. All around were autumn leaves and a profusion of running pine. The sentiments of the scouts in camp and of the fourteen marching in the rear were expressed in their scout song which they sang heartily, and in their banner, "Camping is the life for us."

Following this float was Albert Peeso riding a Shetland pony. The procession ended with a decorated automobile entered by W. S. Piper.

W. A. Sauer secured first prize, the Girl Scouts second, and the B. H. S. float, third. W. S. Piper was awarded first prize for his entry.

The draft horses were a drawing card. There were four entries, two by W. A. Sauer, and one each by Jason Hurlburt and Clinton Hamilton. Hurlburt's pair, driven by Chas. Cook, took first honors by drawing a load of 7200 lbs. W. A. Sauer had the misfortune to break a pair of harnesses and both losers were highly successful in dumping the load, which caused the man-power to get busy as well as the horses. W. A. Sauer took second prize and C. H. Hamilton third.

More poultry was shown this year than last but the agricultural exhibit in the hall was not as large as usual. C. H. Egleston had a large display of apples and fruit, however.

The baby show was a going concern and of course all were worthy of prizes. A feature at the fair this year was the weighing of children which was conducted by Miss Ayer of Northampton, representing the state department of health, Miss Mary Mooney of Northampton, representing the county organization, and Miss Judd, the local public health nurse. Over seventy-five children were weighed, a good proportion of them coming up to the specified standard of weight.

Back of the show and, of course, largely responsible for it, was D. F. Shumway, president of the organization, and R. E. Fairchild, secretary.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Methodist church will meet in the vestry next Tuesday afternoon at 2.30.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Peck attended in Chicopee last Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Robinson a reception tendered by them to the district supervisor and treasurer of the Phillips' stores who has recently resigned his position. A large number of the various managers were present for the occasion.

Mrs. Clara Stebbins who has been spending a few weeks in South Hadley Falls with her daughter, Mrs. Harrop, is in town for the present.

Rev. Almon Dyer of the Massachusetts Total Abstinence League of Boston spoke at the Federated church on Sunday. He gave a review of the rise of public sentiment against alcohol and pled for a large vote against 2.75 beer at the coming election for the moral effect it would have upon the country at large.

F. H. Clark of Federal Street will spend the winter with his daughter, Mrs. C. E. Bliss of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Louise Paine of the Enfield road has received an invitation to the marriage of her granddaughter, Miss Marjorie Paine of Springfield, on Saturday, October 16.

Grange Notes

About twenty-five grangers from Belchertown went to Amherst Tuesday afternoon to take the 6th degree. How many for the 7th degree in Boston Nov. 12?

Tuesday evening a goodly number were present at the regular meeting of Union grange and a pleasing program was enjoyed.

Mrs. Anna M. Ward, Secretary

Los Angeles, California

For a dry country, I have written a good deal about water but not all that can be said. Large wagons of distilled water go all over the city selling a five gallon glass bottle for 40 cents to whoever wants to drink it in preference to the city water. They carry a frame to put the bottles in and it is easily turned to draw the water.

There are also springs. Rose spring comes out of a hill near Sycamore Park. This is in smaller bottles and carried in a smaller wagon. Then when I was in Los Angeles, they were building a great system of water works from the Owens river many miles away in the mountains. It was brought down in cement pipes which were laid through very large hills, beginning the digging at each end of the hill and coming together exactly in the center.

Just above Pasadena lie the Sierra Madre where the snow is piled 12 feet deep at times, covering the sides far down and perhaps reaching nearly to the bottom, though this is an exception. Then it gets real cold in Los Angeles; long icicles are seen, chicken fountains are frozen hard, and oranges are pinched and tender plants die some, as though it was in Belchertown. But it doesn't last. We soon have very warm days but cool nights.

The mountains seem almost like the northern boundary to Los Angeles. Part way up is Mt. Lowe, plainly seen, and on dark nights flashlights illumined our back yard. The railroad stops here and you go on to the Alpine Tavern where it is real winter and they keep warm by (continued on page 3)

An Invitation

Not everyone in Belchertown has made up his mind how he is going to vote for president. For that reason we invite anyone--men, and especially women, to state briefly (not more than two hundred words. Even a few lines equally as desirable) the REASONS why you intend to vote for—

If you have decided, you must have reasons, and if you have reasons you must want to pass them along to those who have not decided, or to those who have come to opposite conclusions.

Enclose your name which will be withheld from publication if you say so. If our space does not permit the printing of all we receive, we will give you the nuggets. Next week is our only chance. Get the copy to us by

Harvest Supper

Beneath a harvest moon—several of them, specially jack-o-lanterned—shining down through leaves of golden hue on stalks of ripening corn and fair red apples, the townspeople partook of the repast served by the United Young People's societies in the chapel on Wednesday evening.

Who could not eat when the touch of nature with her soothing effects surrounded one as he partook of what her silent workings had made possible?

And who did not come under the spell of James Whitcomb Riley's "When the frost is on the pumpkin and the corn is in the shock", given by Theodore Hazen in farmer's attire, reclining in his chair at the close of an autumn day with the harvesting completed and his own heart at rest.

"She takes her child to school" was rendered by Walter Dodge, after which games were played, the time of day was passed by the older folks, and then all passed out into the night and down the streets where nature just now is clothing everything in festal attire.

O Women

O women, do you realize that you have a new responsibility resting upon you? You have been enfranchised. The right some of you have been demanding for so long is now granted to you by the law of the land. At last has come the time when you can vote for all town, state and national officers and upon all questions submitted to the people for their decision by vote just like a man. Do you realize, O women, how great is this new responsibility? (Well, if you do, you do better than some of the men do.) Do you know to what a degree the welfare of the country, yes, and of the world, rests upon the way you meet this new responsibility? There are great issues at stake at the approaching election. The voters determine how these issues shall be met.

Now most of the former lords of the ballot, the dear men, are already committed to some political party and many of them are irreconcilable partisans. They think as the party leaders think. They support the party policies whether they believe fully in them or not. They vote for the party nominees whether the nominees are worthy or not. They follow their party blindly. "My party, right or wrong", is their real motto. So in this year of grace a great question before the American voters like the League of Nations is being considered in a partisan way and is likely to be determined by partisan votes. So in this year of grace, its enemies are seeking by various devices to discredit the 18th amendment and elect to congress men who will favor and vote for those modifications of the Volstead Act which the liquor interests desire so ardently. Will you approve such attempts by your vote, O women?

Know, O women, that the official ballot of our state at the election, November 2, 1920, will ask the voters to pass upon the following question: Shall an act entitled "An Act to regulate the Manufacture and Sale of Beer, Cider and Light Wine... be approved"? If you put a mark against the word "Yes" in connection with this question, you will vote in favor of the return of the brewery and the saloon and of the manufacture and sale of malt (continued on page 2)

Leaders

A leader is a man who goes ahead. He is not with the crowd. He is in a position of danger because the crowd does not protect him.

A leader is a man who pushes ahead when his fellows are content to stand still. Those who dislike to be disturbed out of their easy going ways are certain to pelt stones at the leader.

A leader is a man who is above the crowd, who stands upon higher ideas and larger beliefs. He is sure to get hit by those who are content to have things remain as they are.

An editor cannot be a leader if he says things which are colorless. Preachers cannot be leaders if they are continually afraid of disturbing their congregation. Politicians cannot be leaders if they say nothing which will not advance civilization.

Most of us like to have an agreeable time. We dislike being criticized and censured. We do not like to have stones thrown at us. We wish to live sheltered lives.

And so we cannot be leaders. For every leader gives offence. The greatest leaders our country has known have been those who were most bitterly opposed. Washington and Lincoln were most vigorously attacked by men who did not agree with them.

But we are not here to have an easy time. A real editor is not to please his readers; a preacher is not to declare doctrines which tickle the sensibilities of those who listen to him; a man in any public office is not to please his constituents.

beverages, cider and light wines containing not more than two and seventy-five one hundredths per cent of alcohol." This is the way the liquor interests want you to vote. This will cheer them in their fight to defeat the enforcement of the 18th Amendment.

O women, you come as a body of new and independent voters. You are not held by former party affiliations. You can view the issues of the day as they concern national and international interests and obligations with minds unbiased by partisan opinions of former campaigns.

There is, O women, one preliminary it is necessary for you or any new voter to meet: You must register on the appointed day before the proper officials just the same as a man does. Nothing will be asked of you that is not asked of a mere man.

Therefore, O women, if you wish to vote on November 2, register on Saturday, October 23, at the town hall between the hours of 12 M and 10 P. M.

a huge fireplace.

Farther south is Mt. Wilson. This is reached by a pathway and you ride a burro—they have one just your size. Here is Carnegie observatory, very large. There was a hard time to get a perfect glass. The glasses were finished in Pasadena. The first one had a flaw when it was nearly finished.

Mr. Carnegie visited southern California when we were there. He did not visit the mountain till he was ready to leave. Then it snowed all the time he was there so that he could not enjoy the sights.

Now for something about Pasadena. It is called the crown of the valley. The main street is Colorado street running east and west.

Rev. Robert Burdette had a nice home there. He is dead. His widow has money. They had a real, old-fashioned garden beside the street.

One of the beauties of this city is the long stretches of green lawn in front of the nice places.

Busch, a beer manufacturer, had a home in Pasadena. He celebrated his golden wedding. Wonderfully rich gifts were given by him. I think he gave two of the prominent ministers there each $500.00.

There is the Green, a nice large hotel. Just here is the Santa Fe depot.

North Fair Oaks avenue runs from the city northward, and a car from Los Angeles will take you to the foot of Mt. Lowe, passing the homes of people who have lived in Belchertown.

To Have Charge of Home in Northampton

It will be of interest to Belchertown people to know that Rev. J. H. Chandler, former pastor of the Congregational church, will with his wife have charge of the Wright Home for young women now being established on the corner of Bridge St. and Pomeroy Terrace, Northampton.

The Home is made possible by legacies of the Wright sisters who left $250,000 for the specific purpose of maintaining a retreat for women with limited means. We quote below from an extended article in the Gazette regarding this private charity of which Mr. and Mrs. Chandler will have charge.

"The conditions on which young women are to be admitted to the Wright Home practically without money and without price, are that young women who are not feeling well, tired out, needing rest, perhaps discouraged, or without friends and limited in means, shall be provided for. Young women who are able to pay can pay whatever they think they can afford. They will be admitted with the understanding that they can remain six months, at least, and longer, unless there are more applicants for admission than can be accommodated in the Home.

"It is expected that all of the work, including the masonry, plumbing, painting, installing of the steam plant, electrical equipment and furnishing of the Home, will be wholly completed and ready for occupancy by the first of December."

Old-fashioned social and supper at Mrs. Geo. Davis's, No. Main

Death of Arthur Bridgman

Arthur Bridgman died at his home on Main street early Monday morning after a considerable period of ill health. Mr. Bridgman was born June 21, 1849, the son of Phinias S. and Sarah Stebbins Bridgman. He was born in this town and had spent all his life here. On Dec. 10, 1877, he was married to Sarah E. Russell.

He identified himself with the business life of the town some fifty years ago, conducting a grocery business with his brothers in the old brick building, long the home of "Bridgman's store", one of the popular meeting places of the countryside. After the death of his brothers, Mr. Bridgman carried on the store alone until he was obliged to discontinue a few years ago on account of ill health.

Mr. Bridgman was town clerk and treasurer for about twenty years, holding the former office at the time of his death. He was a member of Vernon Lodge of Masons. Besides his widow he leaves four children, Herbert R. Bridgman of Springfield, Mrs. E. W. Church of So. Vernon, Miss Marion Bridgman of Springfield, and William E. Bridgman.

The funeral was held at the home Wednesday afternoon at 2.30, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. The bearers were J. A. Peeso, E. A. Randall, H. H. Ward and R. E. Fairchild. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery with Masonic ceremonies at the grave.

Death of Mrs. Herbert Humphreys

TURKEY HILL

Mrs. Herbert Humphreys was found dead in her chair by her husband early Monday morning on his return from his night work in Holyoke. She had recently undergone treatment in a hospital.

She leaves besides her husband a brother, Wm. Pisard of this town and five sisters, Mrs. Crowley, Mrs. Diamond, Mrs. Ward, Mrs. White and Mrs. Blanchard, all located elsewhere. The funeral was held from the chapel Wednesday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

I Shall Vote FOR HARDING

I shall vote for Harding and Coolidge because I believe in American ideals—in their preservation and in the preservation of the lives of the sons and daughters of America rather than their destruction in the maelstrom of political corruption, race hatreds and commercial greed of foreign wars. Let America live for the good of humanity rather than die for the greed of humanity.
—American.

FOR COX

I shall vote for Cox because 1. The League of Nations is the issue of the campaign. The Democrats challenged the Republicans upon this issue and it was accepted. What more can the Democrats stand for than they are now standing for on this issue? They will accept reservations that will clarify the document and protect America. What more do we want?

2. Because I believe that the Republican stew over article X is nothing more than a political bugaboo. What the Republicans want is not to Americanize the League covenant but to Republicanize it. I don't worry about sending armies to foreign soil. What nation is going to be fool enough to aggress if forty nations say that there will be something doing if it does?

3. I believe that Cox will be a leader in the White House and that he will enforce the law. He has done it in his three terms as governor and as to enforcing prohibition, he has clamped the lid on tight.

4. Because in all his utterances I find a breadth of vision and outlook that is most inspiring.

5. Because I am glad to vote for one who will seek to maintain those higher ideals proclaimed by that arch prophet, Woodrow Wilson, whose name, though it has been dragged in the dust, will yet be seen,

Meeting of Historical Association

The fall meeting of the Historical association will be held Friday evening, Nov. 5, in the library at 7.30. Items of interest will be presented at the business meeting. The committee on entertainment asks that all as far as possible bring daguerreotypes and ambrotypes featuring costumes, and wear or bring, preferably the former, articles of old fashioned clothing.

Chicken Supper

Chicken is evidently a weak spot with most people. Anyway the attendance at the supper Wednesday evening in Community hall would warrant such a conclusion. The Catholic functions always draw large numbers but this one took second place to none. From 6 to 8 Catholic and Protestant alike sat down in a common cause.

While some could not stay for the entertainment, those who did, filled the audience room to capacity and enjoyed to the full the snappy presentation of the Churchill club of Holyoke. Trouble on the way hindered their arrival, but the minstrel they produced was well worth waiting for.

The Churchill club is connected with the Sacred Heart High school of Holyoke and is a club of wide reputation. Only part of it was present Wednesday evening. Some familiar faces were seen in the lineup on the platform, among them William Barry, the director of the show, also of the one given here last month. He gave the opening solo of the minstrel, rendering "The Land Where the Shamrock Grows." Other numbers were "Jazz Babies' Ball," "Down the Trail to Home, Sweet Home," "Pretty Kitty Kelly," "Floating Down to Cotton Town," and "Sleep, Baby, Sleep." The opening chorus and grand finale were rendered by the entire company.

Following the minstrel a solo and a duet were rendered by young ladies from the same school. Then followed a four handed Irish reel, also by the Holyoke people.

Introductory to all this were pre-

Some Questions to Ponder

The issue at the coming election seems, without a doubt, to be the League of Nations.

And so the first question to ponder is "What attitude do our candidates take toward this document?" Which one is more wholeheartedly for the League? Which one is straddling or oscillating the question? Under which administration are we likely to join the sooner? Thirty-seven nations have already joined without any reservations. Every day that America holds aloof she is more discredited.
We must join next March. Which party, then, will lead us into this covenant?

Another question each voter must answer for himself is: "How much of the adverse criticism of the League is due to the fault of the document and how much to bitterness toward Mr. Wilson?" Every thoughtful man is bound to disregard entirely his personal feelings of friendliness or enmity toward him. Mr. Wilson leaves the White House next March.
The man who argues against the League to discredit Mr. Wilson is not to be listened to. To what extent have the Republicans been moved in the matter because of their hatred of Mr. Wilson? Or is the criticism due primarily to the fault of the document? How do the thirty-seven other nations who have joined the League feel? Do any of them feel that they are bound hand and foot? that their sovereignty is impaired? that the League would create wars rather than stop them?

And a third question to ponder over is: "What attitude is taken on the matter by those who are closest to the movement?" Men like Dr.
Hamilton Holt and Dr. Frederick Lynch were in fairly intimate touch with the proceedings when the Covenant was drawn up. How do they feel? What do statesmen who were in Europe at the time say to us on their return? What attitude do the men who have always been interested in international affairs take?

And a fourth is: "Where do the reactionaries stand upon the proposition?" and "Where do the progressives stand?" Each one of us will vote more intelligently if he ponders these four questions.

R

How Was It Born?

When was it born and who owns it is one of the most interesting questions about a baby. It is also true of the League of Nations. The most illuminating article on this subject that has come to our attention is one by Frederick Lynch, editor of Christian Work. He was there when it was born, so he ought to know. It is interesting, whether one intends to vote for Cox or Harding. With his article before us we shall summarize what he says.

Early in the war Taft, Holt, Marburg, Straus, Lowell, Howland and several other Republicans, Lynch among them, with hardly any Democrats in the group, met once a month in New York, driven by a desire to draw up something that would make war impossible and bring nations together on the subject of labor, temperance, disease, etc. When this group, made up almost entirely of Republicans, had completed their document, they compared it with what had been drawn up by similar groups in France, England and other countries, who had been working independently.
Just before the Peace conference met in Paris, a group of about six from each country, all of those from America thought to be Republicans, drew up a joint covenant at meetings attended by some of the Peace conference delegates.

The League evolved by the Peace conference, with but slight alterations, is the identical league drawn up by this group.

From some of Dr. Lynch's snappy sentences we quote his words exactly. "In the first place Mr. Wilson never had anything to do with the creation of the League of Nations idea or with the forming of its original constitution. He became acquainted with it a year after the League to Enforce Peace—the outgrowth of the American group mentioned above—had been born—a year and a half after the first meeting of the study group. He was great enough to see that it was the next step in world evolution and became its prophet. Mr. Taft and several other Republicans have had a hundred times more to do with drafting even the present covenant than has Mr. Wilson."

WHY seek to defeat Representative Roland D.
Sawyer? He voted against daylight saving time, has secured appropriations for our roads, was active in bringing the State School to our town, and can be of aid in pushing the completion of the school.

True he is a democrat, but the minority party has had but three representatives in many years: Hon. Geo. S. Storrs, Postmaster Edgar E. Sargent, Rev. Roland D. Sawyer; all have filled the office with high credit to the district. It's time to overlook partisanship—vote for a man who will be a positive influence in the Legislature.

Dies in Michigan

Word has been received of the death in Martin, Mich., on Oct. 20 of Miss Maria E. Dwight, 85 years of age. She was a native of Bel-chertown, daughter of Samuel and Darsa Dwight of Laurel district. In her early life she became a teacher and was very popular as such, both in Belchertown and Enfield. Later she went to Grand Rapids, Mich., where she taught in larger schools with equal success for many years.

She was an optimistic, intelligent, broad-minded person and to within a few weeks of her death she was as interested and well-informed on all topics of the day as ever.

She had six brothers and five sisters, of whom only three sisters survive her, Mrs. Clarissa Aldrich of West Ware, Mrs. B. C. Snow of Ware and Mrs. Sarah Munsell of Enfield. To the latter she sent a valuable quilt made by her grandmother, Ruth Dwight, to be a gift to the Historical association of Belchertown.

External and Internal

What do these words mean? It is easy to find out, if any reader of these lines does not know. An abridged dictionary or even a high school boy is equal to a reliable definition of the words.

These words are important ones just now. And their meaning is confused in the minds of many people, and there is need to get their meaning straightened out. The fate of a great issue is involved in knowing just what the words mean.

The word, external, was used in the much misunderstood and maligned Article X of the Covenant of the League of Nations. That is why it is important now to know its true, plain meaning. Article X reads in part: The members of the League undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing independence of all members of the League.

There seems to be no trouble with the nouns and verbs of this section, or with any word but this adjective,
"external", describing "aggression."
Just look at the two words "external" and "internal" and think a little common sense thoughts about them. The one cannot mean the same as the other, can it? Their meaning is not interchangeable is it? If in Article X we read "internal aggression" instead of "external aggression", it would not have the same meaning it has now. But certain politicians and enemies of the League, caring more for personal ends or party advantage than for the honor of our own nation or the good of the world, have done all they could think of to confuse, mystify, blind, hoodwink, bamboozle, befool and deceive people into believing that external and internal aggression are the same thing. I do not know how a lexicographer would charac-terize such perversion of words, but of the one who does this I will say,
"His mouth is full of cursedness,
Of fraud, deceit and guile."

Let us ask a question: If Alaska or Hawaii should rebel against the United States, would that be a case of external aggression where we, if a member of the league, could ask other members to come to our aid?
By no means. Alaska or Hawaii in such a case would not be a foreign foe but a domestic foe. Their aggression would be "internal," not "external."

Let us ask another question: If Ireland or India or Egypt or Canada revolts from the British Empire, must we not send our armed forces to John Bull's aid? Now dear citizens and voters, do not get mystified.
External is external, and internal is internal. A foreign foe is a foreign foe and not a domestic, that is an internal foe. If any of the parts of the British Empire revolt, that is trouble in John Bull's internal system and requires home treatment, that is, John Bull must look after his own household. If one of his children wants to set up housekeeping by himself, that is a question between him and his father, a family matter. Article X does not expect members of the league to interfere with the internal affairs of another member of the league.

Now, friends of the League of Na-

The Election

The fall election, 1920, will ever be a memorable one, especially to the women. Those recently emancipated who call Belchertown their home, were not slow to use their franchise as all but 20 of the 232 who registered, voted. 570 votes were cast in all, so that about 35% represents the women's vote.

The closest contest on the ballot was that for representative, between Sawyer of Ware, democratic, and F. D. Walker of this town, republican. The former won by a margin of 26 votes. On the referendum the Noes won by a fair majority, the figures being 267 and 204.

Whether the women's vote changed the results is hard to determine but few there were who objected to their participation in the affairs of the nation. An interesting observation is that the names of women candidates on the ballot did not lure the fair sex at all. Evidently they voted by party, for in the case of a democratic woman for auditor, the proportion of votes she received was approximately the same as that accorded that party throughout. Evidently they hold no grudges against the men for not granting them the franchise sooner.

As regards the presidential vote, Belchertown stayed in the Republican column, casting a larger number of votes for the nominees of that party than it did in 1916 when Hughes received 207 and Wilson 120. Last year in the vote for governor, Coolidge received 244 and Long 46.

O. E. S. Inspection

Mt. Vernon Chapter, O. E. S. held its annual inspection Wednesday evening. The inspecting officers were Deputy Grand Matron Mrs. Millington of Amherst, and Grand Marshal, Mrs. Walker of Amherst.

Following the business session at 4 o'clock there was a banquet at 6.30. Speeches were made by representatives from the visiting chapters which included the Geo. E. Fisher chapter of So. Hadley Falls, the Robert Morris of Holyoke, the Unity of Amherst and the Delphi of Springfield. The inspection was held at 8 o'clock.

There was a large attendance as is usually the case on these occasions. The committee in charge of the supper was Mrs. Evelyn Ward, Mrs. Myron Barton and Mrs. Louise Sherman.

Halloween Party

On Saturday evening the Girl Scouts and a few of their friends met at the Scout rooms for a Halloween party. As they gathered around the fire, the company included a ghost; several rather young-looking witches, and other gaily costumed persons. Jack o' Lanterns grinned from every corner of the dimly lighted room and stared down from above the fire-place at the jolly crowd.

The girls played games and ate doughnuts dangling from a string, while a few brave souls bobbed for apples. The refreshment committee succeeded in making itself very popular by means of delicious ice cream and cake. After a few ghost stories and some music on the victrola, the girls started for home, leaving the club room to the Jack o' Lanterns and any stray ghosts who needed shelter on Halloween.

Grange Notes

In spite of the unpleasant weather of Tuesday evening there was a very good attendance at the Grange and a good program was enjoyed, the subject being, "Theodore Roosevelt: What His Life Teaches." The evening was very enjoyable.

An Election By-Product

By-products in these days prove quite an important factor in any business, especially if it is of large proportions.

We are wondering if the by-products of an election—an awful American election—are not commensurate with its evils.

The issues of a campaign are usually quite complex and they were none the less so this year.

The most un-American part of our life in this country is that so many votes can be delivered en bloc.

As we read our newspapers and other periodicals we have noted here and there, sometimes in large letters and sometimes in small, that certain ones, after careful thought, (we are not speaking of those who made hasty conclusions and who refused to be budged from them) decided to support the candidate of the opposing party.

It may be entirely possible that those who thus exercise free thought will not change every election, but America will always be safer if her citizens vote as they individually see the light.

Let us be thankful that in the heat and excitement of the contest there was at least one worth-while by-product.

Forever-Single Party

A wedding of peculiar interest took place Monday evening, when Algernon Sinbad Singlepot and Melitable Keturia Dunsbury were united in marriage.

The groom appeared somewhat distraught, at times scarcely able to repeat his name correctly, and stage directions like "Kiss her", were plainly audible.

