to the exasperation of the rest of the household. Aunt Belinda (Mrs. Sherman), called it poor psychology and made no bones in saying so, while Lucy Rider (Miss Ruby Knight), a timid sister, thought on general principles that it was a senseless rule, although she kept reiterating that of course it was nothing to her. Jessie Ray (Miss Rachel Randall), a niece with "a friend", was quite inconvenienced.

The mistress of the house got by with situation after situation that would naturally require a man, but the inevitable finally happened, and in her thoughtless moment of surprise, when she found gentlemen in the house, called the police. Then it was that Kate (Miss Upham), the Irish servant, could properly call in her wonderful "secund coozin," the "best man" on the force.

Enough money was cleared to make up the yearly budget quota of the local union. The union will receive from the state W. C. T. U. a five dollar gold piece for handing this in by April 1st.

Supper and Play

"My, but it's hot here!" ejaculated one of the men after "Those Husbands of Ours" had been presented at the M. E. vestry last Friday evening, and the only response was, "I expected it would be." Such was the impression made by the play with the spectacular title. The men took it good naturedly but they took considerable.

The women waxed some hot in the presentation. Back from a week's vacation, taken at the behest of the men, they felt that it would take a year to recuperate, once they had gotten their respective households into order again. "Those husbands" had gone on the principle of "first in sight, first used" and the results were disastrous to fine crockery, table linen, and in fact everything. There were not exasperating words enough in the dictionary to express the pent up feelings of the returning housewives.

After matters had subsided somewhat, the women settled down into a sort of end men's role and the men certainly came out at the small end. As the strokes fell, the searchlight played on the victim in the audience, to see if he survived all right, only to light on some one else's head.

The public supper and the training class period preceded the entertainment. This is the last of the second series of church training nights. The last night found the study book unfinished, but the pastor expects that those who have the books will complete the reading of them.

Parent-Teacher Association Meeting

There was a full program at the open meeting of the Parent-Teacher association Monday evening in Memorial hall. A health play, The Adventure of Every Child, was given by the pupils of the Junior High school, the object of which was to stress the importance of plain and nutritious foods. This was followed by an address by Prof. Hayes, professor of psychology at Mt. Holyoke college.

Prof. Hayes distributed to his audience a full outline of quite an extended presentation of psychological data and enlarged upon such points as would be interesting to both the children and adults who comprised his audience. The speaker stated that he had five children of his own, so that he could speak from experience as well as from theory.

Listening to Prof. Hayes, one was reminded of the words of Prof. Monahan at the poultry school, which were to the effect that science teaches us the why of things as we have known them to exist. So Prof. Hayes talked of and analyzed the Ego, a term not wholly familiar to all of his audience but an instinct well known to everybody.

He described this fundamental instinct as one which in common with other instincts, brought satisfaction when allowed expression. By reason of it one unconsciously seeks self-preservation, happiness, advancement; it compels one constantly to seek to get on top. Even in babyhood this fighting to throw off restraint is manifest. In childhood it is very evident and explains why boys crave the biggest in everything and girls like the best in dress. The speaker said that all this is good if used right, but that when as a result a weaker one suffers, trouble starts.

Prof. Hayes maintained that the satisfaction of the Ego to a certain extent, success in some degree, was vitally necessary, that it was as important as fresh air. He stressed the need for parents and teachers to give children tasks at which they could succeed.

Regarding getting children to eat new things, one was again reminded of poultry school advice. There it was stated that a chicken could be made to eat almost anything if a person went at it right. So with children. He stated that it is not well for parents to show likes and dislikes for certain foods unless they want their children to do the same. Here he emphasized the power of suggestion. He deprecated such remarks as this. "I suppose you children won't like this but mother wants you to try to eat it."

Prof. Hayes spoke analytically of various stages in life through which one passes, the dependent stage, the adopted child period, comparison of parents with others, breaking home ties, socialization, etc.

In conclusion the speaker advised that by every means possible, we draw out the best and control the less worthy instincts. He likened the work of parents and teachers to that of a gardener seeking to train and develop growing life.

Get Large Hatch

Poultrymen who hatch chickens artificially usually calculate on a 50 per cent. hatch, but Bracey Brothers have old Mother Hen worried with a banner hatch they took off last week. From 1,950 eggs set, 1,625 chickens were secured. These come from the heavy laying Tom Baron English strain of White Leghorns.

Work Progresses

Work has been progressing on the standpipe this past week. Last Friday the three lengths of feed pipe were riveted together and cables attached to swing it into place. Saturday and Monday were stormy and no work was done, but Tuesday morning the big Bertha swung into air and was approximately in position by noon. Two pair of horses were required to elevate the pipe. On Wednesday the base plates of the

Constant Need of Peace Makers

There is always room for the maker of peace. The mischief maker is always abroad. There is no eight hour day with him. He takes no holidays. He works over time. The peace maker must be on hand to counteract the mischief maker. The mischief maker fans a spark of ill will into a flame. The peace maker must be there to blow it out. It is an easy thing for men to drift apart. The evil man encourages it. The good man must be present to discourage it and bring the two parties together. Alienations readily take place when the mischief maker is about. The peace maker must be there before him to see that the mischief maker is thwarted. The peace maker must create such an atmosphere so that when the mischief maker arrives, his ideas cannot thrive but will sicken and wither and die. Misunderstandings are common, and if let alone will naturally grow and flourish. Here is a chance for the man who loves peace.

There is always room for peace makers in the home and in the school, in the lodge and in the church. We need peace makers among men of various faiths and of different languages, and widely separated nations.

There can never be too many makers of peace between Protestant and Catholic, between Jew and Gentile, between white and black, between Japan and America, between France and Germany. Those who brew evil are many. There must be a larger number who construct peace. The forces which make for peace are mighty, but they are not mighty enough for the times. Let every reader of the Sentinel be a maker of peace in every realm.

Dry Law Investigation

One of our subscribers, wintering in New York, sends the following clipping from the New York Times of recent issue, submitting the same in the interest of prohibition enlightenment.

I have just read a letter headed "Failure of the Dry Law" in today's issue of your newspaper. People who write on the "failure" of prohibition interest me very much, inasmuch as I have recently concluded an extensive investigation of this much discussed and greatly misunderstood question.

I came all the way from Australia to make my survey. I travelled 30,000 miles in the United States and 5,000 in Canada. This took me eighteen months. Of course I purposely avoided all prohibition organizations for information and gave all my attention to judges of various courts: chief of police and their records, big business men, great employers of labor, jails, prisons, workhouses, alcoholic institutions, child welfare organizations, &c. As a result of this investigation I am in a position to say to Stanwood Lee Henderson: "Study this problem before you rush into print with statements which cannot be substantiated by facts."

Mr. Henderson speaks of the "thousands of deaths recorded from poisonous wines and liquors." Had Mr. Henderson taken the trouble to have gone to the New York Health Department and asked for the number of deaths from alcoholic poisoning for the last four wet years in comparison with the first four dry years, he would have received the following figures: Last four wet years, 2,061 deaths; first four dry years, 835 deaths, making a decrease of 1,226.

I should also like to inform Mr. Henderson that I found that sixty-six alcoholic institutions belonging to Dr. Neal of Los Angeles had been put out of business by two years of prohibition. In these institutions 125,000 alcoholic patients had been treated in twelve years prior to prohibition.

Why should the largest alcoholic institution in the United States of America be now leased to the United States Government and used as a hospital for disabled soldiers? This place is in Dwight, Ill., and belongs to Dr. Keely.

Other arguments advanced by Mr. Henderson are just as faulty as this one to which I refer.

I found many men in New York judging prohibition in the United States by New York State and City. But there are some other states and some other cities in this great republic. Then, how can any New Yorker talk about the "failure of prohibition"? With the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law what chance has prohibition had in New York City or State?

Just as there was a constitutional way of writing the Eighteenth amendment into the organic law of this country, so there is a constitutional way of getting it out; but that way is not by a brazen defiance of the law, nor is it by a gross misrepresentation of the results of the law.

"Did you go to the lecture Monday night?"

"No, I didn't. What with washing and cleaning house, I was too tired. They say he was awfully good, too."

"He was interesting. I haven't begun to clean house yet, but I must start soon. Peggy wants me to find something for her Girl Scout sale."

"Sale! For the land sakes! Haven't we had sales and plays and suppers till everybody is tired to death of them?"

"Well, we have had quite a little going on, I'll say, but this is different. Peggy says they want to get things you are going to throw away or would give away if you knew someone who wanted them—."

"A rubbish sale, eh!"

"No, a rummage sale isn't really that. What is of no value to you might be just what another person wanted and would be glad to get at half price or less. And I think the girls intend to repair things which they can and—"

"Well, I ask you, what is the good in Girl Scout work, any way? What do they do that's worth anything to anybody? I don't care to have my Lillie associate with them, from what I've seen."

"I haven't any Girl Scout of my own. Of course George is a Boy Scout."

"That's all right. I approve of Boy Scouts but girls are different."

"Peggy is rather nice, you must admit, and she is a Girl Scout."

"My Lillie is quite as nice, you must admit, and she isn't a Girl Scout. What good does it do a girl to be a Scout?"

"George told me this noon that one of the girls in his room got caught making drawings in one of her school books and Miss Ellis told her she'd have to remain in all her recesses for a month. Then she asked if anybody else had been marking their school books. George says there were plenty of others who had, but only one raised her hand and she was a Girl Scout.. 'A Girl Scout's honor is to be trusted' you know."

"Um-m. Well, I wouldn't want my Lillie to stay in all her recesses for a month. She needs the fresh air and exercise. When did you say that sale was?"

"Why, Peggy didn't tell me. But before long I guess."

"I was thinking of the lamps we discarded when we put in electricity. They could have those for all I care, if they want to clean them up."

"I'll tell Peggy, if you want me to, and she will get them right away. She said the girls would call for things as people notified them or their captain or lieutenant."

"Which troop is getting up this sale?"

"It's the younger girls. Miss Stebbins and Miss Jackson are the leaders. You could telephone them first if you wanted to, but it is all right just to notify some of the girls."

"Well, I'll see. I must go now for my Lillie will be wanting me to fix her hair for to-night."

As the above conversation indicates, the Girl Scouts of Troop II are planning to hold a rummage sale and would be very glad to accept any articles you may wish to contribute. They will gladly call for such things as they can handle. They will repair, clean, or dress over anything within their ability. Clothing, household utensils, furniture, white elephants, all are acceptable.

We hope to bring together things not wanted and people who want things, and incidentally replenish a rather lean treasury.

Notify any Girl Scout of Troop II or either of the leaders, or leave your contribution at the Scout rooms which are open daily.

Day-Dreaming

Public Health Bulletin

A little day-dreaming helps the imagination; too much day-dreaming is dangerous. It tends to give the person a false and distorted view point of every day matters, and makes him shy, seclusive and retiring. If the habit of day-dreaming is formed too strongly in childhood, the adult is apt to run away from disagreeable tasks by denying their existence.

The job of every mother and father is to teach the child to look things squarely in the face—to do a job whether he likes it or not. Plenty of pleasant tasks and sufficient play and playmates should be provided so that the child will enjoy reality, and not have to fall back on dreams for happiness.

HOW

BLOOD CORPUSCLES ARE AFFECTED BY ALTITUDE. —Continued examinations of the blood of mountain climbers show that when a man by slow and gradual ascent attains an altitude of 8,000 feet, the red blood corpuscles have rapidly multiplied from about 5,000,000 to 6,000,000, and that when a height of 13,000 feet has been reached the number of these corpuscles has risen further to 7,000,000.

The facts observed by Capt. R. W. G. Hingston confirm the observation, well known in lesser degree in the European Alps, that an ascent from a low to a high altitude is associated with a definite and continuous change in the constitution of the blood, the result of the stimulus which rarefied air exerts on the blood-forming mechanism of the human body. By this means the individual can adapt himself to the higher levels if the ascent be made slowly and gradually, thus allowing the production of a sufficient number of oxygen-carrying corpuscles. This manufacture of red corpuscles is by no means slow; for instance, in one observation a short stay of two days at an altitude of 13,000 feet showed an increase of about 725,000 in the number of these corpuscles per cubic millimeter of the blood. It is possible that there may be a limit to this power of the body to compensate for great altitudes, but it will be noted that the process was in active operation in Captain Hingston's case at a height of 18,200 feet above sea-level.

The blood of the natives of the Pamir Plateau, habitually living at an average height of 13,500 feet, was carefully examined, and it was found that the number of red corpuscles in the blood of the average adult native was 7,696,000 per cubic millimeter, as compared with 7,402,000 in Captain Hingston's own blood at that level.

It is further of interest to learn that during descent from high to low altitudes, when the stimulus of the rarefied air was withdrawn, there was a gradual reduction in the number of the red corpuscles, though the rate of decrease was not so rapid as the rate of increase had been during the ascent. After a short residence at sea level the number of red corpuscles had fallen to normal—namely, a little under 5,000,000.

Death of Mrs. Sarah E. Sanborn

Mrs. Sarah E. Sanborn died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Carrie Davis, on Sunday afternoon at about five o'clock at the age of 86 years and five months. Mrs. Sanborn was born in Salem and was the daughter of John Osborne, a sea captain and '49er.

She came to Belchertown to live about 13 years ago. Shortly after her arrival she broke her hip and in consequence has been an invalid ever since. Death, however, was due to old age.

Mrs. Sanborn leaves besides her daughter, a son, Frank O. Sanborn of Revere, four grandchildren, Harold Davis and Osborn Davis of this town, Mrs. Charlotte E. Bridges of Dover, N. H., and George C. Sanborn of San Francisco, also three great grandchildren, Alice, George and Margaret Bridges of Dover, N. H.

The funeral was held from the home Tuesday afternoon at 1.30 o'clock, Rev. D. L. Hilliard officiating. Wednesday morning the body was taken to Greenlawn cemetery, Salem, for burial following a service in Dickinson Memorial chapel.

Fire Destroys Sabin House

A fire about 6.30 o'clock Wednesday night destroyed the Sabin house, one of the old landmarks in town. The building was owned by Elliott Cordner and was recently rented to Wm. Clark of Granby. Mr. Clark had not moved to the farm, although he had brought a load of goods there during the day and had built a fire in the furnace. The cause of the fire is thought to have been a defective chimney.

The fire department was given the alarm by Mrs. Foss who noticed smoke in the vicinity. Chief Fairchild and his men responded but nothing could be done to save the house. The barn, however, remains, due in large measure to a favoring wind.

The house which was destroyed was about 85 years old, the previous structure having burned in May, 1840. The farm on which the house stood has long been known as the Sabin farm, in view of the fact that for more than half a century Dea. Sabin resided there. When he took possession there was much rough, uncultivated land, but through hard work he developed the soil until at one time the Hampshire Agricultural society awarded the farm a premium as being the best managed farm in Hampshire county. Dea. Sabin wished his experience to suggest to young men "that it is not necessary to leave New England or to seek city homes in order to secure a competency."

After Dea. Sabin's death the farm was carried on for a few years by his daughter, Mrs. Maria D. S. Longley, who continued her father's successful management. She and her sister, Mrs. Abbie Sabin Williams of Pasadena, California, are the only living representatives of this old-time family.

Wells Tested

For the past week the water commissioners have been at work testing the wells on the Davis property. The work has gone forward night and day and water has been pumped from 9 of the 11 wells at the rate of from 150,000 to 160,000 gallons per day.

A can a day has been sent to the Department of Public Health for analysis and George Coffin of the department has been in town three days to see that the work was going satisfactorily. The test was completed yesterday.

As before stated there are 11 wells on the property varying from 30 to 37 feet in depth and were sunk some years ago by a private company which expected to carry the proposition alone.

WORK ON STAND PIPE

The stand pipe appears to be in the same stage of completion as a week ago, but actually considerable work has been done, principally riveting. The foreman states that, weather favoring, a week from today they will be ready for water to test the big tank.

To fill the same, the commissioners plan to attach to the water mains the centrifugal pump they have been using in testing the Davis wells.

Boy Scout Activities

The Boy Scouts have received their official Scout suits and now feel that they are real scouts. The night we received them, our Scout master sent us in all parts of the "Old Town Hall" to get into them. We got into our suits in a hurry and we looked good; after a lecture on "How to Wear a Scout Hat", we got our hats adjusted in the proper places. Our Scout master blew his whistle, which meant to get into the ranks where we belonged. He calmed us down and told each one in turn to step out of the ranks and gaze at the line of 26 boys, all in uniform with blue neckerchief. Each admitted that the troop of Boy Scouts in Belchertown would gain a point or two in the town.

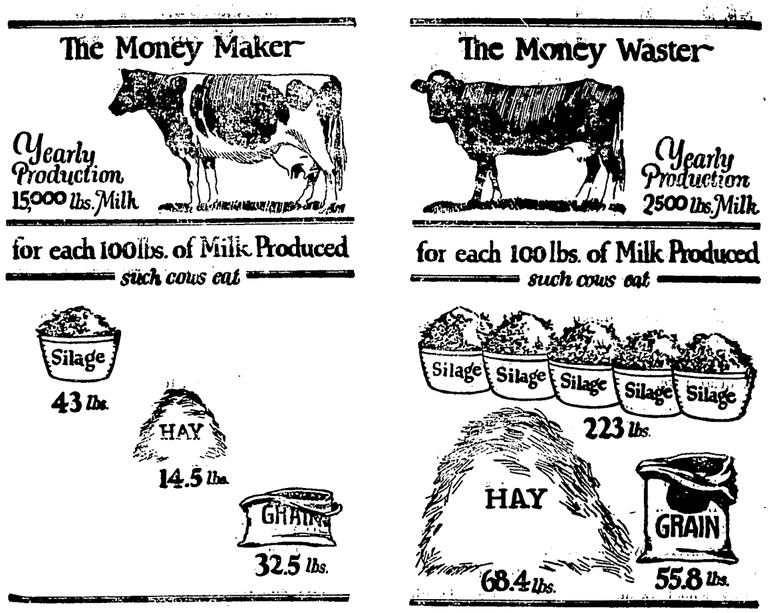
WHY COW TESTING PAYS THE FARMER



It is estimated that of the 24,000,000 dairy cows in the United States only one in three earns its owner a profit, one "breaks even" and one loses money.

Surplus milk, produced at no profit to dairymen, is one cause of low milk prices. The way to cut the surplus is to get rid of the wasters in dairy herds, which are a dead loss any way you figure.

The price of milk never was and never will be high enough to make scrub cows pay. Weigh your milk and weigh your feed. If there is a Cow Testing Association in your neighborhood, go and join it. If there is none, get together with your neighbors and organize one. Find out about your cows. Keep the money makers and turn the wasters over to the butcher.

The Boy Scouts are hunting for a brook and land where they can build a pond and log cabin for a camp to go to and have good times this summer.

We have an amateur bugler, who, after a little practice, does very well. We are proud of him.

At one of the recent Scout gatherings, Patrol II got a very nice compliment, that is, that they were the best marchers and best for discipline. We hope they can keep their good name.

Brother Piper is Patrol Leader of Patrol II. Sometimes he gets his commands in marching a little bit mixed up.

The Boy Scouts had a very nice silk flag presented to them by the Woman's Relief Corps of Belchertown.

More About It

"O Anne, I didn't write you about our rummage sale, did I?"

"Rummage sale? No. When did you have it?"

"We haven't had it yet, but we're going to."

"When, Peggy?"

"Why, when we get the 'rummage', I guess."

"Will you invite me up here again when you do have it? Probably I couldn't come unless it was on a week-end."

"We might have it on a Saturday afternoon and evening along the first of May."

"Now be sure to invite me, Peggy. Rummage sales are such heaps of fun."

"Why, have you had one? We've never had any before that I know of."

"Yes, didn't I tell you about it? Oh, it was when your father was so sick and we didn't write about much of anything else. The Philathea class got it up and Mums nearly worked her head off over it."

"Anne, tell me what you did. Did they make any money?"

"Peggy dear, they took in just heaps of it. Why they cleared about a hundred dollars."

"We couldn't do that in Belchertown."

"Perhaps not, but you ought to get quite a lot."

"How can we if nobody gives us anything?"

"But they will."

"But Miss Stebbins says that only about three people have offered us anything at all."

"Miss Stebbins? O, is it the Girl Scouts who are getting it up?"

"Yes, just the younger troop. The older girls are getting up a play. We wanted to but we haven't yet."

"A play is fun. Remember 'The Taming of Horrors' that we gave? But you'll like a rummage sale, too. It's just like keeping store and having a party at the same time. Everybody comes and visits and you give them a cup of tea—"

"We're not going to have tea. At least, I haven't heard of it. Alicia says she wishes we could make candy to sell, but I don't know about it."

"Home-made candy would be even nicer than tea for everybody likes candy. I know I do. I s'pose I wouldn't be so fat if I didn't eat so much sweet stuff. Honestly, Peggy, if it wasn't for that, I'd try for the Health Winners' badge. But I just can't imagine myself going three months without candy except at meal time."

"I've tried for that badge. The first time I started in, I came down with the measles the very first week and then last summer when I'd had a beautiful record for a month I up and broke my leg you know, and naturally you can't walk—how many miles a day is it? or take much of any other exercise very well with a broken leg. I wonder what would happen if I tried it again."

"I believe you want to, Peggy."

"Will you try it with me, Anne?"

"Let's talk about the rummage sale. Do you know what sells awfully well? Books. Yes, and another thing is hats. You wouldn't think so, but people buy them for the trimmings, they say, or perhaps for souvenirs. And clothes sell, too. Mums gave them four of Dad's shirts. He's getting awful fat—like me. But really he is almost funny, he's so fat. He simply couldn't wear those shirts any longer, thought they were perfectly good."

"People in Belchertown wouldn't have many silk shirts to contribute More likely it would be rags."

"And Mums gave them a pair of shoes which she wouldn't wear, they hurt her feet so. They sold for a dollar and a half and they weren't worn a particle."

"People in Belchertown wouldn't have shoes like that to give away."

"Don't children often outgrow their shoes before they are worn out? Wouldn't people give them to you?"

"I wish they would."

"Peggy, I have a perfectly gorgeous idea. You said 'rags' a minute ago. Why not gather rags? No, wait a minute. I don't mean rags to sell to a peddler. Uncle Tom has a garage and he has to buy cloths for cleaning his cars. Why couldn't you just ask for worn out things and then just cut off the buttons and things and cut them up for cleaning cloths? Couldn't you sell them to your garages here? I'm sure Uncle Tom would buy them, anyhow.—Dinner, Aunt Rys? All right. I was just telling Peggy—"

Forest Fires

These are busy days for J. J. Fairchild, fire chief and forest fire warden. Calls for assistance come in about every day. Sunday afternoon a forest fire started around Lake Metacomet. About eight acres of young pines belonging to George Bell were burned over.

On Tuesday the chief was called to three fires, one back of Andrew Sears's place that might have been a serious one if it had not been controlled, another at Leach's crossing where section men on the B. and M. needed help, and a bad one at 8 p. m. near Scarborough's Pond where 25 acres of brush land were burned over. 40 men were required to extinguish this.

Then on Wednesday night the fire department was called to the fire which destroyed the Sabin house. (This is elsewhere reported.) Yesterday morning a brush fire near C. G. Bartlett's residence got beyond control, burning over the lot in the rear of his home, and later in the day there was a good sized fire near Leach's crossing. So altogether it has been a busy week and a good rain would be much appreciated.

Food Sale

The Legion Auxiliary will hold their food sale of salads, baked beans, pies, cakes and doughnuts Saturday afternoon from 3.30 to 5 in the chapel. Tea and wafers will be on sale also. Some of Belchertown's best cooks are baking for this sale. Come and be convinced.

Roister Doister Play

The Roister Doisters of the Massachusetts Agricultural College will be in Belchertown Memorial Hall next Wednesday evening to present their annual Prom. show.

Their last year's performance of Dulcie is still remembered with pleasure by a good many of us, and from the manner in which many of the townspeople, old as well as young, imitated the heroine's speech and mannerisms for some time after the play, the production must have made a decided impression on our minds.

The play this year is called "Wedding Bells." It is a New York production, written by Salisbury Field, and was mentioned by the well-known critic, Burns Mantle, as one of the notable contributions to comedy for the year in which it was written.

The cast contains several of last year's players, including "Dulcie" herself in the role of Marcia Hunter. For other reasons than this the play should be successful. It has already been produced in Deerfield and Amherst, and will be given in Pittsfield next Friday evening. The Belchertown production will not be, then, a dress rehearsal in any sense. The play has been in rehearsal for over three months, and the faculty manager and coach will accompany the cast here to insure a good production.

Belchertown has had few enough full-length, spoken plays to attract her people. Only one has been given here this year. Admission price is low, when it is considered that expenses will run over seventy-five dollars.

Do these facts warrant your support? If they do, there is no reason why the college performers should not make an annual trip to Belchertown to give us some of the better type of entertainment which is so essential to good community life. The cast will be found elsewhere.

Letter from President's Father

R. E. Fairchild is not one of the kind that goes out "autograph hunting", but he is one of the friendly sort who get many valuable recompenses which, perhaps, could not be secured directly. When he saw the full page spread of Coolidge pictures in a recent Boston Post, that of the sugar camp in Vermont, immediately caught his eye, as its buildings and setting made it look for all the world like the camp he himself owned while in the Green Mountain state.

Responding to a latent desire to drink again from the old sap bucket, Mr. Fairchild dropped a line to the President's father, telling him of recollections that had been awakened and asking him if by any chance he could get some of his product.

His letter was sufficiently human to draw forth a personal letter and although Mr. Fairchild was not able to satisfy his appetite as far as syrup is concerned, he does highly prize the letter, which is a model of Coolidge simplicity.

Plymouth, Vt., Apr. 7, 1925.
Mr. R. E. Fairchild,
Belchertown, Mass.
Dear Sir:-

In reply to your letter of Mar. 31st will say: Our sugar season proves to be late and very poor. Walter H. Lynds of Plymouth, Vt., makes superior quality syrup and sugar. He may be able to fill a small order. Syrup in tin cans about $2.50 pr. gal. Sugar in 10 lb. tin pails about 35c pr. lb. here. I am not making sugar this season. Let my lot. I am

Respectfully,
John C. Coolidge

Boy Scout Activities

We have found out that Brother Menard is extra good at both reading and sending signals by flags.

There are twenty-seven boys that have joined the Boy Scouts in this town and over half that many are present at the regular Scout meetings. The Boy Scouts had an "Inspection" last Tuesday night, at which they received their "Tenderfoot" badges. Most of the Scouts are working on their test to become a "Second Class Scout".

The Boy Scouts have been rehearsing for an entertainment to be given some time in the future. It will be something different from the usual entertainment and the Scouts feel that it will be enjoyed by those who see it when the time comes to give it.

There are just enough boys that are Scouts to make three full patrols. Patrol Leader Warner and his assistant Allen have the older boys; Patrol Leader Piper and his assistant Camp have the next, while Patrol Leader Haskell with his assistant Rhodes have the newest members. All are very good at their office.

Each patrol has the name of some animal: Patrol I call themselves "Buffaloes" and Patrol II "Flying Eagles". Patrol III are slow in finding a name but it probably will be a good one when they do get one.

Attaching Pump

M. C. Baggs is making connections for attaching the pumps to the water mains at the point of contact with the State school line on South Main St., preparatory to filling the standpipe for a test of the same. Workmen were busy on the roof of the structure yesterday.

The water commissioners have begun work extending the mains at the lower end of Mill Valley St., work which was started in the late fall.

Team Work

It is not enough to do a fine piece of work alone. One is not an ideal worker until he learns to work with others. Many tasks can never be done by a single person. Two are needed, or it may be nine as in a base ball game, or eleven as in a foot ball game, or a great army as in battle. No matter how diligently one person may work in a great enterprise, his work will amount to little unless he works with others.

We may learn to work with others by working with them. We learn to walk by walking. So we learn team work by actually working with them. If a base ball nine is to be proficient, they must practice together. No amount of individual practise all by one's self is sufficient. They must all get out in the field together. It is not enough for a foot ball player to be fully acquainted with all the rules of the game, he must put in many hours of practise with his mates. No manager would allow even a star player to be in the game unless he had played with others.

We do not work together enough. We try to do alone a task that was meant for two or five or a hundred. If we are to bring about a reform of any kind, we must work with others. So there is a great advantage in organization.

It is a good thing for us to learn to work with others. It is good in the family and in the lodge, in the church and in the community. It is good for us to give and take. It is good discipline to learn to follow and obey our leader even if the guide is not perfect.

Do people love to work with us? Are we willing to sacrifice any personal glory for the common good? Do we always insist on our way? Do we pull with others? These are questions we do well to ask ourselves at times. The individual who finds that he cannot work with others without constant irritation should take himself seriously in hand. For no man is a satisfactory worker unless he works well along with others.

Easter at the Methodist Church

Special exercises marked Easter Sunday at the Methodist church. A concert by the Sunday school was given at the time of the morning service. In the evening the Easter story was told in song by a choir of 18 voices, who rendered the cantata, The Thorn Crowned King, to the appreciation of music lovers and to the uplift of the large audience. Rev. Mr. Snape gave a fitting address at both services.

Forty Easter lillies and buds, a large white cross with trailing green vines, besides other plants, made a symphony in green and white at the front of the church.

The program at the morning service follows:

Easter at the Congregational Church

The program given below was rendered at the special Easter service at the Congregational church Sunday evening. The presentation, "Life Victorious," by Margaret Slattery, was very impressive. Power, Wealth, Fame, etc., impersonated by young ladies, all came short of supplying life's real need. Christianity alone met the exacting test.

The profusion of flowers, including Easter lillies, helped to give expression to the services of the day and were later distributed to sick and shut-ins.

The Rummage Sale

Who is getting it up?
The Girl Scouts of Troop II.
When do you have it?
May 2, 1925, afternoon and evening.
Where will it be?
At D. D. Hazen's old store.
Has much been given you?
A lot of nice things from one family.
Then you want just nice things?
O, no! We want lots of old things to sell for a few cents each.
Do you want magazines?
Yes indeed. They tell me that in other places the crowd stands in line waiting to buy magazines.
Who is going to set prices for you?
We have asked the local Scout committee, Mrs. L. G. Warren, chairman, to do this.
Are you going around to solicit things?
We may have to, but we hope not.
What shall I do with the things I have ready for the sale?
A Girl Scout will call for them if you want her to.
Where shall I take the things I have here in the car?
Leave them at Hazen's old store, 2nd floor, paper department.
Are you going to have anything besides 'rummage' to sell?
We plan to have a home-made candy booth.
What will you do with things that don't sell?
Give them to some charitable organization.
But if they are not suitable for that purpose?
A pedler will buy mere rags if they are not wanted at the local garages.
Do you think people will come to a rummage sale?
They will if they are bargain hunters.
Yes, that's right, and you know a 'rummage' sale sort of appeals to a woman's—well, you know—curiosity.

Standpipe Filled

The standpipe, erected by the Chicago Bridge and Iron Works, has been completed and is full of water. The centrifugal pump used at the test wells was attached to the mains at the point of contact with the State School line, and with the use of a tractor for power, pumped the water to the structure about 100 feet high. The work of filling the tank was completed Wednesday night.

By the use of test gauges the exact pressure with a full head of water was determined. At E. C. Witt's the reading was 62 lbs. and at Roland Shaw's 52 lbs.

It has not yet been decided whether to keep the tank full by means of the temporary pump or to shut the gate and let the water remain on tap for fire protection only, awaiting permanent connection with the district owned wells.

Only minor leaks were found in the tank. Should anything go wrong in the near future the district has the guarantee of the company to make repairs.

Considerable satisfaction has been expressed at the business-like way the workmen have gone at their task of putting up the big structure. Each man seemed to know his place, and the riveting was the loudest thing on the job.

Incidentally the workmen left town with a high appreciation of our people. At least the wives of some of them let it out by saying that while they had travelled all over the country, they were especially pleased with the hospitality manifested here.

DEED PASSED

The water commissioners, who have held an option on the Davis wells, secured a deed of the property yesterday. The recent tests were very satisfactory and warranted their purchase. The wells were lowered only about three feet after a week's pumping of an average of 150,000 gallons a day, and an hour after the pump was stopped, the water came back a foot.

Samples of water sent each day to the Department of Health at Boston were satisfactory to the department.

As soon as work on Mill Valley St. has been completed, digging will begin on East Walnut St., where the pipe line will be extended to the new source of supply. Probably early in the week work will begin on this section.

Grange Notes

Grange was in charge of the State School members Tuesday night. The program of events was as follows:

Piano Solo Miss Corrine Giguere
Reading Joan Rowland
Tableaux, "Spirit of 1776"
Misses Mary Howard, Florence Nelson, Rachael Allbee
Dance Miss Helen Boakes
Piano acc. by Dr. Westwell

A game, "History Lesson by Radio," was won by Belding Jackson. In another game, called "Rockets," Mrs. H. F. Putnam was the winner. Charles Sanford was high scorer in the memory test.

Refreshments consisted of fruit, punch and cake. Dancing concluded the evening's program.

A Treat Coming to P. T. A.

As April 27, the date set for the Parent-Teacher Association meeting, comes during vacation week, the executive committee have decided to hold the meeting May 8. As the meeting is to be Fathers' Night, the program will be for the benefit of the fathers. Rev. Hanna of M. A. C. has been engaged to speak, and it has been decided to hold the meeting in Memorial hall, and have it an open meeting so that all adults interested—both sexes—may be privileged to hear Mr. Hanna.

The speaker is a young man, and is the one to whom M. A. C. boys take their problems and perplexities. It is an unusual and pleasant opportunity to have such a speaker come to Belchertown. There will be asked the small admission fee of 15 cents so as to meet the necessary expenses. There will be special music during the evening.

Course in Government

At the W. C. T. U. meeting last Tuesday afternoon a course of studies in government was commenced. This course will take some months to complete. The Union invites all women, not members, to attend the coming meetings and receive the benefit that will accrue therefrom.

These meetings will be very informal and opportunities will be given for asking questions, which if impossible of being answered at that meeting, will be given at the next.

The next meeting, May 22, will complete the study of the Constitution of the United States. A whole course in Government studies offered free! All you have to give is your time—an hour or so one afternoon a month. Interesting as well as instructive.

Play at State School

A musical play, "Echoes From Sally," in three acts was given at the State School Wednesday and Thursday evenings, Wednesday evening being a dress rehearsal. The pupils entered into the play and acted their parts well. Certainly the audience was amused.

Afraid of Heights

In one of the best descriptions of old age is found this characteristic, he is "afraid of that which is high." No longer does he climb the high tower or go close to the precipice. He walks with a cane and keeps his feet on the solid earth.

But many a young person and many in middle life are afraid of that which is high. Many are afraid of high ideals. The cynic is always sneering at ideals and disparaging our idealists. And many a politician even is afraid to put an ideal into reality. Many of us are afraid to advocate anything above the level of dead respectability. We say we wish to keep our feet on the solid earth. Instead of standing up for a thing that ought to be, which is high, we stand up for the practical thing which is easily obtainable. We hesitate about espousing a cause which will not succeed at the next election.

We fear the heights because we are lazy. The lazy life is warm and comfortable and pleasant. It takes some forthputting of the will to scale the heights.

We fear the heights because we like to be with the crowd. We know that the higher up any mountain we go, the fewer companions we will have and we are afraid we will be lonesome on the heights. All idealists have been lonely.

We fear the heights because they are dangerous and we wish to play safe. "Safety First" is our motto. We want to take no chances of falling.

We fear to climb the heights on the ground we might fail. We might not be equal to the task of reaching the top. We might meet with failure and disaster.

But Robert Browning held that we "fall to rise," and "are baffled to fight better." It is better to fall and fail than not to aspire. "Not failure, but low aim is crime."

O venture, men! No man has ever amounted to much who has never ventured. O venture, America! High duties are calling you!

Czechgovinia, had fled from his country because of a revolution, and being penniless, was forced to work as a waiter in The Allen Inn Cafe. On Thursday, his day off, however, he put on his royal robes and mingled with Society.

Mr. Farquer arranged a reception in honor of the Duke and arranged to have a famous Russian dancer, Madam Nookerova, perform. Otis Hooper, a theatrical manager, learns that the Russian dancer cannot come, and substitutes Sally, a dishwasher at The Allen Inn and claims she is the Russian dancer.

Act II pictured the garden at Mr. Farquer's Long Island home, where Mr. Pops broke up the reception in his search for his lost dish-washer. Sally is ordered out by Mr. Farquer but his son George rushes to her aid.

In Act III the happy couples are seen leaving The Little Church 'Round the Corner.

Interspersed in the acts were the following special numbers:

Song, "All Alone" Miss White Dance "Nifty Three"
Song, "O Katharina"
Dance "Nifty Three" and another one
Song, "At the End of the Road" Mae Brazee
The Four Lost Chords
Sally's solo dance

There is always something distinctive about the presentations at the State School. For instance "The Four Lost Chords" was a musical selection played on four home-made violins constructed by the boys who played them. They were crude affairs (the State School address could be seen on some of the boards) but they developed music to a surprising degree. The bows were also the product of the boys' ingenuity.

Little by little the school is also adding to the scenery. The last act called for a scene representing the entrance to a church, and State School administrative ability produced a most realistic effect. An organ played behind the scene rendered the wedding march. The costuming for the performance was also appropriate and attractive.

The play was given under the direction of Dr. Westwell. Gould's 7-piece orchestra furnished music.

Town Items

The Roister Doisters of M. A. C. made good with "Wedding Bells" Wednesday evening. They played before a good house that was most appreciative of their efforts. As predicted by the "advance story" they fully upheld their reputation of a year ago. Mt. Vernon Chapter O. E. S., under whose auspices the play was given, will realize a fair sum from the evening, but the bringing to town of a full fledged college play is worth something aside from any other recompense.

Clark Spellman of Lowell spent the week-end and holiday with his sister, Mrs. Alfred Squires of Maple St., Mr. Spellman has just been transferred from the Lowell Electric Light Corporation to the El Paso Electric Co., El Paso, Texas, where he has a position as distribution engineer. The Rummage Sale

At Hazen's old store
Just watch the door
When May the 2nd comes 'round,
For there you will find your neighbors and friends,
And everyone else from the very ends
Of good old Belchertown.

You'll be tickled when you enter,
You'll be more so when you leave,
For the thing that gave you heartaches
Will be up your neighbor's sleeve,

While you'll shie around the corner
With a package held right tight
That always caused the shivers
To run up her back at night.

So 'twill be a happy ending
To a misfit all around,
And they'll "live happy ever after"
In good old Belchertown.

Incendiary Forest Fire

J. J. Fairchild, forest fire warden, had a bad fire on his hands Wednesday. It started on the old Simpson place in the north part of the town and burned over about 150 acres. Much valuable pine, belonging to W. D. Cowles of Amherst, was destroyed. Chief Fairchild had 40 men on the job and it took them 5 hours to put the blaze out. Outside help from a neighboring district arrived about as the fire was gotten under control.

It seems that this is the fifth fire that has occurred within a radius of a mile in the last three weeks, causing ground for belief that they have been of incendiary origin.

Can Close Its Affairs

After a lapse of over two years since the declaration of a pre-mortem dividend, the Community League directors find that they can dispose of the remaining assets of the corporation that voted to go out of existence some time previous.

G. H. B. Green, Jr., of Boston, has had charge of closing up the League's affairs, as far as government agencies were concerned, and after much correspondence and repeated conferences, both in Boston and Washington, has written that obstructions have all been cleared away and that the League can die without fear that the bones will ever be disturbed.

Because of this unexpected delay and consequent expense, the full amount of the original shares cannot be allotted, but no doubt the checks which the treasurer will disburse as soon as the exact amount due each is determined, will come in handy.

Those having certificates of stock will do well to hunt them up as they will be asked for before disbursement is made.

Roswell Allen of Springfield, president of the League, was in town Wednesday evening to attend the directors' meeting.

Death of Franklin W. Fellows

Franklin W. Fellows, 82, died Saturday night in Springfield hospital where he had been for about two weeks.

Mr. Fellows was born in Barre and came to this town to live about forty-five years ago. He was a member of the G. A. R. and conducted a harness shop here for some time.

He leaves besides his widow, a son, Burt Fellows, and a daughter, Mrs. C. A. Wood of Northampton. There are two grandchildren, Miss Dorothy Parkman of Miami, Fla. and Miss Eleanor Parkman of Hartford, Ct.

The funeral was held at the West Walnut St. home on Tuesday at 2 p. m., Rev. D. L. Hilliard, officiating. Bearers were members of the American Legion. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

New Bus Line Starts Today

The new bus line to Springfield starts today. For the present the bus will leave Belchertown at 8.45 a. m. and 4 p. m. Returning it will leave Springfield at 12.15 p. m. and 5.45 p. m.

On Saturdays, Sundays and holidays the leaving time will be the same as on the Holyoke line.

Smoker Monday Night

The Metacomet Fox, Rod and Gun club will hold a club smoker next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. The committee is endeavoring to secure State Detective Daly to come and give reminiscences, which should be interesting.

The purpose of the meeting is to revive interest in the club. One of the topics for discussion will be the matter of building a club house. Refreshments will be served.

Not only are club members urged to make every effort to attend, but those interested in sports and desirous of membership will be welcome.

Removal of our Fears

Time removes many of our fears. We fear to cross a certain bridge which we see in the distance. But by the time we have reached the place we find that we do not have to cross the bridge at all. How much useless anxiety we have caused ourselves by crossing bridges before we reached them!

Many of the international fears we had six years ago are removed. Some advised against our entrance into international relationships for fear we would get entangled in the mess in Europe. But there is less to fear in Europe now. It looks as though France and Germany have realized that they must get on decently with each other. There is a new outlook, a new spirit emerging in Europe. Devastated countries are getting on their feet. The situation is not nearly as hopeless as it was.

Others urged the policy of isolation for fear that Europe's motive was to get America to bear the greater share of the burden and pay much of the debt and rescue civilization from the scrap heap. We have found that these fears were for the most part groundless. We have discovered that no nation is striving to entrap us in a scheme whereby they receive all the benefit and we accept all the responsibility.

Still others feared that if the nations got together, a sort of superstate would be set up, and all liberty would be taken away from America. No one can rationally retain this fear any longer. This fear has lived only in imagination. No nation has been deprived of its liberty and freedom.

So with the other fears. The only sensible thing for us to do after we have discovered how groundless our fears were is to cast out all these fears and not hesitate to cooperate in every possible manner in international relations. We should without a moment's hesitation enter the Permanent Court of International Justice and come out boldly and say we must have a new day in our foreign relations.

Annual Meeting of Historical Association

been opened each week for inspection. (Many each year fail to register.) August was the banner month, showing a registration of 87. 18 states were represented, visitors coming literally from coast to coast, and from Maine on the North to So. Carolina on the South.

Increased interest has been shown by the large number of gifts contributed and loans made. All visitors appear to be greatly interested in the building and collection, often asking, "How have you done this?"

Tribute was paid to the memory of Mrs. Alice Montague Kendall, who was a charter member of the Association and one who ever worked for its interests.

A committee consisting of A. F. Bardwell, L. H. Blackmer and Mrs. H. F. Curtis was chosen to investigate the records of Belchertown prior to the Revolutionary days and to see about the advisability of publishing the same.

After the business meeting, Wallace Nutting's book, "Massachusetts Beautiful," recently purchased by Clapp Memorial Library, was shown and reviewed. Aside from descriptions it contains a series of titled pictures which cover the entire state. Two of these are Belchertown views, "A Belchertown Margin" and "Belchertown Meadows." Mr. Nutting states that it is impossible to separate the sense of beauty in Massachusetts from a sense of the past, which gives a halo to every landscape.

Buy Coal Now!

For your own sake — not ours—buy your coal now.

OWING to limited storage and transportation facilities it is most important that you order and take delivery of your coal now. If the mines are not kept at steady production, it will mean a definite shortage later. Coal can only be mined at a certain rate and once the schedule gets behind it is impossible to catch up again.

Finally when the demand does come, transportation lines are unable to speed up sufficiently so there is a technical as well as a real shortage. This all operates against you by forcing up the price and making delivery uncertain.

Coal will not be cheaper; it is sure to be higher.

Amherst Road Contract

The selectmen went to Boston Tuesday for the purpose of opening bids relating to the building of a portion of the Amherst road. These were advertised for in the name of the town. The selectmen also conferred with the Department of Public Works.

The contract was let to the Lane Construction Co., the concern that is building the Amherst end of the road. The contract price was approximately $121,000 and calls for construction beginning at the chapel at Dwight, and thence over the new route east of the railroad tracks and ponds to a point two or three hundred feet above the place commonly known as the Simon Kelley farm. The distance called for is 15,122 ft., and is probably all that will be built this year, due to the cost. It is expected that work will shortly begin on this stretch of road.

Free Chest Clinic May 14

Mrs. H. D. Hoag announces that a free chest clinic will be conducted in Memorial hall, Thursday, May14, at 1.30 p. m. Dr. Francis O'Brian of the Leeds Sanitarium will conduct the clinic, assisted by doctors from the Westfield State Sanitarium. It is to be especially noted that adults as well as children can avail themselves of this opportunity free of charge. The county nurse will send reports to all such later.

As a result of these periodical clinics, the death rate from tuberculosis has been cut in half in the last ten years, in this state.

Dies in Holyoke

Mrs. Anna Dickinson Randall, 63, formerly of this town, died of pneumonia at the Holyoke City hospital last Saturday evening at 9.30 o'clock. For the last two years Mrs. Randall has made her home with Dr. Preston of South Hadley. She recently contracted the grip which developed into the disease which caused her death.

Mrs. Randall was born in West Pelham and was the daughter of George and Emeline Bartlett Dickinson. She married Herbert Randall, who died several years ago. She has had numerous places of residence, including Dwight, Belchertown, Greenwich and South Hadley.

She leaves a niece, Sadie Plaskett and a sister-in-law, Miss Alice Randall of Townshend, Vt., besides a number of cousins.

The funeral was held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at Foster's undertaking parlors, Holyoke, Rev. Jesse G. Nichols, officiating. A number from this town attended.

On Tuesday the body was taken to Townshend, Vt., for burial in the family lot.

Bus Line Service

With the starting last Friday of the Belchertown-Springfield bus line, this town is well served as regards this modern method of transportation. The patronage on the new line has been nothing spectacular, but shows signs of permanency. A new Graham Bros. street car type of bus is in use on this line. The schedule will be found elsewhere. During July and August, school vacation months, the schedule will probably be changed.

The bus arrives in and leaves Springfield at the Hartford-Springfield Street Railway terminal on Worthington St., opposite Broadway, where half-hour connections can be made with Hartford. Busses also leave there for Worcester every three hours. The Pittsfield bus leaves thrice daily as does also the Greenfield bus, from the same place.

The fare to Springfield is 85 cents—5 ten cent zones to Ludlow, and 35 cents from Ludlow to Springfield.

Going to the city, passengers can only be taken on between here and Ludlow, but can be left anywhere. Returning, no short riders are allowed between Springfield and Ludlow.

H. B. Ketchen, who owns this line as well as the older one, expects shortly a new Graham Bros. sedan type bus to use on the Holyoke line to replace the one bought last year, which he recently sold.

Serving patrons in Enfield and Greenwich by use of spare room in the school busses which make connections to both cities, quite a large number of people are benefited by the two lines.

An Appreciation

A mother's pride in her children is considered pardonable, I believe, and on the same grounds possibly the public will bear with a captain's pride in her Girl Scouts. Moreover, judging from the many kind words which have reached her, she is not alone in her appreciation of the work done last week by the girls of Troop II.

With one exception—that of marking the goods with a selling price, a work which the Girl Scout Committee kindly consented to undertake—these girls, all of them below High School age, managed the whole Rummage Sale practically without adult assistance. They cleaned the D. D. Hazen store of the accumulated dust and dirt of a

An Earlier Bus Line

Apropos to the opening of the new auto bus line to Springfield is the following notice copied from the "Hampshire Sentinel and Farmers and Manufacturers Journal" of Nov. 14, 1827.

"New Line: Accomodation Stage from Springfield to Belchertown via Springfield factory village.

"lv. Springfield every Monday, Wednesday and Friday at half past twelve P. M. and arrive at Belchertown at 4 P. M.

"Returning, it will leave Belchertown every Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday at 8 A. M. and arrive at Springfield at half past eleven."

"The Hampshire Sentinel and Farmer's and Mechanic's Journal" was published weekly in Belchertown about a century ago. Terms $2.00 per year.

We have at the Stone House files more or less complete for the years 1828, 1829, 1830 and 1831, also several dated 1827.

Some of the items found in this newspaper which was published during that flourishing period of Belchertown's history are interesting as showing the changes which the years have brought.

In the issue of Nov. 17, 1830 we read, "Amherst College: The Annual Catalogue of this Institution has just been issued, and we find the following:-seven Professors and three Instructors. Undergraduates: Seniors 61, Juniors 40, Sophomores 50, Freshmen 37, Total 188. The necessary annual expense of each student are from $93 to $118 according to the circumstances and habits of each individual.' "

Under date of Dec. 1, 1830 we find: "Reminiscence: In the year 1788, Mr. Jonas Holland, a respectable farmer now living in this town, made the brick which was used to build the first house that was erected in Ohio, of that material. The bricks were made in Virginia opposite Marietta and were carried across the river to that place...."

March 2, 1831 under notices of births, marriages and deaths, there were no marriages, but instead the following: "Marrying is out of fashion in this vicinity."

Milking Blindfolded ?

Dairymen who keep no records of feed consumed and milk produced by each of their cows might as well be milking blindfolded. There is no way for them to know which cows are paying a profit and which are not.

Keep a simple daily record of each cow's feed and milk. (We'll supply the blanks without charge.) This will enable you quickly to get rid of those that are eating up the profits the others earn.

Buy Coal Now!

For your own sake — not ours—buy your coal now.

OWING to limited storage and transportation facilities it is most important that you order and take delivery of your coal now. If the mines are not kept at steady production, it will mean a definite shortage later. Coal can only be mined at a certain rate and once the schedule gets behind it is impossible to catch up again.

Finally when the demand does come, transportation lines are unable to speed up sufficiently so there is a technical as well as a real shortage. This all operates against you by forcing up the price and making delivery uncertain.

Coal will not be cheaper; it is sure to be higher.

Order your coal for the coming Winter at ONCE.

year's vacancy. Borrowing their brothers' or neighbors' carts, including an occasional brother or neighbor, they gathered load after load of salable material up and down the streets. With some help from two older Scouts they arranged this material in order, displaying part of it in the show windows and the rest in separate departments of the store. Under the oversight of two or three older people, these girls, most of them eleven or twelve years old, sold the goods to the public Saturday afternoon and evening and took in $36.08. Do you know of a captain who wouldn't be proud of a troop which could plan and put through a scheme like this?

But back of the many hours of work, the careful planning, the thoughtful execution, stands the public, without whose cooperation all would have come to naught. We are truly grateful for the many gifts which came to us, all of them without personal solicitation, and everything in good condition. We feel that they were really gifts and not just things to be gotten rid of.

We are also grateful to the buying public who patronized our sale, without whom everything would have been a dead failure. We hope you were pleased and satisfied.

We would not forget, either, the families which these Scouts belong to, the mothers who spared their daughters from home so much during the week, the brothers and sisters, older and younger, who helped out in various ways, the electrician who made electric lights possible for that evening, the good neighbor and friend who gave us the use of his meter, the Scout Committee who sponsored the enterprise and willingly undertook everything they were asked to do—to all our friends we acknowledge our indebtedness and feel truly grateful for their abundant kindnesses.

Dies in Ware Hospital

Irvin R. Pratt of Enfield died of cerebral abcess, after only a three days' illness, Tuesday morning in Ware hospital. Mr. Pratt was born in Belchertown Jan. 17, 1894, the son of Homer S. and Minnie Stevens Pratt and had resided in Charlestown, N. H., Monson and Enfield, Mass. On Feb. 15, 1922, he was married to Miss Doris Crowther of Enfield.

Mr. Pratt was a licensed fireman and at the time of his death was employed at the Grant S. Kelley Mills at Smiths. Previously he had been employed in a similar capacity at the State School here, the Monson State hospital and the Ellis Mills, also in Monson. He was a veteran of the World war and a member of the American Legion.

He leaves besides his widow, three children, the youngest only ten days' old, a father and step-mother, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Pratt of this town; a brother, Theron V. Pratt of this town and a sister, Mrs. G. R. Stone of Enfield.

The funeral was held Thursday afternoon at two o'clock (standard time) in the Congregational chapel at Enfield. Rev. John S. Curtis officiated. Burial was in Woodlawn cemetery, Enfield.

Club Field Day

Last Friday was club field day and the children made the most of it. Sports occupied the forenoon and after dinner an elaborate program was rendered in the town hall.

The style show attracted attention and represented considerable work. This was put on by the Busy Bees of Bondsville. Sixteen of them, attired in dresses of their own making, came onto the platform in groups, each group dressed for morning, afternoon or evening, as the case might be.

A play, "Spirit of Club Work," written by Miss Randolph of Union school, was presented by the club of that school.

The center intermediate scholars put on a play entitled, "That Calf." Both plays had club point to them.

A complete plastol art demonstration by two Franklin boys was novel and instructive. Miss Shea, the leader at Franklin, answered a number of questions regarding the work.

Miss Woodward, who directed the singing for the program, gave a talk to the children and explained the rewards possible to club workers. A veritable rainbow of medals, pins, weeks at camp, etc., were placed on the young people's horizon to allure them.

But the work the clubs have done, which occupied a table running the full length of the hall, certainly allured the spectators. Whether education has been intensified may be a question, but the giving over of a day to club activities shows that it has become diversified, and along practical lines.

Mr. Whippen, county club agent, directed the activities of the day and at the close of the program gave out the awards.

Belchertown Defeats Smith Academy

Farmers' Exchange Meeting

The meeting of the Eastern States Farmers' Exchange in Memorial hall last Thursday night was attended by about fifty people in this vicinity. The speakers were John D. Zink, general manager of the Exchange, Mr. Hawes of Swift River and W. B. Harvey of Springfield. The speeches were in the interests of grain buying through the exchange.

The speakers said that they didn't expect to monopolize the grain business, but wanted it put on a competitive basis.

An elaborate description of the new mill purchased in Buffalo was given at the meeting. About a car of grain a month is purchased here through the exchange.

The Boy

It was Father's Night at the parent-Teacher Association meeting last Friday evening, even though the complexion of the audience did not indicate it. But mothers have a way of passing things on to the fathers, so perhaps they were reached after all.

Rev. John Hanna of M. A. C. was very interesting and his fund of stories was limitless. It would have been a restless boy indeed who could not have survived the length of his address.

But the boys were not dissected very badly, although he did give the crude elements of which they are made, included in which, "strange to say" are about three pounds of brains. Mr. Hanna appraised the boy quite sympathetically, and when he was through with him, he presented a rather respectable specimen.