Besides those already mentioned the bridal party included a very dapper best man, a blushing bridesmaid, and a matron of honor who was said to look like a member of a Turkish harem.

approaching marriage of one of their members, Mrs. Iva G. White. As has always been the custom, the bride-to-be received a set of silver spoons and on this occasion gifts from other friends.

After the ceremony a collation was served and hilarity reigned until the departure of the bridal party.

The exhibits of C. R. Green and E. C. Howard, local fruit growers, took high honors at the New England Fruit Show in Hartford November 5 to 9. Taken together they received fully two-thirds of all prize money given by Massachusetts exhibitors.

Red Cross Roll Call

Considering the nation-wide appeal of the Red Cross, it hardly seems necessary to go to any great length in describing the Red Cross Annual Roll Call, Nov. 11 to 25. The work of the Red Cross is world wide in its scope, but it follows all the way down to the individual. This country is the scene of much of its activities as is also this state, this county and this town. While the war accentuated its activities, this organization really has just as much of a job on hand as ever. Anyone who reads at all knows that.

Belchertown people have evidence in their own community of its assistance. The balance of the nurse's salary is being paid by the county organization as was also the car provided for her use. The upkeep of the car, up to a certain limit, is also provided by the Red Cross.

And wherever one goes, the organization is on the job. At the time of the exposition the Red Cross workers on the grounds had occasion to help one of our own citizens, who does not need to be convinced further of the desirability of upholding the work of this relief organization.

Mrs. C. F. Aspengren has undertaken the task of seeing that Belchertown people respond to this annual roll call and answer "Here" with the usual fees to retain membership. The minimum goal to be reached is to see to it that all those who have so generously responded in the past, keep their names on Belchertown's Red Cross honor roll.

Before Thanksgiving it is planned to visit all the homes in town to secure these re-enlistments.

Death of Josiah J. Green

Josiah J. Green died at his home in Liberty district Monday afternoon. Mr. Green was one of Belchertown's oldest residents and is survived by his widow, and a son, John O. Green of Bondsville.

The funeral was held from the home yesterday afternoon at 3.30 with burial in Four Corners cemetery.

Demarest-Alden Wedding

Sarah B. Demarest, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Garret B. Demarest of State St., and Harold M. Alden, son of Clarence Alden of Ludlow, were married last Saturday evening at 6.30 o'clock in the Granby parsonage by Rev. C. H. Smith.

The bride wore a travelling suit of tinsel tone and carried 27 roses. The couple were attended by the bride's sister, Miss Olive Demarest, and Clinton Hamilton.

A small party of relatives and friends were present. Following the ceremonies the party motored to Springfield where dinner was served at the Hotel Worthy. The couple left on the midnight train for the west for their wedding trip.

Mrs. Alden is a graduate of the Belchertown High School and also attended the Westfield Normal School. She has taught in the Franklin schools for the last six years.

Mr. Alden was also a graduate of the Belchertown High school, saw service in France and is now a railway mail clerk stationed at the Union station, Springfield. The couple upon their return will make their home at 17 Dawson St. in Springfield.

Old Fashioned Social and Supper

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Davis of No. Main street opened their commodious farm home Wednesday evening to a crowd of about 125 who enjoyed to the limit the bountiful oyster supper provided by the Ladies' Social Union. Like the widow's barrel of meal and cruse of oil the oysters wasted not neither did the pies fail. The supply of doughnuts also abated not, even though we overheard something about one man beginning on his fifth, whereupon his wife began to make inquiries in regard to night watchers.

After the tables had been set and cleared for the third time, the program of the evening was presented, the opening number of which was a solo by Theodore Hazen who responded to an encore. Then followed a series of stunts by different

Meeting of Historical Association

The semi-annual meeting of The Belchertown Historical Association was held in the library on Friday evening.

After the reading of the minutes of the last meeting by the recording clerk, Miss Marion Bartlett, a statement disclosing the present financial condition of the Harriet Dwight Longley estate was read by one of the trustees, D. D. Hazen, who stated that, if building costs were not prohibitory, the work of remodeling the stone house on State street for the uses of the society would undoubtedly be taken up early in the coming spring. The reading of the statement was given careful attention and the hope was expressed that before the expiration of another year the society would be occupying its own home with ample facilities for displaying its very valuable collection of historical interest.

The attention of those present was then taken up with an exhibition of daguerreotypes, ambrotypes, silhouettes and other forms of old-time portraiture. An especially interesting

Children's Association Calls

"Ten years ago last January the Children's Aid Association was incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts and began its work, in the words of the Constitution, of 'caring for in the Home children under sixteen needing its shelter or found in unhealthy, dependent or destitute conditions; also placing out in suitable homes and supervising such children as required its permanent care.'"

Thus begins the 1920 report of the president of the Children's Aid Association of Hampshire county, Mrs. Agnes C. Hinckley. The work of the association has steadily increased so that this year the problems of 241 children have been dealt with. The scope of the work has also broadened so that community work along various lines has come up for consideration.

Artists at Our Work

Few of us are artists in our work. How common it is for us to do our task sufficiently good so that it will pass. We find this in the grades, in the high school and in the college.

An artist is a man who does his work better than he needs to. He is the pupil in school who gets his lesson better than he is required, who does more reading than is prescribed, who has an aim of doing perfect work.

What any community or organization or nation needs, is more artists, men and women who do their work in the best possible manner, who constantly aim at nothing less than perfection.

Artists enjoy their work much more than any others. Work is never a drudgery to them. They have such a fine and noble spirit that they forget to look at the clock.

Let us be better artists. If we are doing a thing well, let us do it better.

Holds Annual Meeting

The annual thankoffering and business meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Congregational church was held last Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Mary R. Blackmer.

Fifty-two dollars was contributed at the meeting towards the work of the Woman's Board, and it is hoped that this amount will be so augmented that the goal of ninety dollars will be reached by the society.

Officers elected for the ensuing year were: president, Mrs. M. D. S. Longley; vice president, Mrs. Dora Bardwell; secretary, Mrs. A. L. Kendall; treasurer, Mrs. Mary R. Blackmer.

First Bout of Season

Local bout enthusiasts got their fill of good wrestling in the first bout of the season pulled off in the town hall, Wednesday evening. Even the preliminary single fall performance had the ear marks of the professional article, and when Walter Dodge got the best of John Wood in a twenty minute scrimmage, the audience showed their appreciation by considerable applause.

The main bout was between E. Robarge of Springfield and Jack Clemens of Providence, R. I. The former has appeared on the local floor before and was considerable of a favorite. Clemens weighed 170 lbs., or 14 lbs. more than his opponent, but Robarge had the skill, and skill counts fully as much as strength.

The bout was a fast one; there was something doing every second. Both men showed alertness of mind and body that comes only by training. The audience was especially appreciative of Robarge's efforts. He won the first fall in 38 min., Clemens the second in 13 min., and Robarge the third in 20 min. Dr. J. L. Collard was referee.

Prof. Wilson was on hand with a more varied program than ever, including vocal, guitar, banjo, and harmonica selections. He also did sleight of hand stunts and gave a cake walk exhibition.

Grange Notes

The annual meeting for election of officers will be held Nov. 16th. Supper will be served at 6.30 by the auxiliary committee. All come and enjoy a good time.

Perley Poore". A. F. Bardwell presented a paper setting forth in some detail the various old-time methods of securing permanent likenesses and portraits. In this connection a copy of the most ancient stained-glass window in England containing a portrait of an individual, and which was erected in 1421, was shown together with photographs of sepulchral brasses of a somewhat later date.

The evening was enlivened by the presence of Truelove, Penelope, Pamela, Delight and Charity, who had searched their attics and jewelry boxes for grandmother's dresses, hoop skirts, dolmans, hand embroidered shawls, and collars, bonnets, combs, fans, cameo pins and other jewelry. Some of the costumes were representative of the Civil War period, others of a much earlier date. The program was arranged by Mrs. H. F. Curtis and Miss Marian E. Bardwell.

Death of Mrs. Cynthia E. White

Mrs. Cynthia E. White, 79, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Guy Prentiss of East Hill, on Monday after a long illness. She was born in Charlotte, Vt., the daughter of Daniel and Joan Bettis Cote. The funeral was held Wednesday with burial in Essex, Vt.

Bake Shop Re-opens

The bakery on Walnut street, which has been closed for a number of years, is open again, and the sweet odors once emanating therefrom are now being duplicated. Henry R. Pigeon, the new proprietor, whose home is in Holyoke but whose headquarters will henceforth be in Belchertown, is the one who is out to revive the local industry, for which he thinks there is a future. The new concern will do business under the name of Belchertown Home Bakery.

Mr. Pigeon is a baker of twenty years' experience and is therefore in a position to please his customers with his pies, cakes, doughnuts and rolls, which will be his bill of fare for the present. When the bread market steadies, he expects to enter the field and do most of the bread business of the town. At the present time J. W. Jackson has the handling of his products.

While Mr. Pigeon expects to operate Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, he is open to what business there is coming and if any suppers or social events fall on other days, he will arrange to change his program to suit the public.

The proprietor extends a cordial invitation to the townspeople to visit his shop and become acquainted. He desires to be of service. Aside from his other activities, he says that he is in a position "to roast turkeys," which is a timely sort of suggestion.

Elects Officers

At a recent meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church, Mrs. Belle Morse was chosen president; Mrs. Ella Hunt, vice president; Mrs. Ella Witt, 2nd vice president; Mrs. Cora Morse, secretary; Miss Ardelle Hinds, corresponding secretary; Miss Sarah Lincoln, treasurer; Mrs. Lillian Morse, assistant treasurer.

Miss Sarah Lincoln has been made a life member of the society. The sum of $54 has been raised for missions, and one of the members of the society has given $8 towards an auto for the use of a missionary.

Social Guild Officers

The Social Guild at its annual meeting Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Hattie Taylor, chose the following officers for the ensuing year: president, Miss Marian Bardwell; vice presidents, Mrs. Geo. Scott, Mrs. Myron Barton, Mrs. Dora Bardwell, Mrs. Hattie Taylor; sec'y and treas., Mrs. Thos. Allen; directresses, Miss Lucy Bardwell, Miss Grace Towne, Mrs. J. V. Cook, Mrs. Geo. Alderman, Mrs. Lydia Wolcott; entertainment committee, Mrs. Harry Hopkins, Miss Edith Towne, Miss Marion Bartlett, Mrs. Cora Burnett.

Dies in Enfield

Edwin T. Kimball died at his home in Enfield last Thursday evening. Mr. Kimball was 80 years of age and was born in Pelham, the son of Samuel and Hannah Kimball. He married Ellen Shaw, daughter of Ozial and Lavina Shaw, who died twenty-four years ago. Mr. Kimball spent most of his life in Belchertown but moved to Enfield eight or nine years ago.

He is survived by six children, Mrs. Benjamin Page of West Pelham, William Kimball of this town, Austin Kimball of Pelham, Carl Kimball of Greenwich, Mrs. Leila Damon and Miss Edith Kimball of Enfield. There are also nineteen grandchildren and one great grandchild.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. Burial was in the family lot on the old place at East Hill.

Lunch Room Feature Next Monday

A new feature at Garvey's store next Monday will be the opening of a quick lunch department. Sandwiches, doughnuts, home made cakes and pies, also tea and coffee, will be on sale. This department should be of service, especially during the winter months, in meeting the demand of the school children for a noon lunch.

Death of William H. Grout

William H. Grout died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. E. Dodge, last Sunday after a brief illness. Mr. Grout was 78 years of age and was born in Warwick. He has spent his life in several towns, among them being Montague, Wendell, Amherst, Belchertown and Northfield. For the last year and a half he has made his home with his daughter in Belchertown. His wife died nine years ago.

He leaves four children, Mrs. Emma Millard of West Springfield, Miss Myra L. Grout of Springfield, Mrs. Frank Hawley of Amherst and Mrs. A. E. Dodge of this town. There are also twelve grandchildren and six great grandchildren. He also leaves a sister, Mrs. Hattie Hastings of Bernardston.

The funeral was held Tuesday afternoon at one o'clock, Rev. C. H. Smith of Granby officiating. The bearers were four grandsons, Oliver and Donald Hawley and Ralph and Raymond Millard.

Burial was with the flag, Mr. Grout having served in the Civil war in Co. K., 26th Mass. Interment was in Wildwood cemetery in Amherst.

Grange Notes

Tuesday evening was the annual meeting and election of officers of Union Grange and in spite of the very disagreeable weather a goodly number partook of the bounteous supper prepared by the auxiliary committee.

The officers elected are: master, Edwin J. Ward; overseer, Fred Tyrrell; lecturer, Geraldine Howard; steward, Walter Dodge; assistant steward, Wilfred Noel; chaplain, Leila Curtis; treasurer, Mary Spencer; secretary, Anna M. Ward; gate keeper, Charles Trainor; Pomona, Irene Orlando; Ceres, Emma Stadler; Flora, Margaret Moriarty; executive committee for three years, William Killmer.

Quarterly dues are now payable. Will those in arrears please attend to payment as we do not wish to suspend.

Confidence in the Truth

There are those who would like to seal the mouth of every one who gives utterance to false ideas and to shut up in prison everybody who would spread broadcast dangerous doctrines.

Sometimes for society's good it seems that the only method available is the prison method. But if we shut up in prison everyone who has a false idea, the whole world would be behind prison bars.

One of the best methods with which to assail a wrong idea is by the setting forth of a right idea. Every right thinking man should combat false ideas and contradict them and show their falsity.

The reason why we do not deny a false statement is because we are afraid it will give offence to the one who holds it. We dislike to express our convictions because we know it will start a discussion, and we wish to avoid controversy.

Los Angeles, California

Mrs. C. F. D. Hazen

(continued from previous week) At the junction of the rivers was the largest pigeon ranch in the country. I read that they had broken through the ground and they could never call the birds together again.

There is not much water in the river. They say it runs under the sand. The Los Angeles River follows the Eleyan Park hill to the end where it comes down to the Buena Vista road, then it turns its course and runs on to the city.

The park has a nice entrance. Fremont gate was built by the city one winter to give employment to many who were out of work.

All the park is a hill so far as I know. There are two easy flights of granite steps and you come up on a level spot where there are seats, and you can see a good part of the city, the Raymond hotel in South Pasadena and several towns.

I think it one of the pleasantest parks in Los Angeles. There are large rose beds, red geraniums, banana plants with their handsome leaves, though the wind will soon make ribbons of those glossy leaves. There is a place where all sorts of trees grow and they all have their names attached, a very nice thing. If more were marked, strangers who did not know would not have to ask some one.

But we must return to the street. I do not think nature had its way, for there is a high bank all along the street, just enough room for a flower bed and a walk. This bank is fifteen or twenty feet high, and ivy, heliotrope and moon vine completely cover it.

I must say something of the moon vine. It is a wonderful grower, larger than the morning glory, and all the flowers are dark blue. You see old buildings or trees completely covered. It is well rooted; though it dies down when frost comes, it is ready to come out in the spring and begin a new journey.

There was a large vine where we lived, and though we cut it back, it found the way under the house and travelled through and came out on the other side. Heliotrope would climb to the top of the bank and blossom till it was hit by cold weather. I don't think the stem is affected. Red geraniums live out all winter, but only red geraniums are seen in Los Angeles. Everything there seems to grow very large.

The city broadens out in both ways from Eleyan Park. East Los Angeles lies east. We cross the river and railroad on a nice bridge, and follow a street down to Downey Ave. The cars come in here from the city. Downey is the street over here. The stores, bakeries, meat markets, etc., are mostly on this street. After a little you reach the nice residences with cultivated trees. (To be continued)

After a recitation by Eleanor Gay the program closed with America.

Belchertown A. A.
Starts Off With Victory

The basketball season opened in the town hall Wednesday night, when the Belchertown Athletic Association quintet, composed of High school players, defeated the Irish-American five of Haydenville by a score of 18 to 17. The game was fast and exciting, although there was considerable roughness throughout the whole game. Headed by Capt. T. Hazen, the home team put up a nice passing game. Owing to bad weather, the crowd was not as large as was expected.

H. Hazen scored the first point of the game when he dropped in a basket from the 15 foot mark. This was followed up with a floor goal by T. Hazen. E. Ryan broke the ice for the visitors when he dropped in a twin counter and a free try. The visitors did not do much scoring during the rest of the first half, for they were able to get only one floor basket by Hickey and Mansfield's free try. The score at half time was 13 to 7 in favor of the home team.

In the last half, the local team shifted its lineup, Aldrich going in at left forward in place of H. Hazen, who took Dodge's place at right back. But the visitors started off with a spurt and baskets by Hickey, Cote and E. Ryan soon found them within a few points of the home team score. With eight minutes of playing left, the visitors tied the score at 16 all. H. Hazen then tossed in a free try, but was followed with a free try by E. Ryan, making the score 17 all. In the closing minutes of play, H. Hazen dropped in a free try which won the game for the home team.

H. Hazen featured the game with three goals from the floor and six free tries. T. Hazen's long shot and Allen's all-round playing were also features. The Ryan brothers carried off the honors for the Irish-Americans.

Lineup:

Hanifin-Sullivan Wedding

Miss Lucy Hanifin, daughter of Peter Hanifin, and Cornelius Sullivan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sullivan, both of this town, were married Tuesday morning at St. Bartholomew's church in Bondsville by the pastor, Rev. J. W. McGrath. Miss Mary Hanifin, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, and Cornelius Sullivan, a cousin of the groom, was best man.

A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride, after which the couple left for New York and Atlantic City. The bride wore a traveling gown of blue yama cloth with hat to match, and carried ophelia roses. The bridesmaid wore a brown silvertone gown with hat to match and carried ophelia roses.

The gifts included china, silver and cut glass. After their wedding trip the couple will reside in South Belchertown.

White-Peeso Wedding

A quiet wedding took place Monday evening at 8 o'clock when Mrs. Iva White and Elmer Peeso were united in marriage at their new home on North Main street. Rev. H. P. Rankin performed the ceremony. Only a few friends and immediate relatives were present.

The couple are well known, Mr. Peeso having been warden of the Ware town farm, and Mrs. Peeso being a former teacher in the local schools and a leader in social activities.

Thanksgiving Service

The special Thanksgiving service of Wednesday evening was marked by an atmosphere of reverential thankfulness in keeping with the occasion. After special music by the choir, and bible readings and responses, Rev. H. P. Rankin and Rev. C. G. Burnham administered the communion, at the close of which both gave brief messages.

Rev. C. G. Burnham based his remarks on the returning of the one leper to give thanks out of the ten who were healed, and the impression it made upon the Master. "No way had been revealed of curing leprosy in those days," he said. Christ was the only one who could heal such a disease then. Yet only one returned to give thanks."

He said that there seems to be a great wave of ingratitude sweeping the world today. He contrasted it with the spirit of two years ago and called to mind the special service of prayer on that Thanksgiving occasion. One by one those who inspired and led their respective countries on to victory when the guns were booming have been engulfed in this wave of ingratitude. Even the one who led our own country in that crucial hour has been repudiated.

"It is a beautiful thing to give thanks," said Mr. Burnham, and he led his hearers on to a devotional consideration of reasons for thanksgiving, basing his message on the reality of God and Christ, and His nearness to each individual. "No sorrow or sadness should dim our vision of Him," he said.

Rev. H. P. Rankin closed the service with a pastoral message and called to mind many personal contributions.

The First Thanksgiving

This year our minds turn naturally to the first Thanksgiving celebrated by those Pilgrims who landed on our New England shores three hundred years ago. It is noteworthy that those Pilgrims who had undergone hardships beyond their gravest fears were willing to spend a week in Thanksgiving. We would say that they had but little for which to be thankful. Part of the harvest had been a failure, the barley was not good, the peas were unfit for use, only four wives remained of the little company of 102; there were only 32 men to do the work of building and hunting and fighting; and over half of their whole band lay buried beneath the sod.

And yet the crops on the whole had been fairly successful, twenty acres of corn had ripened, seven dwelling houses had been erected and four others designed for the whole community. They had become friendly enough with the Indians so that they traded with them; good laws had been enacted for the benefit of the community, and they had laid the foundations of a new government. So they gladly responded to Governor Bradford's invitation to a season of Thanksgiving.

Their Thanksgiving day was one of feasting. "Wild turkey, with corn bread, fish from the bay, fried eels, mussels and clams from the mud-flats close to the village, oysters and venison brought by Massasoit and his followers, wild grapes, plums, white, black and red, and plenty of gooseberry sauce" made up the feast.

Their Thanksgiving was one of merry making. Some ninety Indians were invited to the celebration and games of sport and skill were indulged in to the enjoyment of all.

Their first Thanksgiving was a holy day as well as a holiday. Both before and after the feast Elder Brewster returned thanks to God. They were grateful to God for all the blessings which were theirs.

Los Angeles, California

Mrs. C. F. D. Hazen

Now we came to a street I used to pass through. On the Downey corner were two nice places. At one was a magnolia tree and a tall tree with a bridal rose that had gone way up. This rose had five little roses in a cluster.

The other corner had been quite swell. There was a nice white house and a nice white barn with a cupola. They say that twelve servants were kept there. They had many horses, a sort of gentleman's place. A long, high brick wall on the corner surrounded the garden which contained such plants as the bird of Paradise, the blossom of which was red and yellow, shaped like a bird; and the prickly pear with a large red and yellow blossom. In front was a rubber tree as large as a large maple here. There was fruit which fell on the ground.

There were all kinds of churches, a Catholic, quite large, Congregational, Presbyterian, Methodist and Advent. We had lived in the city where many tourists come, and of course the churches were crowded and they did not follow up every one who went into the churches.

I will tell you of my experience. At the Congregational church I saw some ladies. The next day the minister called. I asked how he knew where I lived. Well, I had told his wife.

I tried the Methodist and down came the minister. (I had been greeted by two ladies.) He began to talk as though it would be a fine thing for me to worship with them. "But," I said, "I am not a Methodist." "You are not a Methodist! What did those women mean?" He wasn't pleased and out his call at once.

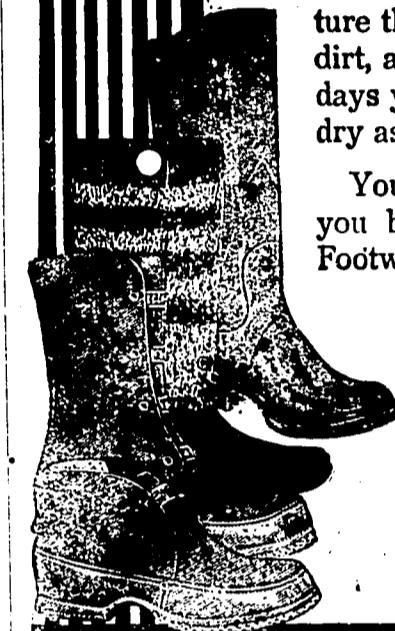

Then there was the Presbyterian which was a nice church with a nice minister. There was a lady who passed our home and she wanted him to call, but I never saw him. She told him of me and asked why he did not call. He told her he couldn't find me but he found a Mormon woman and had a pleasant call. When he got to a certain corner, he went down and I lived in the opposite direction.

There was the Dunkard where the women wore close, black silk bonnets. We went there one day and they were cordial. There was an open chamber on one side of the room where they washed one another's feet.

I presume there were others and many went into the city.

tacts with his parishioners for which he had reason to be thankful. "The passing years," he said, "should find us translating the thanksgiving spirit into sacrificial living, and our lives growing stronger and sweeter."

The crowds were not present for this service, but in the hush of the evening hour could be heard the still small Voice of the Giver of every good and perfect gift, answering the call of those who had returned to give thanks.

Second Wrestling Bout

The second wrestling bout of the season was held in the town hall, Monday evening. Not as large a crowd was out as on previous occasions but the performance was of a high order. Patrick of Warren, who appeared here for the first time, was a favorite, both as regards his clean game and his skill, especially with the body scissors hold. Goodheart has always been liked by the local fans.

Patrick scored the first fall in thirty-five minutes with a body scissors; Goodheart the second in four minutes with a double arm lock, and Patrick the last with a body scissors and arm lock.

Walter Dodge and Paul Aldrich met on the mat in the preliminary, the former scoring two falls, the first in ten minutes and the second in fifteen minutes.

Quite a number of out of town people were present; in fact they formed a good proportion of the audience.

Those interested in future bouts would like to see a match between Patrick and Devers, the champion for New England, as they have the opinion that they are rather evenly matched.

The Historical Association has recently received a valuable and most interesting relic in the quilt bequeathed to it by Miss Maria Dwight, the notice of whose death in Michigan was given in the Sentinel of Nov. 26.

The quilt was made by Ruth, wife of Samuel Dwight, Sen., who died in this town April, 1817. She was the grandmother of the late A. D. Randall. Her granddaughter, Mrs. Sarah Munsell of Enfield writes: "The material for the quilt was taken from the fleece, carded, spun, dyed and woven into cloth, then wadded and quilted by Ruth Furness Dwight."

Historical Association Receives Quilt

The Historical Association has recently received a valuable and most interesting relic in the quilt bequeathed to it by Miss Maria Dwight, the notice of whose death in Michigan was given in the Sentinel of Nov. 26.

The quilt was made by Ruth, wife of Samuel Dwight, Sen., who died in this town April, 1817. She was the grandmother of the late A. D. Randall. Her granddaughter, Mrs. Sarah Munsell of Enfield writes: "The material for the quilt was taken from the fleece, carded, spun, dyed and woven into cloth, then wadded and quilted by Ruth Furness Dwight."

Its color is indigo blue (the favorite of all colors in those days) upon one side, with a lighter shade of blue upon the reverse.

It is wadded with wool, then quilted. And such wonderful quilting! It must be seen to be appreciated. The design is a floral pattern, with center and wide border, having a background of fine stitches completely covering the large quilt. Being in a fine condition it bids fair to last another century and more.

Red Cross Roll Call

The results of the fourth annual roll call show that 133 persons have responded with their dollar to the call of the Red Cross. This number compares quite favorably with the number secured last year. A great many persons renewed and some newcomers appeared on the list to take the places of those who have removed from town.

Mrs. Aspengren desires to thank all those who helped make a good showing for Belchertown and especially the solicitors who gave so generously of their time. As we before stated, there is no doubt but that there is still need of carrying on the work undertaken by this organization. Those who have helped, have helped in a worthy cause. We print below the names of those who have subscribed. If your name does not appear in the list, why not send it in? We are informed that although the drive was supposed to end on Thanksgiving day, still new members are always welcome. The opportunity is still open if you care to avail yourself of it.

Wednesday Afternoon
Closing

HOW ABOUT IT?

During the past summer and fall the stores have been closed on Wednesday afternoon. Some patrons were disappointed at first, but now nearly all have the Wednesday closing in mind.

From 7.30 a. m. to 6 p. m. and Saturdays 7.30 a. m. to 10 p. m. makes 67 hours on duty for the one-man store and 60 hours for the clerks in the other stores.

We would like to make the Wednesday afternoon closing a year round custom as has been done in many neighboring towns. Are you willing to cooperate with us or do you prefer to have the stores open?

Please send your name to the Sentinel office before Dec. 8th, stating your preference.

Welcome Home Reception

The Welcome Home reception last Friday evening to the young people of the Federated church who have been away at school and college, was a very pleasant affair. Nearly a dozen were guests of the United Young People's societies. They were hardly to be considered as guests, however, for everyone felt at home as well as welcome.

The literary program consisted of a reading by Miss Page, two violin solos by Mrs. Gildemeister and two readings by Theodore Hazen. Games and refreshments completed the evening's program.

Ignorance as an Enemy

Man has many enemies. Doubt is an enemy; so also is apathy; likewise prejudice, and fear and hate. One of our worst enemies is ignorance. One of the great foes we have to fight is ignorance.

Ignorance has caused many blunders in the world. Dr. Jefferson declares that "nearly every foolish and terrible thing which the Puritans did was the result of their erroneous conception of the Bible." They claimed too much for the Bible. Ignorance always gets us into a lot of trouble. Sometimes a whole life is marred by things done in youth in ignorance.

It was our ignorance of the real destitution of Europe that caused us to fall far below our best in rendering aid to those stricken countries. Ignorance caused us to give pennies rather than dollars.

Because of our ignorance we are unable to controvert false doctrines. If we had only had knowledge we would have had the weapon with which to slay the doctrine, but because of our ignorance the false doctrine was allowed to go on its mischief making business.

Because of our ignorance we are unable to cope with the colossal problems of the world. More than one has said, "I am so ignorant regarding the League of Nations document that I cannot speak intelligently." All of us knew so little that we were easily put into a corner by an opponent whether we were for or against the document.

It is knowledge, of course, that will drive out ignorance. Dr. Boynton said that the best thing brought over in the cabin of the Mayflower was Elder Brewster's library of 275 volumes. And the reason why more blunders have not been committed is because we have heeded the word of the pastor of that Pilgrim band, John Robinson, who told that little company before they sailed, "God hath more light and truth to break out of his Holy Word."

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing, also a show of knowledge and a smattering of knowledge. We should make every effort to be as intelligent as possible so that we may have the weapon with which to drive ignorance away.

How Science Wins Warfare.

Wireless telegraphy and wireless telephony now commonplace, suggest the possibility of transmitting energy by wireless waves. A Rumanian engineer, M. Constantinesco, has been experimenting in England with a method that seems novel.

Nature says he uses a tube filled with water or some such liquid, in which vibrations of the nature of sound waves are produced at one end and the energy is reconstructed at the other end in a mechanical form. The details of the apparatus are kept secret, but Constantinesco's researches have been financed by the British government and it has already been applied in mechanism that stops the discharge of bullets from the rapid-firing gun of an airplane each time that the blade of the propeller passes before the muzzle. This is what makes it easy to fire 2,000 shots a minute through a propeller making between 1,000 and 2,000 revolutions a minute.

How Not to Take Vacation.

Mere abstinance from work does not constitute a real vacation. A vacation has the idea of benefit in it. Sometimes it develops into a loafing match that is more harmful than good. That's the way it goes with Peter Jones. Pete will vacate at home. That is, he will vacate his bed when he gets tired lying in it. He will also vacate all jobs and responsibility until necessity drives him back to a job. The front porch will be his lounging place until the sun drives him elsewhere. The rest of the day will find him on the shady side of anything that isn't too hard to reach. He'll go back to his job, lazy-limbed, stomach-stuffed, and brain-fogged, less fit for work than when he took to vacating. There's sense and nonsense in it.—Pennsylvania Grit.

Chautauqua Here Next Year

For the first time in its history Belchertown will have a three-day Chautauqua in the summer of 1921. A tent seating 500 people will undoubtedly be pitched on the common in August of that year and an entertainment of interest to old and young, educated or otherwise, will be furnished by the Radcliffe Bureau who have devised a plan whereby the smaller towns can have what previously has been possible only in larger communities. 4,000 towns are on their list of bookings and in every circuit a chautauqua is opened and closed every day. The first day's speakers here will be the first day's speakers in the next tent, and so on.

Miss Lyons, the representative of the Radcliffe Bureau, has been in town and secured the names of 20 guarantors who stand back of the cost of the three days' program, which is $550.00. An afternoon and evening entertainment will be given each day in which music will be a prominent feature. Season tickets will sell for $2.00 a person. Single admissions will be 50c.

And how did this all come about? Well, representatives of the Board of Trade and Community club met the promoter at the hotel the other evening and after the men had scratched their heads awhile, the ladies shouldered the proposition and the following day went with Miss Lyons and used their moral suasion in getting 20 men to scratch their names (instead of their heads) on the agreement to guarantee the proposition.

It is none too early to begin to talk up this new enterprise and none too early to plan to vindicate the faith of the ladies of the Community club.

Death of

Miss Josephine Clark

Miss Josephine Clark died at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Morse Thursday morning at 7 o'clock. She had been in failing health for some time and had had to be cared for for a number of weeks.

Miss Clark was the daughter of Nathan J. and Elvira Rice Clark and was born in Ware Jan. 6, 1844. At the death of her father in 1879 she came to this town to live in the home of her grandfather, Josiah Clark, who lived on what is now the Edwin Shumway farm. While Belchertown has been her home ever since, some twenty years of her life were spent in Holyoke.

She leaves two nieces and one nephew living in Springfield, also a half sister, Miss Elvira Clark of Hastings, Neb., who, only this week, got in touch with her by letter after a lapse of many years.

The funeral will be held in the M. E. vestry Saturday afternoon at one o'clock. Rev. H. P. Rankin officiating. Burial will be in the South cemetery.

Annual Church Meeting

Those with Congregational affiliations gathered in the chapel last Friday evening for the annual meeting and roll call of the Congregational church. A goodly number were present to enjoy the bounteous supper prepared by the Social Guild, and the fine spirit of fellowship at this annual home gathering.

Following the social hour came the business meeting, over which Rev. C. G. Burnham presided in happy vein. Reports of the clerk, treasurer, trustees and pastoral committee, also the missionary society, O. E. society and other organizations showed that the spirit of life is still animating the various departments. D. D. Hazen presented figures showing what the church will receive in final payment from him as administrator of the Chapman estate, of which the church is the residuary legatee.

The election of officers resulted in the choice of the following: Deacon for eight years, Lewis H. Blackmer; deacon for six years to fill unexpired term, Edward A. Randall; clerk, Mrs. H. F. Peck; treasurer, Miss Ella A. Stebbins; trustees, Rev. C. G. Burnham, Edward A. Ran-

Death of

Patrick Mahaney

TURKEY HILL

Patrick Mahaney, Sr., died at his home on Turkey Hill Tuesday afternoon after an illness of several months. He was born in County Kerry, Ireland, about 80 years ago and came to this country when a young man. He worked at railroad building for the government during the Civil war and followed that occupation in this part of the state, North Adams and York state until March, 1876, when he purchased the farm of James Munroe Olds, on which he has since lived.

He was married to Mary Murphy at Chicopee. Nine children were born to them, one dying in infancy. The others lived to grow up and attended the public schools here. Michael, a contractor in New York City, left home when young. Mary married a Mr. Lyons and died in Chicopee. Kate and Nancy also

Observe Golden Wedding

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Stevenson observed their golden wedding anniversary at their home on State street on Wednesday, receiving the congratulations and many tokens of appreciation from a large company of friends who hold them in high esteem.

Mr. Stevenson was born in Baltimore and came here soon after the Civil war with Adjt. Walker of this town. He was for 42 years employed in the family of the late Dr. Geo. F. Thomson. Mrs. Stevenson, formerly Miss Mabel Freeman, was born in Pelham, coming to this town at an early age. Mr. and Mrs. Stevenson were married by Rev. Moses Curtis. To this union were born two daughters, Mabel, who died some years ago, and Mrs. Chas. W. Clark who with her family resides with them.

The couple have spent most of their married life here where their presence has been greatly appreciated by those who value faithfulness and true neighborliness. The couple are in fair health and passed their wedding anniversary in a festive way. Flowers, a purse of money, post cards, gifts and letters of greeting from friends and fellow-members of the Congregational church helped to make the day a happy one and one long to be remembered.

Sale and Supper

The annual sale and supper given by the Ladies' Social Union of the M. E. Church in the vestry, Wednesday evening, was the principal social occasion of the week.

The sale opened at four o'clock, and from then on, the holiday shoppers passed down the line of booths to purchase just what they have been wanting to buy. Aprons and fancy articles of every description beckoned prospective purchasers from many standpoints, and the cocoa and candy booth was a meeting place for all. Here Dutch Maid cocoa was on sale, and you could have a sample of its product in a steaming cup of drink if you cared to indulge—and of course you did. The booth in its Stebbins; pastoral committee, Alvan R. Lewis, Mrs. A. L. Kendall; nominating committee, H. L. Hadlock, Mrs. Dora Bardwell, Mrs. Louise Sherman; superintendent Home department of S. S., Mrs. A. L. Kendall; superintendent Cradle Roll, Mrs. Lewis H. Blackmer.

"In Memoriam," written by Mrs. M. D. S. Longley and read by Miss Marion E. Bartlett, included the names of Dea. G. D. Blackmer, Mrs. Lillian Allen Damon, Mrs. Martha Elizabeth Hawkes and Ira Earl Damon, members who have passed on since the last annual meeting.

Then followed the reading by Lewis H. Blackmer of verses entitled, "The Abiding Fellowship," written especially for the occasion by Rev. J. H. Chandler of Northampton, a former pastor, who had in mind those who had passed within the veil in the brief interval since he was here.

In this connection personal greetings were read from Rev. and Mrs. Chandler which was only one of similar communications received from former ministers. Others responding were Revs. P. W. Lyman, C. H. Smith, W. S. Woolworth, J. B. Atkins and M. H. Fishburn.

The roll call of non-resident members brought forth more than a score of replies from far and near, together with many financial contributions towards Congregational obligations by those who had not forgotten the church back home.

After remarks by the pastor, Rev. H. P. Rankin, the roll of resident members was read to which one hundred and three out of the one hundred fifty-six members and associate members responded, either in letter or in person.

The meeting closed with a prayer and benediction by Rev. H. P. Rankin.

THE ABIDING FELLOWSHIP

Tune—Wentworth

We bless Thee, Lord, for victor souls,

Now gone before.

Who kept the faith and counted death

An open door

To love's sweet service, growing still
From more to more.And they in heaven with us on earth
In Christ are one;

Our helpers still, while we fulfill

What they began,

That they may share our victory, when

Our part is done.

Our souls they stir, each hampering weight

To lay aside;

And strength to break the fettering sin

Dear Lord, provide!

That in Thy fellowship—and theirs,
We may abide.Then shall our true life, hid in Christ

E'en now appear;

And love more perfect shall cast out

Our faithless fear;

And heaven's vistas make our earth
More sweet and dear.O Love Divine! keep Thou our hearts

In union sweet

With those beyond our sight, till we
Our course complete;

And in the place Thy love prepares

Our loved ones meet.

Belchertown Quintet
Bows to West
Warren Five

W. L. Noel

The first big upset for the Belchertown High School Athletic Association quintet occurred in the Town hall last Saturday night when the West Warren Juniors defeated the local team by a score of 27 to 15. The game was fast and well-played.

The West Warren five, although outweighing the local team, played a wonderful passing game, with little individual playing. The home players were off on shooting and passing and lost many chances to score, especially in the first half.

The visitors scored seven points before the home team scored their first. Reim dropped in a two-spot a few minutes after the game started. He was followed, with baskets by Avery and Choquette and a free try by the latter. Then "H" Hazen broke the ice for the home team when he dropped in a twin-counter. But Fountain and Keating covered the back court so thoroughly that the local players had very few chances to shoot near the basket. The only other points made by the home players in the first half were Bob Dodge's floor goal and "H" Hazen's free try. The score at half time was 15 to 5 in favor of the visitors. In the second half, Jim Aldrich substituted for Bob Dodge for the home team, which made a much better showing because of better shooting.

Choquette was the big scorer of the game, caging five floor baskets and two free tries for a total of 12 points. Capt. Reim and Avery both played a fast floor game and also found time to drop in three baskets each. "H" Hazen led the scorers on the home team with three floor goals and one free try. Guy Allen played a hard game at left guard, both on the offence and defense. He broke up many of the visitors' formations and also dropped two twin-counters through the iron hoop. The feature of the whole game was West Warren's passing and teamwork.

These who cared to tickle their brains as well as their stomachs found good opportunity in the "Art Gallery" room where the attendant passed you a slip of paper bearing a long list of articles "hidden" somewhere on a long table. You had to guess the proper numbers.

Of course you met somewhere in your wanderings the grab bag woman with old fashioned bonnet and multi-colored patch pocket apron, who invited you to take a grab.

Of course you went to the supper. The men could shine with equal brilliance there. And of course you stayed to the entertainment, which consisted of a star drill, participated in by fifteen girls dressed in white, carrying large silver stars in their hands and innumerable smaller ones attached to their dresses. Three young ladies also gave readings on how Christmas is observed around the world. The girls' chorus rendered a selection, after which the star drill was repeated. Cook then

Town Items

The body of Mrs. Charles Moore of Greenfield, who died suddenly in Minneapolis on her return from an extended trip to the West, was brought here for burial in Mt. Hope cemetery last Friday morning. She leaves some distant relatives in this town.

The banging of guns this past week has proven that several sports are out deer hunting, but only a few captures have as yet come to our notice.

The town received last Friday a snow plow from the state with which to keep the state road open this winter.

A special musical program is being arranged for the evening service at the Federated church.

John Fairchild and George Jackson left for Florida yesterday morning.

An alarm was rung in Thursday morning on account of a chimney fire at the home of W. A. Sauer. With the help of Dwight Randall and Mr. Landers the blaze was extinguished before the chemical arrived.

The Social Guild will meet at the home of the Misses Bardwell of So. Main St. next Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock for sewing.

Mrs. S. W. Rhode and children are ill with whooping cough.

The Red Cross Christmas seals are in the hands of the Girl Scouts who will make a house to house canvass.

Two more names have been added to the Red Cross roll, those of E. C. Witt and Mrs. Lydia Harrison.

An Offering for the Starving

Whose heart does not bleed for the starving children of Europe—the innocent children who are starving by the million through no fault of their own? They did not bring on the war, yet they are suffering and dying because of it. To the credit of America be it said that she is attempting to raise millions of dollars to help save those afflicted children.

The Christmas offering of the Federated church will go towards this great humanitarian project.

This is the first public opportunity offered to the people of Belchertown to do their part. Why not avail ourselves of it?

Squires-Grayson Nuptials

Susie Eloise Squires and Emory Ellsworth Grayson were married in Springfield last Friday evening at 7.30 o'clock by Rev. Neil McPherson, D. D., pastor of the Old First Church. The Van Dyke double ring service was used. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Dickey of Springfield.

The bride wore a navy blue suit of Duvet de Laine with hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of twenty bride roses.

The bride graduated from the High school in the class of 1918 and has served as a teacher in the local schools. Mr. Grayson graduated from the Milford High school in 1913 and from the Massachusetts Agricultural college in 1917. He is prominent in athletics and is a member of the coaching staff at the last mentioned institution.

After a brief wedding trip the couple are making their home with Mrs. Della Squires, the bride's mother.

Special Service Next Tuesday

Just three hundred years ago next Tuesday the Pilgrims landed on Plymouth Rock. How much the world appreciates what those brave men and women did, who came to these shores in far different weather from what we have been having, is evidenced by the large amount of space that has been given to the speeches of those who during recent months have eulogized the Pilgrims.

It is well for America, on the 300th anniversary of the founding of this nation, to pause and contemplate what principles were the basis of its success and how we can emulate our pioneer forebears.

A special Pilgrim memorial service has been arranged for next Tuesday evening in the M. E. church at 7 o'clock, when it is expected that several will speak. This service takes the place of the prayer meeting and will be held in the main auditorium.

Belchertown Quintet
Loses Its Second Straight Game

W. L. Noel

The Belchertown High School Athletic Association basketball team, accompanied by fifteen rooters, motored to Haydenville last Saturday night to play the Irish American quintet of that town, but found out that there was a big meeting in the hall where the game was to be played. The local party was then advised to proceed to Williamsburg, the Haydenville team having hired the hall in that town for the game.

Although gaining a 20 to 7 win over the Belchertown five, the Irish Americans met stiff opposition from the local team, which was handicapped by playing in a small dance hall with a low ceiling, which prevented the local players from shooting long shots.

Both defenses were strong, for only 13 floor goals were thrown during the game. The Irish Americans annexed ten of them, while Capt. Theodore Hazen tossed in the other three for the High school team.

The game was featured by the work of Capt. E. Ryan and Cote, the Irish American forwards. "H"

Hazen was pitted against Ryan while Guy Allen guarded Cote. The former caged four floor goals and the latter dropped in five. Six fouls were called by the referee, three on each team. "H" Hazen caged one out of three attempts from the 20-foot mark, while E. Ryan and Cote missed all the chances for the Irish Americans.

E. Ryan scored the first basket of the game after five minutes of play. T. Hazen tied the score when he dropped one in from the center of the hall. E. Ryan then put his team in the lead with another floor basket, but T. Hazen again tied the score with another pretty shot. Cote dribbled down the floor and dropped one in, making the score 6 to 4. A technical foul was called on Haydenville and "H" Hazen shot in a free try from what he thought was the 15-foot mark, but it did not count, for the referee said he did not shoot from the right mark and made Hazen step back about five feet. The Haydenville crowd and players then started to hiss and holler at Hazen, but "H" put one over on them for he showed that he could shoot a free try from the 20-foot mark as well as from the 15-foot mark. The half ended with the score 6 to 5 in favor of the Irish Americans.

Cpte opened the last half with two baskets in succession, making the score 10 to 5. The defense of the (continued on page 2)

Christmas Carols Again

It is of interest to know that the Community club expect to carry out the idea again this year of singing Christmas carols up and down the streets of Belchertown on Christmas eve.

In the rush of holiday shopping, sometimes the spirit of Christmas is lost to sight, but this appropriate observance never fails to make us pause to realize what Christmas really is.

To add a further Christmas touch the club would appreciate it if the homes of the center would be brightly illuminated in keeping with the occasion.

There will be a rehearsal at the home of Mrs. Peck next Monday evening by those who are to assist in rendering the carols. It is hoped there will be a goodly number present.

Where Things Grow
Big

The mammoth pumpkin displayed in Hazen's store comes from the land where things grow big. Frank Atwood of Anderson, Indiana, was responsible for the exhibit which measures 6 feet around, 19 inches high and 2 feet across. He sent it to his sister, Mrs. W. L. Bishop, as a souvenir of the land where things are naturally big.

And just to prove that other things are subject to the law of expansion, we quote from his squib about it. It breathes a sort of "large" atmosphere.

"If you will remember when you visited Indiana, you were very much interested in the pumpkin crop, and during the past season I planted a seed or two in the flower bed and raised some.

"Unfortunately, all of the rest of the pumpkins on this vine, except the one I am sending you by express which was the smallest one of the twelve, were so large that the express company refused to receive them. I regret this very much as I certainly would have liked for you to see just what I can do. You may think that I should have shipped by freight, but you must remember that at the present time, practically all of the box cars are being used for grain shipments and the flat cars for coal, so that I could not get one at the time needed.

"Twinnie says that he is sorry that he could not get some of the pink and blue pumpkins and send them at the same time, but most of the cities are buying these highly colored pumpkins at the present time to use for Christmas decorations, mounting them on posts with electric lights inside. They are very attractive."

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Barden of Pittsfield called recently, while on their wedding tour, on Mr. Barden's uncle, H. L. Hadlock.

G. H. B. Green passed his 75th birthday on Wednesday and was remembered by his many friends, both by post cards of which he received about fifty, by flowers from the Federated church of which he is treasurer and by many who desired personally to tender their congratulations. A party of relatives and friends were guests at dinner and remained for the evening.

Kill the Dangerous HOUSE FLY

between

Thanksgiving and Christmas

The House-Fly that is seen between THANKSGIVING and CHRISTMAS should be killed at once, as it has fattened for hibernation for the winter months.

It will emerge from its winter quarters to greet us on EASTER DAY and will begin to raise its summer progeny—the worst enemy to humanity.

It may now be found in all warm places in the home, especially in the kitchen and dining room, languid and lazy, and can easily be disposed of by housewives or children.

The presence of the fly in the household is a signal that unsanitary conditions exist and is a warning to every intelligent person.

Although house-flies are fewer in number we should not relax our efforts to exterminate the survivors.

Pilgrim Tercentenary Hymn

1620—1920

TUNE: *Aurelia*O little band of Pilgrims
Upon the stormy sea,
Who ventured forth with vision
Of things that were to be,
Your faith and hope and courage,
Your freedom from base fears,
These are an inspiration
Across three hundred years.O little band of Pilgrims
Who signed the Compact true,
Who followed Freedom's footsteps
From old world unto new,
Be ours a like devotion
To truth and liberty,
That we may keep the vision
For all humanity.O little band of Pilgrims, Upon the Plymouth shore,
Whose faith in God ne'er wavered,
But stands forevermore,
Your sense of God's own presence
We need with us to-day,
Oh, guide us, Heavenly Father,
Upon the Pilgrim way.

—Charles Washburn Nichols

Pilgrim Memorial Service

A service worthy of the attendance of every man, woman and child in Belchertown, was held in the M. E. church on Tuesday evening, the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrims at Plymouth.

Prayer was offered by E. C. Witt, after which Rev. H. P. Rankin read Psalm 103. Theodore Hazen then read The Landing of the Pilgrims.

There were five speakers on the program, each emphasizing certain characteristics of the Pilgrims. Rev. C. G. Burnham spoke on "The Pilgrims' Sense of God." He said that they not only believed and worshipped Him, but they had a keen sense of His place and influence in life, and in their affairs. The first step the Pilgrims took was out from the church of their childhood to what seemed to them the New Testament way. They believed that new light was to break forth in the Death of Alfred C. Underwood

Alfred C. Underwood died at his home on the state road, early Monday morning after a considerable period of ill health. He was 83 years of age, was born in this town, and with the exception of 5 years in Chicopee and 8 years in Illinois, has spent all of his life here.

He leaves a widow in the Northampton hospital and a son, Frederick, in the home.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. C. H. Smith of Granby officiating. Burial was in Holyoke cemetery.

Death of Mrs. Mary Griffin

Mrs. Mary Griffin, 90, died at her home on South Main St., Tuesday morning. Mrs. Griffin was born in Ireland but had spent most of her life in Belchertown. Mrs. Griffin had been married three times. She leaves two children, Miss Theresa Kennedy and Jerry Griffin. There is also one grandchild. The funeral was held yesterday with burial in Thorndike.

West Warren Wins Easily

W. L. Noel

The Belchertown High School Athletic Association basket ball team, led by chauffeur and Capt. Theodore Hazen, motored to West Warren last Saturday night and played the West Warren Juniors, one of the fastest junior quintets in the state, in Community hall, but came back with a 40 to 16 defeat tagging along behind. The game was fast and well-played and was much closer than the score indicates. The feature of the game was the passwork and teamwork of the West Warren team.

The local team could not get started in the first half and seemed lost on the large floor. The West Warren team took advantage of the loose playing of the local team and piled up a large lead.