He commented on the several stages in the boy's life, viz. the Imitative, Inquisitive, Curious, Social, Religious, and explained their workings out.

The imitative is the first stage and is one of action. Kindergarten work in school and church is built on the instinct of moving around. This does not mean, the speaker said, that action sometimes does not need curbing.

The inquisitive stage starts with facing the simple facts of one's anatomy and reaches out into every avenue of life. It causes the boy sometimes to ask the most uncomfortable questions, yet Mr. Hanna called attention to the fact that that is the way the world moves on and is the cause of nearly all our inventions. Some in this class have been extreme and have defied our school system and seemed dangerous sometimes, but their contribution to the world's life has been great indeed.

The speaker called attention here to the age when the gang spirit reigns supreme in a boy's life. It is here, he said, that the Scout organization has performed a public service by harnessing something worth while to this instinct. He had only words of praise for this national movement

In closing, he said that boys are religious. They may not sing, "I want to be an angel" and such songs but they have natures that respond to the real thing. His testimony on this point, as on some others, was not based upon theoretical knowledge, but upon actual contact with the subject of his address—The Boy.

Shooting Last Friday

Quite a flurry of excitement was caused in town last Friday by the shooting at an early hour of Eugene Robitaille (Rabido) of Putnam, Ct. It seems that he started the night before to walk to Bondsville, stopped to rest at the barn of E. L. Schmidt and fell asleep. Neglecting to take his suit case when he left, he returned to what he thought was the same place, but instead tried to get into Richard Brennan's barn. The family was awakened and Mr. Brennan investigated with a shot gun and held up his man, but when he thought he was reaching for a gun, he shot him in the shoulder.

Officer Peeso was called but no firearms were found on the man. He was taken to Holyoke hospital where he is recovering, although the muscles are badly torn. As a result of the incident a number of raids were conducted on places in town suspicioned to be wet, but no evidence was secured.

Proof! that Larro Feeding Pays

The following table was compiled from the records of a recent test conducted by the Carroll County, Ohio, Cow Testing Association, covering 30 days in January of this year:

% of Larro Fed	No. of Cows Fed	Aver. Milk per Cow	Aver. Fat per Cow	Cows in Quality List
100%	75	654.7	27.27	18
60%	49	506.1	23.95	5
None	52	443.2	21.81	2

Note that there was a yield of 211.5 lbs. more milk per cow from Larro-fed producers than from those that received no Larro.

A trial will prove to you that Larro feeding pays, in milk and money.

Buy Coal Now!

For your own sake — not ours—buy your coal now.

OWING to limited storage and transportation facilities it is most important that you order and take delivery of your coal now. If the mines are not kept at steady production, it will mean a definite shortage later. Coal can only be mined at a certain rate and once the schedule gets behind it is impossible to catch up again.
Finally when the demand does come, transportation lines are unable to speed up sufficiently so there is a technical as well as a real shortage. This all operates against you by forcing up the price and making delivery uncertain.
Coal will not be cheaper; it is sure to be higher.
Order your coal for the coming Winter at ONCE.

Dies in Michigan

The body of Mrs. Mary (Alden) Ferry, wife of Arthur E. Ferry of Lansing, Michigan, was brought here for burial Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Ferry was born in Belchertown, the daughter of Freeman Alden, and spent the early part of her married life here. From Belchertown Mr. and Mrs. Ferry moved to Springfield and later to Michigan, where they have resided for many years.

During her residence here Mrs. Ferry was an active worker in the Congregational church, a constant teacher in the Sunday School from the age of sixteen, a regular member of the choir and was one of the organizers of the first W. C. T. U. in town. She was a Mt. Holyoke college graduate and used her training and ability in many lines of work.

Besides her husband, she leaves a daughter, Mabel, and a son, Charles, both of whom came east with the body. The burial services were at Mt. Hope cemetery and were in charge of Rev. D. L. Hilliard

Firestone

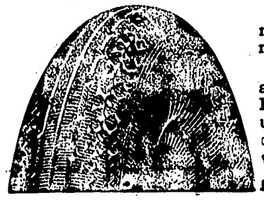
FULL-SIZE GUM-DIPPED

BALLOONS

The extra quality built in by the extra process of Gum-Dipping, the economy of these wonderful tires and the added mileage obtained from them during the past two years, has created such a large demand that over 75% of Firestone's mammoth production is now Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords.

This has greatly increased the total sales volume and the huge Firestone factories are now working on a 24-hour schedule to supply the demand.

This large volume, produced under the most economical tire manufacturing methods, permits Firestone to sell these extra-process Full-Size Balloons at no extra cost to car owners. And this in the face of greatly advanced cost for crude rubber brought about by the operation of the British Rubber Restriction Act.



Gum-Dipping means longer mileage—greater economy—at no extra cost to you!

Enjoy the safety, economy and comfort of Balloon Gum-Dipped Cords this summer. Let us equip your car now at low cost—with liberal allowance for your old tires.

Death of Lyman A. Randolph

Lyman A. Randolph of Dwight died last Friday at Dr. Sanderson's sanitarium in Amherst after a long illness. He was born in Belchertown October 19, 1857, the son of Alonzo and Clarissa (Bishop) Randolph. On Nov. 18, 1885, he was married to Lilly A. Wood, who survives him.

Mr. Randolph was a life-long resident of this town, owning a farm at Dwight. He was one of the founders of Union chapel, located in that community.

Mr. Randolph leaves besides his widow, two daughters, Mrs. Fred Steinbeck and Mrs. C. J. Hill of Dwight, the latter being teacher in the commercial department at B. H. S., also a grandson, George Randolph Hill of Dwight.

The funeral was held at Dwight chapel Sunday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. D. L. Hilliard officiating. Thos. Allen sang, "One Sweetly Solemn Thought" and "Jesus, Lover of my Soul." The bearers were D. C. Nutting, A. W. Kimball, Wm. Colgrove and Charles Dickinson. Burial was in Dwight cemetery.

Chest Clinic

Thirty-seven were examined at the chest clinic held last week Thursday. This number included several patients from Granby. Dr. O'Brian of the Leeds Sanitarium was directing physician. He was assisted by two doctors from Westfield.

Dr. O'Brian stated that one gratifying feature of the test was that the old cases were much improved, due to the attention given to health rules.

Memorial Service Sunday

A union Memorial service has been arranged for Sunday evening at Lawrence Memorial hall, at 8 o'clock. This is the second Sunday Memorial service in which all the local denominations have participated. Last year, Fr. McGrath preached the sermon. Sunday night's program will be found on page 2.

Play Next Week

"Hinky-Doodle Town" is the name of a play to be given next Wednesday evening in Lawrence Memorial hall at 8 o'clock. This is a musical comedy and will be presented by a cast of 40 people from the First Methodist Church Sunday school of Holyoke. This entertainment is given under the auspices of the men's class of the local M. E. Sunday school.

Neighbors' Night at Grange

Tuesday evening was Neighbor's night at Union Grange. Leverett and Enfield grangers were invited and came in large numbers. About 30 came from Leverett and 25 from Enfield. The visitors furnished the entertainment.

Charles Sanford, who was chosen as Master in place of Edgar Shumway, resigned, was installed at this meeting.

Refreshments were served and a dance followed.

Supper Tonight

A public supper will be served in the M. E. vestry tonight at 6.30 o'clock. It has been termed an "S" supper, and from the reading of the hand drawn posters regarding the same, one would think that all the edibles of life begin with the letter S. Were it not for our linotype with its circulating matrices, we would have hard work finding S's enough to reproduce the wording of the poster.

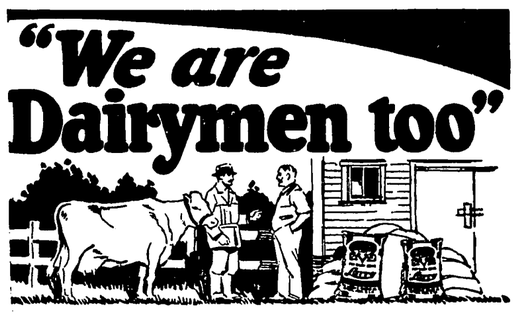
"We are Dairymen too"



We're in the dairy business, too, as truly as the dairymen we serve.

We sell feed to produce milk. The more milk our customers get, the more economically they get it, the more profit they make—the more of their business we will get.

That is why we carry in stock only goods of high quality —dairy feed that we know, can recommend, can depend upon to produce results.

You can rely on us to protect our customers from cheap, inferior, unreliable goods. It is not real economy to buy them; we can't afford to sell them.

After all, the only way to make our business profitable is to make yours profitable first.

It was Some Supper at the M. E. church last Friday night. Snappy signs and seasonable sweet flowers provided an atmosphere for successful salesmanship. Everyone was his own waiter but the only waiting he had to do was for the one ahead of him to go down the food line. Ladies in attendance assisted the undecided in the way and by the time one reached the end of the line, his ticket was pretty well perforated, but he had made friends with everyone and the cashier would rate him high.

Play Wednesday Evening

Forty people from Holyoke figured in the musical comedy given in Memorial hall Wednesday evening. The title, "Hinky-Doodle Town," was not as inviting as "Those Husbands of Ours," but it drew a fair house and few suffered from local hits. The presentation was one of movement throughout, and Forest Crain and Fred Hicks, the tramps, were especially acrobatic. That they "took" was evidenced by the way local people who have carried the end men's role, sat forward in their seats.

The proceeds of the evening went to the men's class of the Methodist church.

Boy Scout Rally and Dance

The Boy Scouts made their first public appearance at their Rally and dance in Memorial hall last Friday night. The presentation was very commendable, especially so considering the fact that the organization has not been functioning for any great length of time.

The flag raising was participated in by the entire company of 26 Scouts. Respect Due the Flag was given by Malcolm Dorey. The Scout Laws were presented by 12 Scouts under the direction of Bartlett Green. Stanley Rhodes gave the Scout Motto, Oliver Nelson the Scout Oath and Albert Menard the Scout Salute.

First Aid was demonstrated by Albert Dorey and Robert Camp. Signalling was done by semaphore between the stage and the gallery by Albert Menard, Francis Croney, Albert Dorey and Robert Camp.

Scouts at Play interested the audience immensely. Two teams of 6 Scouts each, one side under the leadership of Robert Camp and the other of Bartlett Green battled for supremacy with Francis Croney as referee. Camp's team won 12-0.

The closing scene was appealing to anyone with red blood in him. The Scouts seated themselves around the birch sticks glowing with red electric bulbs, conversed as only boys can, sang songs that reverberated through the hall, and made those not Scouts a bit wistful in their attitude.

Gould's orchestra furnished music and played for the dance which followed.

About $25 was cleared as a result of the evening's enterprise. Due credit for the excellence of the Scouts' work should be given to Roland M. Shaw, Scoutmaster.

Sunday Memorial Service

The union Memorial service held in Memorial hall Sunday evening at 8 o'clock was an impressive one and was well attended. This is the second Sunday Memorial service in which Catholic and Protestants have participated.

The sermon was preached by Rev. W. Harold Snape of the Methodist church. He recalled to the minds of his hearers the ideals of war days and the distance we had travelled from them.

He said that the dead had already crowned themselves and that we ought to practise the aspiration of immortality and think of them as hovering in our midst. In view of this we should keep their spirit glowing. He was skeptical of those who mouthed patriotism so liberally in war time and then flaunted the red flag of disloyalty. People jibe at the high ideals expressed during the war, and some of them go so far as to say that the reason we went into it was not idealism but because oil wells and the like were at stake. The speaker challenged anyone to say that it was not stated at the time that it was a war against war and that it was to make the world safe and peaceful.

Mr. Snape asked the question as to how far we had gone in pursuit of it. Six years after we are farther from living in peace, concord and harmony than six years before.

Today 93 per cent. of the Federal budget goes for military expenses, including the upkeep of armies and navies. Six years after the war, seeds of vengeance and hatred are being sown even through the primers of some countries. Our modern histories glorify war and nothing is said of the suffering, the bloodshed, the trenches, the cooties, and the other horrors of it.

The speaker said that the gauntlet is being thrown down to the Christian men and women to bind themselves together and make war impossible. He asked what the spirits of the departed would think as they hovered over Versailles, Geneva and Washington.

We went into the war also to make the world safe for democracy, not for the Democrats or Republicans. While Spain is in the hands of tyrannical powers and other countries lean toward monarchy, the day will come when the people will rule.

Since the war we have suffered from mob thinking and all kinds of blocs have been formed with selfish interests at heart. In view of this, community welfare and public service need to be stressed.

We have suffered from the so-called 100 per centers. How we like to pat ourselves on the back and throw out our chests and call ourselves 100 per cent. The speaker cited the case of the intoxicated patriot who derided all such with their hate of the Japanese and the German. He claimed to be 200 per cent. because he hated everyone. Mr. Snape said that any patriotism built upon hate is un-American and un-Christian. He then enumerated some of the traits contributed by the various races in our land. The English have a genius for government, the Jew business ability, the Irish charm, the German the systematic mind, the Italian a contribution to literature, art, music, etc.

We cannot progress if we pit one group against another. We must blend one with another. It seems as though God was pouring the races together here as a sort of divine experiment to see if men and women of different nationalities could live together.

The speaker told of hearing Handel's chorus by a great orchestra. Only as the parts were blended was there real music. In life there is the same symphony. In patriotism there is the same analogy. The one God we all worship will draw out from our different personalities a patriotism that will be 100 per cent. As a community we should make our ideal a little closer to the true ideal, than we have in the past.

Gould's orchestra furnished music at the service and a quartet consisting of Dr. McPherson, Thos. Allen, Carl Aspengren and Wm. Bridgman sang.

It might have been YOUR cow!

Newspaper stories tell regularly of valuable, high-producing cows killed by nails or other junk in their feed.

That may happen any day to the cow you value most, unless you use a dairy feed that is free from dangerous foreign materials when it leaves the mills.

Every feed manufacturer owes it to you dairymen who feed his ration to see to it that his product is clean when it reaches you.

Dairymen get a guarantee of this "cleanliness"—this freedom from foreign materials with every sack of Larro. A special electro-magnetic process makes it impossible for wire, nails, tag hooks, screws, etc. to remain in the finished feed.

This insurance costs you nothing; it may save you much. Feed Larro—the SAFE ration for dairy cows.

Minstrel Show at State School

On Monday evening a minstrel show was presented at the Belchertown state school by a troupe of twenty entertainers from The Farr Alpaca Company of Holyoke. The songs were of a high order and exceptionally well rendered and the singers were called back on every number. The jokes, arranged to include the names of local people, made a decided hit with the pupils and brought forth round after round of applause.

Following the performance refreshments were served the troupe in the school dining hall.

The ladies of the Social Guild will hold a food sale in the chapel next Wednesday at 3 p. m. There will be a social hour in which tea, ice cream and college ices will be served. There will also be music during the afternoon. Everyone is cordially invited.

The steam shovel for use on the Belchertown-Amherst road made quite a spetacle, ambling through the streets of the town Tuesday on its way from the station to its scene of action on the Belchertown end of the road. With its caterpillar tread it manuipulated its way under its own power.

A farewell reception to Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Sargent, who are shortly to leave for their new home, will be held in the chapel next Monday evening at 8 o'clock. For several years Mr. Sargent has occupied positions of public trust, including Representative in the General Court, Postmaster and Assistant Postmaster. During the war Mr. Sargent rendered conspicuous service, lending his voice and his energies in furthering the allied cause. The townspeople are taking this means to show their appreciation.

M. G. Ward has returned from a visit in Lowell.

Mrs. G. E. McPherson and Mrs. E. G. Rowland attended the National Girl Scout convention in Boston last week. From there Mrs. Rowland went to Newport to visit her father.

Those having flowers to contribute for Memorial day are asked to bring them to the chapel today and leave them at the rear entrance.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Our neighbor, E. R. Dostal, has the exclusive agency for the most reliable lightning-loss prevention device that science and skill has invented up to the present age—Kretzer Brand Galvanized Star Rod. Its valuable ability to protect is based entirely on magnetic principles. Lightning, as is well known, is caused by magnetic storms, and it is the most plausible deduction that the magnetic properties of iron make it the only proper metal to use in a lightning rod. Through its magnetic power, it relieves the stormy atmosphere and the congested earth of magnetic electricity before it accumulates and strikes. White-hot electricity is always accompanied by great heat, and Kretzer Insulators prevent fires from this cause. Thomas A. Edison advocates the use of insulators for lightning rod systems.

Why take a chance with lightning with inefficient cheap systems when the best is obtainable in this community. Let Mr. E. R. Dostal explain to you "How Kretzer Brand Protects."

"An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure." Protect your buildings and their contents before it is too late. See, phone or write E. R. Dostal, Ludlow, Mass.

Social and Sale

All roads led to the chapel Wednesday afternoon, where a bulletin board announced the sale of homemade food, ice cream and iced tea.

People came early to avoid the rush and remained until the abundant supply of appetizing foods was exhausted.

The temperature hovering around 96 in the shade aided the sale of ice cream and warranted a new supply. Yellow roses adorned the table, which was in charge of Miss Irene M. Jackson and Mrs. J. V. Cook.

The tea table, at which Mrs. Emma Shaw, Mrs. Elizabeth Bridgman and Mrs. Nettie Allen presided, did a thriving business and was most attractively decorated.

Mrs. Charles Foss and Mrs. Doris Squires furnished music for the occasion.

To Mrs. Dora Bardwell, chairman of the committee, and to her faithful helpers, Mrs. Fred Michel, Mrs. Kittie Spellman, Mrs. Howell Cook, Mrs. Dwight Randall, Mrs. George Jackson and Miss Maggie Hales, is given much credit for the success of the social afternoon.

Memorial Day Observance

Memorial day was observed last Saturday as stated in the preliminary programs, except that the order was somewhat reversed by reason of a thunder shower which came up as the column reached Memorial hall after the march down South Main street. Therefore the exercises in the hall were held first and the decorating of the graves afterward.

After the wreath had been placed at the tablet in the hall, Com. Austin gave a tribute to the dead as a

Award Contract for Pumps

The water commissioners have awarded the contract for pumps and motors for the new pumping plant, to the Worthington Mfg. Co. of Holyoke, who will install the same at a cost of $5,150 within 49 days from the date of contract.

Other concerns and their bids are as follows: W. J. Foss Co. of Springfield for Gould Pump Co., $5,252.00, 70 days; C. L. Jager Co., Boston, Demming pump, $5,150.14, 90 days; Warren Steam Pump Co., $7,375.00; Fairbanks Morse Co., Duplex Horizontal pump, $5,400.00.

The contract was let to the Worthington people, both by reason of price and quality of equipment. Two pumps are to be furnished, each with a capacity of 200 gallons per minute. The motors are to be 25 h. p.

The cost of wiring was included in none of the bids. Cost of pump house is of course extra, also. The cost of the pumps comes within the estimate.

Engineer Brainerd of Palmer was in town yesterday to consult with the commissioners in regard to the award.

Water has been turned on in East Walnut St. The workmen are now starting from the wells to put in the connecting link.

Address at Soldiers' Monument

By Belding F. Jackson

In our schoolbooks there used to be a little poem by Robert Southey, which told of a little European boy finding a skull near a brook, and taking it to his grandfather, is told of the great battle that the Duke of Marlborough had won near that spot over the forces of France. The old man goes on to tell of the fierceness of the conflict, of the thousands of dead rotting in the sun, of the women and children made homeless wanderers after their houses had been destroyed by the contending armies. As he finishes, his little granddaughter, who has been listen-

Reception to Mr. and Mrs. Sargent

A large number were at the chapel Monday evening to bid Mr. and Mrs. Sargent farewell. There was something of a program, a presentation of a sizable purse, refreshments, etc., but the real reception was the informal greeting of "just friends", of which the assistant postmaster and his wife have made many. Their son and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Sargent of Groveland, assisted in receiving.

The presentation speech was made by L. S. Parsons, who paid tribute to Mr. Sargent's unfailing courtesy and efficiency. This was gratefully acknowledged by Mr. Sargent, who expressed appreciation of the honors they had received and of the "flowers" showered upon them while they could be appreciated. He read two letters he had received of late, which he deemed typical of the attitude so many had expressed.

Miss King, who had passed through a similar experience, had a happy contribution to make to the evening's program. Rev. Harold Snape led the assembly in singing Auld Lang Syne and The Long, Long Trail, accompanied by Mrs. Aspengren, and also offered prayer.

Refreshments, furnished by a committee of ladies, were served by the Boy Scouts.

Mr. and Mrs. Sargent will leave for their new home next Monday.

ing with wide-open, horrified eyes, asks, "And what good came of it at last?" The old man answers, "That I can not tell, but 'twas a famous victory."

Such has been, in a very large measure, the history of Europe—great and fruitless victories and defeats, the best of youth time after time destroyed, but no permanent good done, for the wars were wars of conquest and revenge, of greed and hatred.

Thank God, if a skull were found near the battlefields of Bunker Hill, of Gettysburg, of San Juan, or of St. Mihiel—the skull of an American soldier, and some little child should ask us the good of it all, we should not be obliged to answer only, "'Twas a famous victory!" We could tell of a country made free from foreign tyranny, of a race freed from servitude, of a helpless island given a right to justice, of a world made at least more safe for democracy. American young men have not been in the habit of giving their lives for shallow conquests, for petty feuds, but for the more abstract and more noble purposes of liberty and equality for themselves and others who desire it.

It is in memory of such young men, who are buried in unmarked graves throughtout our land and on foreign soil, that we are bowing for a few moments in this great outdoor shrine this afternoon. I am always glad that we have our services for the unknown dead out-of-doors. Their unrewarded devotion seems too broad and high to be remembered in anything less than the temple whose roof is the sky and whose floor is the ground. Less fortunate than their dead comrades whose bodies lie in the national cemeteries or in their native towns, these men have left us no memory except of sacred things for which they went away and died.

And we need just that memory. We need today to realize how great are the principles on which this America of ours has been founded, and at how high a cost they have been established and preserved for us. When I hear of men gathering together in secret meetings to sow seeds of hatred and suspicion of other men of other races and classes in this country; when I hear men saying that America should be preeminently for any particular religion, for any particular nationality, for any particular color, and that all other religions, nationalities, and colors should be willing to accept an inferior place in our national life or be obliged to return whence they came; when I hear of jealousies and counter-jealousies, of suspicion and counter-suspicion—then I wish that men who have no better work to do than to undermine in the dark what our armies have fought for in the bitter blinding light of battle, might come here beside me for a moment, and bow in silence and thought before this great tomb of the unknown dead soldier, and realize how petty they are beside him, how petty their suspicions when measured by his faith.

It was with feelings of this kind in my heart that these words came to me as I thought of the unkown dead of the Civil War:

SONNET TO THE UNKNOWN DEAD

Yellow nor red, nor black nor white
was he,
When on the Southern field he writhed in pain,
But one who gave, and would have giv'n again,
His last dear drop of blood for liberty.
Christian nor Jew, of no slight creed
was he,
Who sixty years in unmarked grave
has lain,
But one whose creed it was to make it plain
To all, America for all was free!
We should not care, nor stop to weep
. and pray,
If this, our unknown dead, were one who fought
To give one class precedence for a day
And set eternal principles at naught.
How far above our petty fears are they,
The immortal works that men like him have wrought!
And it is in the memory of him and men like him that I place this wreath.

OPEN FORMULA FEEDS

From Producer to Consumer Direct

For years past thousands of New England's best dairymen, stock raisers, feeders, swine men and poultry keepers have used only American Milling Company's Open Formula Feeds—balanced rations tested and recommended by the College Feed Conference Board and sold to feeders thru various channels and under several feed names.

This year American Milling Co. will sell to the consumer DIRECT through its own Car Door Agents—offering the same result-getting feeds for all live stock and poultry, mixed in the world's largest feed mill—the same one that has so economically given New England feeders the past few years, their successful Open Formula Feeds.

R. A. French is taking orders now for pooled carload shipments up to April 1, 1926, on terms that make this the most economical plan of all to buy any kind of feed. Ask him for copies of OPEN FORMULAS showing each ingredient and its amount, the guaranteed digestible nutrients and all facts before placing any feed orders.

preliminary to the stated service. Prayer was offered by Rev. D. L. Hilliard. Following a selection by the band, Charles Boben of Liberty school gave a recitation. Miss Frances Sauer also recited.

Franklin school gave three musical selections, one of them with violin accompaniment by one of the pupils, Miss Nellie Opielowski.

ADDRESS OF THE DAY

Harold J. Burdick of Monson was then introduced as the speaker of the day. He paid glowing tribute to those "who died to the family that they might live to the nation." Before, "they were shut up to you," he said, "but now they are given to you all."

The speaker called to mind the fact that the monuments throughout the land do not call attention to the wealth of the hero, but to the service done. Continuing he said, "It is now more blessed, and ever has been, to give than to receive."

As to degrees of patriotism, if there is such a thing, he said that the mother's sacrifice takes first place.

In closing, Mr. Burdick stated that while those who died showed their patriotism, opportunity will not be found lacking for us to show ours. Every day is a battlefield and every hour an opporunity to express our patriotism. It is for us of this generation so to perform the duties of citizenship that government of, by and for the people shall not perish from the earth.

DECORATE GRAVES

At the conclusion of the service the line was again formed and marched to Mt. Hope cemetery where, after singing by the students of B. H. S., the children decorated the graves.

SERVICE AT MONUMENT

At the monument, Lincoln's Gettysburg address was read by Francis Croney, after which Belding Jackson paid a most worthy tribute to the quality of patriotism typified by the American unknown soldier. The substance of this address is given elsewhere.

Following the ceremonies, the band gave a concert on the park.

That "the ranks are thinning fast" was very evident as only two Civil war veterans were at the ceremonies this year, W. L. Bishop and S. W. Roode. Nearly fifty Boy and Girl Scouts were in line, besides about seventy-five school children.

Library Figures

At a meeting of the library trustees held last week the following statistics were presented by the librarian:

No. of books circulated in past year	9,927
No. of new registrations	51
No. of books purchased	70
No. of books presented	64

Going back over the records of recent years, quite a decrease in circulation is to be noted, due in part, no doubt, to the fact that the radio has offered fresher means of entertainment and instruction and the automobile has robbed many of book hours. Below are a few figures to illustrate:

1920-21	16,961
1921-22	15,492
1922-23	11,355
1923-24	10,282
1924-25	9,927

An offsetting feature is in the fact that a much better grade of books is being taken out, so quality and not quantity may be the determining factor in the library's usefulness.

1925-26 OFFICERS

Supper in M. E. Church

The ladies of the M. E. church invite the public to a salad and baked bean supper to be held in the M. E. church vestry, Friday, June 12, at 6.30 p. m., when the following menu will be served:

"Rolls, coffee and cake,
Salads cool and beans finely baked.
Our cooks are fine, our price is right;
Come all! Don't forget the night."

Girl Scout Play

When it comes to entertainments, the home folks like home talent, as "Mr. Bob", the play given by the Girl Scouts of Troop I last Friday night, well demonstrated. The night was hot, but watching a yacht race entered into by one of the Mr. Bobs sent a tremor of coolness over one, at that.

It seems as though the cast would have taken anywhere. There was Patty, the maid, (Edna Howard) whose sense of the romantic drove all the commonplaceness out of life; there was the butler (Avis Hussey) with an abundance of punctilious demeanor, but a fairly easy mark for Patty; there was Philip Royson, (Evelyn Shumway); Katherine Rogers (Rose Menard) and Marian Bryant (Marjorie Peeso), who radiated the modern spirit and could sail through almost any situation; there was Rebecca Luke, (Frances Sauer) who had to act the most unnatural of all, playing the part of a maiden lady with an obsession for cats; and there was Robert Brown, (Marie Baggs) who brought down the house ere she had said a word—the popular part, to be sure, but the most was made of it. The tilting of the spectacles, the jauntiness of demeanor, the apologetic attitude on being thrust into the most ridiculous situation without a chance to explain, all were irresistible.