Scoring began after five minutes of play when Bob Dodge dropped in a free try. This was the first and last time that the local team held the lead, for the Mill Town players, led by Capt. Reim, started to drop in floor baskets from all angles of the floor. Reim and Choquette led the scoring attack with four floor goals each. The only other points made by the High School in this half were Red Wood's floor goal and T. Hazen's free try. The first half ended with West Warren leading by a score of 29 to 4.

The second half was the most exciting of the whole game, for the locals put up a great game and outscored the West Warren team 12 to 11. Avery opened the scoring in this period with two floor baskets in succession. Guy Allen then caged a floor goal for the local team and was followed up with a similar shot by Jim Aldrich. Reim and Avery each registered a twin counter for West Warren, while the Hazen brothers, Red Wood and Guy Allen tallied for the High School team. Fountain's floor basket and Choquette's free try ended the scoring of the game.

A Larger Supply of Good Will

There is much good will in the world, but there is not enough. The stock is large but it is not sufficient to keep the world from perishing.

We need a greater amount of good will in Europe. Dr. John R. Mott, who has made many European trips, declares that in his recent trip he found more suspicion and more hatred than at any time during the war, and that nations that at that time were working in harmony and unity are now estranged. Dr. Frederick Lynch testifies that even in conference between Christian ministers, one group of men would protest against sitting at the same table with another group of men from another country. War, in a large measure, is responsible for this lack of good will. War is a breeder of hate. War can accomplish many things but it cannot remove hate. There is more hatred after every war than before. The Civil war left a deep hatred between the North and the South, and it has taken half a century to heal the wound. The World war has caused hatreds that will not die out in the present generation. One has rightly said, "The war has left hatred ranking in every breast in Europe." War is a destroyer of good will. War kills men, and men cannot be killed without stirring up hatred.

We need a greater amount of good will in America. Too many white men call the negro shiftless; too many black men call the white man unkind. Labor calls capital unjust, and capital says to labor, "You are unreasonable." Let no one say that America is a model of good will so long as there are strikes and hold-ups and murders such as we never saw before.

If we would build good will, we need to rid ourselves of any feeling of superiority, we need to be careful to sow no seeds of suspicion or rancor, we need to be on the lookout for the good and the beautiful everywhere.

Why not make a more determined effort than ever to increase largely the stock of good will in 1921? There is no better task.

Pilgrim Memorial Service

way of church order and government. It cost them dearly in personal suffering and loss of property, and caused them to move away from their childhood's home. Like Abraham they went out, not knowing whither they went—all in fidelity to the sense of God.

The Pilgrims had a sense of God as evidenced in their compact which they drew up previous to their landing. It began, "In the name of God, Amen." This was the first formation of civil government that became permanent. Mr. Burnham said, "It is a great thing to have a sense of the place of God in human affairs."

He also spoke of the Pilgrims' consideration for the children's good which led them to remove from Leyden. It was a sorrow to the Pilgrim fathers and mothers to have their children grow up stunted, and they were distressed to have them "drawn away by evil example." There was a loyalty to God in the care for their children. They feared the evil influences of the city. All of which caused the speaker to express the desire that parents in this land of ours have this same sense of God that would cause them to exercise a proper care for their children.

Speaking of the Pilgrim's attitude in relation to the state, he said that while he would not rebuild the state by their plan wholly, any more than he would build ships after the fashion of the Mayflower, still we must build with the same sense of responsibility to God and found it upon morality and justice. "I wish," he said, "modern men were more like the Pilgrims in this respect," permeating our government with the high morality and good will of the gospel of Christ.

Mr. Burnham spoke of the influence of their pastor, John Robinson, who was more liberal than any leader who had preceded him and exerted a great influence over their lives. His parting words were, "God hath yet more light to break forth from His Holy Word." Believing in new light and following the new light were outstanding characteristics of the Pilgrims. Mr. Burnham said that people are proud to trace their ancestry to the Pilgrims. "I cannot on the side of the flesh," he said, but went on to say that it was possible for any one on another and greater side. We can be Pilgrims outwardly. Lincoln could not trace his descent from the Pilgrims but his utterance beginning, "as God gives us to see the light," showed that he was a Pilgrim and had caught their spirit.

In closing Mr. Burnham pled for a sense of God in the nation's affairs, a revitalization of religion for the re-ordering of the world in the Christian way, and a permeation of all our human relationships with faith and fidelity to God.

In a few terse sentences, W. F. Nichols, the next speaker, told of "The Pilgrim's Contribution to Education." He reminded them that one of the first things the Pilgrims always did was to build a school-house. They built only log huts to live in themselves but their school-houses were comparatively comfortable. "While their system of education," he said, is not to be compared with that of today, it was just as satisfactory in that it met the needs of the times." We are fortunate if our schools are turning out such material as did theirs.

Not alone did the Pilgrims influence New England, but they were the pioneers of the West, the founders of great states in the West and Northwest, and carried with them the New England ideals of education. Transplanted to the fertile plains of the West, they grew and advanced so rapidly that in some cases they surpassed the parent stock from which they sprang.

Another point which Mr. Nichols made was that the Pilgrims realized the need of having trained men. As a result Harvard was founded, then Yale, followed by innumerable smaller colleges all over the land. He asked his audience if they realized that Belchertown is in the center of a galaxy of colleges and universities. He went on to enumerate the number of such institutions that could be seen on a perfect day from the summit of Mt. Tom or Mt. Holyoke, and added a list of others that could be seen, were it not for the intervening hills. He cited some twenty centers of education, all near at hand, and closed by stating that the very idea of a university education came from the Pilgrims.

The Pilgrim Tercentenary Hymn, written by Charles Washburn Nichols for a similar service in Minneapolis next Sunday evening, was then read by Mr. Nichols, after which it was sung by the audience.

G. H. B. Green read a paper in which he related many commendable qualities of the Pilgrims. He said in part:

"The Pilgrim Fathers were a hardy, courageous, energetic and stubborn people. Had they not been possessed of these qualities, the sufferings and trials of their first winter at Plymouth, when half of their little band was laid away in the little cemetery on the hill, would have discouraged them so that they would have given up the fight and never have founded the colony which became the germ of the New England states.

Wishing You All

A Merry Christmas and a

Very Happy and Prosperous

New Year

C. F. Aspengren

"We cannot commend in terms too strong, their bulldog stick-to-it-iveness, their persevering industry and unflinching courage. It is this same spirit of industry and perseverance that has made New England what it has been and what it is.

"This spirit has caused tunnels to be bored through the mountains, mighty rivers to be spanned, cables to be laid under the sea and machines to sail through the air.

"Our country's growth is largely due to the sturdy character of the men and women who landed on Plymouth Rock 300 years ago, and by them transmitted, and by their children retransmitted to their descendants until it became a mighty influence which has been manifested all through these years."

Miss M. E. King spoke of the contributions of the north to the south and vice versa. She said that the abolition of slavery was not the greatest result of the Civil war, but that both sections of the country getting the viewpoint of the other was a desirable consequence. In the World war the men of the north and the men of the south fought shoulder to shoulder as only Americans could.

She mentioned the names of prominent men of the north and closed with tributes to Calhoun, Breckenridge and Lee of the south.

Rev. H. P. Rankin, the last speaker, said that as years pass, the virtues of the Pilgrims will reappear. The present disregard of Sunday and the desire for the shallow things of life must give place to a sterner mode of living. The Blue laws of Connecticut have been grossly misrepresented, he said. The Pilgrims are notable in that all the members of their families attended church.

He said further that we must help our young people to decide their course in life as the Pilgrims did, and we must emphasize the fact that they are accountable to God. He said, "May the spirit of the Pilgrims fall upon us and may the ideals which shone so resplendent in them, reappear in our lives."

S. S. Christmas Tree Exercises

It was a merry company that greeted Santa Claus in the M. E. vestry last Friday evening. It was a large company, too, composed of children of the Federated Sunday School and their parents and friends.

The program was exceptionally fine and was flavored with local applications which seemed to meet with a hearty response. At the close, Santa appeared and distributed gifts from the two heavily laden Christmas trees. Just before he went he gave a box of candy to every member of the school.

Then all present were served with cake and cocoa by the committee who did everything in their power to make this Christmas a memorable one.

THE PROGRAM

Quartet, Messrs. Dodge, J. Aldrich,

The Ladder and the Bells

We have torn leaf after leaf from the 1920 calendar till but one remains and its tale of days is almost told. Christmas has come, and on its fleeting footsteps the New Year presses. Tomorrow we take down the old calendar, its story all told, and put up a new one and wish our friends and the whole wide world A Happy New Year.

Yes, we wish the coming year to be a happy one for us all. We hope, friend reader, that your life and ours may be stronger, more unselfish, more useful, sweeter and more worthy, more as life should be.

How pleasant to receive the New Year greetings! The sun shines brighter and the day is fairer for every greeting that comes to us from young or old. New Year is a day of promise, a day of optimism. It seems within the possible "That men may rise on stepping-stones."

Of their dead selves to higher things.
But how rise is the New Year question.

"We have not wings, we cannot soar, But we have feet and we can climb By slow degrees, by more and more."

New Year is a day to set us climbing out of our old ways of life, out of our old, unworthy habits to higher levels of conduct.

"Of our vices we can frame A ladder, if we will but tread Beneath our feet each deed of shame."

New Year's day is a day to start us climbing the ladder round by round, but if we would reach the top,

"Whatever hinders or impedes The action of the nobler will;— All these must first be trampled down Beneath our feet."

The way upward is plain, we must climb, we must cast out of our life the unworthy and we must lay hold upon the worthy. That is the message of the ladder.

There is the message of the New Year bells.
"Ring out the old, ring in the new, Ring, happy bells, across the snow: The year is going, let him go: Ring out the false, ring in the true."

Changing One's Mind

Young people count it a virtue to abide by their decisions. They have little use for the one who is always vacillating.

It may be difficult to say which person is more to be pitied, the one who changes his mind every time the wind blows, or the one who clings stubbornly to his old ideas no matter what happens.

Often times after a man has made up his mind, new evidence is brought in which is found to be reliable, and the man is wise who, under such circumstances, modifies his opinions or abandons his former position.

In the scientific world, men modify their conclusions whenever any new discovery is made. This same principle of honesty should be applied in every realm of human life.

The Ladder and the Bells

Tennyson gives the same message, the same gospel of New Year's day, in his "In Memoriam" that our own Longfellow gave in "The Ladder of St. Augustine." Would we make the future richer, better than our past has been, then we must "Ring in the nobler modes of life, With sweeter manners, purer laws." We must also

"Ring out the want, the care, the sin," and "Ring in the love of truth and right, Ring in the common love of good."

The larger heart, the kinder hand." This the message for you and me, for the individual.

And, O ye nations, who have heard the Christmas chimes and know the Christmas song: "Peace on earth, good will to men," there is a message for you:

"Ring out the thousand years of war, Ring in the thousand years of peace."

Church of the living God, there also is a message for you:

"Ring out the darkness of the land, Ring in the Christ that is to be."

I wish you all a Happy New Year

Death of Charles P. Baggs

TURKEY HILL

Charles P., son of the late Amasa and Anne Alexander Baggs, and a life-long resident of Turkey Hill died at his home Monday afternoon after nearly four years' illness. He was born in October, 1855, in the house where he has since lived.

He was married Mar. 26, 1890, to Miss Martha Hubbard of this town, who with their four children, survives him. The two sons, Robert and Henry, live at home and carry on the farm. Mrs. Roland M. Shaw and Mrs. Maria Dana also live in town. There is one grandson, Raymond Dan, who lives at the home of his grandmother, also two sisters, Mrs. D. F. Shumway of this town and Mrs. Lestella Fuller of Ludlow survive him.

The funeral was held Wednesday afternoon, Rev. C. H. Smith, who married Mr. and Mrs. Baggs, officiating. The sons Robert and Henry Baggs, Roland Shaw and George Phillips of Springfield were the bearers. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

High School Team Wins

W. L. Noel

The Faith A. C. basketball team of Springfield played its first game of the season here last Wednesday night and went down to defeat before the Belchertown High School Athletic Association quintet on the town hall floor by a score of 31 to 29. It was the local team's second win and the game was marked with some fast playing by both sides. The Home City team was led by Bill Sutherland, who played short stop on the Belchertown baseball team last year.

The game opened up with both sides working hard to score first. M. Hazen caught the first basket of the game and was followed up with a long shot by Noel. M. Hazen then dropped in a pretty shot. Coach Starvo opened Springfield's scoring with two baskets in succession. Mardman also connected with the from then for a

Dunbar-Kimball Wedding

Pearle Angelene Dunbar, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dunbar, and William Franklin Kimball, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kimball, were married at the home of the bride's parents at 8 o'clock last Saturday evening.

The ceremony took place beneath an arch of evergreen and hemlock boughs and was performed by Rev. H. P. Rankin, the single ring service being used. The couple were unattended. The house decorations were red and green.

The bride carried a bouquet of twenty bride roses. Her dress was blue satin with overdress of silk emerald bordered net. Her traveling suit was of brown duvet delaine with hat to match.

The couple received many useful gifts, including silver, cut glass, china, pictures and checks.

Mr. Kimball is Post Adjutant of Chauncey D. Walker Post of the American Legion. Both Mr. and Mrs. Kimball graduated from the High school. Mrs. Kimball later attended a commercial school. Both have been in the employ of E. A. Fuller.

After a short wedding trip, the couple will make their home in the Plantiff house on State St.

Watch Night Service

Watch Night services were held at the Federated church last Friday evening. The devotional service with communion was held in the main auditorium from 8 to 9:30. The United Young Peoples' societies had charge of the social hour following. The program preceding the refreshments consisted of vocal solos by Miss Bernice Cook, reading "The Night after Christmas" by Walter Dodge, song by girls' chorus, and a reading by Miss Alice Booth.

The hour from 11 to 12 was the most impressive of the evening and was in charge of the pastor. Several were called upon for remarks appropriate to the occasion. Harold Booth spoke on the need of consecration. He said that this was necessary to make the night safe that

Social Guild Supper

"Cast thy bread upon the waters, and thou shalt find it after many days." So it proved in the case of the men who a few years ago surprised the ladies with a supper free to the fair sex. The men supposed the incident was closed but the eternal law of woman's nature had to fulfill itself and the effort then cast upon the waters returned. It was found, true to fact, "on the waters" for it was a wintery night, and nothing short of a supper would have made one venture out.

The men were happy. How could they be otherwise? From the moment they went to purchase a ticket and the flow of faces of the lady in attendance floated out from under the arch of shimmering green. The men get in free tonight. Here's a complimentary from the ladies. Take a flower, too, till the last game was played, show like a gala occasion it all was.

No matter if the luscious flowers were of paper, there was nothing artificial in the genuine hospitality of the hostesses. Didn't they have it right in black and white, each man carrying it on the lapel to his coat!

"Once on a time the men gave a supper to the ladies, they say. When it cost them only their presence, not even one cent. Now to return this great treat, at last comes the day when to show their appreciation this supper is meant."

And the food came back. Meat pie, something the men would never have attempted, was delivered to the tables decorated with sprigs of evergreen, by the waiters all clad in caps of white adorned with those "freak" flowers. And no cotton batting with sawdust filling, covered with Karo or calad dressing, marred the evening.

The program was different, too. After a solo by Carl Aspengren there were several character representing words of two, three or five syllables as the case might be, which kept the audience from getting bored into that too receptive mood of the club programs.

Rachel Randall sang a solo and there were elections by the young men's quartet consisting of M. Hazen, B. Dunbar, W. Dodge and J. Aldrich. Miss Alice Booth also sang.

Be Punctual!

Begin 1921 by being punctual. Punctuality is a virtue which it is worth while to cultivate.

Many of us are not a bit alarmed because we are always behind hand. It causes us no uneasiness whatever because others are compelled to wait for us.

Every person who is late to a committee meeting should apologize to the other members of the committee for having taken their valuable time.

Sometimes we think we are late because we are so busy. We are mistaken here. The busiest people are generally those who are on time.

Sometimes we think we are late because the hour set is so early. Again we are mistaken. Those who are late at 7.30 are late also at 8.00, and they would be late whatever the hour.

Every person who is dilatory and always straggling in at the last moment should take himself seriously in hand and use urgent measures to be freed from the evil.

coming it is for him to be wronging others by taking their time. Even a confirmed procrastinator can become punctual if he feels sufficiently strong what an evil habit tardiness is, and if he is willing to labor strenuously to rid himself of it.

Social Guild Supper

solos. After the above, the audience turned around and viewed a shadow play, "The Ballad of Mary Jane," staged in the Priscilla parlors. Theodore Hazen was the country lover, Walter Dodge, the father and Lord Mortimer, and Miss Ruth Gilde-meister, Mary Jane.

But the fun was not over with the pictures. The piano was the happy singing ground for everybody, and the spontaneity of it all was exhilarating. Then the company burst into games; men, women and children alike enjoyed the fun.

And while these lines are being writ, members of the masculine sex call up and ask us to express to the ladies their sincere thanks for the way they were entertained.

Had a pleasant night. The pie they ate Had set just right, And so they say With all their might "We thank you."

The End of the Pumpkin?

The pumpkin raised and shipped from the mid-west by Frank Atwood, has yielded to the slaughter of the housewife, in fact many of them, for Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Bishop, to whom it was sent, have generously passed around samples of their big catch to a number of friends who have been anxious to find out if it was as good as it looked.

But whether or not the pumpkin story is at an end, nobody knows, for the seeds, which have been divided around as well, will, no doubt, be placed in the warm earth next spring, and the resulting crop may be of such dimensions that Frank will have to give up his present position, good as it is, to accept a more lucrative one as president of the Mid-East Pumpkin Co.

Miss Nora Sears has returned to her duties at the Capen school of Northampton.

Mrs. E. E. Brooks entertained a party of about twelve in her home in honor of her friend, Miss March.

C. R. Green is out after being confined to his home for a few days. He was threatened with pneumonia.

Town Items

The Republican town committee has organized with the following officers: Fred Walker, chairman; Clayton Green, secretary; Henry Gould, treasurer.

Walter Dodge has been chosen advertising manager of the United Young People's Societies. Although the Park View has been closed for the winter months, G. E. Alderman is trying to make arrangements whereby transients may be provided for at the Park View cottage where he now resides.

That another son of Belchertown has come to a place of honor is evidenced by the fact that George W. Searle has recently been elected the first mayor of Westfield. Mr. Searle was the son of Charles Searle, a miller for many years at the Dor-man mill. The mayor, after he became a resident of Westfield, was a frequent visitor in town as long as his relatives resided here.

Miss Myrtle Campbell has returned from a week's visit in Springfield, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Alden.

Mrs. Eliza Sanford, who has been ill, is slowly recovering.

The Social Guild will meet with Mrs. George Scott next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The announcement of the resignation of Miss Judd as district nurse has caused general regret as she has filled her position in a very acceptable manner.

PROBATE COURT

To all persons interested in the estate of Alonzo Blackmer late of Belchertown in said County, deceased,

WHEREAS, Nettie J. Blackmer, administratrix de bonis non of the estate of said deceased, has presented for allowance the final account of her administration upon the estate of said deceased:

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Northampton in said County of Hampshire, on the first day of February A. D. 1921 at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be allowed.

And said administratrix is ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to all persons interested in the estate, fourteen days at least before said Court, or by publishing the same once in each week for three successive weeks, in the Belchertown Sentinel, a newspaper published in Belchertown, the last publication to be one day, at least, before said Court, and by mailing postpaid a copy thereof to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness WILLIAM G. BASSETT, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-eighth day of December in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty.

Hubbard M. Abbott, Register

Los Angeles, California

Mrs. C. F. DeHazen

There are some hills over there, also the line East Lake Park. Here are large greenhouses where plants are started for the other parks. There is also a zoo where all kinds of animals are kept, and the monkeys draw the crowd. There are mud hens in the lake, picnic grounds, etc. All the parks have many keepers to care for the grounds and animals.

It was in east Los Angeles that I saw the pomegranate. It grows about as large as a quince bush and has a very pretty red blossom. The fruit is as large as a good sized tomato. It has a thick rind, red and white. It is chuck full of little bags of seeds, one in a bag, and in each bag a little red liquid. We have lots of kinds of fruits which are much better.

The fig comes out with a very small blossom right on the bush. There is the black and white fig. You tear it open and it is a little watermelon, white, red and brown seeds. The poinsetta is here, so I found on Christmas cards and boxes when I reached old Belchertown.

The houses in East Los Angeles are largely cottages and bungalows, one story of from four to seven rooms and very pleasant. If there is not room enough, some one can sleep on a porch. The main streets usually have two story dwellings.

Dog catchers are around after the dogs. You hear the clatter of their carts and if there is an unlicensed dog, they hurry it out of sight. If not, the catcher has a net and scoops it in. Then there is a scurrying to the city hall to pay charges and get the pet back home.

The county hospital is near East Lake Park, near the Pasadena car line. This is a large brick block with many outside houses. It is always full. I don't know the conditions under which patients are taken, but I think it is a charity. I have visited it a number of times. Twice a week are visiting days. Many women go as a rule, as well as men, and carry some dainty to the patient and nice flowers.

The consumptive ward is large and more visitors go there as it is not always so you can go in some of the others, or even want to. Now don't any one think if a poor fellow is not well he can get a nice berth there. The Californians don't want anybody unless they are self-supporting. People who are interested look into such cases and if they can, they often send the sick person back home where they know they will be cared for better than in California.

It is not all sunshine; they need shelter and fire, a good deal of it. Eastern folks tell of the people in California sitting out doors in the winter but I never saw many so doing. Either summer or winter they walk, but they do not have shade as we do.

WHY Statistics Are Unsafe Guide to Conclusions

Statistics, though often interesting, are sometimes most misleading and futile. For example, it is interesting to know from the census bureau the number of prison commitments among the foreign-born population of the United States, but it would be most unsafe to base any generalizations upon them, for the number of commitments to prison is no indication of the number of crimes committed, and there are many more criminals at large than behind the bars.

Those in prison were not clever enough to escape. They got caught. Those at large were able to commit their crimes and elude detection.

British statistics show that in only 15 per cent of the indictable offenses that are committed is the perpetrator convicted.

The figures for America are probably not very different. Therefore 85 per cent of the criminals are at large. It is fair to assume that this 85 per cent is more intelligent than the 15 per cent that got caught. Therefore the 15 per cent for which the statistics are given is a highly selected group, and any conclusions based upon such statistics are untrustworthy, as applied to criminals in general, however valuable they may be as to the comparatively small number that are in jail.

CALL INSANITY FIXED ERROR

How Physicians Determine Absence of Normal Mentality Revealed as a Simple Matter.

The sole difference between a sane and an insane man is that the former retains the power of adapting himself to his circumstances, while the latter has lost it.

This is the definition of an English authority who says that as long as a man is able to alter his actions to suit any change in himself or his environment, so long is he mentally normal. A man can effect such alteration either by changing his circumstances, or by changing his own actions.

The madman fails to make the proper adjustments and he does not recognize such failure as an error, but persists in it. Thus, insanity might be defined as permanent error.

Here lies the boundary between mistake and madness: If a man's circumstances change in such a manner as to affect his welfare, this writer goes on to explain, he will, as long as he is sane, alter his action so as to adapt himself to the change.

If the weather becomes cold, he will light a fire, or put on more clothing, or both; and vice versa if the weather turns hot. If his income increases or diminishes, he will increase or diminish his expenditures accordingly. If a new law that affects him is passed, he will alter his conduct so as to conform to it. As his children arrive at an educable age, he will take measures for their education.

Normal action is such as to adjust the relation between the self and the circumstances, either by altering the circumstances, as when we put on more clothes in cold weather; or by altering ourselves, as when we learn a new language on going to a new country; or by altering our action, as when we stop at home and go to bed instead of going to business when we find ourselves suffering from fever.

and Marshman annexed a free try. From then on play was close, and at the end of the first half the home team led by a score of 14 to 11.

In the second half, the Faith A. C. lineup was shifted and Jim Stewart, who had been playing right forward, was taken out and Bill Sutherland, who had played at right back, went in the front line; Norton, a substitute, going in at right back. This half was more exciting than the first, for the Home City team tried hard to win the old game. Although they outscored the local team 18 to 17, the game ended with the High school team leading by two points.

The feature of the game was the basket shooting of H. Hazen and Coorhee Stewart. Although playing at right back, H. Hazen outscored his opponent, getting eight floor baskets and three free tries, while Stewart garnered six double deckers. Lineup:

Belchertown Faith A. C.

A Hymn for the New Year

Help me, dear Lord, to walk with thee.
Where'er in love thou leadest me;
Though rough the path with danger near
May I not hesitate or fear.

Help me, dear Lord, to serve with thee
Where'er the task thou givest me,
Nor seek a life of selfish ease—
Thou didst not come thyself to please.

Help me, dear Lord, each day to be
In heart and will conformed to thee;
O may I in thy likeness grow,
More this new year Thy spirit show.

Town Reports

Work has begun on the reports of the town officers for 1920. The summary of appropriations and balances, which is a part of the report of Town Accountant Shaw, appears in this issue.

A number of commendable features will characterize the book this year. In the first place the minutes of previous meetings are presented in more intelligible fashion. The town clerk's report also gives more definite information regarding the vital statistics of the town. Not only the number of births, marriages and deaths for the year is shown, but all names are explicitly given. This will perhaps satisfy the cravings of those who wish to see more names in the annual report.

The report of the committee on appropriations has been submitted. It may be of interest to know that the total considered necessary for the current year's expenses is $46,700.

We shall, perhaps, make more specific comment on the various reports when the same are in the hands of the voters.

Community Club Notes

The Community club will hold a card party in their rooms on the evening of Jan. 21st.

The club will serve a lunch in the selectmen's room, town meeting day.

Chairman of School Board Resigns

W. F. Nichols, for some years chairman of the school board, has resigned his position, same to take effect tomorrow. In the resignation of Mr. Nichols the town loses a faithful and conscientious public servant in the school department. His years of experience in other places has made his service here of added worth to the community, a fact which is appreciated by those acquainted with his work.

United Young Peoples' Society Notes

At a recent meeting of the United Young Peoples' Societies Walter Dodge was elected publicity officer.

A supper that will surpass anything given in a long time will be served on January 19.

The slogan, "Thirty Youths Before Easter," was adopted and a goal start toward the goal has been made already. Those who wish to join will please send their names to President Theodore Hazen of the C. E., or to President Harold Booth of the E. L. before Easter.

Lodge Installation

Vernon Lodge of Masons will hold a special meeting next Tuesday evening for the installation of officers. Masons, Stars and their families are invited to attend.

Anent John Barley-corn

John Barleycorn was banished from the United States as an undesirable citizen. His friends still bewail his departure and curse the edict of banishment. That neither he nor his friends would take his banishment with good grace was to be expected. Yet John is not dead, we should remember, only banished. But it is good to have the edict of banishment. It is good not to have John's pernicious business being carried on openly and legally in the land. It is good to realize that the gilded saloons are

The Method

It is not enough to speak the right word; it must be spoken in the proper spirit with the proper accent.

It is not enough to do a certain deed; it all depends upon the manner in which it is done.

It is not enough to give. When a man gives grudgingly the recipient oftentimes would feel better without the gift.

It is not enough to do one's duty; the power depends upon the way in which it is done.

It is the spirit which matters. With what spirit do you attend the musical or the play? What is your attitude as you listen to an address?

It is something, of course, to do a task when we dislike to do it. It is to a person's credit to give out of a sense of duty.

not in the old places, tempting the weak with their old sights and smells. It is good to know that a great nation no longer protects a business that is so productive of suffering, poverty, shame, crime and wrecked manhood.

But we know that John will try to get back, that he and his friends will leave no stone unturned in their endeavors to have the decree of banishment revoked, that they will leave no deception untried that might cheat the public in their favor.

We know, too, that John and his friends will evade the laws that interfere with their business, once so lucrative and do their best, and worst also, to discredit those laws and will make every possible effort to get booze to the thirsty.

This country is bounded on the north by a "wet" country and on the south by another "wet" country.

"Moonshine" is no new thing for John and his friends to have a hand in, and that is going on. Have you thought how much pleased John and his friends would be if they felt no urgency to run the risk of making moonshine?

But O John, John, what miserable stuff you are making moonshine off! Have you no concern for those who were your customers in the palmy days of license?

Don't get discouraged, "dry" friends, over the situation. It is what in kind was to be expected, only we were hardly prepared to think that wood alcohol and other deadly mixtures would be offered by John and his agents so freely or be accepted by booze lovers so eagerly.

ly. The smugglers and moonshiners and boot-leggers will have their day. Don't get discouraged, "dry" friends, over the situation. Hold fast to your prohibition faith and watch out.

Yes, watch, for there is a persistent and crafty propaganda going on in favor of John's return and a persistent effort is being made to discredit the 18th amendment and to defeat its enforcement.

What is troubling the enemies of prohibition is not its failures but its enforcements. There the law stands, glory be, written into the constitution of the land; that is the root of bitterness to them. It can be broken but don't let that faze you.

What a hullabaloo John and his friends are making about liberty, their liberty to make, buy, sell and drink intoxicating liquors! O yes, John, liberty is a very sacred thing, "Give us liberty or give us death," was the old patriots' cry.

Don't get discouraged, "dry" friends, over the situation. It is what in kind was to be expected, only we were hardly prepared to think that wood alcohol and other deadly mixtures would be offered by John and his agents so freely or be accepted by booze lovers so eagerly.

noise. And shall we be utterly confounded because John and his friendly press proclaim the failure of prohibition? I have just read in my morning paper another editorial about "the manifest failure" of prohibition. But why are the enemies of prohibition bothered so by prohibition if it is the failure they assest it is.

Is the law a failure, John, just because you or some one else can break it and does break it? Then is the law against theft and murder, then is all law, a failure.

Yes, prohibition has its enemies, bitter ones, secret ones, open ones, but, glory be, it has friends, and it is up to us who are its friends to hold fast our faith and in the face of its enemies, as an old hymn says, "Put a cheerful courage on."

Vernon Lodge Installs

Vernon Lodge, F. & A. M., installed its officers for 1921 at a special meeting on Tuesday evening. Wor. A. L. Langton of Indian Orchard was the installing officer.

A large number was present at this annual event, about seventy sitting down to the supper which was a part of the evening's program. Guests were present from Indian Orchard.

The 1921 list of officers is as follows: Alfred L. Squires, W. M.; James H. Robinson, S. W.; F. Dudley Walker, J. W.; Myron G. Ward, treasurer; Harry A. Hopkins, secretary; E. A. Rudd Fairchild, chaplain; Fred D. Walker, marshal; Alvan R. Lewis, S. D.; Roy G. Shaw, J. D.; Emory E. Grayson, S. S.; Edward L. Schmidt, J. S.; C. Milton Baggs, I. S.; Wm. Orlando, Tyler; board of trustees, Edw. L. Schmidt, 3 years, Geo. B. Jackson, 2 years; M. G. Ward, 1 year; proxy to Grand Lodge, Robert E. Dillon; auditing committee, R. E. Fairchild, M. S. Barton, Roswell Allen; relief committee, M. S. Barton, M. G. Ward, H. H. Ward, Wm. Orlando, D. C. Nutting; associate member board of Masonic relief, Alvan R. Lewis.

A special meeting has been called for next Thursday evening to work the First degree.

Grange Notes

In spite of the severe cold on Tuesday evening there was a good attendance at the Roll call of Union Grange, No. 64, and the responses for the Good of the Order as each name was called, showed that both old and young had given the matter careful thought and it is hoped in the next few months to carry out most of the ideas. Our aim this year is to have a Bigger, Better Grange. Watch the "Dates Spoken For" for announcements of coming events.

Mrs. Anna M. Ward, Sec'y.

Registration Notes

Registration dates are as follows: Saturday, So. Belchertown from 4.30 to 7.30 p. m.; Saturday, Jan. 29, town hall, from 12 m. to 10 p. m.

F. E. Austin takes the place of F. F. Dewey on the board of registrars.

A Great Day Ahead

By even a casual reading of the town warrant as published in this issue, it is evident that town meeting this year will be an interesting occasion. No one can accuse Belchertown of being a town without aspirations. It has become a town by the side of the road and has seen enough of the outside world to know what other towns are up to and what modern conveniences have come into vogue.

No longer does it care to satisfy itself with a four-in-hand to draw its road scraper when tractors are so popular; no longer does it care to have its fire alarms rung from the steeple of the village church when a real whistle is what Johnnie has; no longer does it care to build carts to suit its roads, when roads should suit the cart; no longer does it want to live on the farm, for it seriously considers selling out the old place and moving into more comfortable quarters.

We like to think of what Belchertown would be in 1921 if all its aspirations were realized. What a glorious thing it would be to have a whistle, and we would heartily vote for one, but when all the whistles are bargained for on Feb. 7, Johnnie is not liable to be a happy boy when he goes home at night.

For it will be late when he goes home—28 articles to consider—and he is liable to have long, long thoughts. The process of elimination is going to be a tedious one. Who does not want a new room at the school building in which to furnish a more complete education, who does not want good roads running in every direction, who, even, does not want a public dump, but more than one article, we fear, will land on the junk pile, and that, may be, through no fault of its own.

We all want life's walk to be easy, but it cannot be made easy all in one year. Our fathers lived a rugged life and their reputation has survived, so ours does not absolutely depend upon our having a path of roses. We cannot expect to have all we want any more than they did, but we want to march in the right direction as did they. We want to safeguard life and property—some of the articles do; we want to provide for our children a well rounded equipment for life—some of the ar-

The Feast

The Methodist Vestry was the scene of merry feasting on Wednesday evening. A great number of young people made up a large part of the hungry crowd.

The beef was cooked to the tenderest degree and the salads disappeared like hot cakes. They really looked too good to eat but everyone overlooked the decorations and took liberal helpings. But altho everything was good, the last course took the prize. Apple pie, made by expert hands, was covered with a handsome scoopful of delicious ice cream. No one refused to eat his share.

One of the older men complained that everything he ate went right to his stomach, but this was thought to be due to natural causes.

The supper was digested with "a barrel of laughter administered between breaths as often as possible."

Mrs. Elmira Pease (Miss Violet Page) received Eben's cousin, Algonon Augustus Arthur Smith (Harold Booth) from New York and proceeded to show him the pictures in her "Family Album." The pictures looked very real and one of them even withdrew from its frame. This concluded the program.

A social hour followed in which everyone enjoyed himself. And everyone went home, satisfied that the United Young People's Society is not entirely out of it when it comes to serving an up-to-date feast.

The boys of the Y. P. S. C. E. and E. L. are showing a spirit of "pep" which they believe is either dead or dormant among the girls. They believe in letting people know that they are alive and to that end have issued the following challenge: "Resolved: that we, the boys of the Y. P. S. C. E. and E. L. will prove that we have more 'pep' than the girls of this society, by outnumbering them at the front seats of the church on Sunday morning, January 23, and will outsing the said girls at that time and place." This, however, is not only for the members of the society, but all of the young people are invited to sit near the front. Great interest is being shown in the outcome of this challenge and it is expected that the church will be filled. W. D.

A Great Day Ahead

(continued from page 1) supreme importance. We take no issue with the rest. We like to blow bubbles, even though we know some of them will burst, but we have an idea that just enough will endure to make us want to blow a few more next year. But of course we must remember that on town meeting day, as before stated, the time is going to be short and it behooves those who get the privilege of holding the clay pipe of democratic public speech to blow strong and hard and then let the other fellow have a chance if he wishes it. It might be wise to have an agreement among the children as to how long each may blow, and it must be remembered that sister should be given a chance to dispense with a little of her energy, for of course she rides with the voters of other days over those miserable roads and knows where all the bumps are.

The Annual Reports

The town reports were issued last Saturday. They have been distributed amongst the voters who have called for them at the stores where they have been left by the town clerk, who is seeing to it that each voter gets a copy, either in this manner or direct through the mail. A larger number than usual was printed this year in order that all registered voters, both men and women, may have a copy.

For the benefit of the large number of our out of town subscribers who will not be entitled to a copy, we devote some space this week to what the book contains.

Pages 3 to 9 record the minutes of the annual town meeting held Feb. 2, and the special meeting held July 6. The two pages following contain a list of the appointive officers for 1920. Then comes the report of the assessors showing a total valuation, real and personal, of $ 1,173,870, as compared with $ 1,137,290 of the year before.

The town clerk's report, which covers 5 pages, gives in detail the vital statistics of the town. There were 34 births, 23 marriages and 30 deaths during 1920.

Pages 19, 20 and 21 show the funds held in trust by the town for the perpetual care of cemetery lots. The total amount is now $6,181.57.

The treasurer's report shows total receipts amounting to $ 108,487.66, with expenditures of $103,326.07, and a balance due Dec. 31, 1920, of $ 5,161.59.

The report of Miss Helen Judd, the public health nurse, shows that there were 63 patients and 171 nursing visits in consequence. As regards the schools, she speaks of 64 children having enlarged tonsils. She wishes that some way might be found to put in a water supply in each of the schools that "habits of personal cleanliness be promoted and encouraged." She would like warm drink served as well, and welcomes suggestions regarding both propositions.

The collector's report reveals the fact that he has collected $2,600 in poll taxes and $35,412.72 in property taxes, and has a balance to collect of $5,588.54. The report of the scaler of weights and measures (continued on page 2)

Death of Frank M. Willson

Frank Morgan Willson, son of Samuel Willson and Eliza Aldrich Willson, died at his home on No. Main street early yesterday morning. Mr. Willson was born in Belchertown, Dec. 20, 1852. He married Miss Maggie Barrett who survives him. He also leaves a son, Samuel S. K. Willson, who is ill in the home, and two sisters, Mrs. E. S. Alvord and Mrs. Max Wagner of Easthampton.

The funeral will be held at Dwight chapel Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

Discuss Town Reports

The Board of Trade will hold a meeting next Monday evening in their rooms at 8 o'clock for the annual discussion of the town reports. Some of the town officers will be present to make explanations, but, of course, not in an official capacity. The Board of Trade holds the meeting to help make clear any misunderstood report. Matters like these can never be made too clear, and sometimes it is necessary to iterate and reiterate a very simple matter before it seems to be made understandable. Women are invited to be present at the meeting this year and to participate in the discussion.

Death of Mrs. Martha A. Capen

TURKEY HILL

Mrs. Martha Ann Capen died Tuesday night about midnight in the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. J. Archambault, from illness which was the result of a paralytic shock sustained several years ago. She has been confined to her bed for over three years.

She was born Mar. 26, 1832, in Northbridge, the daughter of Jefferson and Abigail (Eastman) White, and came to this town with her parents when a young girl. She was married to George Capen, a blacksmith, Dec. 31, 1849, in Belchertown, and passed all of her married life on the farm known as the Capen farm in the Chestnut Hill district (continued on page 2)

Blunders Through Ignorance

We are continually blundering and stumbling because we have not slain the Apollyon of ignorance.

A big topic is under discussion. We are silent because we are not informed.

And when we do speak, we speak from partial knowledge only. We have viewed the matter from one side thoroughly, but because we have neglected to take any view from the other five sides, we cannot speak with power.

And again, we oftentimes speak, not from facts, but from surmises. We are sometimes not a bit anxious to learn the facts; we prefer to speak from prejudice or hearsay.

Knowledge drives out ignorance. Knowledge drives away darkness and brings in a flood of light.

B. H. S. Notes

In and Out of the Classroom

The sun shines brightly at the noon hour, we all admit, but beside that brilliant Sophomore French class it looks like a ten-cent diamond.

If Mitchell doesn't stop telling secrets during French class, we shall have to tell him he is impolite.

The Sophomore reading list has been put up, and when the Sophs saw it, they uttered low moans of anguish.

The Juniors are rehearsing for their play. We hear that it is going to be a masterpiece.

Evidently the barbers in the nearby towns do not give hair-ribbons with hair-outs any more. How about it, Brown?

Of course we know that all the girls just adore a uniform. Why not wear the coat, also?

Eventually—Why Not Now

A great deal of interest is being shown by the young people, the students, and even by the older people of Belchertown, in regard to a skating rink.

It has been suggested that the common be utilized for this purpose. It is thought that the common could be flooded and a small rink formed without much banking.

shows receipts of $20.52.

The Appropriations committee calls for sums for next year amounting to $46,700, about $9,500 more than was asked for last year. $1,400 is asked for to secure the services of a nurse, and $100 for the "town clock".

Then comes the report of the town accountant. This occupies 15 pages and is a presentation of the town's finances in every conceivable form.

On pages 47 and 48 are to be found the Warden's report recording receipts of $3,791.73, paid out by Warden $224.08 and $3,567.65 turned into the treasury.

The Overseers of the Poor report, immediately following, shows that 23 persons outside the almshouse were aided during the past year and 18 came under the Mothers' Aid law.

The Selectmen speak of their taking charge of the highway on the resignation of E. C. Witt to take charge of work on the state road.

The attendances officer notes the fact he has attended to "quite a number of absentees from school."

The school committee, in their report give a budget of expenses amounting to $25,290 and a list of estimated receipts from the state of $11,486.

$4,140 now being paid for transportation too much and recommend the purchase of an auto truck to be added to the town farm equipment.

After a list of the teachers, school calendar, and various statistics, Supt. Lewis gives his report. He laments the 1,051 cases of tardiness, 730 of which were in the Center schools.

Principal Allen of the High school commends the work of scholars who devote their evenings to study, and looks with some displeasure on the modern tendency to put social events before health and industry.

Mrs. Clough, the Supervisor of music, notes progress in her department and speaks of new song books being used in several schools.

The financial report which closes the school section records receipts of $24,388.75 and expenditures of a like amount, less the balance of $110.92.

The book of 80 pages concludes with the warrant for the annual meeting upon which hinges the good or ill of the coming days.

PROOF OF SAGACITY OF RATS

How Rodents Handle Eggs, for Instance, Shows They Possess Ability to Reason.

A careful student of the rodent tribe writes: "No single point better illustrates the sagacity of the rat than the way in which it eats an egg. It bites through the shell and chips off small fragments as neatly as a squirrel opens a nut, consumes the entire contents without spilling a drop and then sits up and licks itself clean like a cat.

Why Writer Opposes Display.

The great things of the world—men, or women, or mountains, or ideas—are simple, declares Angelo Patri in New Red Cross Magazine.

"The founders of America were simple folk. They landed on a rock that became the corner stone of a great nation. They gave it a simple name—Plymouth Rock. Their dress was very plain.

"Too many things, too many plans, choke up our lives. You know people who are so busy taking care of their things that they have no time to live. Some folks do not know at the end of the day whether the sky was blue or gray.

For the grange meeting on February 1st, the entertainment will be given by the members who joined Union grange in 1920. Mrs. Lillian Kimball is chairman.

United Young Peoples' Society Notes

The result of the boys' challenge last week proved that the girls are the ones who have the most "pep" after all. Over forty young people filled the front seats of the church last Sunday morning, the girls having the larger number.

At a business meeting of the United Young Peoples' society on Sunday evening it was voted to continue the contest until Easter. In order that an accurate record be kept of the attendance each Sunday, Walter Dodge and Miss Mary Howard were appointed to keep a record of the names of those present on their respective sides. Mr. Rankin has volunteered to give a supper to the society as a reward for faithfulness—it being agreed that the losers pay for their supper and the proceeds be given to some good cause.

It is earnestly hoped that each side will do its best and that each member will feel a personal responsibility for the outcome. In doing this we will be keeping our pledges. M. H.

Life Without Its Battles

What life would be without its battles was illustrated last Tuesday night at the Republican caucus, when no extra candidates were served up by the Republican town committee and no "dark horses" went on to the track when the various classes were announced.

There were no irreconcilables, no bitter enders, "no nothing" to make things exciting. Not once did the large assembly of men and women file by the ballot box. The clerk was simply instructed to "cast one vote."

How disappointing it all was, was evidenced by the remark one made afterwards: "I came up tonight to have some fun," but he went home without it. The fun didn't start till the next morning when everybody was having an argument about the meeting.

Never mind! Flies, potato bugs and moths will soon be here and we can all sail in and have a good time.

Death of Mrs. Mary R. Blackmer

Word has been received of the sudden death on Wednesday of Mrs. Mary R. Blackmer, while in the home of her niece, Mrs. Jason Johnson of Pittsfield, where she has been spending the winter. She had been ill only a few days and was anticipating her return to her home here.

Death of Samuel K. Willson

Samuel K. Willson, 34, died early Saturday morning in the Springfield hospital where he was taken the night previous. His death follows closely that of his father who died last Thursday. The funeral of the latter was to have been held on Saturday, but was postponed until Monday when services were held for both in Dwight chapel, as the family were for some years residents of Dwight.

Samuel Willson was a graduate of the High school and has since been engaged in horticultural work.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. H. P. Rankin, and Mrs. H. A. Hopkins and Mrs. H. F. Peck sang. Burial was in Union cemetery.

Belchertown Wins in Canning

Under this heading the current number of the Farm Bureau Monthly informs its readers that Alice Randall of this town has won first prize in canning in this county, and Cassie Sullivan of Bondsville second. These honors entitle the former to a trip to camp next summer and the latter to one of Dickens' books.

We congratulate these young people on winning the only two prizes in competition with 125 others in the county last summer and take pleasure in quoting further from the Monthly.

"This is Alice's fourth year in the canning club. She has been a faithful club member not only in canning, but also home economics, calf, corn, and pig clubs. Two years ago she was second prize winner in sewing.

"Cassie was in club work for the first this year. She was in the home economics club last winter and won 2nd place in the county. This was her first year in the canning club. We feel that she is showing the right spirit and all look for a county champion in her some day."

It will also interest our subscribers to know that a handicraft club is being formed in the Blue Meadow school with the teacher, Miss Lucy Bowler, and Mrs. Dwight Randall as supervisors. They attended a meeting of county leaders at M. A. C. last Saturday.

Discuss Town Topics

There was a lively discussion of town affairs at the Board of Trade meeting Monday night. Representatives of the fair sex were present and seemed to be edified thereby.

Views were presented from several angles and the meeting was in no sense held to further a single line of action. The financial condition of the town ($12,000 to the good and January bills paid) was noted, a big step in advance of the situation a few years ago when the town was surviving on a hand-to-mouth policy and paying notes by the wholesale. The town officers present hoped that this surplus would not be tampered with but augmented, so that eventually the town can do business wholly on its own resources.

Much satisfaction was expressed for the services of the district nurse, Miss Judd, but a feeling of curiosity was expressed at the rumor that the Red Cross car might not be available next year, especially as a "friend" of Belchertown made valuable concessions when it was bought. It is understood that Granby would like (continued on page 3)

"Annual Report" of Committee of One

Every plan or vision which is worth while requires sacrifice, sometimes the sacrifice of life itself. Washington and his brave followers had a vision of a free and independent country, and for the securing of this vision they offered all they had. Are you and I doing our best to keep the ideal which they won for us at such cost?

The children are the hope of the future, or they are its menace. If they are taught at home to be faithful, honest, hard-working members of the family, if they are taught at school to be useful, loyal members of that body, then they will be good, useful, loyal citizens of this nation.

Among the things which a child should be taught is that cleanliness is essential. But how can that lesson be impressed in a school where there is no running water? Many children bring their lunches to school. They rub their hands over-dirty (continued on page 2)

Grange Notes

The meeting of Union Grange on Tuesday evening was well attended and the program rendered by the members who joined in 1920, with Mrs. Lillian Kimball chairman, was one of the best given in a long time.

The Program: Musical selection, Miss Irene Vezina; reading, "Guessing contest," Fred Tyrrell; violin solo with piano accompaniment, Harold Kimball and Mrs. Harold Peck; reading, Wilfred Noel; reading, Mrs. Geo. Davis; song, Misses Gay, Riley, Kimball, Orlando, Story and Vezina; reading, Edgar Shumway; song, male quartet, Messrs. Lewis, Allen, Peck and H. Kimball; selection on autoharp, Mrs. Geo. Davis; song, boys' chorus, W. Dodge, J. Aldrich, H. Blackmer and T. Hazen; song, "Solo," Miss Gladys Gay.

There is much enthusiasm shown in the Grange at the present time and all are uniting to help carry out the motto, "Bigger, Better, Grange."

On Feb. 22 the Ladies' Auxiliary will serve a supper in Grange hall; details next week.

Mrs. Anna M. Ward, Sec'y.

Supper and Entertainment

The Social Guild served one of its delectable suppers in the chapel Wednesday evening. The attendance was large but the ladies had planned in large fashion and were fully equal to the occasion.

The principal feature of the evening's entertainment was the play, "Circumstances Alter Cases." The cast was as follows:

Adelina Miss Elsie Slattuck
Ellen Miss Edith Towne
Mary Mrs. Louise Sherman
Susie Miss Ruby Knight

The different parts were well interpreted and were greatly enjoyed by all present.

Other features of the evening's program included several selections by the girls' chorus, a reading by Miss King and violin solos by Mrs. Gildemeister, all of which were most favorably received. Games completed the evening's enjoyment.

Suicide

It is as unwise for a town to commit suicide as it is for the individual. Not to adopt certain articles in the warrant next Monday would be suicide. To fail to provide a fire alarm whistle, and thus to safeguard property to the limit of our ability would be negligent. To let slip the opportunity of getting the state's money for our highways would be a crime.

To think that a nurse in Belchertown is a luxury is to invite destruction to what is really Belchertown—the people and not the landscape. And to put off the problem of meeting the needs of the Center schools is to put off a more perilous day. We commend the article in this issue by "I 2 U" and hope the school authorities will come forward with a definite proposition, otherwise the town will attempt to commit suicide by an indefinite postponement."

The question of granting licenses for the sale of "certain non-intoxicating beverages" smells of fire water of increasing strength that will cause suicide to a Commonwealth that gets to tampering with law and order. The Supreme Court of Massachusetts is testing the constitutionality of this proposition because of the complaint that it is in defiance of Federal law.

Whatever we do about the luxuries of life town meeting day, let us not be so foolish as to commit suicide on some of our bread and butter problems that concern the preservation of human life, personal property and public morals.

B. H. S. Notes

If the Sophomores would only spend more time studying Algebra and less time writing notes, the teachers would be very much relieved and it would also lessen the town's expense for paper in the coming year.