Misplaced cats, misplaced identities, and a misplaced Mr. Bob furnished plenty of excitement.

Before the program began and between acts Mrs. Foss, a member of the Scout council, gave several piano selections. Between the acts homemade candy found ready buyers, and ice cream simply melted away in the audience. So the proceeds were considerable—about $58.00, and the uniforms, which the girls have been desiring for some time, are now assured with a little individual effort, which is part and parcel of Scout training.

The Lessons of History

History has many valuable lessons to teach us. If a man is seeking for good advice, he should consult the historian very early and quite often. If he turns a deaf ear to him, he is likely to be sorry.

History has a lesson for America of today. One lesson she teaches and that is that great nations have fallen. In Egypt five civilizations have thrived and then been swept away. History asks us, "Where is the Babylonian glory gone, where Persian power, where Greece, where Rome?" It seems only day before yesterday when it meant more to be a Roman citizen than it did to be king over any other nation. Where is Russia? Where is Germany of 1913? Germany then claimed that her military power was so perfect that all the combined armies of the world could not defeat her. What nation was greater than Germany? And yet ten swift years laid her low. A nation can go down fast.

Another thing which history teaches us and that is that nations die at the top. It was so with Rome. It was so with Greece. It was so with Germany. When Germany bragged the most, she fell.

America, if wise, will listen to the voice of history. America is rich—no nation ever had so great wealth—and is strong and benevolent—we stand aghast at her benevolences. And she knows it. Sometimes she brags about it.

There is no reason, history reminds us, why America may not die at the top and have her fall like Greece or Rome.

If, however, America holds fast to those principles on which the nation was founded, opens wide her arms to the new impulses in the world and asks nothing for herself she is not willing to share with other nations, she may continue to be a great nation, knowing no decay.

OPEN FORMULA FEEDS

From Producer to Consumer Direct

For years past thousands of New England's best dairymen, stock raisers, feeders, swine men and poultry keepers have used only American Milling Company's Open Formula Feeds—balanced rations tested and recommended by the College Feed Conference Board and sold to feeders thru various channels and under several feed names.

This year American Milling Co. will sell to the consumer DIRECT through its own Car Door Agents—offering the same result-getting feeds for all live stock and poultry, mixed in the world's largest feed mill—the same one that has so economically given New England feeders the past few years, their successful Open Formula Feeds.

R. A. French is taking orders now for pooled carload shipments up to April 1, 1926, on terms that make this the most economical plan of all to buy any kind of feed. Ask him for copies of OPEN FORMULAS showing each ingredient and its amount, the guaranteed digestible nutrients and all facts before placing any feed orders.

Greenwich Defeats Belchertown Boy Scouts

The Greenwich Men's Club defeated the Boy Scouts in a baseball game played at Greenwich Saturday afternoon, by a score of 12-9. Tomorrow afternoon we play Hillside Institute on their diamond.

In order to win a game we must have "rooters". We are able to accommodate a few and we would appreciate the kindness of anyone who will take his car and carry over a few. We leave the Post Office at 2 o'clock. Anyone desiring to go, please notify Captain Paige Piper or Robert Warner.

We expect to have two home games July 4th.

Judge by the Best

Or if one asked you to give him some idea of the business profession, you would not take him to some corner grocery where everything was helter-skelter, where no modern business methods were in vogue, where the rooms were low and dingy and nothing was attractive. On the contrary you would select the finest grocery in town and show him through that, point out the neatness, the system, the attractive show windows, the up-to-date methods, the clerks ready to serve, and so on. You would then say to your friend: "There is modern business."

Here is a principle we ought to apply everywhere, but we forget to do it. Some author writes a book on the church and he points out that the ministers are still preaching a mediaeval theology, that the people muzzle their minister, telling him what he must not say, and he makes out that the church does not touch modern life at all. Of course there are churches like that. But why should the good author select a "corner grocery" church as his specimen? He ought to select the best type of church he can find.

We ought to judge a community by its best. Nations should be treated after the same fashion. We are never fair to an enemy nation in war, for we are judging everything by her worst.

It would be a good thing, if we insist on passing judgment on people or professions or nations, to think of them at their best.

OPEN FORMULA FEEDS

From Producer to Consumer Direct

For years past thousands of New England's best dairymen, stock raisers, feeders, swine men and poultry keepers have used only American Milling Company's Open Formula Feeds—balanced rations tested and recommended by the College Feed Conference Board and sold to feeders thru various channels and under several feed names.

This year American Milling Co. will sell to the consumer DIRECT through its own Car Door Agents—offering the same result-getting feeds for all live stock and poultry, mixed in the world's largest feed mill—the same one that has so economically given New England feeders the past few years, their successful Open Formula Feeds.

R. A. French is taking orders now for pooled carload shipments up to April 1, 1926, on terms that make this the most economical plan of all to buy any kind of feed. Ask him for copies of OPEN FORMULAS showing each ingredient and its amount, the guaranteed digestible nutrients and all facts before placing any feed orders.

She recently passed her 88th birthday and lived nearly all her life in the house in which she was born and in which she died, the house being built by her husband, the late Andrew Aldrich. Vacation Bible School

The Sunday School board of the M. E. church has voted to accept the report of a recently appointed committee and hold a daily vacation bible school during four weeks of the summer vacation. Miss Ella A. Stebbins has been appointed principal, and the faculty and definite dates will be announced later.

It is planned to hold sessions each week-day morning, except Saturday, from 9.30 to 11.45. The first hour will be for religious instruction, while the sceond hour will be correlating work in handicraft and the like, recreational yet instructive. A fifteen minute devotional period will close each morning. There will be three classes: beginners. ages 4, 5; primary, 6, 7, 8; juniors, 9-12.

This school will be carried on similarly to other schools conducted all over the country with eminent success.

The Congregational Sunday school has been invited to co-operate and has appointed a committee to report on the matter.

Girl Scout Frolic

Since there was no special preparation and no formal program for Friday evening, the Scout rally might more properly be termed a Frolic. Such it must have seemed to the onlookers in the gallery, as they watched the girls playing "Tails" or knot tying games.

The more formal part of the program preceded: the marching in of both troops, the welcome signalled by Jane Shumway, the opening ceremony, chorus singing, investment of five new scouts, a recitation by Evelyn Sessions, and the presentation of 18 second class badges and 49 merit badges won during the year.

Mrs. L. G. Warren, chairman of the Scout council, presided and Miss Smith of Springfield, assistant director of western Massachusetts, presented the badges and conducted the games.

B. H. S. Graduation

To the 1925 B. H. S. graduation goes the credit of taxing for the first time the capacity of Lawrence Memorial hall. Fifteen minutes before the time to begin, practically all seats were taken, and as a result many stood while others went away.

But the chief source of community pride was not in the number present but in the class of twenty-one that occupied the platform and worthily upheld the traditions of its predecessors.

This class, typical of the spirit of the times, exemplified earnestness and a frank facing of the realities of life. The not involved motto, "Dig", was but one indication of this, and the way it was woven into the decorations of the evening was also significant. A large, original drawing, hung on the wall at the rear of the platform, showed a dog energetically digging away in a field as the morning sun showed on the horizon. Beneath was the motto, "Dig." This novel piece of work was executed by Miss Gilpin of Enfield, a member of the outgoing class.

The class colors, green and white, were in evidence, both in festoons on the side walls and gallery front and directly in front of the platform where the class numerals in white roses, the class flower, were set in a wall of green.

To the music of the school orchestra of five violins and drum, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Clough, director of music, the graduates preceded by Milton Wood, head usher, came to the platform through the ranks of the lower classes.

The invocation was given by Rev. W. Harold Snape of the Methodist church. Alma Mater was then rendered by the school chorus, which was followed by an essay on "The Bay Crossed, The Ocean Beckons," by Eleanor M. Fitzgerald.

Miss Fitzgerald said that the goal of the class was the ocean but that it was futile to think of crossing it until the bay was navigated. The preparation in the bay is a valuable asset to the ocean voyage. She alluded to the teachers as ones who had aided them to cross the bay, pointing out the treacherous currents. She called the courses of study the classical and commercial currents, and college, normal and mechanical schools, etc., islands to be reached on the voyage. Miss Fitzgerald said, "We have crossed the bay triumphantly, although fog, shallows, winds and frosts have beset our passage. On the ocean at times we shall be driven before the blast and have to spend all night at the oars. Having crossed the bay, we face the ocean whose mystery lies before us."

The declamation, "Betsy and I Are Out," was effectively rendered by Gertrude M. Gilpin of Enfield. After a selection by the school orchestra, the 1925 class play, "The Show Actress," was rendered. This was a new feature in B. H. S. graduation programs and appeared to be quite a drawing card. The parts were all "peppily" taken and each character was heard distinctly.

Ma Martin, the efficient housewife, was Catherine Sullivan; Danny, the ever present chore boy in crisis occasions, was Emile Vezina; Mandy, the village "snoop", who scooped and peddled everything, was Alice Young of Enfield; Goldie, the actress, who was a better actor than a worker, was Cora Gula; Pa Martin, the commonsense farmer, was Ralph Goodell; Zek'l Frost, the stuttering constable, was Max Pike of Enfield, while the part of Miss Jordan, the long lost daughter, was taken by Lucy Sufnaski. The play showed signs of able coaching, much credit for which should go to Dr. Westwell of the State school.

A violin solo was rendered by Helen R. Shea with Catherine G. Sullivan accompanist.

The essay, "Club Work, an Asset

School Picnics

There have been several school picnics this week. Miss Shattuck's pupils went to Riverside park, Monday, Miss Orlando's and Miss Stadler's grades went Tuesday to Forest park, while Miss Towne took her scholars the same day to Lake Metacomet. Miss Knight entertained her scholars at the school building Tuesday.

to School Work," by Rachel Randall, was a description of the various kinds of club work carried on and the benefits accruing therefrom, chief among which are putting pleasure into the everyday duties of life, keeping in touch with nature, learning habits of thrift, etc. Many with thoughts of leaving school continue because of practical courses offered. Method and strict accounting in agriculture was advocated as just as essential as in other merchandising. Learning to be a good loser and take set-backs were considered good by-products.

The class history was related by C. Lawrence Rhodes, who stated that the class entered B. H. S. with 35 members enrolled, but the ranks had thinned to 21. The first field day was held in the Sophomore year, but the class had never been conspicuous in athletics. He recalled the list of teachers and added a touch of humor in attributing the loss of the old school building to Andrew Ketchen, the lone class member in the lower grades, and in recalling the accident following a baseball game last year, following the 13th victory and a 13-7 score on the 13th day of May.

"Damascus" was given by the chorus, and the Prophecy followed. This was by Irene McLean. From an observatory on Mars in 1935 she saw Rachel Randall, supt. of cattle ranch; Cora Gula and Lucy Sufnaski, opera singers; Marion Randolph polo ground devotee; Andrew Ketchen, professor of history at M. A. C.; Eleanor Fitzgerald, golfer; Alice Young and Blanche Mulholland, airplane bus drivers to Enfield; Warren Rockwood, chief of fire department; Lawrence Rhodes, tin pedler; Gertrude Gilpin, missionary; Emile Vezina, garageman; Ralph Goodell, policeman in Dana; Frank Rys, athletic instructor in girls' school; Darsa Dodge, stage dancer; Max Pike, beauty shop proprietor; Rose Zitka and Mabel Carter, tea room owners; Dorothy Rhodes, soprano at Tremont Temple; Catherine Sullivan, conductor of Boston Symphony.

The "Will," replete with bequests of bottles containing all sorts of concoctions; back seats, a book on How to Keep Thin, an angel cake, slippers, etc., was given by Andrew Ketchen, who held the audience and especially the lower classmen, in suspense.

After another selection by the chorus, Prin. Allen announced typewriting awards and honor students, after which he presented the graduates to Everett Geer, chairman of the school committee, for their diplomas. Mr. Geer took the cue for his remarks from the class motto, making them brief and pointed.

Following "Forget-Me-Not" by the chorus, the benediction was pronounced by Rev. W. H. Snape.

Prin. Allen, who has seen the class through its four years' course, had a large part in the general framing of the program and in supervising its rendering, which was a credit to all connected with B. H. S. The assistant teachers also rendered assistance, musical and otherwise.

OPEN FORMULA FEEDS

From Producer to Consumer Direct

For years past thousands of New England's best dairymen, stock raisers, feeders, swine men and poultry keepers have used only American Milling Company's Open Formula Feeds—balanced rations tested and recommended by the College Feed Conference Board and sold to feeders thru various channels and under several feed names.

This year American Milling Co. will sell to the consumer DIRECT through its own Car Door Agents—offering the same result-getting feeds for all live stock and poultry, mixed in the world's largest feed mill—the same one that has so economically given New England feeders the past few years, their successful Open Formula Feeds.

R. A. French is taking orders now for pooled carload shipments up to April 1, 1926, on terms that make this the most economical plan of all to buy any kind of feed. Ask him for copies of OPEN FORMULAS showing each ingredient and its amount, the guaranteed digestible nutrients and all facts before placing any feed orders.

Daily Vacation Bible School

The committees appointed from the Methodist and Congregational Sunday schools to act in reference to the Daily Vacation Bible school, met Monday evening with Rev. W. H. Snape. It was voted to hold the school for a period of four weeks beginning July 13. The sessions will open at nine o'clock, following the regular school habit which the children already have or will soon have.

A possible program for the two and a half hour session was outlined. The first period of 15 minutes would be devotional. Following this period would be three twenty-minute periods: 1st, the music period, i. e., learning both the words and music of a hymn and having the story of it told. Second period, Bible drill—perhaps a contest in locating Bible references quickly and always the memorizing of some verses or a passage of scripture. Following this would be the recreation period with its games, etc., valuable not only for recreation but as a means of teaching Christian virtues, fair play, courtesy, etc. The final period of an hour and a quarter would be given over to the Bible story for the day and the correlated hand work. At 11.30 the children would be dismissed.

It is planned to have the pupils in three distinct groups and since it is desirable to have them in separate rooms, if possible, the vestry of the Methodist church seemed best fitted for the purpose. Trained teachers are being sought to carry on the work and several have been secured. Text books for the teachers in each division have been bought and supplies for the hand work will be purchased very soon.

All children between the ages of four and twelve inclusive will be welcome. It is hoped that parents will be sufficiently interested to take advantage of this opportunity to give their children inspiring religious training, and it is certain that the children will thoroughly enjoy the instruction and recreation of the four weeks.

Junior High Graduation

The graduation exercises of the Junior High school last week Thursday evening followed closely upon those of the High school itself, not only in time and place, but in the general program and effect. The young graduates acquitted themselves well, and the entire program was very pleasing to the many friends gathered in Memorial hall. The essays were quite original and well developed. So many facts were related and so much knowledge displayed that Mr. Scott, in presenting the certificates of promotion, said, "I am not going to try to tell you anything."

The address of the evening was given by Belding Jackson who, speaking to the members of the graduating class, said in part:

What a great old night this is! Only a short eight years ago you were holding mother's hand and starting off down the road to the first day of school—frightened half to death, some of you—and wondering if you ever would live through it. Eight years—and here you are, grown-up fellows and girls, ready for your certificates which will tell anyone that you are done with grade schools, district schools, and Junior high schools forever.

I wonder if you realize how few of you who started school eight years ago are here tonight. I wonder if you know that in this country out of every 100 who start, only 27 enter high school. This number may be small for Belchertown, but I'll wager that far more than one-half of your Grade I class-mates are not here tonight. You are a selected group chosen from among those who had not your ability, who had not your health, who had not the money at home to keep them going.

During the next four years a good many more of you are likely to leave school. Out of the twenty-seven who enter high school, investigation shows that only eight graduate.

I wonder how many of you are planning to go through high school, and if you realize how important it is that you should continue if possible. And that's what I want to talk with you about tonight.

When you leave school, you must, of course, begin to live and earn for yourself. Did you ever realize how few people are happy at the work they are doing. Your life will be happy only if you are working at what you enjoy—and more than one-half of the people around you to-day are longing for the five o'clock whistle, and will long for it until they die—longing to do something else that they could enjoy—something that they are not trained or fitted to do.

It looks to me as though the biggest reason for going to high school is that it will give you a bigger, better chance to find out what sort of work you would like, are fitted for, and that if you go to high school you will find yourself at the end of four years more—older, wiser and better prepared to do what you would like to do.

If you leave school now, colleges, normal schools, the best trade schools, even, are barred to you—they are open to the high school graduate. You will not be able to earn much more money the day after you leave high school than you are to-day, but ten years after high school is over, you will see a vast difference. High school will prevent you from becoming a round peg in a square hole, and the country today is full of such misfits.

The second thing that high school should do for you is to make you a good American citizen, a man or a woman of whom your town or city can be proud.

Through your classes, your athletic games, and your parties, you will learn to enjoy the friendships of the other fellow, to work with him, and to do things for him. You will learn to bunt when the coach tells you to, even if the crowd is yelling for a home run, and you are aching to knock it a mile. You will learn that nine men working together make a winning ball team, not

A White-headed Chippy

There are white-crowned sparrows, the aristocrats of the sparrow tribe, and white-throated sparrows —sweet singers they, and sparrows that show white in their tail feathers. The nearest to white the common chippy shows is a grayish line in the middle of his forehead, but this season I have seen a chippy the feathers of whose forehead, crown and nape were white, in fact, a white-headed chippy.

It was easy to recognize the bird as a sparrow and as a freak with such a feathered head, and further observation made it evident that the bird is an unique specimen of the chippy family. How the bird got his white head I cannot tell; only this I know, the bird has it. I have seen him many times with it and I never saw another chippy with a white head. If any Belchertown bird lovers are curious as to the way chippy got his white head they can call on him at his summer residence on Federal street and make inquiries.

nine men playing individually to the grandstand. You will learn that only by obedience to rules can a school or a man succeed. You will forget your own pride, your own selfish wishes, and be willing and glad to work for the glory of the school. Working together has made America great. In three hundred years it has made her the nation most admired in the world, and if she ever falls, it will be because her people divide themselves into little groups and destroy themselves by fighting each other. Your years in high school should teach you the need of forgetting yourself and helping the other fellow.

Moreover, high school will teach you how to enjoy yourself and get something out of the hours when you are not at work. Americans today know only too much about spending money, and only too little how to get any real pleasure out of it. You will have a chance to come into contact with the right sort of play, the right sort of books, the right sort of companions. You will learn, or should learn, that the great men of America did not become great by holding up the corners of the village post offices, or by spending every evening in a pool room, or by joy rides and dances without end, but by hard work and restful, helpful play; that the great women of America did not find their inspiration in vanity cases and the rear seats of sedans, but by keeping themselves good, and pure, and true. High school will give you time for Boy Scout and Girl Scout activities —activities that are at present doing you boys and girls more good, by teaching you how to enjoy yourselves in the right way, than almost any other thing. If you go into high school with the purpose to get all the good there is in it, you will soon learn to know how petty are moonshine, swearing, and bad stories beside the better things in life. And if you are the kind of boys and girls I hope and think you are, you will care enough for your school to keep it free from dirty things, for you can do more good than all the teachers in the world in work like that. High school, then, will teach you the value of clean enjoyment and clean living.

High school will also teach you to love your fellowmen, whether they be Jew, Catholic, Protestant, black, or white. That is why I like the public school, it jumbles us together in our education as we are in life. We come to know that other folks' ideas of religion, of living, are as good as our own—we sometimes miss that in private schools. If we remembered our schoolmates, or athletic friends, our fun together, how we cheered for Freddy—for Micky —for Ikey—and loved them all—if we carried this memory along with us, we should not be worrying about 100 per cent. Americanism, Klanism, Catholicism, Protestantism, and all the other isms today.

So school can teach us, if we will but let it, the best way to make a living, and the best kind of citizenship. Are the four years going to mean anything to you? Are you willing to work for what you get?

(Turning from the graduates to the audience, Mr. Jackson went on.)

A public high school is a great institution. But it cannot do its work alone, its work of turning out happy workers and good citizens. It is almost helpless in its strivings without the help and cooperation of the people in the homes, and it is to such, the parents of these children, and other children in our schools, that I should like to give these closing words.

In Rome, it used to be the custom for those who called upon a matron to request to see her jewels, in which she took great delight. One afternoon a very famous Roman lady was asked to display her gems. She left the room and returned with her two little boys. Pointing to them, she said, in a voice which trembled with pride, "Here are my jewels."

And is not as true today? Which of you, if you were to make a choice, would not prefer to have your beautiful cars wrecked, your attractive homes burned to ashes, your money lost in bankruptcies, than to have the lives of your children lost or harmed? No question for a minute. The answer comes straight and true from the heart.

And yet the American home is losing its grip on the growing child today. Too much is being left to the school teacher, to the preacher, to the Scout leader, and too little to the influence of the mother and father. No school can guarantee to interest the child in securing an education unless the folks at home are doing their best to secure and maintain such an interest. The teacher is forced to hurry through classes, and to divide his attention among many—it is up to the parent to keep in contact with the school, to keep an active interest in its affairs, to learn conditions and then to criticise them —not, as is now too often the case, learn conditions from the neighbors over the back fence and then criticise without knowing.

Neither can the school guarantee to turn out in four years children of high moral grade, if the children come from unmoral homes. If the parent is not sufficiently interested in keeping the child off the corner and out of bad company, why should we not find smokers and even drinkers in our schools? Can a bootlegger expect his boy to be a lawkeeper? Can a mother whose interest lies first in dress and cars, and only secondly in the home, expect her daughter to be interested in much more than rolling her stockings and rouging her cheeks when she comes to school? Example, like charity, begins at home. Your children are what you make them; the school cannot change in five or six hours a day, 40 weeks in the year, what the child learns outside the rest of the time.

Be a helper to your boy and girl. An expensive car with no brakes will stop somewhere with a smash. What is likely to happen to the impulsive, impressionable boy or girl under 16, with no brakes? Let me say again, keep in contact with your children, find out what they like to do and help them do it, visit their schools, go with them to their dances, make your homes their "corners" and "gang places," be something more than a "don't" or a "Well,-I've-nothing-to-say-if- your-father-doesn't care" in their lives. We have too little of what E. A. Guest tells of in his little poem:

"Then I smile an' say to mother, let 'em move the chairs about,
Let 'em frolic in the parlor, let 'em shove the tables out,
Jus' so long as they are near us, jus'
so long as they will stay
By the fireplace we are keepin,' harm will never come their way,
And you'll never hear me grumble
at the bills that keep me poor,
It's the finest part o' livin, that's what home's intended for!"

Your children deserve higher education if you can possibly give it to them. It will mean more to them than any luxury you can have will mean to you. But above all, they must have the home life so many of them are not getting. If your influence is squarely behind the child, the school will not have to worry half as much about discipline and morals, and its work of turning out happy workers and good citizens will be twice as efficient.

Tonight you and these children are at one of the most important cross-roads of life. If you have confidence in yourselves, if you believe that your boy or your girl is worthy of the best you can give him, you will not hesitate which way to take.

Following the program an informal reception was tendered the members of the class, after which Miss Shattuck entertained the graduates, including three who will probably enter High school with their class this fall, also the members of the school committee and Supt. Lewis.

The Fourth at the State School

The Fourth is always a big day at the State School. It was last year and it certainly was this. To be sure, there is not quite the noise made there that there is up street, and there is no grand display of fireworks, but the parade, track meet and sports held in the city below have no competitors hereabouts.

The parade was attraction sufficient in itself. For days and weeks employees and pupils at the school have been busy making preparations for this grand event, which was worthy of a more public presentation. The line circled the grounds, twice passing the reviewing stand, specially constructed for the purpose, directly in front of the administration building. The stand was trimmed with bunting; and the whole length of the building was strung with Japanese lanterns and balloons.

Following was the order of parade:

5 sailor girls with the colors.

Small boy afoot in policeman's attire.

Gould's seven-piece orchestra, dressed in white.

12 Camp Fire boys.

Float, "Daisies," wagon and harness trimmed with yellow and white, 4 girls with golden headgear peering out of apertures in white framework around float, giving the appearance of daisies. Drawn by white horse.

Float, "Sanitary Serving Squad," Truck trimmed with flags and bunting, giant firecracker setting upright over cab, dining table with flowers at which 6 young ladies are seated, others serving them a real repast, sign "Quick Service."

Float, "Mother Goose," several children thereon, quaintly attired, mammoth golden "pumpkin shell" at rear with girl inside.

"Little Red Riding Hood," "Little Bo-Peep," "Simple Simon" and "The Pie Man."

Float, "A New Kind of Bird," pony artificially "feathered." (For Dr. Rowland's benefit.)

Baseball teams afoot, in baseball suits.

Float, "Trial of Fire." Children standing holding banners labelled "electricity," "gas," etc. Carelessness in handling was brought out and a row of boys in plain clothes, representing a jury, was seated across the back.

"Fireman and Sheriff," "Washout on the Line," (girl either side of road with clothes line of clothes between), "Mrs. Whatsis and Mrs. Whosis," town gossips.

Girl carrying banner lettered "Gym Jams," followed by two girls in white with flags, and 26, two abreast, all in khaki, immediately following.

Girl holding May pole wound with red, white and blue, surrounded by 10 other girls holding streamers of similar colors.

The "Campbell Kids," boy and girl in familiar white suits, set with roses.

Older boy in black with red shirt and gorgeous green necktie holding hand of diminutive youngster —labelled "Going to Circus."

Balloon pedlers with full supply of balloons and pin wheels—labeled "Nica da Balloon" and "Aska da Pop."

Death of Mrs. Mary Hinds

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth (Covell) Hinds died Tuesday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. H. A. Hopkins, after a long illness. Mrs. Hinds was born in Boston, Aug. 25, 1834, the daughter of William and Mary Collins Covell. She married Calvin Parkman Hinds, a lawyer of Boston, and at one time member of the city council. Mr. Hinds died a little over thirty years ago.

Mrs. Hinds was an interesting conversationalist and retained her keen mind almost to the time of her death. She was a great reader and was intensely interested and well-informed on all religious subjects and public affairs.

She leaves two daughters, Mrs. H. A. Hopkins of this town, and Mrs. Charles H. Eddy of Malden, also a son, Wm. C. Hinds of Boston. There are also 7 grandchildren and 12 great grandchildren. The funeral was held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock, Rev. W. Harold Snape, officiating, assisted by Rev. D. L. Hilliard. The commital service will be held Saturday afternoon at Cedar Grove cemetery, Milton, Mass. This will be conducted by Rev. Mr. Bailey of the Winthop St. M. E. church.

To Complete Road

The selectmen have received word that the plan is to complete the Amherst road to the post office this year. It had been thought that this section of the road would have to be delayed by reason of expense, but a supplementary budget of road expenses in the highway department made a change in plans. Undoubtedly the Lane Construction Co. of Meriden will have charge of the building of this stretch of road also. Work on the new section to the east of the railroad tracks is progressing rapidly.

"Our Angel," scholar with cloth wings of mammoth proportions.

Float, "The Mikado," Mikado seated at back with familiar "umbrella" over him, being fanned by 2 attendants. All in oriental attire. Float yellow and black with Japanese lanterns hung at side.

"Jiggs and Maggie," "Jackie Coogan" and "Aunt Jamma," appropriately attired. Bridal pair—labeled "Better or Worse."

Float, "Pony Chorus," pink and white, six girls, imitation chariot at rear driven by girl in pink crepe dancing attire. Streamers reach to other girls similarly attired and to small boy and girl at front of float in pink caps and suits of white set with roses.

"The Harry Lauders," "Raggedy Ann and Raggedy Andy," clowns, etc.

Float, "Columbia," express wagon trimmed with national colors.

Three boys afoot, "driving" hobby horses and walking in center of framework depicting equines.

"Razberry Band," a ludicrous assortment of oddly dressed musicians with pompous leader, equipped apparently with all kinds of musical instruments ever made and giving forth the kind of music one might expect.

Several decorated autos, one lavishly trimmed with flags and bunting, another depicting "The New Home" with imitation chimney on top, windows with shades at sides and rear, green blinds drawn on white cloth to represent the outside of the house, and boxes of flowers set on the "fenders" of the "home."

Minature auto made out of box boards with tin cans as parking lights and other accessories corresponding—a last year's model, steered by one boy and pushed by another.

Much as ever this last contrivance got to the reviewing stand. It was ditched shortly before, but a little muscle and several make-believe crank-ups helped and it came through.

L. S. Parsons, Dr. F. C. Wilder and Fred A. Farrar of Northampton, one of the trustees, acted as judges, and at the conclusion of the parade Mr. Parsons announced the following awards:

2nd prize, "Pony Chorus."

The track meet on the athletic field followed shortly after, the pupils going over in a body. 21 events were run off and no urging was necessary to get contestants. When the pie eating contest was called, the rush to be among the lucky ten was so great that few of the attendants wanted to risk "getting in wrong" with their constituency in making the choice.

That was the popular event—the pie eating contest. Juicy blueberry pies, five boys kneeling at one bench and five girls at another, hands tied behind them, lifting the contents like steam shovels at work, with complexions fast growing bluer and bluer.

The rope pull was a "tug of war", indeed. The Hill boys and the farm boys matched strength, and while the farm boys gained inch by inch, they let up too soon and suddenly lost.

Prizes of chocolates, lollypops, etc., were given out by Dr. Westwell, who had charge of the meet. Dr. Wilder and L. H. Blackmer acted as judges.

Not only will the story of the day go into print, but moving pictures were taken of the parade and portions of the meet, so that when the winds blow cold this winter, the events of the day will be re-enacted.

No salaries are paid for getting up these entertainments at the school but Dr. Westwell enters into the work for sheer love of it, and others, like-minded, help boost it to success.

The M. E. Sunday School picnic will be held at Aldrich lake next Wednesday.

S. W. Roode entertained on Monday his son, Fred J. Roode, and daughter, Mrs. Ethan Hescock, with her two sons, Ethan and Horace, all of Westfield, N. J.

The Sunday evening services at the Congregational church will be omitted till September 1.

Miss Ruby Dennett of North Brookfield, formerly of this town, is spending two weeks at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Otto Reimann.

Dr. and Mrs. Philip W. Stone and family of Hyde Park were holiday and week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Aspengren.

Tells of Trip

Mrs. E. O. Stebbins has returned from a two weeks' visit with relatives in New York state. While there she had the pleasure of seeing some of the picturesque Catskill mountains. Her party visited Twilight park, owned by a wealthy club in New York city, whose members spend the summer months in their private cottages or at the Club houses. Other places of interest visited were Fawn's Leap, Rip Van Winkle's haunts, and Kaaterskill Falls, where one can look into three states and see the Berkshire hills. From Sunset Inn, one of the Club houses on the very top of the mountain, one gets a splendid view of Haines Falls. The Hotel Kaaterskill, which was destroyed by fire a year or so ago, and which had stood on the top of the mountain for many years and is said to have had four hundred rooms, was greatly missed. A sail on the Hudson and one is home again all too soon.

In Business for Himself

William E. Parker of Easthampton, a graduate of B. H. S., has opened a law office of his own in Easthampton. The Easthampton News of July 3 had the following to say about it:

Atty. William E. Parker, who has been associated with Atty. N. S. Hitchcock for the last three years, will within another week open a law office of his own on the second floor of the Fugere-Bernier building, occupying the office formerly occupied by Tessier's insurance business.

Mr. Parker is a native of Hartford, Ct., where he was born in 1900. He then lived in Belchertown from 1908 to 1922, graduating from Belchertown high school in 1918 and then attending Norwich university, Northfield, Vt. In June, 1922, he was graduated from the law school of Boston University, with the degree of bachelor of laws, took his examination July 1, 1922, and was admitted to the Massachusetts bar September 22, 1922.

Since August 1, 1922, he has been associated with Atty. Hitchcock. His new office is now being fitted up. Mr. Parker lives wih his mother, Mrs. Belle Parker, at 117 Main street. He has made many friends since coming to Easthampton and they will wish him all success in his law practice here. In his work with Mr. Hitchcock, he has had a general legal experience.

Work at Pump House

The foundations for the pump house are approximately completed and work will shortly begin on the pump and motor foundations. Word has been received that the pumps will be here the first day of August and that the installation will be a matter of about two weeks. So the day is not far distant when the district will be using its own water. The work of erecting the building will be in charge of the commissioners. The structure will be of brick and is to be about 20 feet square.

The Daily Vacation Bible School

No, the daily vacation Bible school is not a school for backward children. No, it is not a part of the Methodist Sunday school only, but a co-operative project entered into by the Congregational and Methodist Sunday schools together and is free to any children in the community. No, Marjorie, there are no "zamples" to do at this school and I think you would like it if you came.

The daily vacation Bible school is for children from four to twelve inclusive, and is intended to teach religion and its practise. It combines learning things with doing things. It includes supervised playing, hand work, Bible instruction, music, pictures and stories.

About thirty children were enrolled in the first three days and more are expected. The children are in three groups. The kindergarten class has been taught so far by Mrs. Marian Lewis. Mrs. Belle Peck and Mrs. Marian Shaw will continue the instruction for the next week. The primary class is in charge of Miss Marian Bardwell assisted by Miss Carrie Atwood. The Juniors have as their instructor Mr. Snape with Miss Eleanor Bardwell in charge of the hand work.

The hand work in some of the departments could make use of used picture post cards and magazines with pictures to cut out. These can be left at the Methodist church vestry during the hours of the school session, or with one of the teachers.

Census Completed

The selectmen have completed the taking of the state census and announce the following figures:

Population outside of State School	2,047
Personnel at State school	866
Total population	2,913

In sending in the returns, no separate item is designated to the school so that anyone not familar with the situation, would think we had grown rather abnormally. It is stated that outside the State school the population has decreased somewhat, although the figures for some time have been around 2,000.

Picnic at Aldrich Lake

The M. E. Sunday school picked a good day for its Sunday school picnic at Aldrich Lake Wednesday. By reason of the wide invitation given, the gathering assumed a community aspect, especially as far as the young people were concerned—and they are usually the ones to be pleased.

But the older ones had their innings at the ball game, much to their own delight as well as the youngsters', so everybody went home happy.

There were no fatalities from drowning or seat crushing en route, although R. A. French is mourning the loss of a couple of pine boards which served as seats and which failed to resist the rhythm of his motor, or rather the hilarity of the inmates. They all stayed in although some went down.

When it came to the water, the young folks went in in a hurry and when the dinner call was sounded they came out about as fast. The lure of community eats and picnic lemonade could not be resisted.

With the arrival of H. F. Peck, superintendent, and E. Clifton Witt, in charge of the sports, the wheels commenced to turn.

A number of races were run off, including standing broad jumps, 100-yard dashes, sack races, wheelbarrow races, ball throwing and a

The Service of Biography

Biography occupies a larger place in human life than we sometimes give to it. It plays a larger part than we think.

We are helpless to explain adequately any quality of human life without biography. Take the quality of chivalry. We say a chivalrous man is courteous, is courageous, has bravery, has the qualities of endurance, is gallant, and has graciousness toward the weak and helpless. If this is lacking as a definition, you may add to it as you wish and then declare that you have a perfect definition of the word. But in order to get a real picture of the meaning of the word, we must see those qualities displayed in a life. If we look at some great knight, then we know what chivalry is.

If we would explain courage so that everyone will understand completely, we must present a man of courage. So when we want to tell others what forgiveness is, we ask them to look at Stephen, what humility is to look at Abraham Lincoln, and so on. Not until a quality is seen in a life are we able to understand it.

We can never completely understand any great cause until it has been exemplified in a life. We cannot understand the Reformation without Martin Luther and John Calvin and the rest. So with every great enterprise.

It is noteworthy that the three greatest religions of the world are named after individuals. They would not have come into being without them.

We ought therefore to give to biography a larger place than we usually do and realize that there is nothing so important as the lives we lead.

soda drinking contest.

This last was rather a new one. Two rows of "drys" imbibed full bottles of soda tipped at the right angle by the ones opposite. This was almost as popular as the pie eating contest at the State School. Little urging was needed to get contestants who could stand one bottle more.

The sack races developed the usual top-heavy bran sacks; many of the human wheelbarrows got ditched, hands slipped off the handles, or rather feet, wheels came off, etc., but it was all good fun. E. Clifton Witt called off the events, while Rev. W. H. Snape was starter. Mrs. R. A. French and L. H. Blackmer were judges.

Then came the ball game between the single men and the married men. The former expected a cinch, but the married folks "warmed up," and most important of all, got the umpire, Charles W. Morse, fairly well instructed in his duties.

The married folks came near quitting when they tied the score at 3-3, but played another inning in the hope of tipping the scales in the right direction. Luck failed them, however, not the umpire, and the singles were the ones that got the added run. So when the next inning was called the married men had limped from the field to tank up on Sloan's linament.

All the married men needed was the ability to get runs. Snape, the opposing twirler, had an imposing wind-up, and Alvin Michel caught.

The married men were the comedians of the day, so the line-up is given entire: Clifton Witt, c; Max Bock, p, ss; Paul Aldrich, 1; L. H. Blackmer, 2; R. A. French, ss, p; H. F. Peck, 3 and field; E. E. Gay, field; W. E. Shaw, 3 and field. Harold Booth was score keeper.

With one or two more marriages this fall, the prospect is that the youngsters are out to lose next year.

The game ended the official program, and gradually the crowd dwindled. Some had left hay in the field, all ready to go in Wednesday, but the lure of the picnic was such that the "boys" decided to "leave the farm."

Surprise Party

TURKEY HILL NEWS

Turkey Hill showed its old-time community spirit last Friday evening when over 40 friends and neighbors, including guests from Amherst, Pelham, Ware and Ludlow, met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Williams in honor of the recent marriage of their son, Leon, and Miss Myrtle Olds of Ware. Mr. Williams has lived in this community all of his life and owns one of the first settled farms in this vicinity. Mrs. Wiliams, altho having been born in Ware, where she has always lived, is a descendant of one of the first settlers of Turkey Hill, the late Charles P. Underwood, who cleared the land and built the house where James Lodge now lives. Until three years ago the farm had always been owned by the original family. Mrs. Williams has taught school seven years in her home district, resigning at the time of her marriage.

The party was a complete surprise. A sum of money was presented them by our genial mail carrier, A. J. Sears, in behalf of the neighbors and friends, and Mr. Williams responded in a brief and pleasing manner. After games and amusements, refreshments were served, and the party dispersed at a late hour.

Larger Attendance at Bible School

Today's session marks the end of the first half of the daily vacation Bible school. The impression is current among some that the children are losing interest and that the attendance is growing less. Those who feel that way should visit the school some morning and see for themselves. Visitors are always welcome.

This wrong impression is only another case of ignorance of the facts, and as we have tried to rectify other wrong impressions—that the school was run by one church for the children of that church only; that a tuition fee was charged, making it too expensive for most children; that it was a school for backward pupils; that it tied children down and confined them too much for vacation time—as we have tried to set people right on these various misunderstandings, so we would rectify this error, that the school is losing ground. Here are the facts.

At the end of the first week the enrollment had reached thirty with an attendance of twenty-five. This week several new members have entered, increasing the enrollment to about forty. Of this number nineteen are enrolled in the Junior department, thirteen in the Primary, and seven in the kindergarten. The usual attendance is thirty-five.

If attendance is not sufficient to prove interest, take this instance for further proof. One member had to leave town with his parents, and his regrets at missing school were so great that it almost seemed advisable to leave him with friends in town.

The children who attend are indeed fortunate and seem to realize it. Under educated, trained leaders, they are getting instruction which could come in no other way. Aside from the distinctly religious instruction is the hand work, drawing, cutting, pasting—work which is not taught in our schools and which is wholly new to most of the children. Some are doing very good work but some, even among the oldest, find it difficult to do well work that 1st grade children have in some schools.

And the work is showing results already. Parents are saying, "Well, there is one thing about it, the school has taught Johnnie to——."

Mrs. Lewis, who taught the kindergarten group the first week, is leaving town and Miss Irene M. Jackson will be one of the teachers of that group next week. The other two departments continue with the instructors of the first two weeks.

A Successful Finish

Statistics are rather discouraging concerning our prospects of success. Of a hundred men, only a very few get even moderately rich, while the majority have all they can do to meet their bills when they come due. How many of us are disappointed! We start out in life with high expectations and then they come to nothing. We begin with flying colors but we do not end well. This is sometimes due to ill health or misfortune or bad luck or unfortunate reverses. Sometimes men fail for reasons beyond their control.

But there are more failures than there should be. History is full of examples of men and women who have succeeded in spite of many handicaps. Success or failure is largely in our own hands. If a boy or girl fails to see today's lesson through, he is likely to fail in making a successful finish in life. But he who each day gets his task done will likely be found getting his life task well done. The trouble with many of us is that in most things we do, we do not see the thing through. We begin well, when the enthusiasm is high and the task is novel and the crowd is shouting, but we fall out when the task gets monotonous and we do not hear the plaudits of the throng, and we find we are journeying alone.

We Americans are too much guilty of starting well and then petering out. If we would succeed in life's task, we must not fail in the daily tasks. Our real test is not seen by the way we journey the first mile, but how we come in at the home stretch.

Off The Beaten Path

The real charm of touring lies in leaving the main-travelled highways and exploring the thousands of alluring side-paths. These dirt roads and trails lead to spots of rare beauty unvisited by the throng—where better camp-sites may be found—finer fishing and lovelier scenery.

In a Ford car, you can enjoy the thrill of exploration and discovery. It is the one satisfactory means of travel for these narrow roads—light—yet so powerful that it will bring you through—easy to handle—sturdy and economical.

It will carry the whole family and the saving in cost often pays for the entire vacation.

Community Lawn Party on chapel lawn.

The Lawn Party

The Christian Endeavor lawn party last Friday evening was especially favored both as to weather and attendance. The chapel lawn has seen many parties but this one did not have to apologize to its predecessors, even though the rising generation is not usually considered quite as stable as the old.

No more crepe paper was used than formerly, but the head artist had been to "Paris" and the creations were especially tasteful.

The Dutch booth had the typical windmill wheel over all. Here punch was dealt out and the customer did not have to wait for the wind to blow before being served.

In the same class was the Japanese booth where ice cream and college ices were dispensed. Massive pillars, typical of the orient, were in evidence at either end, while in front on a white background were characters from the cherry blossom country.

The candy booth was red and white, representing the familiar red and white stick candy.

Pop corn was sold from a booth trimmed with a delicate shade of pink.

"The Country Store" had a counter and several shelves behind, all loaded with articles in keeping with that age-old institution. It was too busy a spot, however, to savor much of the "good old days". The eagerness to buy and the aggressiveness to sell, especially at the end, were pleasing points of departure.

Gould's orchestra of six pieces furnished music throughout the evening. This was greatly enjoyed by all—and the community sing at the finish was enjoyed too, that being a sort of spontaneous number put on by the people themselves.

About $50 was realized by the Endeavorers as a result of the party.

Classes Hold Reunion

The seventh triennial reunion of classes 1888 and 1889 of the local High school was held July 23rd. In the afternoon, 21 members of the classes, including members of their families, met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Gould for a social time and a business meeting, at which all the old officers were re-elected: Miss Julia B. Smith of Lexington, pres.; Mrs. John R. Newman, Jr., Mrs. Charles W. Morse, Guy C. Allen, Leroy M. Blackmer, executive committee. Mrs. Iva G. Peeso and Mrs. Thomas Allen were chosen secretary and treasurer of their respective classes for life ("if they behave themselves.")

It was thought best to select a permanent date for the reunions, and the second Wednesday in July was chosen.

At 7 o'clock the party went by auto to the Swift River hotel at Enfield for a broiled chicken dinner arranged for by Mrs. Guy C. Allen. The dinner was an excellent one, and with plenty of broiled chicken and other delicious things too numerous to mention here, the two hours spent at the table were most thoroughly enjoyed.

After the dinner, the president called on Thomas Allen to speak to us regarding the new High school building and its equipment, teachers, and the good work being accomplished there. His talk made us all wish that the advantages of today might have been ours back in the early '80's. Mrs. Mattie Rhodes Hamilton of West Pelham was then called on to tell us about her Maternity hospital, in which we are all greatly interested, and in the building up of which she has been so successful.

At this time it was announced that the bus had arrived to take us home, so we missed hearing interesting stories of the doings of other members of the two classes. As we passed out of the dining room, all joined in the singing of Auld Lang Syne.

Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Newton A. Dickinson and friend, Mrs. Capitola Demond, Miss Helen Demond of Springfield, Miss Julia B. Smith of Lexington, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hamilton of West Pelham, Arthur E. Pease of South Hadley Falls, Mrs. Avery W. Stacy and Miss Adelyn Stacy, Mrs. John R. Newman, Jr., Mrs. Iva G. Peeso, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy M Blackmer, Mr. and Mrs. Guy C. Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Allen, Mrs. Chas. W. Morse and Mr and Mrs. Henry R. Gould of this town.

An Amazing Trial

I like to re-read 'Old Town Folks.' I like to get the flavor of Old New England it gives and the keen observations of the author regarding some of the principles underlying New England life.

Following a paragraph in which the schoolmaster of Cloudland expresses his approval of the minister of Cloudland as a man "who hasn't made his terminal buds yet" and would "grow into different opinions on a good many subjects before he dies," Mrs. Stowe remarks: "It was this implied liberty of growth—the liberty to think and to judge freely upon all subjects—that was the distinctive educational force of New England life."

I had been reading the depressing reports of the amazing Dayton trial and this remark flashed light upon the peril involved in the enactment and enforcement and in the attitude of mind that approves such a law as that under which the humble Tennessee teacher was tried. The law and its approval threaten "liberty of growth," imperil progress.

The two great sources of enlightenment in our American civilization are the school and the church. Each should be free. If the preacher is bound by stereotyped creed or ecclesiastical authority, if he does not have liberty to think and to judge upon all possible questions of religion, intelligence will halt and the great cause of religion will suffer.

If an ecclesiastical body or a legislature or any organization may dictate the subjects to be taught in the school, education will suffer.

Some of the fears excited by the Dayton occurrence are deceptive cries of wolf, wolf! But the peril to liberty of growth is real and it threatens not alone our educational interests, the public schools, but, also, our political and religious interests. The partisan in politics would tie the voter to the old political platforms and outgrown policies of state, and the bigoted church man shouts heretic if one questions his beliefs.

Ignorance and bigotry must not be allowed to limit the great sources of our intellectual and moral culture by denying to any one the liberty to think and to judge freely upon all subjects, the liberty to "grow into different opinions" in view of new knowledge or new unfoldings of truth.

Special Town Meeting

A special town meeting will be held in Lawrence Memorial hall next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The following articles will be acted upon:

Art. 2. To see if the town will vote to rescind action taken under that part of Article 4 of the town meeting held February 9, 1925, whereby $2,500.00 was appropriated for improvements on the Three Rivers road.

Art. 3. To see if the town will vote to appropriate two hundred and fifty (250) dollars for the purpose of building a fence on the westerly side of Mt. Hope cemetery from the end of the present wall to the land of the estate of E. S. Bridgman.

Art. 4. To consider and act upon the question of selling to Carl Hill a certain tract or parcel of land situate on the easterly side of the highway leading from Dwights to Amherst, nearly opposite the Union Evangelical chapel, consisting of about 1.506 acres or more, particularly described and shown on a plan of the County highway, so-called, filed with the County records at Northampton, Massachusetts, and laid out by the County Commissioners April 7, 1925; and however said tract or parcel may be bounded and described, being a portion of the premises described in a deed from Bridget Joy to the town of Belchertown, dated July 15, 1903 and recorded with Hampshire County Deeds, book 572, page 339.

The county and state were unwilling to designate money to be expended on the Three Rivers road this year, in view of the fact that the expensive Amherst road is being taken care of. So article two was placed in the warrant with a view to withdrawing appropriation made at the annual meeting, awaiting such time as the state can assist. Passing article two will decrease the tax rate about $2.50.

Article three is to see if the town will erect a fence along the line of horse sheds, recently removed, to the Bridgman line.

Article four was inserted in the warrant as a result of a claim growing out of the construction of the new Amherst-Belchertown road. The road cuts through an acre lot belonging to Carl Hill of Dwight. The amount awarded Mr. Hill in view of damages, Mr. Hill does not consider adequate. As an alternative he offers to accept in lieu of the other property, an acre belonging to the town and adjoining another lot of his bordering the Union school house lot. There are some nine acres in the school lot. This large amount of ground the town bought as the owner offered a more reasonable price on the whole lot. If the town does not care to vote the conditions of the article, the adjustment of the damages on the other property will be settled in the ordinary way.

Pranaitis-Ferriter Wedding

The marriage of Miss Anna Pranaitis and Thomas J. Ferriter took place July 29 at 7.30 o'clock in St. Francis church. Rev. James Dunphy performed the ceremony. Miss Alice Flaherty and James P. Sullivan, both of Belchertown, were the attendants.

The bride wore white crepe de chine with a veil caught with pearls. The bridesmaid wore peacock blue crepe with hat to match.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to members of the bridal party at the Park View hotel.

The bride gave her attendant a beaded bag. White gold cuff links was the gift of the bridegroom to the best man.

Carnival and Lawn Party

St. Francis church will hold a carnival and lawn party next Wednesday and Thursday. Festivities will begin at 5 o'clock, Wednesday, when the married men and single men of the K. of C. expect to clash on the baseball diamond. The number of innings will be determined by the way unused muscles limber up.

A tug of war is scheduled following the game, when it is expected that Palmer, Holyoke, Belchertown and Ware will match their strength.

With athletics over there will be a chicken supper served at the Park View. The first table will be ready at 6 o'clock and the second between 7 and 8.

The carnival will be held both nights and will be on the grounds between the hotel and the residence of Homer Couture. It is expected that the space will be enclosed with canvas and an admission of 10 cents charged. Inside there will be concessions of all kinds. Blankets, aluminum ware, fancy articles, candy, ice cream, soda, cigars, etc. will be offered.

Each night there will be music and various forms of entertainment, including singing, speaking, and readings by monologue artists.

The program above is tentative, but it will be pretentious, whatever happens.

The proceeds will go to the St. Francis rectory building fund. The members of the church and pastor, extend through our columns an invitation to the public to attend.

Community Lawn Party

Next week will be lawn party week. The Catholics hold forth Wednesday and Thursday nights, and on Friday night the Congregationalists will have a party. This will be of a different nature from the ordinary presentation. Nothing will be for sale and the community is invited to come and get acquainted. A program will be given, in charge of the young people's society and refreshments will be served. Further announcement will be made as to music, etc., next week.

Bryan and Darrow

It is a pity that so frequently the spokesman for a cause is not an adequate representative. In order to get a clear and luminous idea of a movement, it should be presented by one who has a thorough grasp of the matter. This is not always so. The best representaives of modernism and fundamentalism were not the speakers in the New York public debate. If modernism and fundamentalism were what those speakers declared, one would hesitate to enrol himself with either side.

The issue at Dayton was after all a struggle between Bryan and Darrow. Surely Mr. Darrow was a wholly inadequate representative of those who have taken the modern view of the Scriptures, and he may have done more harm than good for the cause. Few of us would wish to line up with him as to his cold and unsympathetic attitude to the Bible. And as for Mr. Bryan, when he confesses that he knows very little about the origin of religions and the origin of civilizations, and furthermore does not care to know, and that it is enough for him to accept the statements of the Bible literally without the use of reason or imagination, we hesitate to follow.

The fact of the case is that both Byran and Darrow have failed to give us the beautiful and sublime religious truths of Genesis or Joshua or Jonah.

We would listen more intently to Mr. Bryan if he had not confessed he knew so little about science and evolution, and more eagerly to Mr. Darrow if he knew the real heart of the Scriptures.

We question very much whether Mr. Bryan has made any real contribution to the appreciation and authority of the Bible. He will go down in history as a great man, not because of this, but for his fine and noble character and for his firm and noble stand on all ethical matters. He has done much for temperance and for missions and the church. He loved people and he loved his God. A great soul has passed on.

Away From the Crowds

America is still undiscovered, still waiting to be discovered —by you!

Away from the paved highways, deep in the hidden solitudes —are shady groves fragrant with the scent of flowers—sun-drenched valleys—lazy streams—or hurrying brooks as befit your mood. Waiting to please you with their untouched charms.

Take your Ford and venture forth into the delights of the unknown. Leave the beaten path to others. Go where you will—whether the road is paved or not.

It is the car for the true adventurer; the car that no going —be it sand, dirt or rocky road—can halt; the car that will take you safely, certainly and happily to where Nature hides her true loveliness.

Death of Daniel P. Spencer

Daniel Putnam Spencer, 75, died at the Mary Lane hospital, Ware, Saturday, Aug. 8, after just a week's illness. Mr. Spencer was born in Pomfret, Conn., Jan. 25, 1850, the son of John and Elizabeth Washburn Spencer. After short residences in Southbridge, Sturbridge and Warren, he lived in Springfield eight years, coming to Belchertown thirty years ago. On May 25, 1882 he was married to Mary Eunice Wallis, who survives him.

Mr. Spencer was a respected citizen of the town and held numerous positions of trust. He was a member of the Belchertown Historical Association, Union Grange, in which he has been a member of the executive committee, steward, treasurer and gate keeper, and a member of Hampshire County Pomona Grange.

He leaves besides his widow, a son, Howard Spencer of this town, three grandchildren, Ruth, Loraine and Joyce Spencer of this town, a sister, Mrs. C. M. Smith of Danielson, Conn., a brother, J. F. Spencer of Putnam, Conn., besides several nephews and nieces.

The funeral was held at the home Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 11, at 2 o'clock, Rev. D. L. Hilliard, officiating.

The bearers were Ray Smith of Boston, Ralph Spencer of Putnam, Conn., Lucien Baker of Killingly, Conn., and Howell Cook of this town. Burial was in the cemetery in Holland, Mass., where Rev. Harold W. Curtis officiated at the committal service. There were many beautiful floral tributes from relatives and friends.

Special Town Meeting

The special town meeting of Tuesday evening was not largely attended and there was little debate on the articles.

When the article concerning the Three Rivers road was brought up, a motion was made to pass over the article, thus assuring the appropriation as made at the annual meeting. The motion failed to carry, however. After an explanation to the effect that no aid would be forthcoming from the county or state, in view of the expenditures on the Amherst-Belchertown road this year, it was voted to rescind the action taken last February.

$250 was voted for a fence on the westerly side of Mt. Hope cemetery from the end of the present wall to the estate of E. S. Bridgman.

In regard to the article relative to the sale of a part of the schoolhouse lot at Dwight to Carl Hill in lieu of added damages claimed by reason of another tract of land being crossed by the new road, the meeting did the oft repeated stunt of passing over the article, reconsidering, and then acting favorably upon it.