Some Seniors still refuse to believe that water may be soaked up by capillary action unless they see it done by actual experiment. Bracey is an exception to the general rule.

Mr. Allen, in science class: "Why is pith in a tree like a dog's tail?"
Young hopeful: "Because it's farthest from the bark."

When the pupils in B. H. S. read the notes in the Sentinel, some of them seemed to be angry. These notes are written in the spirit of fun and they are expected to be read in the same manner. If some one finds something in it about himself, the only thing to do is to write an article that gives back as good as was given.

We noticed that Bardwell was very happy when he read the paper and found nothing in it about him. Never mind, Watson, "the worst is yet to come."

One thing a soldier has that a high school boy has not—highly polished shoes. We suggest "Rising Sun" stove polish.

The freshmen have been having science exams and from the marks that Mr. Allen places upon their errorless papers, we are sure that to find the future valedictorian in that class would be like searching for a needle in a haystack.

A cloud has descended over the sunny high school for Mr. Allen has tacked up the declamation list.

If the Juniors would be more sedate in their English class, possibly the teacher and class would have more leisure minutes after school.

The girls of the high school need not think that they have been forgotten for we are going to say a few things about them; one is that they giggle and exchange knowing glances a great deal; another is that Mr. Allen thinks they play a very poor game of checkers. Just ask Miss Vezina about the checkers.

Mrs. Clough has introduced four new songs to the musically inclined pupils of B. H. S. The grave and dignified seniors tell us that they are the prettiest they have heard for a long time. We agree with them.

Henry McKillop has been very ill and we are all very glad to see his smiling face again in our midst.

Wants Larger Appropriation

The local moth superintendent wishes to call the attention of every voter of the town to the danger to our fruit and shade trees and to our forests by the coming of the Gypsy Moths. Over 100 nests were found in this town last fall by the government inspectors.

The Appropriation Committee appointed by the town is asking only $20 for moth suppression the coming year. Can it be that the said committee knows what the Gypsies are? However, the committee fail to realize the gravity of the situation caused by the coming of the Gypsies. If they had seen the devastation caused by this moth to all varieties of tree life in the central and eastern parts of the state this last summer, as the writer did, they would have asked for a much larger sum to help fight this impending pest.

Your local moth superintendent does most earnestly urge the voters of our town to make such an appropriation at the town meeting as will help meet the situation.

Everett C. Howard
Local Moth Supt.

"Annual Report"

desks, handle books which countless grimy little hands have handled and after they have covered their hands with dirt and germs, they must eat without washing these germs off.

In the center school building of over two hundred pupils there is only one dressing room. What is more, this one dressing room is used for at least half the time as a class room. No matter how hurt a child is, there is no place to take him, no conveniences to wash and dress the cut or hurt. If a child is ill, he must stay in the class room all day or go home, which in many cases means a walk of several miles.

Then, too, the building is crowded. In the primary room there are eleven more pupils than there is room for. Of course they are crowded in, and certain classes recite in the dressing room, but these conditions are hardly conducive to the best results. Every other room has as many pupils at present as it can take care of. Yet the superintendent in his report says that there are forty pupils to enter the High school next year. That means there will be thirty more than this year. What is to be done with them?

Some of these things are perhaps of minor importance, but altogether, the lack of water, only one dressing room and this used as a class room, pupils of all ages in one building, and the overcrowdedness, all make for conditions under which the pupil is not getting the best. To remedy these things would take thought and money. But surely, the welfare of the children is worth every sacrifice we can make.

One remedy would be to build a Community hall. The town hall will probably be too small with the increased number of voters. Let the new hall be used for a town hall and High school with room for the suggested commercial department. This would relieve the congestion and the old school building could be used for the grades with suitable dressing rooms.

Let's give the boys and girls a building which they will consider an honor to use, and the citizens of Belchertown a town hall of which they may be proud.

to come in again with this town in hiring another nurse.

The town accountant stated that more money would be required next year for the fire department and for unclassified expenses. The proposed fire whistle was discussed, Chief Shaw stating that a siren, operated by electricity, could be had for a cost of $350, installed. This would be located at the telephone office and thus an instantaneous alarm given. An illustration of the need of a whistle was demonstrated last Saturday night when central was informed of the fire several minutes before the fire department could be secured or the bell rung. Difficulty was had in getting into the church and not only did the ringer have difficulty in ringing the code, but the rope broke in the process. It was pointed out that nothing really serious happened in consequence, but such might have been the case.

Figures were given at the meeting showing that the town has profited some $5,000 on the Enfield state road, thanks in great measure being due to E. C. Witt. The town also profited under the management of E. F. Shumway. The total expense of the road from the center has been over $40,000.

The sentiment of the meeting was end of the park, a committee consisting of M. A. Morse, G. C. Allen, Jr., and G. E. Scott, was appointed to see what could be done. With coasting barred, it was thought that something should be done for the young people.

The meeting was favorable to paying the Three Rivers fire department for services at the McLean fire and thought that it would be desirable to have an arrangement with nearby towns and cities for help in case of need.

Not to raise $4,400 to get $3,000 from the state for roads was thought to be unwise.

A tractor was discussed pro and con. Some thought that the day of the road scraper was passing and that with increased auto traffic, putting gravel on the roads was the only sensible thing. A loading device for loading gravel was thought to be more desirable than a tractor.

The bridge between Belchertown and Ware was not thought to be an absolute necessity, but some dissatisfaction was expressed with the present structure.

Time forbud all the articles being considered, and the meeting closed with roads the chief topic of discussion. Articles regarding them were considered desirable, but that awful tax rate of $40 to $50 was a nightmare to all present.

The goal of "Thirty Youths Before Easter," which was set by the Young Peoples' societies, has been passed and the goal set at fifty.

THE CONTEST PROGRESSES
The contest between the boys and girls of the two societies is at its height. The attendance at church and Sunday school has greatly increased in number. The front seats are filled to overflowing with enthu-

Will you come next Sunday morning and fill a vacant seat?

THE EVENING MEETINGS
On last Sunday evening a man whose presence at the society meetings is almost always certain, made this startling remark: "I have never seen so many young people of these societies in the service before." Doesn't that sound encouraging? Although the weather was very unfavorable, nearly all of one side of the vestry was taken by young people.

Special music was rendered by La Quartette d' Harmonie, and a girls' chorus.

The members of the societies are asked to be present at the meeting on Sunday evening to plan for a sleigh ride and decide the "how's, when's and where's" about it.

Dies in Peoria

Delia L. Woods Cowles, widow of Judge W. W. Cowles, died January twenty-ninth in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Fred H. Camp of Peoria, Illinois.

In early life she gave her heart to Christ and through twenty years of invalidism and suffering her faith and patience never wavered. She never murmured, and to the dear ones who so lovingly ministered to her she gave evidence of sincere gratitude.

Mrs. Cowles was born in Belchertown, Nov. 28, 1834, the daughter of George B. and Susan Holland Woods. She was educated in the Belchertown schools and Leicester Academy. In 1854 she married William W. Cowles. In 1875 they went to Brimfield, Illinois, where they resided until 1885. Then they removed to Broken Bow, Nebraska, returning to Illinois in 1909 to make their home with Mrs. Camp where, in 1914, Judge Cowles died.

Mrs. Cowles is survived by three daughters, five grandchildren and one brother, Henry A. Woods, who was one of the chief engineers of the Grand Trunk Pacific R. R.

A Women's Auxiliary?

Shall we organize a women's auxiliary unit to the American Legion in Belchertown? All mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of American Legion members, also corresponding relatives of all men who died in action during the late war, or in line of duty while in the service, are eligible to join a women's auxiliary unit. In most every city and town the women are organizing these auxiliaries, so why shouldn't you?

The Executive Committee of the Chauncey D. Walker Post 239 will be pleased to meet all women who are interested in forming an auxiliary in this town, Wednesday evening, Feb. 16th, in the Legion Post room in the E. A. Fuller block, at 7.30 o'clock to discuss and give all information needed in organizing a women's auxiliary.

The Town Meeting

Like some express trains the town meeting this year is having to be run in two sections. Time did not suffice to finish the articles and the meeting adjourned until next Monday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

In no other respect was the meeting fast. At every cross road precious steam was wasted in stopping to notify the inhabitants that the roads were "awful," that "graft" characterized the actions of the people and that about half of the population were trying to nicely "feather their own nests."

And reconsideration, wise or unwise, characterized the meeting. Let one go out of the hall, with a smile on his face in the knowledge that all had gone his way, and he could return in five minutes and meet his opponent coming out with a similar expression. The article had been reconsidered. Even the motion regarding the time of the meeting next week was reconsidered and the hour set at 1 p. m. instead of at 10 a. m.

The meeting started out with a legal tangle. The moderator had been studying the law and found that the Overseers of the Poor and Tree Warden should now be chosen by ballot instead of by nomination, but as no provision had been made on the same, the meeting decided to live up to the warrant and have its action ratified by the legislature.

All the reports were accepted with the exception of the selectmen's, where some saw graft. One of the citizens declared it a bad precedent for the town fathers to personally fill all vacancies and draw double salaries, even though such was within their legal rights. He had reference to their taking over the care of the highways.

Article 5 was quickly dispensed with, the town voting to give the library the dog fund. The town also voted to pay the Three Rivers fire department $55 for services at the McLean fire.

When it came to the roads things began to clog, and mud went every which way. Some thought it was sheer foolishness to appropriate $4,400 to get $3,000 from the state, considering the poor results, and the meeting at first voted against the

Opening Game

The Belchertown Independents will have their opening game of the season next Wednesday night with the Springfield Trolleyman. The Independents were defeated by them in Mitteneague the first of the season by a large score. They are coming seventy-five strong with supper at the church followed by a game and dancing at the Park View.

It will depend on the crowd whether the team plays the rest of the season. Lineup for Belchertown will be Davis, Grayson, Story, Austin, Parent, Spencer, and Lent of M. A. C.

Death of Mrs. Lorain Hurlburt

Mrs. Lorain Hurlburt, 84, died at her home in Mill Valley on Sunday after an illness of several months. She was born in Underhill, Vt., and married Prosper Hurlburt who died 34 years ago. Mrs. Hurlburt has lived here for a number of years.

She leaves nine children, Mrs. Emma Clifford of Turkey Hill, Mrs. Geo. Marshall of Barre, Mrs. Beulah Peck of Hubbardston, Mrs. Wm. Collard of Spencer, G. W. Hurlburt of Palmer, Burt Hurlburt of Ludlow, Mrs. Robt. Gilbert of Atlantic City, Mrs. Laura Peck of Bangor, Wis., and Ernest Hurlburt of New Haven. There are also numerous grandchildren.

The funeral was held from the home Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock, Rev. Jones of Palmer, officiating. Burial was in the South cemetery.

Make Appointments

The selectmen have organized with R. E. Fairchild, chairman, and H. H. Ward, clerk, and have made the following appointments:

Fence viewers, A. J. Rowe, Wm. Sullivan, Henry McKillop.
Field drivers, D. C. Nutting, Geo. R. Davis, R. L. Weston, D. C. Randall, H. F. Putnam, E. F. Flaherty.

Sealer of Weights and Measures, C. F. Austin.

Public Weighers, R. E. Fairchild, Wm. Kimball, Jr., D. D. Hazen, Frank S. Morris, A. E. Warner, R. E. Chamberlain, E. A. Fuller, P. J. Brown.

WASHINGTON PARTY

The Y. P. S. C. E. and E. L. will give a Washington party on the evening of Feb. 18. George and Martha will greet the guests at the door while other historical people serve in different ways.

Everyone will have a chance to fill up with some of George's birthday cake which will be plentiful.

The admission will be in proportion to the person's age. It will be ten cents for the first year and one cent for every succeeding year, not to exceed 35 cents. We suggest that if you don't wish to tell your age, just have 35 cents anyway and we'll be satisfied. A fine entertainment will follow the supper.

We hope the public will show more "pep" and turn out to a good thing like this.

THE CONTEST

The contest is progressing with the same enthusiasm with which it was started. We will publish the score next week. Be sure to look it up.

Twenty-four young people joined the Epworth League last Sunday night.

Town Items

At the Ware town meeting on Monday, $2,400 was raised for half the expense of an iron bridge at West Ware. This was conditional on this town raising a like sum.

The evening service at the Federated church will be a Lincoln service. There will be readings, recitations and special music with Mrs. Gildemeister as violin accompanist. The young people are asked to meet in the vestry at 6 o'clock to rehearse the musical selections.

Mrs. J. J. Fairchild is in the House of Providence hospital, Holyoke, suffering from paralysis.

B. H. S. Notes

The school kept only for a half session on Monday in order to allow the teachers to vote. When the pupils of the high school tried to get into the town meeting, a gentleman armed with a stick drove them from the door. They had been told to go and get points on parliamentary rules. Why couldn't they attend the meeting as well as some people from out of town?

Fitzgerald said once that he wouldn't quit growing until he had grown another foot, but the rest of us think that he will not make a very good tripod.

The basketball team journeyed to Springfield Thursday night to bring back the scalp of the Faith A. C. team which they defeated some time ago. Watch for the outcome!!

Hereafter, committee meetings, social gossip, and brass bands will be barred from the Economics class room.

A Birthday Party Feb. 18

There will be a birthday party at Vestry hall to which you're invited, one and all.

The admission therein—ten cents we'll ask,

And one cent more for each year you've passed.

George Washington will meet you at the door,

And of old time friends there'll be many more.

A supper will be served of baked beans fine,

An entertainment then will follow in line.

Now come one, come all, and if you've lived to many years

You can hand us thirty-five—we won't shed any tears.

If you want to make us happy, don't leave us in the lurch

But meet us Friday night at the M. E. church.

On Thursday evening about a dozen of the women of Turkey Hill, accompanied by their husbands and friends to the number of 26, invaded the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Shumway.

They had gotten together a purse of money contributed by every woman in the two districts to show their appreciation of Mr. Shumway's efforts in trying to obtain the missing link between the Holyoke state road and the Ludlow state road ending at the town line near the residence of Alden Bros. proposition, only to reconsider and vote for it.

The three separate road propositions—the Bondsville road, Three Rivers road and Turkey Hill roads all were voted upon favorably. "You kill my road and I'll kill yours" was the logic of the situation and it evidently worked. When the matter of the Turkey Hill road was brought up, it was disclosed that the people living on the road and in the district had subscribed $1,250 a year for 3 years to help out the proposition. The Three Rivers road will get $1,000 any way, whether the state contributes or not, the meeting overruling a decision of the moderator as to how the article could be constructed. $500 was raised to improve the road on Walnut Street. The article regarding the purchase of a tractor was tabled. The motion to pay small bills for gravel, etc., on the Enfield state road was carried.

The hiring of a nurse caused some excitement. The town refused to raise $1,600 and secure her services for full time but did raise $1,400, which with $200 to be raised by Granby, will make the required amount. Some wanted the town to put in running water at the center school instead of hiring a nurse this year, thinking both could not be afforded. One man said that our schools were breeding places for disease while another ventured that they weren't sanitary enough to keep thorough-bred heifers in. Women participated in the discussion of this article.

The matter of having the streets oiled the coming year was laid on table. The salaries of town officers for the year were definitely specified in connection with the appropriations for the various departments due to the insistence that the town do its business in business-like fashion.

The town voted to sell its poor farm, in spite of some opposition to the effect that the boarding of a certain type of inmate would cost money, that a lock-up and tramp house are still necessary, and that funerals would cost more without a town warden and a free hearse. The other side despaired of longer waiting for the day when the town farm would pay. A committee consisting of M. A. Morse, Roswell Allen and Edgar E. Sargent was appointed to sell at the most advantageous time and to serve the town without pay. This committee has the power to sell and convey when a majority of its members and a majority of the selectmen so agree.

expense, besides soliciting contributions to the amount of $1,200 for each of the next three years, from the residents who would be most directly benefited by this road. The evening was spent in playing games and cards, and refreshments were served.

At a word from the leader, Mrs. Hurlburt, the ladies all passed to the parlor where Mr. Shumway was led by a "friend in need" and each lady passed in front of him contributing an envelope containing a bill or a bit of good advice, while those musically inclined sang a parody on "Good-night, Ladies," written by Mrs. Hurlburt. Mr. Shumway responded with a short talk in regard to the proposed road and mentioned the statement of one of the state officials to the effect that it is doubtful whether there is another community in the state which would pledge as much as this one has.

Grange Notes

In spite of sleigh rides (?) and bad walking Grange hall was the scene of a goodly gathering on Tuesday evening and all felt amply repaid by the interesting meeting. A fine program, in charge of Mrs. Cora Burnett, chairman, was rendered as follows:

Names Special Committee

As authorized by the adjourned town meeting on Monday, Geo. H. B. Green, the moderator, has named the following to serve on the committee to look into the matter of improved school facilities: A. F. Bardwell, W. F. Nichols, Mrs. J. W. Hurlburt, Rev. C. G. Burnham and J. V. Cook.

Belchertown Five Defeated

W. L. Noel

Manager Milton Wood of the Belchertown High School Athletic Association basket ball team, accompanied by the following players: Capt. Theodore Hazen, Harold Hazen, Wilfrid Noel, Walter Dodge, James Aldrich and several "rooters" motored to Springfield last Thursday night and played a return game with the Faith A. C. quintet of the Home City on the Y. M. C. A. college floor. The local team failed to bring back the scalp of the Home City five, for they were defeated by a score of 33 to 16. The game was played under amateur rules, which proved to be a great handicap for the local five who have always played under semi-pro rules. Although many fouls were called, especially on the local team, there were no fights of any kind, for all the players came out of the game in first class condition.

The game was close and interesting for the first five minutes of the opening half until Coochee Stewart of the Faith A. C. took a pass from Fabyon and dropped in the first floor basket of the game. The local players tied the score at 2 all when Wilfrid Noel caged a long shot from the center of the hall. The referee then began calling fouls on the local players, the first one on Red Wood for a double dribble, but Coochee Stewart missed the free try. A foul was called on Capt. Theodore Hazen for a double dribble. Coochee again missed the free try. The referee then spotted Noel of the local team standing on the foul line and called a foul on him, but Coochee missed his third attempt and "twas lucky he was missing 'em."

Adjourned Town Meeting

The adjourned town meeting was held in the town hall Monday afternoon, and was largely attended by the voters. The articles carried over for action were sufficiently numerous and interesting to warrant the attendance, and the afternoon barely sufficed for the transaction of the necessary business.

Action was first called for under article 6 which was only partially disposed of a week ago. An appropriation for the poor was the first item up. The meeting tried to get off by simply allowing this department $1,000 instead of the $3,000 recommended by the appropriations committee, but on the assertion of the town fathers that these bills must be met anyway, the voters meekly voted the larger amount.

The state aid requirement of $1,000 and the schools of $25,000 were carried without a murmur, but the matter of raising money for the town clock caused some discussion. At first it was moved and seconded that action be postponed, but like many another article of the afternoon, the voters grasped the poor little lamb just as he was disappearing from sight in the bottomless pit. They did want to drop him in, but there was usually some one to suggest mercy and at his suggestion the majority were equally tickled to pull him out.

The selectmen called upon Mr. Jensen, a local clock authority, to state the result of his examination of the clock. He said that it was by no means worn out and that it could be repaired for something over a hundred dollars. He also said that the clock room should be kept locked to make sure that the mechanism be not further tampered with. Others suggested that an expert be consulted, and still others that the firm that put the clock in be asked to inspect it. The discussion showed that many had missed the friend of other days. $150 was at last raised and appropriated for the clock department with no strings attached.

$1,000 was designated to the insurance account, $250 to the unclassified department, and $100 to the Farm Bureau with little debate. Peter Hanfin was elected a director

Lincoln Service

A service in memory of Abraham Lincoln was held in the M. E. church last Sunday evening. There was special music by a large chorus of young people who were accompanied by Mrs. Gildemeister on the violin. A poem about Lincoln, written by Guy C. Allen, was read by Mrs. Guy C. Allen, Jr. The author later made remarks.

He said that he was cutting wood on the old farm along with his father on the day that Lincoln died, and well remembered the look of grief on his father's face when a neighbor appeared and informed them of the death of the beloved president. "The axe did not ring again in the woods that day," so Mr. Allen said. He went on to pay a tribute to the man whom the North "honored" and the South "never distrusted."

The Battle Hymn of the Republic was sung by Mrs. Gildemeister, and Theodore Hazen read Lincoln's favorite poem, "Oh why should the spirit of mortal be proud."

The service closed with remarks by Rev. H. P. Rankin. He told of Lincoln's boyhood days, his struggle for an education, his keen sense of humor, his great love of country, and his dogged persistence once his course of action had been thought out.

Girl Scout Valentine Party

The home of Miss Ruth Aldrich was the scene of a jolly Girl Scout Valentine party Monday evening. Between thirty-five and forty presented themselves for a good time. The rooms were decorated with hearts which were strung from corner to corner. The lamps had heart-shaped shades. Everywhere were Valentine decorations.

All kinds of games were enjoyed. Half a heart was passed to each person. On these were old proverbs, half of the saying on one side and half on the other. These were matched up, and you had your partner for "wink." While this game was being played in one room, a set or two of dominos was going on in the next room, while those who cared more for music were singing around the piano. Almost everybody en-

The consolation prize was a very small valentine in a very large package.

After "tucker" came refreshments which everyone enjoyed. Sandwiches, cotton, cake and ice cream were served. Then a basket of hearts was passed. You pulled a little red one, and at the end of the red twine was a larger white one. When these were heated, you could read your fortune. More music, and then everyone departed.

Town Items

J. J. Fairchild and G. B. Jackson have returned from Florida where they have spent the past few months.

Miss Bernice Cook of Boston spent a few days at her home in town this week.

Mrs. M. A. Morse is ill at her home.

Mrs. William Shaw, who was taken to Wesson Memorial hospital last week for an operation, is in a comfortable condition.

The Social Guild will meet with Mrs. Hattie Taylor next Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.

Mrs. A. H. Bartlett was in a slightly more comfortable condition yesterday.

The Community club will meet next Wednesday evening, Feb. 23, in the club rooms.

Mrs. John D. Shuttlesworth has returned from a visit with relatives in Providence and Auburn, Rhode Island.

Edward Snyder of Springfield is spending a few days in town.

B. H. S. Notes

Miss Kennedy says that if they do build a new high school, the floors ought to be made of soft wood. Why? Ask her.

The Seniors are going to have their pictures taken. "Smile your prettiest."

The high school chorus has begun work with about thirty freshman members. Freshmen naturally feel proud to sit beside those big Sophomores.

I wonder if Irene V. would tell us who has the best fountain pen in the school?

Why does T. Hazen try to take off his rubbers when he hasn't any on? Is he absent-minded or in love?

Having listened to the girls' singing in the morning, we would like to say that they are all on the road to becoming prima donnas.

The favorite pastime of the freshmen and Sophomores is to write spelling words on the boards.

Bardwell says that we can't say anything about his Latin class. How about Fitz's new language?

Junior girls' favorite occupation:—Admiring new pencils.

Memories

As I sit here, gazing out of the window across the serene fields and hazy mountains, and hear the wind raging and shrieking in baffled anger as his attempts to sweep this place off the map meet with no success,—as I sit here in a gloomy and melancholy state of mind, there comes a vision of that hateful wood-box and wood-pile to further torture my troubled spirit.

I can picture in my mind a cosy little farm, the house surrounded by shrubbery, a well-cared-for lawn, everything suggestive of prosperity and contentment. But there is one thing outside to mar the beauty of this place, and one thing inside to destroy the harmony of the kitchen. The first is a large wood-pile; the other, a wood-box of seemingly limitless capacity. How I used to dread, when a boy, to saw wood and bring it in. Perhaps I had no greater amount to "buck up" than the average country lad, but it always seemed so to me.

When it came to the task of getting it in, I would carefully gather it up in small armfuls and march proudly into the house, carrying a small armful at a time in order to make a greater impression on the family. I knew to a stick exactly how much it took to fill the box, and I sawed that much and no more. Imagine my distress when I came into the kitchen with my wood to see that

Mother had taken out half a dozen sticks for the fire, and to hear the folks warn me sarcastically not to bring in so much at once. Those were the times when I felt like rebelling against long-established paternal rules, and saying or doing some rash thing for which I might be sorry later.

When my mind is thus occupied with memories, unpleasant and galling, I am thankful that I live in a steam-heated house, many miles from that wood-pile and the yawning wood-box.

Adjourned Town Meeting

of the Bureau.

The meeting voted $125 for the use of the American Legion on Memorial day. It was disclosed that the boys last year had to "dig into their own pockets" to the extent of fifty dollars in order to pay their bills, and the voters were only too glad to make a larger appropriation this year.

Cemeteries came next on the list. After some criticism that extra money provided last year had not yielded the desired results in the painting and repairing of fences, the meeting went so far as to second a motion for postponement, only to await a resurrection a moment later. "New blood" and $250 was thought to make a good combination for next year, and at that the matter was dropped.

$200 was then voted for interest and $1,000 to the reserve fund.

The matter of oiling the streets was then taken from the table and $150 was appropriated with the proviso that abutters pay as heretofore and that unless the work can be done for the designated amount, nothing be done about it and no assessment made.

A safe for the tax collector was found to be required by law and $50 was voted for this purpose.

Silence reigned when the article regarding a fire alarm whistle was brought up, and it came near being carried out dead but somebody with a breath of life in him, "let 'er go," and after the shrieking was over the clerk had chalked down $350 for this affair which an opponent said could probably be heard in Florida.

The town voted to authorize the borrowing of money in anticipation of taxes and also chose an appropriation committee consisting of E. C. Witt, E. R. Peeso and James Moriarty. One man thought it would be highly desirable that this committee be on hand at the meeting next year and give the whys and the wherefores of its conclusions.

Nothing was voted for constructing an iron bridge at West Ware. Many adverse comments were made at the way the bridge had been patched up. "A two-deck affair with a 45 degree rise to get to it" was the mental picture drawn by those who had seen it. The possibility of the flooding of Enfield and the probability of the Federal road passing that way necessitating special bridge requirements, kept the voters from designating at this time any money for the purpose specified. Some one did suggest that suitable railings could be made on the present structure to safeguard teams using the same.

The town voted to indefinitely postpone action on buying a truck for the transportation of school children. Evidently the possibility of selling the town farm put the whole matter "in the air".

Two street lights, one near the home of C. W. Morse and one near E. C. Howard's, will be installed as a result of the town's raising and appropriating $40.

After some discussion as to perpetual care funds, it was finally decided to accept $50 as the minimum amount to be given the town for the care of cemetery lots. It was also voted that the cemetery commissioners report annually and that the amounts available and expended on each fund be printed in the town reports.

A committee of three was elected to name some of the streets and roads in Belchertown and $100 was appropriated for signs. Any changes in names of streets are to be subject to ratification by the town at its next annual meeting. This article came near faring the fate of others but the moderator took the floor and proclaimed it a civic and patriotic duty to name some of its streets after some of its World War heroes. It was stated that several suggestions have been received as to names. The committee named were Myron G. Ward, Mrs. E. C. Howard and W. M. Goodell.

M. A. Morse, chairman of the Old Home day committee, submitted a verbal report as to the inactivity of his committee and it was accepted. Lack of interest was his reason for not having the day observed.

A public dump was authorized and $15 placed at the disposal of the selectmen.

Discussion on the article relative to adding a commercial department at the High school showed that the leaven of a new school building is working. A building crowded to the limit with pupils of all ages was deemed far from satisfactory and no one ventured an opposite opinion. A new building somewhere, somehow, sometime, was the conviction of those present, and those who eloquently voiced them were vociferously applauded. In order that something might be done about it, it was "voted that a committee of five, with power to increase the number, take up the matter of improved school facilities, giving public hearings and making a report of their findings at the earliest expedient date, the committee to be appointed by the moderator and announced later."

Under the article which permits the transaction of "any other business", an effort was made to rescind the vote of a week ago whereby the town voted to authorize the selling of the town farm. The fact that property is "looking up" as a result of the state school coming here was given as the reason for reversing the vote. Several spoke pro and con, but the motion did not prevail, due, no doubt, to the fact that it was suggested as unwise for a smaller house this week to undo the action of last week's crowded one.

Under the last article it was also moved and carried that the town officials itemize their accounts in submitting their reports each year. The moderator ruled that this vote was not binding but was simply an expression of opinion.

At 5.22 the meeting closed. The most serious interruption was the fire at Turkey Hill which, of course, depleted the audience for a while, but many of these took the trouble to come back, for, after all is said and done, a town meeting is rather exciting, usually there is plenty of fire, and nobody seems to care if one or two do get scorched.

The local players now began to get used to the new rules, but the Springfield team opened up and piled on eleven points on five floor goals and one free try and held the high school team to three points for the rest of the period, the points being made on "H" Hazen's floor basket and free try. The half ended with the local five trailing by a score of 13 to 5.

Both teams shifted their lineup for the second half. For the Faith A. C., Fabyon and Norton were taken out and J. Stewart and Froiland were sent in at left forward and left back respectively. For the local quintet, Jim Aldrich was sent in at right back in place of Noel who took Bob Dodge's place at right forward. Although the local five scored more points in the second half, they could not overtake the lead of the Home City team.

Coochee Stewart, whose fine basket shooting and floor work featured for the Faith A. C., scored seven times from the floor. His eye was off on shooting free tries for he only annexed one out of eight attempts. Fabyon also starred at left forward in the first half, while Bill Sutherland, well-known in this town, played a nice blocking game. For the local team, "H" Hazen and Noel played a good game. Hazen had four baskets and three free tries to his credit, while Noel's two long shots were features of the game.

The Expected Storm

When Belchertown awoke on Sunday morning it found itself in the midst of a blizzard of sizable proportions. Weather prophets had predicted it, the sun dog of Saturday morning foretold it and the citizens who have fretted under the exceptional weather of the past few weeks have known all along that it couldn't last and have not been afraid to say so.

So the expected happened and those who have just returned from Florida because Belchertown could really beat it for perpetual sunshine thought they had got into a lemon grove instead of an orange one.

Dame Nature was still at her task of dashing the ground with white when the church bells rang and only a few ventured out to the morning service which was held in spite of the inclement weather.

Now and then an auto would grind its way through the streets, but the one-horse open sleigh was coming to its own.

Sunday night saw little let-up to the storm, but on Monday morning the sun shone clear. The condition of the streets, however, did not warrant the opening of the schools, so that a full holiday was declared.

Meanwhile things have gotten back to normal, but the young people can still have a real sleighride if they wish to.

Grange Supper

All was life and merriment at the grange hall on Tuesday evening. In spite of the deep snow and threatening weather they came in large and small parties until the committee in charge began to look doubtful, but ample provision had been made and even the last to come were as well served as the first.

Two sleighride parties, one from Ludlow grange and the other the Amherst Clerks' Association, helped to add to the good cheer.

Following the supper was vocal music and a farce. Dancing and cards kept all stirring until the midnight hour.

The supper was in charge of the auxiliary committee, who extend thanks to all who helped to make it a success.

Observance of Sunday

There is so much being said concerning the return of the old Puritan Sunday that we would like to state a few facts.

Fact No. 1 is that there is no national Sunday bill before Congress, and that there is no national Sunday bill proposed.

Fact No. 2 is that the Lord's Day Alliance has sent word to the press that the rumor that they are setting on foot a movement towards legislation which will do away with Sunday newspapers and stop the running of Sunday trains and bring back the old "blue laws" of Connecticut, is false.

Fact No. 3 is that on the 30th day of December there was a meeting of ministers in Marble Collegiate church of New York City, at which eight of their number were appointed to write up a statement regarding the whole matter. The eight selected were the most prominent clergymen in New York City, men like Dr. S. Parkes Cadman. This the committee did, but no New York City paper has published the statement.

With these facts in mind we should place no credence upon the statements that have gotten abroad that there is a likelihood of a return of a Sabbath day when one will be put in jail if he kisses his wife on Sunday morning. No one need fear that, unless he rises up in rebellion, the old "blue laws" of Connecticut are likely to be in force again. As far as that is concerned, the "blue laws" are largely a creature of the imagination. If anyone will take pains to investigate carefully he will discover that the laws in Connecticut were not as ridiculous as they are made to appear.

We venture to say that the danger at the present time is not a return to the old Puritan Sabbath, but to make it more and more a holiday.
What Sunday legislation we have is not the creation of religious fanatics or frenzied bigots, but of sober-minded statesmen. These laws are on our statute books because these men know what happens to a nation when Sunday is not elevated above the other days of the week. They would save us from going on the rocks, as other nations have done who have disregarded the day. Our Sunday laws are just as important as laws against murder and adultery and stealing.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

Announcement

Mr. Edsel B. Ford, President of the Ford Motor Company, gives out the following statement:

"The price of the FORDSON Tractor has been reduced from $790.00 to $625.00, effective immediately.
"This price change has been made possible through lower costs of materials and the fact that we are now located in our new Tractor Plant with greatly increased economic manufacturing facilities in immediate connection with our foundry and machine shops and large blast furnaces where iron is poured directly from the ore, giving us maximum efficiency with the power to reduce cost of production, and down comes the price in line with our policy to market our products at the lowest possible figure without in any way affecting our high standard of quality.

"We are particularly pleased in being able to bring about this big reduction in price at this time because the farmer needs all the help we can give him and this big cut in price will be the means of placing a valuable power unit within the reach of practically every one of them, not to mention industrial and commercial concerns which likewise have benefited through its use and are already realizing, to a much greater extent, its value as a power and hauling unit. But particularly has the FORDSON Tractor proved a most valuable factor in the saving of farm labor, at the same time increasing the per-acre crop yield as well as making possible a utilization of previously uncultivated land, to say nothing of removing no end of drudgery.

"There is no question that the use of machine power on the farm is the greatest advancement made in the development of agriculture, not only in money saving and money making results, as well as raising the standard of living on the farm to a much higher level, but because of its proved value in making every type of land more productive, and consequently our desire to place the FORDSON within the reach of all.

"THERE IS NO CHANGE IN THE PRESENT FORD CAR AND TRUCK PRICES, which are already at the lowest possible figure and now with rock bottom reached on the tractor price a further reduction in price of either the Car, Truck or Tractor is out of the question; in fact, the big price cuts have been made in anticipation of continuous maximum production and increases may be necessary before long if a large volume of new business is not obtained. Therefore present prices of Ford products cannot be guaranteed against possible increases."

Ask for the book "The Fordson at Work," which will be supplied free of cost. Let us demonstrate the value of the Fordson on your farm, in your factory, lumber yard, coal yard, or in any general hauling or power work you have to do and let us have your order for a Fordson.

The Way They Used To Do

It has come to my notice the way dances and so forth are got through with in our town, and the difference between the present time and thirty or forty years ago. In those times we boys earned from fifty to seventy-five cents a day and board. If there was to be a dance and we cared to be decent and respectful, we either took our own team or hired one and drove from two to eight or ten miles to get a girl partner. Consequently with dancing at two dollars per couple, supper fifty cents a plate, expense of team and all amounted to not less than five dollars. We called it cheap, though, for we had a fine time.

But how is it now? If a girl goes to a dance, she has to pay her own way and you get the privilege of dancing with her for nothing, (oh, my noble boys!), to say nothing of basket ball games, sleigh rides (in an auto truck. Oh, how the bells did jingle!), and so forth.

Now boys, what's the matter? Hasn't old Belchertown any girls to suit you, or is your sand all sawdust? Wake up and show respect and a chivalrous spirit for the fair and weaker sex. If you should ever run for public office, how do you expect to get their vote unless you are good to them now. My father used to tell me that it was better to spend my money on some good girls than to spend it in the bar room and pool rooms, and I think he was right. Certainly the girls never did me any harm and I have found out since that the latter have done me no good.

Now boys, take this for what it is worth, from an old "has been".

Brought Here For Burial

The body of Andrew Converse was brought here from East Saugus, Saturday and placed in the receiving vault. The burial in the family lot will take place later.

Mr. Converse, who was a Civil war veteran, was the son-in-law of the late Mrs. S. J. Atwood, having married Miss Susan Atwood.

He is survived by his widow and two daughters, Mrs. J. J. Ayers of Somerville and Mrs. Lewis Hobbs of East Saugus, all of whom with Mr. L. Hobbs and Mr. John Hallowell of Spencer were here for the committal.

Mrs. Joseph Comas of Pawtucket, R. I., and Mrs. Lewis McLaughlin of Stafford Springs, Ct., were also here and remained for the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Bishop.

To Utilize Community Hall

The school committee has planned to temporarily relieve the congestion at the Center school by housing the first and second grades in the basement of Community hall. The room to be occupied is the one once used by B. L. Thrasher as a tin shop. This will be put in condition for use so that the change can be brought about a week from Monday. Desks will be moved in from some of the outlying schools that have been closed.

Social Guild Supper

Although people have been "suppered" almost to the breaking point of late, still there were many who would not miss a Social Guild supper for anything, and they were present on Wednesday evening. Everyone was served with painstaking attention.

The birthday table, especially provided for the pastor, Rev. H. P. Rankin, and the president of the Guild, Mrs. G. E. Scott, was a happy spot. Others whose lucky star fell in March were also seated at this table. A fine birthday cake and appropriate favors in the nature of dolls cleverly constructed of clothes pin spines, egg shell heads, and paper dresses, were special benefits bestowed.

The only entertainment was that provided by Thomas Allen who auctioned off the surplus food to willing purchasers. The movies one by one drawn the crowd away.

Community Club Notes

Prof. W. E. Philbrick of M. A. C. will give a lecture with reflectoscope pictures on beautifying the home grounds and town next Tuesday evening, March 8, at 8 p. m. in Community League hall, under the auspices of the Community club.

The public is cordially invited to enjoy the benefit and good to be derived therefrom.

The concert to be given next Friday under the auspices of the club will be held in the Congregational church. The exceptionally fine program will be found on page 3. Admission 50 cents, children 25 cents.

Thinks We Are Scared

The Ware River News came out last week with the following comment on Belchertown's attitude towards a new bridge at West Ware.

"What's the use of building anything? It won't be long before Boston will get this whole section for its water supply, so we might as well save our money."

"That most dangerous doctrine is getting too many supporters in the towns hereabouts. So far it has not appeared in Ware, but it has in Enfield, Prescott, Greenwich and Belchertown.

"It develops that the reason Belchertown is unwilling to share with Ware the expense of a new bridge over the Swift river on the Ware-Belchertown boundary is because some Belchertown people think the Boston water scheme will soon make it unnecessary and some others think the state will build the bridge eventually, as part of the proposed state highway from West Brookfield to Northampton.

"In at least three of the town meetings in Hampshire county lately, this idea of saving on public expense because of the Boston water threat, bobbed up and had its effect.

"However, Ware doesn't agree to that doctrine, and Belchertown may have to do something about the bridge anyway. The Ware authorities feel that the bridge is dangerous, that both towns are liable to get into trouble over it, and so the Ware attitude now is to take the matter up with the county commissioners and see what can be done."

Special Committee Organizes

The special committee having under consideration the matter of improved school facilities, met last Friday afternoon and organized with A. F. Bardwell chairman, and W. F. Nichols, clerk.

The general situation was gone over and a plan of action mapped out. So far, three propositions have been put forth as possible solutions; the first would involve the enlargement of the present building, the second would call for a new building for the High school and the present structure to be utilized by the lower grades; while the third would call for a new building to care for all.

The special committee has conferred with the school committee regarding the matter, and will confer with other groups at later dates. An opportunity will be given for the fullest possible expression of opinion. The committee is also getting ideas from the state educational authorities, which may help it in its work.

While this subject is under consideration, we shall be glad to give publicity to any plans our readers may have to offer. No doubt those who have attended the B. H. S. in the "good old days" will be interested in this matter of improved school facilities and will like to participate in the discussion.

Big Game Coming

If there is any such thing as forecasting a great game of basket ball, everything points to such a one next Friday night. The Ware Legion team has been induced to meet the Independents, although it took the biggest guarantee ever offered locally to turn the trick.

The lineup will be:
Belchertown Ware Legion
Austin Jackson, rf Story Connolly, lf
Em. Grayson "Jimmie", Connor, c
Davis Dunbar, rb Grayson Rohan, lb
Lent, sub. O'Connr, sub.

The Ware lineup includes stars from Easthampton and elsewhere. Everybody knows what the Belchertown men are good for. The manager says, "The team is hired for the 11th of March and we don't want no fooling!"

A Word to the Wise

A word to the wise is sufficient, and perhaps two or three words are enough for those not quite as thoughtful.

We have it on good authority that the lecture which the Community club ladies have secured for next Tuesday evening is worth while. It will convey a vital message to the community and we ought not to be careless of the opportunity it affords.

Belchertown contributes to the expenses of the Farm Bureau with which Prof. Philbrick is connected and therefore the people ought to be on hand to get their money's worth, if for no other reason.

The Farm Bureau has always wanted to make love to us but sometimes we've been a bit cool. Let's warm up a little next week.

The Interest in Disarmament

Never was there such a universal demand for disarmament as there is at present. It was not long ago when the popular cry was Preparedness and there was a regret on the part of a vast host that America was so poorly prepared. The press, almost in its entirety, could be depended upon to advocate a marked increase in guns and battleships, and to plead for bigger armies and bigger navies. The pacifists, who argued that the piling up of armaments was provocative of war, were ridiculed.

But now a change has come over humanity. And even the press are now declaring that to bristle one's lawn with cannon is the surest way to provoke enmity with one's neighbor, and that for each man to arm himself with a knife is a sure sign that blood sooner or later will be shed.

At last we are getting sensible. But it took a good deal to awaken us from our stupidity. When we awake to the fact that 90% of our taxes go toward the payment of wars, past, present and future, and only 1% for education and public health, then we begin to think and say that armaments must be reduced to a minimum, and an international police force to keep the peace of the world is all that is needed.

Even those who do not believe in the Versailles League are saying this. Senator Borah, a bitter-ender, is joining his voice with the rest.

It is being advocated not simply here but in Europe. It was the chief matter under consideration at the first meeting of the League of Nations. The great statesmen of the world have taken a sudden interest in disarmament and are declaring that the surest way to bring another war is to arm to the limit. Let America lead in the disarmament.

Los Angeles, California

Mrs. C. F. D. Hazen

We will come back to the Eleyan Park hill. The road, Buena Vista, runs east of it, and east of the road is a very steep bank. Down along at the foot are many R. R. tracks with much parking of freight cars and several trains of cars are running, the Santa Fe for Chicago, S. Pacific.

After we pass the park, there is a handsome cement wall on the west of the street. After a little we commence to come to the homes but they are on the bank as the hill has not all worn away. This seems like an old street. You notice the name is Spanish. The Garvanza car runs to Garvanza near Highland park; and it's named for a bean.

Soon we come to an old Spanish graveyard which they were trying to get rid of as fast as they could. You see I am writing of things as they were, not as they are, though I expect there has been no great change.

As we go on, we see the stacks of lots of oil wells. These and some on West First street are all I know of. There are houses after a little on the east side of the street. One place had a nice magnolia tree. The blossom is pure white and as large as a tea saucer. The reason I mention them is to show that they are not very plenty.

I think there are old adobe houses on this street, made of cobble stones and covered with adobe which is the mud they have there. It dries and is very hard. These were the first houses they had. They were sometimes whitewashed.

Very soon we arrive at the Plaza church, the old Spanish Catholic church. Opposite is the plaza. It is quite pretty. There are two rubber trees at the entrance. The man in charge trimmed them and the papers made a great ado; it would take a great while to grow them again, but I dare say they are very large now. In the center is a large water tank full of gold fish. You usually see many Mexican and Spanish men here and maybe an Indian or more, as it is opposite the church.

Now we are in the city. There is much below, China Town for one thing. I am sure I don't feel very well acquainted up here, but if we go on, we soon come into the business part of the city. A million dollar post office is way up here. Men were determined to have it up here and gave the ground. Further on we come to the $900,000 court house and the court of records. If you are anxious to see a Belchertown woman, I think you will find her in one of these buildings; and she is Mrs. Carrie Sanford. Over near here is the jail. You will see a dozen or more policemen walk into the street every morning, two by two. The Times building is somewhere near and it is a very business part of the city.

"Carry Me Back"

Paraphrased to suit the returned refugees from Florida.

Carry us back to Old Marse Chussets,

There's where the onions and the real potatoes grow,

There's where the gals sing so sweet in the springtime,

There's where we two-uns' hearts do long to go;

Here where we labor so hard for de money

Day after day in the field of yellow fruit,

No place on earth do we hate more sincerely

Than this blamed country, the state where we've took root.

Carry me back to old Marse Chussets,

There let us live till we wither and deay;

Too long this old dismal place we have wandered,

Here where we two-uns' forms would pass away;

Letters and missives have long gone before us,

Nothing is left here but our skin and our bones;

There we'll be happy and free from all sorrow—

Don't catch us again ever leaving our homes.

"I couldn't resist the call of the service, so I am back in uniform once more and wintering in Sunny California, close to the haunts of Mack Sennett's Bathing Beauties. We have at our disposal all the joys and pleasures of California's famous beaches, such as Long Beach, Ocean Beach and the noted beach at Coronado with its great tent city in summer. - Dormitory building 98,000
- Cottages for employees 30,000
- Road building and grading 10,000
- $ 271,000

Community Club Concert

The concert to be given in the Congregational church tonight under the auspices of the Community club affords a rare opportunity for the townspeople to hear something superior in music. Our own Mrs. Gildemeister needs no recommendation and much is expected of her sister, Mrs. Regal, and the others on the program who are associated with them in musical circles. Mr. Maurice Brown, the baritone, will take the place of Miss Margaret Regal, who is unable to be present.

The club has planned for some time for this musical, and is deserving of a fine patronage.

Community Club
Notes

The dance Mar. 28, the date for which has been "spoken for" by the club, will given be by the American Legion in cooperation with the Community club. The proceeds will go to the Legion.

Grange Notes

The regular meeting of Union Grange on Tuesday evening, Mar. 1, was very well attended and all joined in making it interesting.

The topic for the evening, "The Evolution of Transportation," was ably handled. G. H. B. Greengave interesting data regarding transportation in the past. In the absence of Mrs. Ida Hurlburt, who was to have told of its present, several members gave readings, and a paper by William F. Kimball, telling of its future was read by Walter Dodge, as Mr. Kimball was kept at home through illness. Music and a social hour followed.

All are looking forward to the surprise program on Mar. 15. All applications for membership for admission in April must be in at the next meeting.

The master desires all officers to be present at the next meeting and be prepared for a rehearsal of de-gree work.

The Town Beautiful

Those who attended the lecture in Community hall Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Community club must have gotten a glimpse of what Belchertown might look like if a little thought and labor was put into the matter of beautifying our surroundings.

Prof. Philbrick of the M. A. C. and connected with the Farm Bureau, was the lecturer, and by word and picture told the story of how town planning helps a community to grow so that it will become a spot increasingly dear to all who visit it. A summary of what he had to say follows.

Whether we like it or not, the rural neighborhood needs to be improved. We need bigger crops, better prices, better houses, better farms, better libraries, better schools and better churches. There must come changes on the physical side, just as one needs a strong body to have a strong mind.

The average American has an infinite belief in property. The air, the sky, the schools, belong to us. The church and even the cemetery are common property.

In this matter of town planning we need to do in a right way instead of a wrong way what must be done anyway. Four things are necessary to bring satisfactory results:

1. Inside interest
2. Outside advice
3. Time
4. Money

No enterprise of this kind can succeed without inside interest. It is essential that in every community there should be a leader (either a person or an organization) to go ahead in the matter of town planning.

When work is begun, it is soon obvious that outside advice must be sought. Reports and plans need to be carefully drawn. Results will not come in a day, a week or a year, for years may elapse before the work is consummated. Especially is this true of parks and playgrounds. Plans of this nature are at first not always acceptable, and it is well that what is contemplated be placed before the public and become so well known that all may realize and work for the goal. In the mat-

Seeks Expert Advice

The committee on improved school facilities has written the Commissioner of education in Boston regarding the school problem here and is awaiting advices from him before holding public hearings. The chairman and clerk of the committee, also consulted Prof. Philbrick, who lectured in Community hall, Tuesday evening, regarding the best location for a possible new building. He has looked over prospective sites and promised a written report soon.

The committee is therefore seeking advice from every available source of information. The probable expenditure of a large sum of money makes it advisable that we profit by the experience of those who are familiar with school plants.

Boston, Mass., Mar. 8, 1921
To the Editor of the Belchertown Sentinel,

Dear Sir:

In the editorial column of the Sentinel, March 4, 1921, under the caption, "The Interest in Disarmament," appear several dangerous and most untimely propositions. In brief, according to the editorial, the recent sentiment in favor of preparedness for war is turning into a popular demand for disarmament; this is pronounced a sensible trend, and an international police force is admitted to be needed; and lastly appears that insidious exclamation of sentiment, "Let America lead in the disarmament."

It is not the purpose of this letter to argue the cause of Preparedness, but merely to call attention to the fact that the same reasons for preparedness exist today, when disarmament may be the whim of an increased element, as existed when the pacifist was frowned upon. Not only do they exist, but they are indeed more cogent. Germany's power is not wholly destroyed; neither is her spirit crushed. The land legislation of our states bordering upon the Pacific grows in obnoxiousness with the Japanese. The attitude of the new administration toward Costa Rica and Panama indicates America's purpose to police this hemisphere on her own initiative. Your suggestion for an international police force perhaps contains the nucleus of a sound solution, yet it implies necessarily some unity of international control, and is therein fundamentally opposed to the policy of the present popular administration, as voiced in the inaugural address.

Last week's declamations were really beneficial for all who attended. A wide range of topics was chosen, from Lincoln to dry goods' stores. If some of the speakers felt as scared as they looked, we pity them.

After the vacation all the students seem fresh and blooming, especially the Senior algebra class.

Braze should receive honorable mention. He got to school on time this week two days in succession.

A "Spectator Paper"

If Sir Roger de Coverly were living now, he would not know what to say if he saw one of our modern "movies". I can imagine that kindly old gentleman with the silent Spectator buying their tickets for reserved seats at one of our best-known moving picture houses. I can see him, dressed in old-fashioned manner, coming down the brightly-lighted aisle, howing and smiling at people he did not know, patting little children on the head and saying to the Spectator that they should be home and in bed. After seating himself comfortably, he looks around making some remarks about the crowd of people, the decorations, and the many colored lamps.