A. R. Lewis was moderator of the meeting.

An Outsider's View of the Summer School

It was my good fortune to visit one session of the Daily Vacation Bible School and to attend the exercises held in connection with the exhibit last Friday evening. The editor has asked me to write out my impressions, which I am very glad to do.

The Summer School delighted me. An outsider is probably more apt to see defects than an insider, but I found no defects. I would like first to pay a tribute to the instructors, all of whom I understand, gave their services without financial remuneration. To give one's time for one week, two weeks or four, as some did, I am informed, means

Catholic Lawn Party

The carnival and lawn party under the auspices of St. Francis church had an auspicious beginning Wednesday night. The festivities started at about 5.30 with a ball game between the married men and the single men. No official score was kept, but the married men had the best of the contest by considerable. Probably they had the most of the fun, too. They had a faculty of connecting with the ball, and that counted. Andy Sears, who travels the mail route, knew how to travel the bases as well, and scored a homer for the married men. Others hit hard. Of course the mits of most of the players were more or less porous and let the ball through, while the tiling piled by first base furnished just the right place for "hide and seek." Both balls and men got lost in the apertures while runners ran merrily on.

The chicken supper at the Park View followed. This was served in fine fashion and was something more than the money making affair that one might expect. Fr. Dunphy was on hand, graciously attending to the comfort of the patrons, of whom there were about 225.

The carnival was a carnival indeed. Plenty of patrons and plenty of material to sell made a good combination and things sold readily. There were several booths, all run by members of the local church, who were not afraid to let their voices be heard in public. Aluminum ware, blankets, confectionery, silk stockings, fancy work, ice cream, soda, canaries and all sorts of articles were fast absorbed by the public.

The grounds were strung with numerous Japanese lanterns, lighted by electricity.

A rope pull was staged between teams from Palmer and Indian Orchard, the former winning.

A brief program was given from the west piazza of the Park View. This was in charge of Palmer council, K. of C. John J. Donahue of Monson and Henry Sullivan of Thorndike both gave vocal solos, while felicitations were extended by Dist. Deputy Hanley of Springfield. There was quite an attendance from out of town.

Owing to rain yesterday, the festivities were transferred to the dance hall last night in order to dispose of perishable goods. On Tuesday evening there will be held the finale of the party, when it is hoped that there wil be a grand clean-up of all articles.

Dies in Madison

We are in receipt of a clipping from a paper in the west, announcing the death of Capt. Bernard Blackmer, a native of this town. Capt. Blackmer was a brother of the late Nelson Blackmer, and came east at the time of his funeral a few years ago. The clipping reads as follows:

"Capt. Bernard Blackmer, 75, operator of one of the first steamboats on Lake Monona, for 51 years a resident of Madison, died at 11 o'clock Friday morning at a local hospital.

"Coming in 1874 from Belchertown, Mass., where he was born Sept. 20, 1850, Mr. Blackmer started a steamboat line around Lake Monona, calling his boat, 'Old Bay State.'

"For nearly 25 years he ran his boat around the shores of Lake Monona. His boathouse and residence, still standing, was at the foot of S. Blair St.

"Capt. Blackmer was a picturesque character of Madison, and made during his lifetime thousands of friends.

"Particularly striking was his hobby for collecting cats, of which he had as many as a dozen running about his boathouse in recent years.

"For some time he lived with his sister, a Mrs. Wilson, near Esther Beach on property that was theirs.

"About 1900, Capt. Blackmer gave up his steamboat, turning to boat repairing and storage at his boathouse near Blair St.

"Five years ago, Capt. Blackmer was run over by his own automobile, while cranking it, and suffered a broken hip, making him an invalid for the past five years. He has been in retirement during the period."

much. It was evident that the teachers gave not simply their mornings when the school was in session, but much of the afternoon or evening in preparation for the next day's work. One would have thought the faculty were trained experts. They enjoyed their work and gave themselves gladly, and I heard one of them say she would cheerfully lend her services next year if a Summer School was held.

The course of instruction pleased me. The very best of the hymns of the Church and the choicest of the passages of Scripture were committed to memory. The worship period brought the children into the spirit of worship. The stories which were told seemed models and taught lessons which every child ought to learn. The class of games which were played was instructive as well as pleasing and entertaining.

But I paid the most attention to the pupils, for a Summer School has no right to exist unless it is of real benefit to and meets a real need of the children. I found the children happy. They came to the school not because their parents sent them but because they wanted to come. They liked to stay so well that one of the teachers declared they almost had to push the scholars home. The children seemed very much at home and acted natural. There was sufficient variety so that the children did not get restless or uneasy. The lessons and the work and the play seemed admirably adapted to the child's age. I was glad to note that "Learning to Share" was the key word in the story telling for one week. The children were sorry to have the school close.

If one could not actually visit the school in session, the next best thing was to attend the exercises Friday evening when the Kindergartners, Primaries and Juniors gave an exhibition of what they had done. They gave to the good number gathered together a sample of their daily work and play. Both before and after the program the exhibit and hand work tables were lined with interested people commenting very favorably on the handiwork of the children. One was heard to remark, "This is just my idea of what a Sunday School should be." It pleased me very much to learn that all that the children made—from post card books to the fine wood work—they wanted sent to some hospital or where it was most needed. I came away feeling that the children had gained very much from the four weeks of Summer School.

Webster-Snape

The following account of the Webster-Snape wedding, which occurred last week Thursday, is taken from the Post-Standard of Syracuse:

The wedding of Miss Mary Janette Webster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Webster of 1412 Madison Street, to Reverend William Harold Snape of Belchertown, Mass., son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Snape of Chicopee Falls, Mass., took place at 4 o'clock yesterday at the Erwin Methodist Episcopal Church. Rev. Dr. Wilbur W. McKee, former rector of the church, performed the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. Arthur E. Moody.

Mrs. Bradford G. Webster, who married the bride's brother during the last week, sang "At Dawning," accompanied by Burnett Andrews, organist of the church. There was a reception in the vestry after the marriage.

The bride's gown was of heavy white satin ornamented with pearls. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and sweet peas.

Her attendants were Miss Ruth Elizabeth Webster, her maid of honor, who was dressed in nile green crepe de-chene and carried white sweet peas and Ophelia roses. Miss Hilda Schnauber and Miss Ruth Buell acted as bridesmaids and little Margaret Webster of Belmont, Mass., and Eleanor Webster of Orrville, O., both nieces of the bride, scattered posies along the aisle.

Mr. Snape had as his best man a classmate at Depauw University, George T. Oborn of Warsaw, Ind. His ushers were Rev. Bradford G. Webster, Cortland; Walter W. Webster of Belmont, Mass., both brothers of the bride; Kenneth Snape of Chicopee Falls, Mass., and Karl Herman, Newark.

Mrs. Snape is a graduate of the school of Home Economics, Syracuse University, in the class of 1924 and was a member of Phi Mu sorority. Mr. Snape was graduated from Depauw University in 1922, and from the Boston school of Theology, 1925. He was affiliated with the Lamba Chi Alpha fraternity.

After a trip through the White mountains, Mr. and Mrs. Snape will make their home in Belchertown, Mass.

Community Lawn Party

The second annual lawn party tendered by the Congregational church was held on the chapel lawn last Friday evening. There was a large attendance, especially so, considering the uncertainty of the weather.

Gould's orchestra furnished music for the evening, and, as usual, rendered pleasing service.

Although there was no program, games were enjoyed under the leadership of representatives of the Young People's Society.

Ice cream and cake were served by ladies of the Social Guild, and punch was in charge of members of the Sunday School. No charge was made for the refreshments, this being the church's "glad hand" to the community.

The final feature of the evening was a community sing, led by Carl Aspengren. The lawn was electrically lighted for the event.

Final Night of Lawn Party

St. Francis church held its final night of the Carnival and Lawn Party, Wednesday evening. There was a good attendance, although, as was to be expected, not as many were present as on the opening night. But the remaining articles offered the public were nearly all disposed of, so that the combined affair was eminently satisfactory.

At 10 o'clock a dance was held in Park View hall, for which Gould's orchestra furnished music.

Enjoyed Excursion

Those who availed themselves of the opportunity to visit Ocean Beach on Wednesday report a glorious time. The party went by bus, driven by H. B. Ketchen, proprietor of the local bus lines.

Leaving Belchertown at 7.45 a. m., the route was taken through Stafford Springs, Willimantic, Norwich and New London. At the navy yard the party saw about a dozen submarines with their tenders. After a gala time at Ocean Beach, the party returned by way of East Hartford over the forty mile stretch of cement road, arriving home at 9. 45 p. m.

The proprietor of the bus royally "refreshed" the party on the way back, which all helped to make this initial long distance excursion of about 200 miles by bus a pleasant memory.

Those who went were: Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Ketchen and family, Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Ketchen, Miss Edith Towne, Dwight Towne, Misses Marian and Lucy Bardwell, Mrs. Iva Peeso, Mrs. Melvin Ayers, Miss Mary Bevins, Myron Ward, H. R. Gould, Mrs. Margaret Wilson, and Mrs. Bert Hurlburt and Mrs. Geo. Filer of Ludlow.

Lot

The Lot of whom I am writing is not the patriarchal Lot of the Old Testament, but the Lot of a recent story. He is a patriarch but of the present age. "Uncle Lot" he is sometimes called. a term of familiarity I would not venture to apply to the Lot of the ancient book of Genesis. We learn of this Lot in a very modern and readable book called, "Quare Women". Not attempting his biography, I will only say of him, that Lot was a highly respected citizen of his community, industrious, honest, just, sober and religious, but, and this I say to "point a moral", he was not open minded.

NO-NOX
GULF
MOTOR FUEL

The ORANGE gas

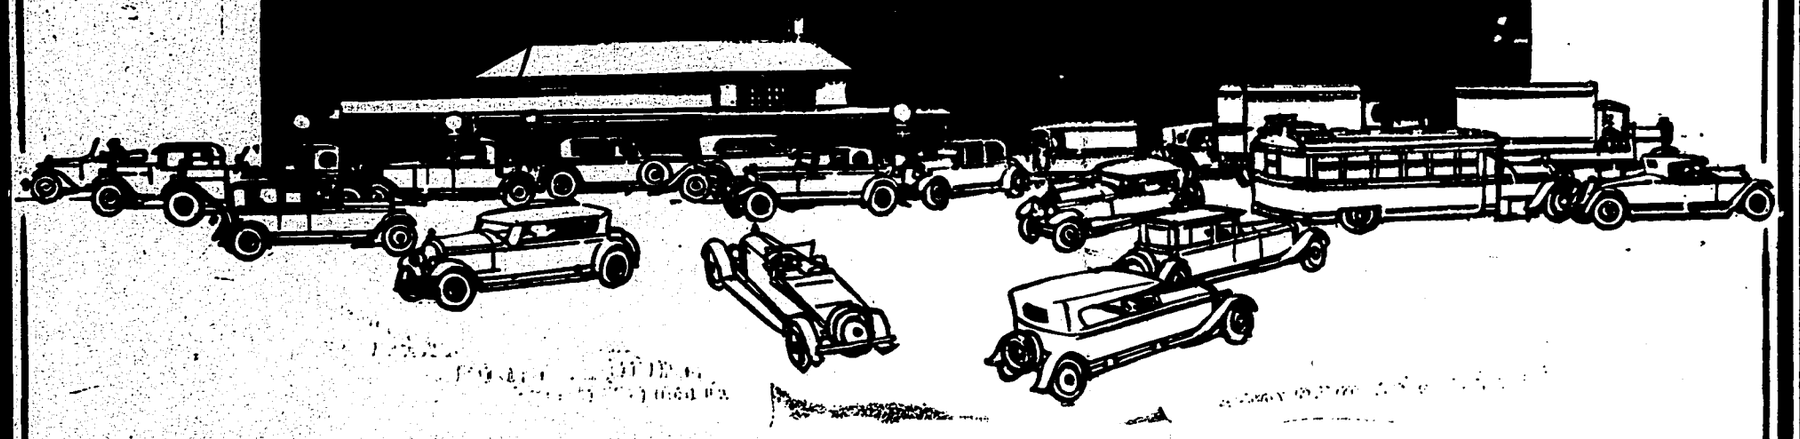
at the sign of the ORANGE DISC

Stops carbon knocks



IT gives us great pleasure to announce NO-NOX our new Motor Fuel. NO-NOX is the product of many months of exhaustive, scientific and chemical research by a staff of our own skilled chemists, infinite care being given to all details to insure the absolute perfection of NO-NOX Motor Fuel. Strenuous nights and days were spent in our thoroughly equipped laboratories by these scientists before NO-NOX Motor Fuel was perfected. Hard grilling road tests followed to develop any weakness overlooked in the laboratory, and we are now ready to offer the most efficient anti-knock fuel in the world.

Manufactured in one refinery under the same skillful supervision and from the same grades of crude, it is continuously uniform which means much in carburetion. When the carburetor is once properly adjusted it requires no further change—care should be taken to see that the mixture is not too rich as NO-NOX works best with a thin mixture, thus insuring economy. With NO-NOX, perfect combustion takes place at just the right position of the piston head which entirely does away with carbon knocks or motor detonation—promoting greater efficiency of the engine, smoother operation of the car on the road, in traffic, and especially on heavy grades.

This wonderfully efficient gas is guaranteed to be Non-Noxious, Non-Poisonous and no more harmful to man or motor than ordinary gasoline.

NO-NOX is priced only three cents per gallon higher than That Good Gulf Gasoline.

Girl Scout Hike

The Girl Scouts of Troop II enjoyed the second of their surprise outings Wednesday afternoon. Members of the two patrols in the center met at Lieut. Jaskson's at 1.30 and started off destination unknown. Arrived at Scout Evelyn Archambault's, they found the members of the third patrol waiting there for them. The whole troop, 19 in all, played Follow your Leader across a mowing, through a pasture thick with blueberries, over stone walls and through fences, arriving finally at a small sheet of water known as Williams' Pond.

Here everybody fell in as soon as permissible and all were ready for the lunches which followed. A few games and contests, in which the Owl patrol won about all the prizes, and the hike home was begun. Mr. Archambault generously assisted the party to reach the center in good season.

The third of this series of surprises is in charge of the Fox patrol and will probably take place a week from next Monday.

him: "My man, Lot, besides being the balkingest man ever drawed breath, is everly again' new things and new idees." This is a severe arraignment of a man, but the story yields ample evidence to justify it. Lot was a balking man. He clung tenaciously to the old things and old ideas. He made his wife the finest battling-log and wash trough in the county, but he would not consent to her having a washboard. He provided pine knots for light, but could not be persuaded to use "lamp-ile" and to cut a hole through the old gray walls of their windowless log-house for such a new thing as a glass window—declared "hit would be plasphemious." Truly he was not receptive to new things and new ideas. And that state of mind, gentle reader, is one of the things that is greatly troubling the world today.

There are Uncle Lots in religion—so many. Alas! of them—men whose minds are closed against any new light that may break out from the Word of God as the result of the increase of knowledge about the origin of religion and the process of revelation and the origin of man.

Their creed is the only true system of belief, their way the only true form of worship, their church the only true church, their literal interpretation of it the only true interpretation of the Bible! And they have helped to make the church suspicious or unfriendly to science and to weaken its intellectual and moral leadership of the world.

There are Uncle Lots in politics. They cry the old party slogans, they indorse the old party platforms, vote the straight ticket and keep the party in the old ruts. Sometimes one gets to Congress and becomes an obstacle to the advance of new ideals of statesmanship and of international responsibility. Since the World war his influence has been especially baneful. His unresponsiveness to new ideas has kept us from membership in the League of Nations and he is now hoping to keep us out of the World Court. In religion and in politics the Uncle Lots are drags upon the wheels of progress.

Now to "point the moral." Let us not be balkers. Let us not be "everly" against new things and new ideas, and let us keep our minds open to all rays of light and truth.

Exhibit Goes to Maine

Boys and girls who worked at the Daily Vacation Bible school this summer will be interested to know that samples of their hand work have gone to Maine, in company with Miss Alice Booth. Miss Booth is a member of the faculty at the Dover-Foxcroft camp meeting where she is scheduled to give four lectures on "Religious Education in Country Schools." Daily Vacation Bible schools being included in her subject, the projects of our boys and girls in Belchertown will be used to show the ministers in Maine what can be done in a rural community.

Excursion to Boston

A popular excursion with reduced rates is announced by the Boston and Maine Railroad for Sunday, August 30th.

This excursion will be a revival of the outings by train so popular a decade ago, with a special train provided going and coming. Excursionists will leave Belchertown at 7.16 a. m., departure being arranged early enough to provide ample time at Boston to visit the beaches and see the sights. Returning, the special train will leave North Station at 6.30 p. m.

The excursion spirit on these old special trains has left memories of many good times, and it is expected that this renewal of the old idea will prove highly popular.

The Boston and Maine management, in developing its program of excursions at reduced rates this summer, has found that in addition to those who do not own automobiles and who find a pleasant outing available at reasonable prices, many motorists patronizing the train excursions find relaxation from driving on crowded highways.

Calendar Party

TURKEY HILL NEWS

The calendar party, which was held at Mrs. George Davis's Wednesday, was a great success both socially and financially. $83.45 was brought in, with six more calendars to be heard from. The program consisted of vocal and instrumental music by Mrs. William and Mrs. Bertram Shaw and Marian Shaw, a reading by Mrs. H. H. Witt, and An Old Maid's Will, which disposed of articles too numerous to mention, read by Rosabelle Putnam.

A buffet lunch of sandwiches, cake and coffee was served to forty guests. Mrs. E. F. Shumway poured. Mrs. Iva Peeso had the affair in charge.

On Their Way East

Cards received on Wednesday from Mr. and Mrs. Harold Peck were postmarked "Elgin, Ill." Mr. and Mrs. Peck are on their return from a motor trip to Minneapolis, Minn. They arrived at their destination on the 15th and left on the 21st.

Girl Scout Activities

TROOP NO. 2

The Fox patrol has planned the surprise hike for next Monday afternoon. Members of Troop II are asked to meet on Lieut. Jackson's lawn at 2 p. m., and bring their own lunch and drinking cup. This hike will be quite different from the two that have preceded it, but the Foxes think that it will be quite worth while.

TROOP 1

The Girl Scouts of Troop 1 are planning for an over-night hike next week.

Three New Teachers Engaged

Miss Ruth Ross of Calais, Me., a graduate of Simmons college, has been elected to teach the sciences in the local high school. Miss Ross will take the place of Percy Thornton, resigned. Francis Gorman, who teaches music in the schools of Dana, will take over the work which has been in charge of Mrs. Clough. Miss Vivian S. Peeling of Bourne, Mass., a graduate of Smith, has been selected as teacher of Latin and French in place of Miss Upham, who has been granted a leave of absence till January by reason of sickness in the family.

Surprise Gift to Pastor

Rev. D. L. Hilliard was the recipient this week of a purse of $75, tendered by the Congregational parish and its organizations for the purpose of making possible the pastor's attendance at the National Council, which is to be held in Washington, D. C., in October.

Expected Home Today

Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Snape are expected in town today, after a two weeks' trip through the White mountains.

The tenement in the M. A. Morse house to be used as a parsonage by the M. E. church, has been thoroughly renovated during the absence of the pastor. An enclosed porch has been added at the west end, a bath room installed and considerable painting and papering done. A new dining room set and living room furniture have been purchased and all has been put in readiness for occupancy.

The Mark of Quality

to Highway Transportation

25 years of anticipating the requirements of motorists—making manufacturing processes more certain—producing a higher standard of quality—25 years of unswerving adherence to the Firestone pledge, "Most Miles per Dollar"—summarizes Firestone's record of service to car owners.

Firestone factories have grown from a small building approximately 75 x 150 feet to mammoth plants having floor area of over 60 acres—from a capital of $50,000 to over $50,000,000—from an annual sales volume of $100,000 to over $100,000,000—all in the short period of 25 years.

This Firestone record could only have been made through furnishing the public with outstanding values and is, consequently, your assurance of quality and lowest prices.

If you would like to know more of this wonderful record, ask your Firestone dealer to send you an illustrated folder.

With today's high cost of crude rubber and other raw materials, Firestone's opportunity to serve the public was never better, due to its great volume and special advantages in buying, manufacturing and distribution.

Sept. 21

Annual meeting of Belchertown Water District.

Goes to Milton, Vt.

Osborne Davis leaves town today for Milton, Vt., where he has accepted a position as assistant principal in the high school. Mr. Davis received his degree at M. A. C. last June.

Cleared $1500.00

After paying the bills in connection with the recent carnival and lawn party held by St. Francis church, Fr. Dunphy states that $1500.00 was cleared. The second night was stormy, causing a postponement, but the articles offered were nearly all disposed of. The Catholics appreciate the courtesies extended by the townspeople and the patronage of all, many of whom came from out of town.

The proceeds go towards paying for the new rectory which is in process of construction. It is estimated that the cost of this new structure will be not far from $10,000, which makes the investment of the constituency of St. Francis church a large one.

Mrs. Robert Woods to Speak

Mrs. Robert M. Woods, president of the Hampshire County Woman's Board of Foreign Missions, will give an address on India at the Congregational church Sunday morning at 10.45. Mrs. Woods is an enthusiastic speaker and her address will be of interest to men, women and young people. She is very familiar with India. She was born there, of missionary parents, and recently spent a year in that country.

Erecting Fence

W. E. Bridgman, who has the contract for erecting a wire fence at Mt. Hope cemetery, has begun the work of installation. The fencing has arrived and part of it has been put in position. The line will extend from the end of the present wall, along the line of the horse sheds that were removed, to the Bridgman estate.

Tuesday morning, the cemetery commissioners and a number of men from the Congregational church pried out and removed the rocks that had served as a foundation for the horse sheds. The land was then ploughed for some distance westerly preparatory to seeding.

Old Home Sunday

The M. E. church is planning for an Old Home Sunday, Sept. 20. At 10.45 a. m., Rev. J. M. Gage, a former pastor, will speak. There will be a basket lunch at 1 p. m. At 3 p. m. there will be a musical program and at 5 p. m. a vesper service at which the new district superintendent, Rev. L. A. Neis, D. D., will be the speaker.

R. A. French and Mrs. Carrie P. Ketchen are members of the publicity committee.

Over-Night Hike

Troop I of Girl Scouts went to Greenwich Lake Tuesday for an overnight hike. A. D. Moore very generously opened his cottage for the accommodation of the 19 girls and their leaders.

Swimming in the lake was the chief attraction, all but a very few being good swimmers and some having attained the rank of "shark",

The mess call was a close rival attraction. All the meals were planned by the girls, they did the buying and preparing of the food, besides the routine work of washing dishes, sweeping up, etc.

One feature of the hike new to most of the girls was the sleeping arrangements. With mother earth for the bed, the sky for a roof, pines and birches for wall and window draperies, for light a full moon somewhat veiled, everyone slept in her cocoon of blankets. One camper was heard to remark that her bed did not stay "cocooned" very well and two who were rather short of covering betook themselves to the shelter of the cottage, but sooner or later everyone arrived for the pancakes and maple syrup next morning.

Most of the older girls hiked both to and from Greenwich Lake with the help of a lift or two from a passing motorist. Transportation of the luggage was furnished by friends of the Scouts and on the return trip good use was made of Ketchen's bus line.

The committee in charge of this affair was Marjorie Peeso, Evelyn Shumway and Margaret McPherson.

TROOP NO. 2

The Girl Scouts of Troop II enjoyed a hare and hound chase Monday afternoon, ending with a picnic supper at Jabish brook a few miles from the center.

May Pump Tomorrow

With the installing of two special castings, the pumps at the pump house are in readiness for pumping, which may begin tomorrow afternoon. So that with the coming of the annual meeting of Sept. 21, the commissioners will be in a position to report a completed, independent system.

Laurel Park Week

There will be no services at the M. E. church Sunday as this is Laurel Park week. An effort is being made to get a large delegation to go over. Those who desire transportation are asked to communicate with the pastor, Rev. W. H. Snape. Last year the Belchertown church was the most largely represented of any church on Sunday. The pastor and his wife are spending the week at the park. A party went over Wednesday night to hear Bishop Anderson.

5th Wedding Anniversary

The 5th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln Cook was celebrated Wednesday night on the lawn of the Cook homestead on Mill Valley road, where the couple was married. A picnic lunch was enjoyed, following which the company, composed of relatives and a few friends, repaired to the house, where games were played. J. V. Cook, on behalf of those present, presented the couple with a wicker rocker.

Pomona Grange

Pomona Grange met in Belchertown yesterday. About 100 were present. Probably more would have attended had the weather and the approaches to town been more inviting.

The morning and part of the afternoon were given over to the subject, "Specializing in Farm Industries," with the following sub-topics: The Orchard

Sheep and Poultry Ellis Clark
Corn and Cows Ernest Russell
Tobacco and Onions
Mr. Warner and F. O. Williams
Potatoes Herbert Merritt
Wood and Lumber Mr. Beeman

In the afternoon there was a solo by Mrs. Robbins of Waltham, a monologue by Mrs. H. H. Witt, with a discussion by other members of Pomona Grange.

Turkey Hill Night at Grange

The entertainment Tuesday evening was given by the Turkey Hill members of the Grange. Mrs. Hurlburt had the program in charge. Readings and recitations were given by Wilfrid Noel, Leon Williams, Myrtle Olds Williams and Rosabelle Putnam.

There was a test of wits in which all participated, a musical medley by seven people, and an encore responded to by Leon Williams and Mrs. Noel in costume. Refreshments were served by the committee.

55 per cent. of those present came from Turkey Hill. Don't say the Grange is dead or some one might think you helped kill it.

Imagination

One's feelings are not always a safe guide, and yet there are times when they are to be trusted. The intuitions of a wife are sometimes to be followed rather than the close reasonings of her husband. The heart must not run away with the head, nor the head ignore the heart.

Imagination has a real place in life, even though thousands of people make life miserable by their imaginations. All of us perhaps can relate instances of great suffering in the dark and in the night, due wholly to imagination. Many have become victims of their imaginations. And life is one continuous fear because of what we imagine. People have undergone all sorts of pain and even death itself because of too vivid an imagination.

And yet a total lack of imagination is quite as much to be avoided for miseries of equal magnitude, though of a different kind, are certain to come to those totally unimaginative. One trouble with the literalists of the present day is that they lack imagination. We of the Western mind, and we especially in America who are of such a practical turn of mind are likely to err in this regard. We would do well to cultivate the imagination of the Eastern mind.

No one can write good poetry without imagination. We need imagination not simply in poetry, but in story and in theology and everywhere.

One reason why we are engaged in the controversy between science and religion is because some lack imagination. The Hebrew mind was imaginative, and so the Old Testament, written in Hebrew, is imaginative, and anyone who subjects it to an examination, word by word, and uses the words always as facts and never as symbols, is certain to get into trouble. Horace Bushnell taught us generations ago that if words are to be used literally instead of symbolically, they become bonds to bind us rather than wings to free us. Let us never forget to use imagination in dealing with the Bible.

Married in Granby

Mrs. Anna Whitmore and Herbert D. Peeso were married in Granby last week Thursday by Rev. C. H. Smith. The wedding was a quiet one, due to the recent death of Mrs. Peeso's sister. The bride's gown was a traveling suit of tan poiree twill with hat to match. After a short wedding trip, the couple will reside on the property recently purchased by Mr. Peeso on Sargent street.