With a snap most of the lights go out, leaving a few pale green and warm red ones glowing strangely in the dark, cool theater. The pictures are thrown on the screen. Sir Roger utters many exclamations of surprise and admiration, saying, as if to himself, "These modern devices, these modern devices."

The funny pictures amuse him greatly, yet he does not understand why so many good pies are wasted, or how a man could receive such blows and bumps and yet remain whole.

The feature picture is one of these "crossed in love" dramas and Sir Roger takes it all as if it were very true; but he finds time to say, "Not one of those women, sir, not one of them is nearly as good looking as the widow, but they have her frivolous ways."

After the pictures, on the way to the club, Sir Roger asks just how these pictures are made. Upon having it explained to him, he looks rather doubtful about the way in which they are produced, and the Spectator knows that away back in the kind old man's mind is a little thought which connects the motion pictures with witchcraft.

United Young Peoples' Society Notes

Did you ever go to South Hadley Falls on a social trip? Well, we did last Friday night and we were well paid for our trouble, too. We left here about seven o'clock and motored down in "The Pierce Arrow."

When we got there we found an elegant supper waiting, but before we could eat we had to get partners. Halves of advertisements were given out and each one had to find his mate. Well, we ate and joked.

Then followed a long list of contests and games such as never have been played in this town. Several local young people won prizes.

Before anyone knew it, it was time to come home and of course every one was sorry to do such a rude thing without bidding our hosts farewell, so some of the young men gave a Y. P. S. yell and then retired to the waiting truck.

Now of course we have a live society but we can't beat South Hadley Falls unless we wake up some more.

If you will watch the bulletin board at the post office, it will help you.

Some very interesting meetings are being held on Sunday evenings, but if every one will help out, they can be made more so.

Of course it is very wet out just now but "just trickle in next Sunday evening and see what you think about it." The subject will be, "What Is Real Religion?" Jas. 1: 19-27; John 17: 3. The leader will be Miss Maggie Hales.

And should America lead in disarmament, what assurance is there that the other powers would follow? We know that all would not; America would be left prostrate and helpless before those very forces least in sympathy with her ideals and institutions. Would it be here impertinent to suggest the present plight of the world had France taken the lead in disarmament prior to 1914? Rather let us keep ready to defend the liberties of the world, as did France.

I earnestly request that you publish this in the next edition of the Sentinel. I would even suggest to you the value of some regular popular forum within your columns.

Yours truly,
William E. Parker

Note—We want it thoroughly understood (if it is not already clear), that our columns are open for discussion of any topic of importance, even though the opinions presented may be divergent from our own. In viewing a proposition from many angles the truth should become more apparent. The school problem presents an interesting topic at the present time.—Ed.

ter of civic improvement, patience, prudence and preparation are all necessary.

As to money, if all believe in a plan for town betterment, money is usually forthcoming.

To make a start in the right way, a first requisite is to put the town in order. First clean up the home grounds. Have a clean-up campaign and then remain cleaned up.

See to it that the means of access to your town are conducive to a favorable impression of your village. Good roads and attractive railway stations with well kept grounds are fine advertisements. Depots are often dirty, and while they are not of necessity an index to a town, nevertheless one never gets out of his mouth the taste of a bad first impression. Any town becomes a pleasant memory if the roads are good. They should be well built and well maintained.

Most school grounds need improvement. How can a teacher who is supposed to instill into her pupils a love of the beautiful, do so when all around is just the reverse? And if cleanliness is next to godliness, churches should see to it that their property and grounds are well kept.

As to the matter of design, it is just as cheap to erect an attractive street light as it is one you sometimes see.

Little progressive work can be done without a report to work on, and no organized effort can be carried out without a plan. Generally a village improvement society is an active agent along these lines. Stockbridge has a society which dates back to 1853. Sometimes a woman's club is the first to see definite needs. Granges and churches sometimes do the work. Usually it is better to use an existing organiza-

often Prof. Philbrick would show contrasting pictures "before and after" public spirit had moved in a community. The transformation would be quite marked, and had been brought about, he repeatedly stated, through no great outlay of money. The attractive things are often the simplest, he said, and here in New England we are especially favored with landscapes conducive to fine effects.

In conclusion Prof. Philbrick stated that he expected to be in town over night, and that after seeing the place he might possibly offer some suggestions which the townspeople might like to carry out. His greatest service to the town may therefore come with some practical suggestion that he may bring to the attention of the club at whose request he came. Mrs. Howard and Mrs. Hazen were especially instrumental in securing his services.

Belchertown Five Defeats Ware

The Belchertown basket ball team defeated the Am. Legion quintet of Ware in the Town Hall last Friday night by a score of 38 to 21 before a large crowd. Manager Gene Flaherty's basket shooters proved to be too fast for the visiting aggregation and walked away with the game in the closing period. The game was fast and interesting.

With Jimmy Connors and Bob Jackson, two star players out of the lineup, Manager Shea of the Ware team brought along Ernie Wakefield, the midget forward, formerly of the All-Holyokes, and Buck Drennan, former Fisk Red Top player. The other players were McDonald, who plays with the Northeastern College team of Springfield, Rehan, Dunbar and Connolly.

The local team was slow in getting started in the first half and Ware took the lead and held it until the last few minutes of this half, when the home team came through with four baskets in succession which tied the score at 14 all.

Em Grayson, the Easthampton Interstate League player, did not strive any too hard in the first half, but kept a watchful eye on the teamwork of the visiting team. Em was determined to show his best in the last half, for, fighting with the vim of a youngster, he played rings around the Ware players and dropped in four floor goals and four free tries.

Ware was the first to score when Dunbar shot a basket. Austin got

The Concert

Music lovers were given an "All-Star" performance in the program tendered by the Community club at the Congregational church on Friday evening. It is seldom that a small community is favored by such a galaxy of artists, and while counter attractions divided the throng, all who heard the program must have felt they had made the wise choice.

To discriminate would be difficult; to criticize, unfair. The concerted numbers were given with good balance and effect. Miss Graves proved a great favorite in her extremely graceful harp playing. While delicacy characterizes the instrument, Miss Graves' playing was marked by great perfection of finish.

Mr. Regal's work was to many, a revelation of the possibilities of the violoncello. It is often not understood that it possesses all the resources of the violin technically, the latter being feminine, the cello masculine. Mr. Regal brought these resources in full play. The singing of Mr. Brown carried a strong appeal. He possesses a voice of remarkable volume combined with rare purity and sweetness. Mrs. Regal, whose reputation as a concert accompanist is well known, supplemented the numbers in a very gracious manner.

Not an indifferent part of the program was sustained by Mrs. Gildemeister who rendered beautifully the charming "Legende" of Wieniawski. It elicited as an encore the popular "Kuyawiak" by the same composer, which was given with great dash. Mrs. Gildemeister excels in the bravura style. Her versatility was shown in her appearing in the closing number in a vocal solo against cello, harp and piano. The audience was enthusiastic and the artists generous in response.

Programs of this order are too rare with us, and we may well wish for a repetition in the near future.

St. Patrick must have made a slight miscalculation as there was every evidence that he had arrived in Grange hall on Tuesday evening

The committee on improved school facilities has received the following communication from Prof. Philbrick, assistant extension professor, landscape gardening, Amherst. Prof. Philbrick was in town a short time ago and at the invitation of the committee looked over the various school building sites. He favors, quite decidedly, the Hopkins lot.

Amherst, Mass., March 10, 1921.

Mr. A. F. Bardwell, Belchertown, Mass. Dear Mr. Bardwell:

Pursuant with the conference I had with Mr. Nichols and yourself in Belchertown on Wednesday, at which time we inspected the present school grounds and the possible site for a new school, I submit a brief resume of this conference and the conditions as they appear to me.

There can be no question that the present schoolhouse is inadequate and entirely behind the times, and that a new building is a vital necessity. Assuming that it becomes necessary to build this new building on the same piece of land, I would raise the following objections.

1. The possibility of a new street being cut through and dividing the school property.

2. Proximity to the backyards of houses facing on the common and difficult to overcome because the present building occupies the highest ground, which is the logical location for a new building, though it may be moved slightly down from the knoll.

3. Its lack of association with the village. It is simply a piece of land designated for school purposes and bears no relationship, apparently, with the activities of the town, being cut off with no access except a narrow

B. H. S. Notes

The B. H. S. isn't going to die just because the basket ball season is over. They elected Milton Wood manager and John Fitzgerald captain of the base ball nine for the coming season. Fizzie is on his job already and has his men practising every spare moment. It looks now as if they would have a "regular" pitcher since Banty Bardwell is trying out.

What happened to Miss Flaherty's face? Did she fall or is she thinking about entering the "ring"? Miss Sullivan saved the Bonds-ville people from losing the train the other day. How did she do it? Why, she flagged the train!

The girls of the B. H. S. are going to have a base ball team. Babe Ruth will have to look out when they start hitting home runs. All the girls who hope to be pitchers are practising every day after school, trying to hit the sides of their barns.

Last week Mrs. Clough and Mr. Allen had a general clean-up and had all who would not sing leave the singing class. Certain people were to have their voices tried out, if they wished to remain in the class, but, much to our disappointment, they refused to favor us with their solos.

his only basket of the game, tying the score. E. Grayson annexed a free try. Baskets by Rohan and McDonald and Drennan's free try gave Ware a 7 to 3 lead. E. Grayson dropped in another single-counter and was followed with a basket and free try by Wakefield, making the score 10 to 4. E. Grayson connected for his first basket of the game, and baskets by Wakefield and Dunbar gave the visitors a 14 to 6 lead. The local team then started a spurt which, with baskets by the Grayson brothers and Lent, tied the score at 14 all.

Led by E. Grayson, the home team started plugging in the last half and completely outclassed the visiting team, scoring 24 points while Ware scored 7.

Em Grayson starred for the local team, scoring twenty points on seven floor goals and six free tries. Lent played a nice game at right back. Rohan and Wakefield featured for the losers.

Answered

A few weeks ago there was an article published in the Sentinel on the behaviour of the Belchertown boys. In most respects I agree with the writer of that article although it gave but one side of the case. I will now discuss the other side in order to give you the reasons for the boys acting as they do.

One of the questions asked was: "Aren't the girls good enough?" That is the trouble. They think they are too good. Upon ordinary occasions a local young man can get a girl to attend with him. But just let a dance be posted, to which a crowd from out of town is expected. If a girl is short of change she will go with anyone. All the way to the dance she is like a spring freshet, but the moment she steps upon the waxed floor and sees an old friend from somewhere, and presto, she becomes as cold toward Local as a cake of ice in January.

As soon as the music starts up she whirls away and that ends it. Local stands in the corner and catches fleeting glimpses of her. If he dances with an out of town girl he is held up short the first time he meets Miss Local.

When the dance breaks up she is taken home in a thriver if her friend owns one, and if not, she quietly comes back to Local and begs him to come home (O my noble, lady-like girls). It is the same on these trips out of town. She goes and comes with you but you see her not while there. For a week after one of these sprees all you hear from Miss Local is, "What a charming fellow Mr. So and So is."

Do you blame the local young men for letting the girls go lone-some? And yet if a girl goes and fails to capture a city chap she blames the local fellows and complains that they are so cheap (Oh my poor injured girls).

There is but one cure for this kind of thing. It was tried out some years ago when twenty fellows went to Amherst and brought down a load of girls from the hat shop. Ask some of the older men about it who used to dance, and think it over.

Now my argument is complete. If the girls would act honorably, the young men would follow suit and trump.

row lane. It is nearly hidden from the view of both stranger and townspeople.

4. The area available for recreation purposes is now a swamp, and its utilization would entail expense for under-drainage.

An alternative scheme would be the acquisition of what is known as the Hopkins lot on North Main street, a wonderful piece of property for this purpose and entirely to be desired.

1. It is high and dry, and resolves itself in natural divisions for various purposes.

2. It is centrally located and accessible to the village.

3. Being on a through thoroughfare it would become a feature of the town from the standpoint of strangers and an asset to the town.

4. By the removal of one building in the near side, it gives a high, dry and conspicuous location for the building.

These are the outstanding features of the situation as I have seen it. I would, by all means, strongly recommend the acquisition of this other property for school purposes, but if it finally becomes impossible to do this, then I would recommend that a very careful study of the present location be made that as many of its present objections may be overcome as possible.

If the building is worth building at all, it is worth building wisely and well and it is fake economy to try and save money by putting the building in one location when every argument points the superiority of another location. This building is to stand for many years to come and we owe it to posterity to plan so that they will have the fullest enjoyment of the fruits of our efforts.

I shall be very glad to cooperate in any way I can on this matter and trust you will not fail to call on me.

Very truly yours, W. E. Philbrick.

Letters and newspapers from Mrs. M. D. S. Longley tell of a terrific wind and rain storm which swept Chester Co., Pa., which includes Downingtown, where she resides and Fraser, the residence of Rev. M. H. Fishburn, a former pastor of the Congregational Church. The storm assumed the form of a cyclone, tearing roofs from buildings, uprooting trees, blowing off chimneys and even transplanting buildings entire. Communication and transportation were seriously impaired.

At the new mill of Miller's (where Mr. Parke, Mrs. Longley's son-in-law was in the office at his work) the roof was blown about 150 feet, nearly wrecking an eastbound train. Many people were injured as a result of the storm.

Bake Shop Reopened

Arthur Vezina of this town has taken over the bake shop on Walnut street and is turning out a variety of goods. Mr. Vezina is a baker of thirty years' experience, having done business for a long time in Ware, and since coming to town has been employed in the large shops of Springfield.

Bread, cake, pies, doughnuts, etc., are his bill of fare at present. His goods are on sale in most of the stores, so that a try out is easy. Mr. Vezina is sounding out the business with a view to permanency. He began work Tuesday.

Appointed Nurse

Miss Eastman of Pittsfield, N. H., has been appointed public health nurse and has begun her work. Miss Eastman is not a stranger in the town as she has had patients here previous to her appointment. She is a graduate of the Pittsfield, N. H., High school and of a hospital in Manchester, N. H. She has been engaged in institutional work in Manchester and Los Angeles, Cal., specializing in tubercular and contagious diseases in the latter place.

Miss Eastman wishes to inform our readers that her headquarters are at the Park View, where she will be available for ordinary calls on week days from 8 a. m. to 5 p. m. and at all times for emergency calls. Aside from the work usually expected of her, she hopes to have baby clinics and classes in home nursing. She desires to be of the greatest possible help to the community.

Mr. and Mrs. Story have taken rooms at the Hunt house on Main St.

Nutting-Story Wedding

Miss Alice O. Nutting, daughter of Dwight Nutting, and Herbert Erving Story, son of Mrs. Clara Story, were married in the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Ella R. Hunt, Wednesday afternoon at 6 o'clock, Rev. H. P. Rankin, officiating. The ceremony took place under a bower of green simlax and running asparagus. The bride wore a traveling suit of blue duvetyne with hat to match and carried a bouquet of roses.

The bride was educated in the schools of Granby, her native town, and also in Northfield. Since coming to town she has filled positions, both as clerk and bookkeeper. The groom is a veteran of the late war. He held the rank of first sergeant and was connected with the 25th ambulance company, 5th Div., U. S. Regulars. He was formerly in the 1st and 2nd division U. S. Regulars. He was across fifteen months and served in all the major and minor offensives and defenses of the 5th Div. Regulars and one major offensive of the 2nd Div. Regulars. Mr. Story is at present engaged in the manufacture of silk weavers' tools, a business started by his father. He is transferring his equipment from Newark, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Story have taken rooms at the Hunt house on Main St.

Notes
SUCCESS

Did you notice anything out of the ordinary last Sunday evening? Well, you must be blind, then. Why, if you had been watching, you might have thought every young person in town had a piece of steel in his or her pocket, and that the church was a magnet. Over sixty were there, and more steam was used in singing than a locomotive uses. And that isn't all. Six new members were admitted to the C. E. and as many more will be admitted next Sunday evening.

Death of Henry M. Jepson

Henry M. Jepson, age 76, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Philip Burby of Beverly, at 11 o'clock on Friday night. Mr. Jepson suffered a paralytic shock March 4 and failed to rally.

He was born in Ware Town Aug. 6, 1844, the son of Orrin and Lydia (Canterbury) Jepson. Mr. Jepson was the oldest of five children. A sister, Mrs. Harriet Aldrich, died here in March, 1901. Miss Sarah Jepson died in May, 1918. The other two children, David D. of this place and Mrs. Jennie Kelsey of Springfield, survive him.

Mr. Jepson's parents moved to this town while he was young and he has always made his home here since that time. About Jan. 1 Mr. Jepson went to Beverly to pass the winter with his daughter and the few weeks he has been there constitute his longest absence from this town during his life.

Mr. Jepson was one of the three surviving charter members of Vernon Lodge of Masons and was also a charter member of Mt. Vernon chapter O. E. S. He was given the Henry Price medal in June, 1918, a medal which is given to all Masons who have completed fifty years of Masonry. He joined the Masons in 1867 at Enfield, Mass., and when the Vernon Lodge was instituted in Belchertown he became a charter member here.

For many years Mr. Jepson conducted a farm in North Main street and was well known in this section of the state as a cattle dealer. He also conducted a slaughter house. Mr. Jepson will be remembered as a sturdy, New England farmer of the old school, one to whom work was a genuine pleasure. Like other men

Dies in Amherst

The body of J. W. Knowlton of Amherst was brought here for burial last week. James Wentworth Knowlton was born in Belchertown in 1846, and learned the machinist's trade. Twenty years ago he went to Amherst. He leaves one brother, Wm. H. Knowlton of this town, besides nephews and nieces.

Preparation and Execution

Thinking naturally leads to action. Let a man think a certain thing long enough and the chances are that in time he will do that thing.

So a man does generally as he talks. If a man talks along a certain line, we are not surprised to hear that he is working along those very lines.

In the same fashion preparation will lead to execution unless some greater counter force intervenes. The chances are that the youth who spends three years in a theological seminary, will become a minister ultimately.

B. H. S. Notes

The Seniors moaned and the Juniors groaned when Mr. Allen said the word, "Declamations."

The most cold-blooded murder of the age took place Tuesday morning in the main room. The murdered one is a mouse, who, while out for his morning airing, lost his way and strolled across Room I while French III was in session.

M. Wood says, "When I get angry at a fellow, - angry enough to kill, - I take off my coat, roll up my sleeves, loosen my collar, and then I go to bed."

Oz. Davis certainly has the ability to count backwards. Ask for a free demonstration.

An Experience as an Indian

When I was a small boy, sixty-five years ago, I lived in a small eastern town. At that time, just at the close of the Civil war, the Indian excitement was at its peak and I loved to play Indian in a fashion well known to present day young-

As I grew older, my Indian playing did not cease; indeed it grew, for with my age my brain expanded and I thought up many plans to make the game more interesting.

I will tell you one trouble I got into as a result of my game. One day I found in a secluded portion of the house, where my parents had fondly hoped it was safe, an old, one-barreled, horse pistol.

Approaching the wood where I usually played, I entered it. I had not bothered to call my companions of other days, being jealous of the pistol.

The clock has been taken down and sent away for a general overhauling. It has been more ornamental than useful for a long time.

HOW DREADED SNAKE GETS "RATTLES" THAT GIVE IT ITS NAME. -How old is a rattlesnake? It has always been a source of satisfaction to believe that a rattlesnake's age could be determined by its rattles.

Raymond Lee Ditmars, curator of reptiles in the New York Zoological park, describes the development of the rattles as follows: When a rattlesnake is born, it is provided with a small button at the tip of its tail. A few months after birth it sheds its skin. In two months more it sheds its skin a second time, and in so doing uncovers the first ring or segment of the rattle which has been developing under the epidermis.

Therefore, every time it sheds its skin it uncovers a new segment. Under normal conditions, a rattlesnake sheds its skin three times a year, but unusual climatic or food conditions may vary the number of molts.

The rattle is a very delicate organ. The snake wears out the older rings dragging them around over rough, rocky ground. A rattle seldom attains a length of more than ten or eleven rings, as when that number has been acquired the vibration at the tip, when the organ is used, is so pronounced that additional segments are soon worn, broken and lost.

War Savings Stamps

The following letter received by postmaster E. E. Sargent discloses a continued interest, here and elsewhere, in the purchase of war savings stamps.

To the Postmaster,
Belchertown, Mass.

Dear Postmaster:

I am advised by the Boston post office of the orders you have placed for government savings stamps during January and February. I appreciate your co-operation in this movement to create new capital for the benefit of our government, and beg to thank you for the interest which you show. I hope you will be successful in speedily disposing of your stock on hand, and be in a position to order a new supply.

Please do not overlook the advantages which treasury savings certificates possess. Communities tributary to the 3rd and 4th class post offices, are usually lacking in banking facilities, and investment in treasury savings certificates presents an ideal way to safeguard extra money which your patrons may have on hand. They are fire-proof, loss-proof and burglar-proof, and pay a very fair rate of interest. It is probable that if you keep this possibility in mind, you will find several people in your community who are willing to invest in the $25, $100, and even the $1,000 certificates.

Very truly yours,
F. C. Ayres, Government Director of Savings

Work Begins at State School

The season's construction work at the State school began Monday, when O'Connor of Northampton arrived with a large force of men. The chief emphasis at present is on preparatory work, such as the improvement of the roads leading to the building sites, which will enable heavy trucks to do their hauling to advantage.

Five buildings are also under construction: a power house, laundry, service building and two dormitories. It is planned to finish these this fall.

During the summer, the grounds will be a busy spot. One hundred twenty-five are now at work and this number will be considerably augmented later on. A commissary department has been established at the Stacy place with Michael McKillop in charge. The workmen hail from Northampton and from other cities near and far.

That labor is indeed plentiful is attested by the fact that workmen have applied for jobs in large numbers.

Annual League Meeting

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Belchertown Community League Inc. was held in Community hall last Friday evening. Directors chosen for the ensuing year were Mrs. E. C. Howard, Mrs. H. F. Curtis, Miss Marian Bardwell, A. F. Bardwell, Wm. Orlando, Roswell Allen, E. O. Howard, H. F. Curtis and L. H. Blackner. A. F. Bardwell was elected clerk and Miss Ella A. Stebbins, treasurer. The latter has tendered her resignation.

A committee was chosen consisting of G. E. Scott, Wm. Orlando and A. F. Bardwell, to see that the paint, already purchased, is applied to the Community League building, as funds are available for accomplishing the task.

At a meeting of the directors, immediately following the stockholders' meeting, Roswell Allen was re-elected president of the board, and A. F. Bardwell, secretary.

Another Big Game

Another big basket ball game will be played in the town hall tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock, between Bondsville and the Belchertown Independents. The lineup for the visitors will include Henderson, Shea and Cunningham of the Fisk Red Tops, and Robarge, Shepherd and Carlson of the Westfield Interstate League team.

The Independents will put up Chas. Austin, Herbert Story, Em Grayson, Bucky Davis, Dame Grayson and Howard Spencer.

W. R. C. Notes

At a recent meeting the W. R. C. elected the following officers:

Mrs. Lottie Cook, pres.; Mrs. Ella Witt, senior vice-pres.; Mrs. Nellie Dewey, junior vice pres.; Mrs. Geradine Howard, sec'y; Mrs. Alice G. Hazen, treas.; Mrs. Belle Morse, chaplain; Mrs. Jennie Chamberlain, conductor; Mrs. Maud Camp, asst. conductor; Mrs. Mary Hadlock, guard; Mrs. Amy Cook, asst. guard.

All those who desire to retain membership in the corps are requested to be present at the next regular meeting on Monday evening at the home of Mrs. Nellie Dewey at 7.30 o'clock.

Advises Regarding Schools

Burr F. Jones of the State Board of Education was in town yesterday to confer with the authorities regarding improved school facilities. He came at the invitation of the special committee and his findings will be of interest. He thinks our facilities are decidedly inadequate but considers it unwise to reconstruct the present building. He thinks it desirable to have all the grades and the High school under one roof.

He believes the Hopkins' site much to be preferred over the present lot which is surrounded by back yards. He sees also a greater opportunity for expansion and more room for playgrounds. He said that a new building could be constructed sectionally so that the cost might be more easily borne, but with present building conditions, he failed to see how the town could build what it really ought to have. Furthermore a special act of the Legislature would be required to issue bonds, so that really nothing could be done this year.

He will make a formal report later which will go into the matter in more detail.

Mr. Jones visited the school room in Community hall and was much pleased with the new quarters.

Station Break

What a little wrong doing leads to, was well illustrated by the break at the station last Friday night. 61 cents and one grape fruit were all that was secured, but forces were set in motion whereby human life was endangered. Briefly stated, it seems that an officer from New London and the local sheriff lay in waiting Sunday night for another call. A fliker in the darkness of the station aroused a young man passing by to make a capture, so after procuring a shot gun and revolver, he fired from the bridge into the station at a point near where the men were waiting. Luckily no one was injured.

Later, the veteran who had seen service of a real sort, attacked from the rear. The lights were soon turned on and each party recognized the other—a funny story, but—