The Coal Situation

The local coal situation seems to be about the same here as elsewhere. No great amount of coal is on hand and prospects for future deliveries are uncertain. About the usual number of people have put in their winter's supply, the prospect of a strike not having made anyone panicky.

An interesting feature of the local situation is that it is usually harder to get coal shipped to Belchertown than to Enfield. Due to being in a different district, the local firm cannot buy the supply for this town from the same source that they do to supply Enfield. This, however, has worked no hardship, only in extreme cases.

Gives Interesting Address

Those who attended the morning service at the Congregational church last Sunday were much interested in the missionary address given by Mrs. Robert M. Woods of Hatfield. Mrs. Woods summers at Mt. Quabbin, Enfield, and was well known to many of her hearers.

Starting with the birth of "Samuel," consecrated by his mother, Hannah, she carried the story of the lad through his struggle for an education in college and seminary, and his entry into service as a foreign missionary to India, only to reveal that this "Samuel" was her father, Samuel Fairbanks, of whose ten children she was one to be born in India.

Having introduced her forbear in this novel manner, she went on to give glimpses into the life of the country which he and two succeeding generations have served. She stated that the mission which her father founded some fifty years ago has been in charge of members of the family ever since, with the exception of about two years.

Her description of the Sunday school in the thatched hut, eight by twelve, in which were gathered about a hundred children each with an offering of grain, and her picture of the pagan temple where in ignorance multitudes bow to gods of wood, were full of human interest, as was also her story regarding hospital work in which one of her daughters with her husband is engaged.

As Mrs. Woods told of the practices of some of the people not yet Christianized, particularly the one where the natives brush the ground before taking a single footstep for fear of taking life, she was careful to point out the element of good which revealed, indeed, a strong religious nature.

That those who have been released from bondage in this portion of India appreciate what has been done for them was evidenced by the gift for the year of $5.00 which the mission made to the American Board whose funds are somewhat lower than usual. Thus those whom the Board assisted have, compared with their means, given largely in its time of need.

Mrs. Woods was introduced by Mrs. M. D. S. Longley, president of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society, and had full charge of the service. Her daughter, Miss Dorothy Woods, assisted in the service with the solo, "My Task."

An offering for mission work taken at the service amounted to $16.85.

M. E. Church Notes

By vote of the Official Board, next Wednesday will be Clean-Up day at the M. E. Church.

One hundred invitations have been issued by the publicity committee for Old Home Sunday at the M. E. church, Sept. 20. Plans are going forward for the day. The entire community is invited to these special services.

B. H. S. Opens

B. H. S. begins its third year in Memorial building with a registration of about 125, a smaller number than last year, due in part to an entering class of only 31, whereas last year 66 pupils were taking freshman subjects. The number of pupils in Junior High is also smaller, 28 in all.

The faculty includes three new members, Miss Ross, Miss Higgins and Miss Conklin. Mrs. Hill, Miss Hagstrom and Mr. Moynihan return to their respective departments, and Mr. Allen begins his 13th year as principal of this high school.

In that time he has seen the school grow from 42 pupils and two assistants in the crowded quarters of the old high and grade school building to a group more than three times as large, housed in the new Memorial building with its modern appointments, and presided over by a corps of six assistant teachers. He has seen new courses added to the curriculum, commercial and domestic science, and the school certified for college entrance. Thus the 13th year begins with a good record of progress behind it.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Peck arrived home about a week ago after a month's auto camping trip, the object of their trip being a visit to Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Snow, Minneapolis, Minn. Some of the points of interest along the way were the well-cared for orchards in northern New York state, Niagara Falls, over the line, of course, and a trip through the Ford assembly plant at St. Paul. Tire Prices Are LOW—

CRUDE RUBBER HIGHEST IN YEARS

Buy Now and Save Money!

The unprecedented demand for Firestone quality and mileage has more than doubled the sales of Gum-Dipped Cords to car owners so far this year, enabling us—because of this tremendous volume—to keep prices low.

Experienced car owners insist on tires that deliver the greatest mileage at the lowest cost per mile, because such tires last longer—make the restricted rubber supply go further—reduce crude rubber costs—and help maintain the present low tire prices.

Gum-Dipping, the Firestone extra process, is also one of the biggest and most important economy factors in tire performance. This method of treating cord fabric, developed by Firestone tire chemists and engineers, insulates every fiber of every cord with rubber, and gives the sidewalls the extra strength to withstand the extra flexing strain—insuring maximum safety, comfort and economy.

Buy now—make sure of economical transportation by obtaining these outstanding Firestone superiorities at present low prices.

Don't Wait Till Pastures Fail

Pasture alone, at its best, won't keep cows in top condition and full flow of milk. But grass becomes a starvation ration when pastures are burned dry and bare, as is the case nearly every summer nearly everywhere, for weeks and sometimes months.

You don't know when a grass failure is coming, or how long it will last.

Surely it isn't good business to sit idly by, hoping for conditions to improve, while milk shrinks every day.

You can easily avoid this, and take a profit in place of certain loss. Feed Larro regularly all summer, 1 lb. to every 5 lbs. of milk when pasture is good, with a gradual increase as grass gets scanty and unpalatable.

Larro

Larro, fed on such a schedule, not only will pay a profit over its cost this summer, but will put your cows in condition to make more milk in fall and winter when prices are highest.

Don't wait for pasture to fail. Feed Larro now.

The hay scales at the south end of the park have been removed in view of the improvement of the road at that point. It seems that the scales have served the populace for years, but at their decease no one comes forward to claim them. They were erected on town property without legal right, but were probably considered a great public convenience when constructed. The property of the Harriet Longley estate of which they were considered a part, has not as yet been turned over to the Historical Association.

A tree at the south end of the common has been transplanted because of the new road layout.

Miss Ella A. Stebbins has accepted the position of local correspondent of the Springfield Republican, taking the place of Mrs. E. Clifton Witt, resigned. Mrs. Witt and children expect to join Mr. Witt at Williamsburg soon.

Water District Taxes

In accordance with figures of the water commissioners the assessors have levied a tax of $3,500 on the water district. $2,000 of this amount is to provide for estimated excess of expenditures over income from Sept. 1, 1925, to Sept. 1, 1926. The remaining $1,500 was voted by the district at its meeting Oct. 28, 1924, and is a part of the $74,000 raised for construction purposes, $50,000 being the first bond issue and $22,500 the second. Water District Meeting

The annual meeting of the Belchertown Water District will be held in the town hall on Monday evening at 7.30 o'clock. The following articles will be acted upon.

Art. 2. To choose by ballot the following named officers: a clerk, a treasurer, each for one year, a commissioner for three years.

Art. 3. To hear the reports of the officers and act thereon.

Art. 4. To see if the district will authorize the treasurer, with the approval of the commissioners, to borrow money from time to time in anticipation of revenue of the fiscal year beginning Sept. 1, 1925 to an amount, not exceeding in the aggregate $5,000 and to issue a note or notes therefor, payable within one year, and any debt or debts incurred under this vote to be paid from the revenue of said fiscal year.

Art. 4. To see if the District will vote an annual salary of fifty dollars for its treasurer, agreeable to a petition of Courtland G. Bartlett and others.

Art. 5. To see if the district will vote to appropriate a sum of money for salary of its commissioners.

Art. 6. To transact any other business that may legally come before said meeting.

Polls to be opened at 7.45 o'clock and may be closed at 10 o'clock p. m.

The commissioner whose term expires this year is J. C. Bothwell.

The article concerning borrowing money in anticipation of revenue is a new article this year and its adoption will mean that taxes on the district will be made available before November 1.

The article relative to the salary of the treasurer was inserted on the petition of C. G. Bartlett and 23 others. On April 4, 1924, the district voted Mr. Bartlett a salary for services previously rendered and until Sept. 1, 1924 at the rate of $150 per year. At the last annual meeting no money was voted for a treasurer's salary.

The article concerning the salary of the commissioners was inserted by them, as they felt that no one officer should be singled out to receive pay.

mount, about $950 remains for construction purposes and will be used in completing the unfinished work.

This tax of $3,500 will probably mean a rate of about $8.00, bills for which will be sent out by tax collector D. F. Shumway to all residents of the water district, whether they are tax payers or not.

Speaks on Americanization

The few who attended the W. F. M. S. meeting in the M. E. vestry Tuesday afternoon were well repaid. The speaker was Miss Alice Booth. Her subject, "The Demand for Americanization," she was well able to discuss, as the past year since her graduation from the School of Religious Education of Boston University, she has given her time wholly to this work. She also did a great deal along this line all the time she was a student in Boston. Now she is to leave home the 24th to take up this work in another state as she has accepted a position as director of Americanization work in Bellaire, O., for the coming year.

Horse Takes Nose Dive

Pelham Old Home day traffic must have been too much for the bridge at Pratt's mill Saturday, for one of the abutments and roadbed just faded away at the approach of a horse and buggy during the evening. Joe Malanfant was driving home from town when instead of going over the planking, the horse just slid under and disappeared in the ravine below, leaving the occupants unharmed in the buggy which stalled in the aperture. The horse was gotten out with some difficulty, and was bruised apparently only on the return trip. The road was closed pending repairs estimated at several hundred dollars.

To Move Soon

The telephone company expects to move the switch board and equipment to the new central office on So. Main street within a few days.

During the five years in the present location Manager Sessions has seen the number of lines grow from 69 to 99. When the office was moved before, there was only one position; now there are two. The capacity at present is 130 lines.

The lease of the new location is for five years beginning September 1.

The process of moving will be a matter of two or three hours. Mr. Sessions will with his family move to the Kendall house at approximately the same time.

Water District Meeting

The third annual water district meeting of Monday evening was largely attended, more so than many town meetings. It was called to order by clerk William E. Shaw, and Rev. D. L. Hilliard was chosen moderator. The reports of the various officers were accepted.

The article relative to a salary for the treasurer drew fire and some personalities were indulged in. The commissioners argued that the district was in no shape to pay salaries. After the arguments were all in, 53 voted in favor of a $50 salary for the treasurer and 39 in the negative.

On the next article, dealing with salaries for the commissioners, it was moved, in view of the preceding vote, that $600 be voted. The meeting balked at this, however, and put the article down. Later it was reconsidered and a salary of $50 for each commissioner was voted.

Under "any other business" the meeting talked over a number of things. H. B. Ketchen stated that if all the people owning property adjoining the mains took water, the cost per family, water taxes and all, would be only between $30 and $35.

The most hopeful feature of the meeting was the announcement by Mr. Ketchen that last Friday an inspector of the New England Insurance Exchange was in town, tested the hydrants, took the pressure at various points, and had sent a letter (which Mr. Ketchen read) to the effect that he saw no reason why insurance rates in town should not be decreased about 30 per cent.

The most depressing part of the meeting was the statement that the $8 tax rate recently announced meant $8.00 per thousand instead of $8.00 per person as some had fondly hoped. It was later stated that this tax rate applies on both real estate and personal property.

About fifty people stayed until 10 o'clock to get the election returns. The result showed a determined drive to reinstate C. G. Bartlett, treasurer of two years ago, and a less successful move to run in Wm. Orlando as commissioner. The following figures show the high runners:

Clerk
W. E. Shaw	111
Treasurer
C. G. Bartlett	96
L. H. Blackmer	50
Commissioner
J. C. Bothwell	79
Wm. Orlando	49

When the results were announced it was revealed that the Jonah of "Illegality" was still hovering over the water district. 150 names had been checked as voting but 155 votes were found in the ballot box. As there were no close contests, probably none of the candidates will demand another election.

Old Home Sunday

The observance of Old Home Sunday at the Methodist church began with the morning service at which Rev. James M. Gage, pastor from 1900-1902, was the speaker. He was introduced by Rev. W. H. Snape, who presented him not only as a former pastor, beloved of his people, but as a personal friend of his own, for it was Mr. Gage who, as pastor in Chicopee, brought Mr. Snape into church membership when about twelve years old. Another bond between them was the fact that the Belchertown church was Mr. Gage's first parish, as it is Mr. Snape's.

Mr. Gage's theme for the morning was, The Things that Abide. He reviewed some of the changes in Belchertown in the quarter century since he first came here, the autos—not one auto in town when he was here—the telephone, electric lights, radio, the new High school building. But he said that the people are the same. "People don't change except their bodies. They don't change as folks to each other." He spoke of other changes in the world, changes in religious thought, changes in the ways of doing things, and said that the abiding things were the

Unearth Treasures

The scene of excavations may suddenly change from Egypt to Belchertown and Mr. Parsons might possibly be constrained to stay here all winter if the local soil continues to give up its treasures as it has the past week or so.

On Monday there was quite a flurry of excitement when the steam shovel, working in the road at the south end of the common, uncovered a well in the middle of the street. It was some 20 feet deep, 7 feet across at the bottom and had about 7 feet of water in it. The well had a stone over the top which was about a foot or so from the surface of the road.

The way the well was stoned up called forth the admiration of those familiar with that class of work. The walls were not at all moss grown and the well was apparently in usable condition. About noon the spiritual, that the things that count are the spiritual values of life, and that in the last analysis everything that abides is spiritual. And then he asked, Do we develop the spiritual part of our lives?

The service at 3 o'clock was held in the vestry, which was well filled. This service was somewhat informal in nature, making a variation from the auditorium meetings.

Mrs. Smith of Springfield, formerly Miss Sunderman, contributed two violin solos, and Mr. Miles of Chicopee Falls sang. There was also singing of old time melodies by the audience.

M. A. Morse and E. C. Witt, both long affiliated with the local church, gave historical sketches concerning the church building, pastors, members and activities.

Mr. Morse called attention to the fact that the church building was moved from Springfield in 1873 where it was known as the Union Methodist church. The purchase price of the building was $400 and the cost of removal $3,300. Land, vestry, organ, furnishings, etc., brought the whole cost up to from $10,000 to $12,000.

The speaker said, "You people do not realize the troubles, trials and anxieties that were gone through in paying that bill. People went into their pockets time after time. Some paid so liberally that they were almost ruined." Tribute was paid to the Social Union for their assistance in paying the debt.

Attention was called to the fact that the spire was at one time taller, but was made lower for safety's sake.

Mr. Morse alluded to Rev. R. R. Meredith, who preached the dedicatory sermon, and Mr. Gordon, the first pastor, also pastors Alley, Hale, Capen and Best, the last of whom has reached the age of 101 years. Mr. Best introduced evening praise services which were something new for Belchertown. Mention was made of the revival under Mr. Booth's pastorate, when about 100 gave themselves to the Lord. There was an active praying band in those days and prayer meetings were held in outlying districts.

Mr. Morse revived memories of sociables, one in particular, at Emory Munsell's, when 200 were present.

In commenting on the Sunday School, he spoke of assuming the duties of that office and of the 30 teachers' meetings held at his home. He mentioned the concerts of those days which "were not for children, but for young men and young women."

Regarding the Epworth League, T. S. Haskell was alluded to as the first person to suggest its formation, which took place with about 40 members.

Mr. Morse related an incident of a member being absent from church one Sunday morning and the pastoral visit and prayer which came in consequence on Monday. Through the years, the speaker said, the spiritual condition of the church had been kept up, and reliance must still be placed on the divine.

E. C. Witt vividly recalled the day 52 years ago, when he entered the church for which he has ever since had a growing devotion. He spoke of the class meetings at Henry Randall's and the loyalty of Brother and Sister Thompson, Brothers Morse, Kellogg of Granby center, Ballou, Warner of Granby hollow, Spooner and Blodgett. Mention was also made of those who had left at their decease, funds for the church's use.

Mr. Witt gave memories of personal contacts with members who have gone to their reward. Tribute was paid to the faithfulness of Mr. Blodgett in his superintendency of the Sunday School and his services in the choir. To many the speaker paid the high compliment of being "good men."

At the close of the historical sketches, Mrs. A. R. Ketchen read letters from former pastors, Revs. W. T. Hale, H. I. Bailey, F. W. Wheeler and Joel Martin. There were also letters read from others who had received invitations.

Rev. W. O. Terry of Warren, a former pastor, was present at the meeting and spoke in his usual hearty manner. He recalled the kindness of his parish to his family during his absence in France, and related a few "incidents" connected with his stay here, one of which was the painting of the flag pole. "Evidently no one dared get so near heaven, save a minister," he said. He closed by alluding to the King's business, in which he said, so many are having a part.

The service closed with a violin solo by Mrs. Smith.

The 5 o'clock service was held in the church auditorium. The out of town soloists again furnished music and Rev. W. O. Terry offered prayer. The sermon was preached by Rev. Dr. Neis, the district superintendent. His text was, "And there went with him a band of men whose hearts the Lord had touched."

Dr. Neis spoke in a beautiful way of the impress of affections, human and divine, upon our lives and the lasting monuments that are built thereby. He spoke of the influence of mothers, Sunday school teachers, pastors and dear ones, who will greet us some day in the great beyond.

The service was an appropriate ending to the day's program. The registration book shows that 77 people from out of town were guests of the church Sunday.

There was some interest as to how many had been members of the church over 50 years. The records show that Mrs. Julia Hubbard, Mrs. Clara Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Morse and Mrs. Ella Witt have that honor.

Firestone
will ALWAYS give
Most Miles per Dollar

No matter where crude rubber prices may go—Firestone advantages in securing raw material, in manufacturing and distribution are always active to make good the pledge of Most Miles per Dollar.

Racing drivers—hill-climbing and endurance record holders—taxicab, motor truck and bus operators—and hundreds of thousands of car owners—are daily emphasizing the unheard-of mileage and service delivered by Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords.

Gum-Dipping is one of the biggest factors in tire performance and long mileage, making Firestone Gum-Dipped Cords the most economical tires ever offered motorists.

The cord from the fabric mills is first delivered to a separate plant where it is treated in a solution of gum, which insulates every fiber of every cord. This protects against internal friction and heat, giving the sidewalls greater flexibility and additional strength.

Prove Firestone's many superiorities for yourself. If you have never had the safety, comfort and economy of these serviceable, long-mileage tires—go to the nearest Firestone Dealer—for Firestone only builds Gum-Dipped Cords.

Give Pastor Reception

A reception to Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Snape was given Tuesday evening in the vestry of the Methodist church which was transformed by the use of flowers and furnishing including a set of new curtains recently placed at the windows, into a home-like receiving room. An arch of asparagus, set with sweet peas, formed the background for the receiving line, where the pastor and his wife, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Wood, greeted their parishioners and others of the townspeople.

The program consisted of piano duets by Miss Hagstrom and Mrs. William Shaw; reading, "The Day Before Christmas," by Mrs. A. R. Ketchen; solos, Mrs. B. E. Shaw; reading, "Waiting for the Train," "Entertaining the Minister," Mrs. Henry Witt; and solos by Mrs. J. C. Robbins.

A. R. Ketchen presented the couple with a purse of money, to which Mr. Snape responded in happy vein.

Refreshments consisted of ice cream, cake and punch. It was a most friendly occasion throughout, and the community sing at the close was spontaneity itself.

cavity was filled and all that remains of it now is a memory.

The incident has aroused all sorts of speculations as to what property it was connected with, etc. A. P. Cook of Granby, who is 83 years old, says he remembers vividly this well in the middle of the street with its wooden pump and long trough. The stone top, he said, came from the old bank building.

The well was in front of R. A. White's tavern, the stopping place for stage drivers. Mr. Cook says that a certain Joe Wood of Enfield drove one of the stages and he recalls seeing him water his four white horses at this well many times. All this was previous to the Civil war.

In removing a stone wall for the new road a spring was unearthed at H. H. Witt's only recently, so that Belchertown is finding all sorts of water now that the system is in. On the same property Indian plates, most of them broken, were found, also arrow heads.

The Election

The following is the result of the special election for Congressman in Belchertown:

Precinct A
Bowles	110
Sawyer	33
Precinct B
Sawyer	53

The result of the vote in precinct B, together with the fact that the election officers were all Democrats, led Town Clerk George H. B. Green to fail to attest the vote. It turns out that in accordance with the law, half the election officers appointed for the day were Republicans, but they failed to put in an appearance and Warden O'Connor filled the vacancies with men readily available, which were Democrats.

Walter Bacon, a Republican, was summoned to assist in the counting. He had voted earlier in the day and had voted for Mr. Sawyer, which accounted for the unamimous vote of the Democratic nominee. In explanation it might also be said that most of those in precinct B are Democrats.

The selectmen, in view of the explanation offered, have decided to approve the election and the town clerk will do likewise but with reservations.

Dies in Enfield

Homer Sherwood Pratt, long identified with the life of Belchertown, died in Enfield Wednesday at 11a. m. in the home of his daughter, Mrs. G. R. Stone, with whom he has resided since July. Mr. Pratt had been in failing health for the past four years and the last few months he had been unable to do any work. Death came suddenly, however, as he was able to sit up the day previous to his death.

Mr. Pratt was born in this town May 26, 1856, the son of Virgil and Mary Randall Pratt. He was thrice married. Up till four years ago, he was associated with his brother, Almon Pratt, in the saw mill business under the name of Pratt Brothers. This firm was known far and wide.

While Mr. Pratt, in a sense, lived apart from the busy life of the world, he had a large circle of friends who valued highly his sterling character.

He leaves besides his widow, Hattie J. Pratt, a daughter, Mrs. G. R. Stone of Enfield, and a son, Theron V. Pratt of this town, his successor in business, also a brother Almon L. Pratt. There are in addition eight grand children.

The funeral will be held at the chapel Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, Rev. John S. Curtis of Enfield officiating. The bearers will be E. R. Peeso, J. A. Peeso, Myron Ward and Harry Ward. Burial will be in Evergreen cemetery.

Bridge Repaired

The bridge at Pratt's mill which gave way in such spectacular fashion recently, has been repaired and was opened to traffic Saturday night. The abutment was rebuilt with stone and cement at a cost of $127.61. Being a bridge under 10 feet in length, (it lacked only a few inches) it came under Chap. 81, where the state advises and pays two dollars to the town's one. Estimated by the state's representative as a $200 job, the town should take note of the actual cost of the work, which was in charge of E. A. Fuller.

Inspection Next Wednesday

The official inspection of Mt. Vernon Chapter, O. E. S., will take place next Wednesday evening. Formal invitations have been issued to neighboring chapters. The opening will be at 4.30, supper will be at 6 and the inspection at 7.30. The inspecting officer will be Mrs. Anna E. Ham, associate Grand Conductress and Deputy Grand Matron, assisted by Mrs. Elizabeth A. Fletcher, Deputy Grand Marshall.

Parent-Teacher Meeting

The Parent-Teacher association held its annual meeting Monday evening and elected the following officers:

President	Mrs. J. L. Collard
Vice president	Mrs. Etta Randolph
Secretary	Miss Martha Conklin
Treasurer	Mrs. George Hussey

Executive committee, officers and Mrs. H. D. Hoag, Mrs. W. D. Upham, Mrs. H. B. Ketchen, Herbert Randolph, Miss Esther Hagstrom.

The association hopes to arouse more interest in its work and expects to arrange a program for the coming season that will be worth while. It is pointed out that 37 joined the Amherst association at its first meeting of the season, just held, showing that it is a part of a going concern.

A committee, consisting of Mrs. Collard, Mrs. Ketchen and Mrs. Randolph, was appointed to get in touch with the work of similar organizations elsewhere.

Another Fiery Cross

Reporters will have to remain up all night at this rate. Monday evening, about midnight, another cross was illumined in the school yard at the grade school building. An alarm was rung in as it was thought the building was afire. The Fire Department responded and reputable fire fighters were called from their beds only to be told a few minutes later to sleep peacefully, as it was only a fiery cross. This time the cross was more firmly planted, but it was finally uprooted and dragged away by a truck.

Alcohol and the Batting Eye

A famous baseball player was asked if he used alcohol. He replied promptly that he did not use it. He gave his reason for not using it. Now boys, who love baseball and read these lines, take notice. Ty Cobb, recently hailed as "the greatest player in the history of the game," did not use alcohol, he said, "because it dims the batting eye."

You know if the "batting eye gets dim, the batting record is liable to grow dim, and if the batting record of a league player gets dim, his value as a player decreases and he is liable to lose his place and his big salary. He must keep his "batting eye", and alcohol injuries its sight.

It is not the "batting eye" only that alcoholic drink dims. Alcohol dims the shooting eye. It has been demonstrated by tests carefully conducted in the interest of military efficiency that soldiers to whom a small quantity of alcohol had been given could not shoot as accurately or rapidly as they could before the alcoholic drink was given them. The loss in rapidity of firing suggests a common delusion of people who indulge in alcoholic beverages. They think they can work more rapidly if they take a drink. Scientific tests show that they are mistaken, but that is another story.

There are other injuries of sight caused by alcohol, depending for the extent of the damage upon the frequency and amount of the indulgence in alcoholic drinks. The moral of this is, boys, mind your eye and let alcohol severely alone. The best scores in baseball, target shooting, and in the important affairs of life are made without it.

Afterthoughts

The following poem by Dr. Wilder, written while he was a student in Tufts college, following his service in France, is a reminder of the dark days which some have apparently forgotten. Unlike many at the front, Dr. Wilder had the faculty of vividly recording his experiences, and we therefore appreciate his willingness that we publish these lines.

Yes, we're older than the average,
And we look it, we'll confess;
Though our wrinkles and our grey hairs are but few.
We're not legless, we're not armless,
But we're different, more or less,
On account of all the trials we have been through.

Often times our minds will wander
To that land that's far away,
To that country often termed as "Sunny France".
And again as in the hectic days
We seem once more to stray,
Back to "No Man's Land", where life is but a chance.

We are hiking to the front line,
On a dark and rainy night;
Shells are bursting very near, proclaiming death,
And we know that on the morrow
That it means another fight,
And some of them will cease to draw a breath.

We've arrived, yes, here's the trenches,
With their mire, muck and mud;
And the dugouts, but with water they are filled.
As we hear the high explosives,
And the ploughing of the dud,
Then we know that some poor "buddy" has been killed.

Now we gaze into the darkness,
With our faces set and stern:
Some perhaps, would term the look a vacant stare.
But then later, we're rewarded
And surroundings we discern,
Just as "No Man's Land" is lit up by a flare.

All night long we stand there ready,
Should the enemy appear,
We are anxious for the morrow and the test.
With a mind that knows its duty,
And a heart that's ceased to fear,
And a body much misused, and asking rest.

Now it is the "Zero Hour",
And we scramble from the trench,
And o'er "No Man's Land" we steal with silent dread.
On our right we have Italians,
On our left we have the French,
While apparently the enemy have fled.

But we've met with strong resistance,
Their machine guns all around,
Have spoken death for many a comrade bold
And we leave them in their glory,
On a field where poppies grow,
'Mid such scenes that make a person's blood run cold.

These thoughts will never vanish,
They are with us night and day;
We have tried to shake them, but they still remain.
So you know why our minds wander,
And our look seems far away,
In our minds, we're on the battlefield again.

The improved Ford Runabout, with its all-steel stream-line body, is an unusually good-looking car.

It hangs low to the ground, and the body has been lengthened and re-designed for greater comfort and convenience. The gas tank under the cowl is filled from the outside, and the weatherproof storm curtains open with both doors.

Under the sweeping rear deck is an unusually large compartment designed for convenience in carrying luggage.

Standard equipment includes four cord tires, nickeled head-lamp rims and windshield wiper.

The price remains the same $260, and you can buy on the Ford Weekly Purchase Plan.

To Visit Arctic

Robert McKillop plans to go with MacMillan on his next trip to the arctic. At least, an experience he went through last week would tend to make him a fit candidate for such an expedition. He might not go willingly any more than he intended to lock himself into the cooler at the McKillop market where he was tending on the occasion we mention, but the handle of fate might fall the wrong way as did the handle on the door of the cooler, and he might find himself slated for a voyage.

And if Mr. Peck, who runs the store adjoining, occupied the next cabin, he would be unable to release him for McKillop's voice does not carry well through partitions; all traffic seems to be one-way.

And probably Walter McKillop would be in no hurry to release him, likely as not finishing his cigar on deck, for he was complacently talking with friends in front of the store while his brother was trying to raise the roof from within.

But "all's well that ends well" and while "seconds" do "seem like minutes to the party who is waiting for you," release does come at last. Next time the voyage will be more pleasant, for Mr. Peck has kindly offered the young man the use of his oil heater in case he should decide to cut himself off from the world again.

Judging from the sounds issuing from the Methodist church vestry last week Friday, the young people were having some fun being "kids". The "kid" to win first prize among the boys was Rev. W. H. Snape who was awarded a harmonica. Miss Hazel Bruce won the girls' prize, a doll. "Kid" games were played and the refreshments were lollypops and apples.

Dr. Harvey M. Watkins of Boston has been visiting friends in town.

Four names were added to the voters' list and 28 names were removed at the registrars' meeting last Friday.

Firestone

Double the Mileage at Half the Cost

Only a few years ago a 32 x 4 cord tire listed over $50.00. Today, you can buy the highest quality 32 x 4 tire—a Firestone Gum-Dipped Cord—for about $26.00.

Last spring crude rubber cost tire makers around 40 cents a pound. Today, it is over 90 cents a pound.

It was not so long ago that 7,500 miles represented the average life of a cord tire, while today, 15,000 miles—and more—is only the usual performance for a Firestone Gum-Dipped Cord.

Due to large, concentrated production, specialized machinery and simplified factory methods, together with economical distribution, Firestone is able to keep tire prices low—no matter where the price of crude rubber goes.

And, because of special Firestone processes, chief among which is Gum-Dipping, motorists are today getting thousands of extra miles by using Gum-Dipped Cords.

Gum-Dipping is an exclusive method used by Firestone. It is an extra process, carried out in special Gum-Dipping plants, after which the cords are put through the usual calendering machines. Gum-Dipping insulates and impregnates every fiber of every cord with rubber, and practically eliminates internal friction and heat, and builds strength and endurance into the tire.

In the day-in and day-out service of taxicabs, buses and trucks—on the cars of hundreds of thousands of motorists everywhere—Gum-Dipped Cords are giving unheard-of mileage, dependability and satisfaction.

Get ready for the coming months of slippery pavements and bad roads. Assure yourself of greater safety, comfort and economy by equipping now with Firestone Full-Size Gum-Dipped Balloons.

The office of the Telephone company was moved last Saturday night to the Kendall house on South Main street. The work was begun at 11 and at 2.45 connections were established. A force of five men made the transfer.

Last week was "Cost Ascertainment" week at the local postoffice, when all sorts of information was tabulated in accordance with government requirements. To show how minute was the work, even the number of those who called for mail or who made inquiries had to be noted. After a customer had been waited upon the postmaster transferred a card from one pile to another, thus showing the transaction. Dr. Wilder assisted in the early morning and late afternoon in the matter of geting figures on most of the incoming and outgoing mail and in making out the reports.

Henry Ford, to whom the Historical association and the town as a whole are indebted for the new building at the Stone House, passed quietly through town last Thursday and viewed for the first time the structure which he made possible. He did not even give opportunity to those who are closely identified with the work of the association a chance to throw any personal bouquets, for, true to the reputation of the man, he made the call at Mrs. Mary Plantiff's, whose son, Gaston Plantiff, is Ford's eastern manager, the chief object, apparently, of his visit.

The Three-County Fair

The Three County Fair opens at Northampton for its 107th season, next Monday afternoon and continues through Thursday afternoon. The holding of the three night shows is an innovation at this year's fair, as in the past the fair has been open only two nights. The stellar atrraction in the amusement line, this year is the appearance of Roy D. Smith's Scotch Highlanders' Band, which will play all three afternoons and evenings. A number of high class vaudeville acts have been booked, and together with the band, will keep something interesting going on most of the time. On Tuesday evening there will be a huge display of fireworks, the largest and most spectacular ever seen in Northampton.

Tuesday will be given over to the boys and girls, school tickets being furnished to pupils throughout the three counties, where the authorities will close the schools for that day. Wednesday and Thursday are the racing days, with a fast card of horses which has been booked under the direction of track manager, "Mace" Dickinson, of Hatfield.

The midway will be better than it was last year, and last year's group of sideshow entertainers was said to have been the best ever. The livestock shows will be the best ever, with exhibits from the most prominent dairies in this part of the state, the state hospital at Northampton, and the state college at Amherst.

There will be all of the latest models of the most popular makes of automobiles on display at the automobile building. The other exhibits at the Merchant's building, the Youth's building, the Exhibition Hall are all booked to capacity. Be sure and meet your old friends at your fair which is being held at Northampton on October 5, 6, 7 and 8.

Canterbury of Springfield, were married yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Methodist parsonage in Warren. Rev. Walter O. Terry, a former pastor of the local Methodist church, performed the ceremony, using the single ring service. The couple were attended by Miss Emma Stadler, sister of the bride, and William Kennedy, best man.

The bride wore cocoa brown chiffon over cut velvet with hat to match. The bridesmaid was dressed in dark brown crepe with hat to match.

The bride is a graduate of Belchertown High school of the class of 1912, and of the Metropolitan Hospital Training School for Nurses, of New York City. Since her graduation she has been employed as chief supervisor at Mt. Vernon hospital, Mt. Vernon, N. Y. Mr. Canterbury is a former Belchertown boy. For the past eight years he has been living in Springfield where he is employed as designing engineer in the small motor department of the Westinghouse Electric Co.

Town and School Reports Wanted

The Belchertown Historical Association desires copies of the Belchertown School Reports for the years 1856 and 1857 and the selectmen's and treasurer's reports for 1856, 1857, 1858, 1859, 1864, 1880, 1881, 1890, 1891. With the exception of the above, the association has a complete file of town and school reports from 1853 to date, which are to be bound, thus putting in convenient form for reference records of town doings for over seventy years. The public is asked to cooperate to the extent of contributing the missing numbers, which should be handed to the custodian.

Dental Examinations

Dr. F. C. Wilder, after consultation with the school authorities and school nurse, has kindly offered to examine the children of the public schools as to their dental needs, free of charge, and will do any necessary work at greatly reduced rates. The examinations will begin October 19. Dr. Wilder is affording the children of the community this opportunity as he realizes that attention to the teeth is necessary, and in many cases parents, for one reason or another neglect the matter. It is hoped that there will be a response commensurate with the generosity of the offer.

Rally Day

Rally day was observed at both the Congregational and Methodist churches on Sunday. At each church the primary department met with the main school for a special program.

In connection with the roll call at the Congregational Sunday school, J. V. Cook and B. F. Jackson made remarks. There were exercises by Mrs. Sherman's class and Mrs. Taylor's class, recitations by Miss Frances Sauer and Barbara Rowland, besides special music. The primary department gave several numbers.

At the Methodist exercises, Rev. W. H. Snape told a story appropriate to the day, and Miss Stella Snow and Miss Eleanor Gay sang a duet. The Primary department also participated in the program.

The combined attendance at both schools, including guests, was nearly 200.

B. H. S. Field Day

Last Friday was Field day at B. H. S. There was considerable interest in the events, some of which called for skill and some for capacity. The dignified Seniors upheld something more than their dignity, by winning 89 points. The Juniors followed with 35, the Sophomores 30 and the Freshmen 29.

The last number was a pie eating contest. Juicy blueberry pies, made without stiffening, in the domestic science department, were "hoppered" into the mouths of the participants as they lay on their backs on the ground. It was just like filling jelly doughnuts.

The judges were T. Austin, J. Clain and Landers. The list of winners follows: Boys' Events. 100-yd. dash, M. Keyes; half mile run, Warner; three-legged race, Dorey-Menard; fat man's race, John Flaherty; 100 yd. obstacle race, Menard; one mile relay, Seniors; medicine ball race, Seniors; shot put, M. Keyes; pie eating contest, Warner. Girls' Events. 100 yd. walking contest, Rockwood; 50 yd. ankle race, Sauers; 50 yd. backward race, Peeso; baseball throw, Dickinson; interclass relay, Seniors; 50 yd. dash, Peeso.

The B. H. S. Athletic association reorganized Wednesday with the following officers: President, Albert Dorey; vice president, Miss Irene Howard; secretary, Miss Irene Sullivan; treasurer, C. G. Moynihan.

Goes to Washington Monday

Rev. D. L. Hilliard will leave next Monday evening for Washington, D. C., where he will attend the National Council of Congregational churches. Mr. Hilliard goes not only as a delegate from the local church, but as a delegate from the Hampshire East Association, as well, which entitles him to voting privileges.

Rev. C. F. Luther of Amherst is the other delegate from this Association. Rev. John A. Hawley of Amherst will be a member of the Council, by virtue of his being on the Home Missionary Board.

Rev. Mr. Hilliard will not only report to the local church, but will with the two above mentioned, report at a Fellowship meeting of the Association to be held at North Amherst. His special subject will be the work of the missionary societies.

The meeting to which Mr. Hilliard goes is one of national importance. President Coolidge is Honorary Moderator and will give the opening address Tuesday night. The list of other speakers includes S. Parkes Cadman, Bishop McConnell of the Methodist church, Rabbi Stephen Wise, Chief Justice Taft, Secretary Wilbur, besides several of the Ambassadors resident in Washington.

This meeting will witness the merging of the Evangelical Protestant churches with the Congregationalists, which will mean an addition of more than 10,000 members.

An important item of business is the question of merging the nine missionary societies into two boards, a Home Missionary board and a Foreign Missionary board.

Rev. D. L. Hilliard will give an outline of the business that will be presented to the Council, at the meeting Sunday evening.

On the Way

Just tell them we are comin',
Comin' to the B-town fair,
Wife and childers, Cousin Susie,
Aunt Celest' and Unc' Josiah.

We're a quaint old bunch, I tell you,
Been a comin' every year;
Always bring our hens and chickens,
Squash, and seed corn on the ear.

We're a travelin' as we used to,
Ned and Jerry take us still;
Have to stop and rest quite often—
Usually twice on Depot hill.

Autos honk and pass our outfit,
City fellers grin and stare,
But they've nothing on the rooster
When he 'nounces we are there.

Then we circle round the common,
Raise a hand 's we turn the bend,
—Not to give a cop directions—
But to hail an old-time friend.

So we bring up to the town house,
Leave our 'xhibits at the hall,
—If we didn't bring our taters
'Twouldn't be no show at all.

And the chickens on the common,
How they greet our feathery flock,
Knowin' 'thout a bit of tellin'
That all sprung from last year's stock.

Yes, we allus see the pullin',
—Aunt Celest says 'tis a shame—
But I get right 'neath the ropin'
And I call each horse by name

As he gets into the britchin'
An straightens out his hair,
—Say, talk about your Packards,
They ain't in it with a pair.

Well, we look the 'chinery over,
Watch the engines demonstrate,
Hear the feller jab and jabber,
See the suckers gnaw the bait.

As these two granges generally turn out in large numbers, a very joyful evening is expected for all who attend.

Ice Men Shiver

Those who have gone to Florida can smile complacently at the news of the severe snow squall that hit the town last Saturday. It really was quite funny to see the local ice men sort of shivering by their ice trucks and wearing gloves while making their deliveries.

Tree Cutting Attraction Now

Not so long ago people congregated at the standpipe in true community fashion, to witness its erection. Now Tree Warden Kelley and his crew are the center of attraction as they take down trees and limbs in ticklish situations. In Saturday's storm a branch of a maple tree near Miss Ellen Blodgett's home on Maple St. fell across the ridgepole of the house. This was removed on Monday, but the ropes intended to lower the log to the ground broke, causing it to crash against the side of the house, ripping off part of the cornice, breaking the railing at the steps and damaging the concrete sidewalk. The same day a tree near Mrs. Kittie Spellman's was removed because of decay.

Dies in Ware

Jefferson M. Clough, 69, long a resident of Belchertown, died Wednesday in Ware where he went to live some ten years ago. He was born in Palmer, and had residences in Ilion, N. Y., New Haven, Ct., and Spencer, Mass. When only eight

Significant Days

Belchertown is passing through significant days and yet comparatively few people realize it. The consummation of the longings of the years is so attended with local disturbances that the real goal is hardly recognizable.

A case in point is the achievement of an independent water system. For years this project has been under discussion. As far back as we can remember, committees have been appointed, hearings held and canvasses made, all in the endeavor to realize a water system and the securing of fire protection. Effort after effort was made and all seemed to be in vain. But the project kept coming back to life and finally the dream of the years was realized.

But there isn't the exultation one might have expected. The kind of system, the method of installation, the location of the standpipe, the choice of officers, the matter of salaries, the taste of the water, etc., have all been bones of contention. And the taxes that have come in consequence have simply kept us from most any degree of satisfaction. We have the plaything, but we almost wish we hadn't asked for it.

We were at the pump house a short time ago, and for the first time had the pleasure of seeing the pumps go into action, but above the noise of the machinery was the questioning of those present as to how the financial load the enterprise had brought could best be alleviated.

Upon reflection, the significance of the occasion, however, was that water was being pumped to a point high enough on Belchertown hill to assure fire protection, that the school houses, long noted for their aridity, were being supplied from the district's own wells, and that householders were henceforth assured of a permanent supply.

To be sure, the work of installation was a business proposition, but it should be borne in mind that the acquirement of a water system was a community goal, and it has been achieved.

It is true that the burdens attendant upon the completion of the system tend to dull one's enthusiasm for any flag raising in connection with the event, but once again recall the long struggle to attain what has been accomplished and perchance we shall realize that these are significant days after all.

years of age he injured himself with a jack knife, causing total blindness. While in town he lived on the Baggs farm on Baggs St. and later in the house on Main St. now occupied by D. F. Shumway.

In spite of the fact that he was physically handicapped by his accident, he became proficient in doing ordinary tasks, while in the field of music he demonstrated marked ability.

The funeral will be held this afternoon at the home and will be private. Burial will be in Belchertown.

Women folks all see the babies,
Handle fanciwork and sech,
Wondrin' how "she ever done it," —Really now, it "beats the Dutch."

While I walk along the midway,
Eat a "dog" 's I take the stroll,
See the kids whirl round and over,
But I keep my self control.

When it comes to taking chances
An' my neighbor takes the prize—
I just clutch both sides my britches
And I never close my eyes—

Not till all our family's loaded
And our chicken's all aboard,
And the squawker's workin' nicely
And the whip's unleashed its cord.

Oh, they bob their hair and dresses,
And they powder and they sniff,
And they get there in a jiffy,
And get back in 'bout a jiff,

But we take it kind o' easy,
Talk it over 'long the way,
How Eliza still looks youngish,
And how spry she walked away.

Oh, I tell you, as I started,
That I'm comin' to the Fair;
You may say there's naught but fakirs,
But there's lots of "people" there.

For Rough Winter Driving

OPERATORS of large truck, bus and cab fleets must have rugged, long-mileage tires if they are to make money. That is why so many of them have standardized on Firestone. Experienced race drivers, almost to a man, equip with Firestone. Car owners can have this same extra safety and economy—by using Gum-Dipped Cords.

Gum-Dipping, the Firestone extra process, impregnates and insulates every fiber of every cord with rubber—insures greater safety and comfort over rough winter roads—builds extra strength and flexibility into the sidewalls—an exclusive feature that adds thousands of miles to the life of a tire.

Come in—let us save you money by equipping your car with a set of these wonderful tires—prices are still low.

Neighbors' Night at Grange

Tuesday evening was neighbors' night at Union Grange, when Granby and Ware Valley granges were guests and furnished the program. Ninety were present, including some from other neighboring towns.

Granby Grange furnished comic current events, a song, talk, "Beautiful Spots in Belchertown," by Rev. C. H. Smith, (he alluded especially to the views at Pratt's mill, Fred Underwood's and the Sabin place), piano duets by Mrs. Forward and Mrs. Galusha, readings by Mrs. Worthington, a talk on the Federal Loan Bank by Mr. Clark, and remarks by Mr. Forward.

Ware Valley Grange's contribution included musical selections with three ukuleles and piano; reading, Miss Cummings; song, Marian Slope; reading, Jerry Sullivan; illustrated song, "Old Fashioned Song," and a comical portrayal, by the use of chairs, human tires and a little imagination, of "Charlie Austin's Ford." This was put on by six young men.

Refreshments consisted of sandwiches, apples and coffee.

Service at Dwight

The Union chapel at Dwight, which has been closed for the past three years, will be reopened Sunday, October 25.

Rev. Herbert C. Laskey of Springfield will preach. Other announcements will follow.

The Annual Fair

The inhabitants of western Massachusetts and sections more remote saw but one place on the road map last Friday and that was Belchertown. The most enticing of autumn weather plus the usual lure of the annual fair made a combination almost irresistible, and early in the morning the modern pilgrims of the road were speeding to the summit of the hill top where for 68 years men women and children with varying motives have gone for their annual play day.

And what a sight they made! All up and down the streets were cars of every make and description, quite in contrast with the days, not so very remote, either, when every maple around the park bore on Fair day, the inscription, "Hitch No Horses Here." Very, very occasionally, in the long line of cars was tucked in an equine, but his species was all but extinct and his name hardly a memory. One man, when asked by a bystander if his animal was a horse, simply nodded his head and passed on.

But not How did they come? rather, Why did they come? Was it

THE CITY OF TENTS?

One would think so, for there the crowd was thickest. The merry-go-round, the ferris wheel and all the other wheels—of chance, spun merrily all day, while hot dog, sandwich and cool drink men plied their trade unceasingly. Fakirs pitched their tents or "squatted" on every available spot from the liberty pole north. If competition is the life of trade, here it was. Some concession men, however, came to town Wednesday night and concluded there was too much life already and passed on.

But the fakirs do not make the fair. Those with a little spark of sentiment left count on even though prizes go begging for contestants, and oxen, of which there is reported to be not a yoke in town, no more circle the common. The parade is a quaint feature of Belchertown's play day, and when it vanishes, there will be some who will not come. Here the sublime and the ridiculous meet, but they do not mix, so the effect is not offensive.

E. F. Flaherty was marshal of the day. He was accompanied by six

Missionary Speaks

Miss Esther V. Thurston, who has been five years in Japan as a missionary and is now home on furlough, spoke at the evening service of the Methodist church last Sunday. Mrs. W. H. Snape presided and Mrs. A. R. Ketchen offered prayer and also introduced the speaker, calling attention as she did so, to the fact that the Foreign Missionary Society of the local church has been in existance about thirty years and that Mrs. Belle Morse, a charter member, was present at the service.

With such a background, Miss Thurston questioned whether her own work, covering only five years, was as important in comparison. She paid high tribute to the "people behind the scenes here in America, who have been the means of sending the gospel to countries you think you have never visited."

She called mission work the "business of exporting the thing we care most about." Right here she called attention to many things that are sent abroad that are of litle worth and oft times detrimental. Movie aides, Gale Stevens, Frances Sauers, Marjorie Peeso, Evelyn Corey, Pearl Corey and Evelyn Archambault. Then came Starrett's 13-piece band of Athol, followed by 19 Boy Scouts in troop formation, accompanied by Scoutmaster Roland M. Shaw and his assistant, Rev. W. H. Snape. Scout Robert Warner, in a pony cart completed the contingent.

The float entered by Girl Scout Troop I, came next. A khaki tent with the letters "G. S." on one side, occupied the forward part. In the rear were the camp fire, the clothes line with its burden of clothes, the signaller, the bugler, a Scout rendering first aid, and other Scouts, all in uniform. The scene was set amid young pines and autumn leaves.

The truck depicting early days of Union Grange was next in line. Red, white and blue streamers hung over the front section of the machine, while the cab was covered with bunting. Around the edges of the float was evergreen set with tiny American flags. In the midst of this scene were seated Mr. and Mrs. Charles Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Williams and Miss Darsa Dodge, representing the officers, while beside them were the emblems of the order. The truck was driven by Robert Baggs.

Next came "The Home Made Lizzie" "Ford Special--Union Grange" comic entry. Black building paper, chalked with the above wording, helped obscure the real Ford, while express wagon and hay rake wheels put in the customary position, apparently carried the load. Wilfred Noel, in stovepipe hat and extended nose, seated on a mowing machine seat, "drove" the machine, carefully manipulating the bicycle steering wheel and applying the cultivator handle brakes as necessity required. For his load was a precious one. The outfit was marked "Capacity 1 Family," but there was more than one in it—in fact the litter of youngsters defied all counting.

Quite in contrast with the entry above described was the decorated automobile of A. D. Moore, which followed. Rosettes of purple, pink, and white were strung above the radiator, set in the wheels and ornamented the white scrim attached to the sides of the car. It was a veritable "Queen of the May" affair and "Ad" and his "queen" completed the picture. (One could hardly realize that a half hour earlier at the south end of the park, "Ad" was distractedly proposing right and left to get a girl that wasn't engaged.)

The Springfield bus, loaded to capacity, and six Dodge Brothers cars and Graham Brothers trucks were placed in line by H. B. Ketchen, while the Belchertown Motor Sales, Inc., had a Ford and four Chryslers in the procession.

A "house on wheels" Ford was in line, being entered by "Prof. Hilco" of Boston, who is touring the fairs.

After circling the common twice, the procession stopped at the grandstand where J. V. Cook announced the decision of the judges as follows:

Floats: 1st, Girl Scouts; 2nd, Union Grange.

Decorated autos: 1st, A. D. Moore.

Comics: 1st, Union Grange; 2nd, Prof. Hilco.

$5 was awarded the Girl Scouts as an organization and $5 to the Boy Scouts. The pony cart entered by Louis Fuller and driven by Robert Warner was awarded $1.00.

DRAFT HORSES

Draft horses is usually the big drawing card after the parade, but like other features of the fair, interest goes in cycles and this year there were only two entries, W. A. Sauer and D. C. Randall. The former carried off the honors. This was in the "under 2600" class.

THE BABY SHOW

For the female sex, the baby show was the feature of the day. There were just a dozen and a half entries, but babies don't go by the dozen. They were looked over individually and sympathetically by the judges who awarded prizes as follows:

Handsomest: 1st, Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leon Antanovitch; 2nd, Hazel, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Theron Pratt.

Fattest: 1st, Harold, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ahern of North Amherst; 2nd, Milton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Hamilton.

Youngest: 1st, Rosalie, daughter, of Mr. and Mrs. William Ahern of Sunderland. 2nd, Howard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Mitchell.

Best natured: 1st, Eleanor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bertram E. Shaw; 2nd, Marion, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hussey of Indian Orchard.

AGRICULTURAL HALL

The hall always draws those with aesthetic taste, and although the tables were not as fully loaded as is sometimes the case (the last roses of summer had long since been nipped) the exhibits were of worth and were favorably commented upon by people who have attended other fairs. Union Grange had its usual substantial exhibit, C. R. Green, E. C. Howard and E. F. Shumway had excellent showings of fruit, while C. H. Egleston brought an extended line of farm produce. There was the usual exhibit of fancy work and quilts, and school exhibits were there too. Both the commercial and domestic science departments of B. H. S. had on display specimens of their work.

LIVE STOCK

Live stock was shown at the south end of the park. The cattle pens contained good specimens of ponies, cows, calves, etc., including Alice and Rachel Randall's prize winning stock, but the chain fence all around the south end of the common, intended for the tying up of herds of cows, boasted not a single specimen. D. F. Shumway, president of the club, who has seen the shows through thick and thin, says that with the highways swarming with cars on fair day cattle men no longer care to run the risk of their stock being injured on the road. Small animals and chickens were exhibited in about the same proportions. Four boxes comprised the showing in this department.

SPORTS

But the sports at the fair are taking on new life. For years such a thing was on the program but it seldom materialized. Last Friday, however, it was different. There was a good number of events and they were snappily run off under the direction of C. G. Moynihan, athletic director of B. H. S. They were immensely enjoyed by the local school members who participated, and by the large number of spectators. The results follow:

100-yard dash, boys, 1st, M. Keyes; 2nd, Haskell. 50-yard dash, girls, 1st, Miss Peeso; 2nd, Miss Holcomb. Shot put, 1st, E. Landers; 2nd, M. Keyes.

Slow bicycle race, girls, won by Nannie Howard. Slow bicycle race, boys, won by Paige Piper; 2nd, Dorey. 220-yard dash, 1st, M. Keyes; 2nd, Haskell. Half-mile run, 1st, Robert Warner; 2nd, G. Krol. Running high jump, girls, 1st, Miss Peeso. Running high jump, boys, 1st, George.

THE SIDE SHOWS

But did you see the side shows at the fair? Some were on the park and some were not. From a local standpoint they were highly interesting. They represented Belchertown's contribution to this annual event. We speak of them more especially as side shows, as all around the outer edge of the common there was much activity by the townspeople. At the Park View turkey and fish dinners were served and dancing was enjoyed. At the northerly approach to the town Lincoln Cook

J. H. S. Activities

The J. H. S. Auxiliary of the Junior Red Cross sent eight Christmas boxes away Tuesday. The boxes were packed by the pupils and contained toys, pencils, handkerchiefs, ties, hair ribbons, games, etc. These gifts will leave New York next week for the long journey across the Atlantic into the heart of Europe, where it is hoped the unfortunate children will receive a little Christmas cheer from the contents of the boxes.

The J. H. S. plan to sell holiday cards and novelties as usual, but this year the proceeds will be used to make some of the poor children of Massachusetts happy at Christmas. The new assortment of cards and novelties is the "best yet," both in quality and price. Work along this line will begin early in November.

The Fair in 1867

Town Clerk Geo. H. B. Green, in rummaging around his office recently, brought to light this account of one of the earlier cattle shows in Belchertown, taken from the "Hampshire Express" of October 17, 1867. Placing the 12th and the 68th accounts side by side shows the changes which the passing years have wrought. Many of our older subscribers will note familiar names in this bit of history.

"The twelfth annual exhibition of the Belchertown Farmer's and Mechanic's Club was held on Tuesday, Oct. 15th. The day opened pleasant and a large crowd of people assembled on the grounds. Belchertown has one advantage, at least, over many towns, her show is held on the common, right in the business center of the place and people do not have to drive or walk a mile or two out of town to get to it. The show of cattle was excellent; better than we have seen at some County shows this season. The largest and heaviest pair on the ground, and among the largest we have ever seen were exhibited by A. W. Stacy, weight 4,344 lbs, 6 years old. Mr. S. also had on the grounds a pair of twin steers, 2 years old, precisely alike. Mr. J. S. Loomis, of Palmer, had two pairs of steers that were finely matched and attracted considerable attention. Space will not allow us to enumerate all the excellent stock that was on exhibition. The following are the number of entries in this and other departments.

"Strings of Cattle 2, Working Oxen 9 pairs, Oxen 4 years old 7 pairs, Oxen 3 years old 4 pairs, Oxen 2 years old 7 pairs, Bulls 7, Milch cows 5, Heifers and Calves 3, Fat Cattle 2, Fancy matched Cattle 6 pairs, Herds of cattle 2, one of 22, one of 13; Sheep 2 entries, both South Downs; Drawing match 2 entries, Horses drawing match 2 entries, Carriage horses in pairs 6 entries, Single 7, Stallions 3, Breeding Mares and colts 3, Colts 3 years old 4, Colts 2 years old 2, Colts 1 year old 5, Poultry 3 entries; Carriages 6 entries by Paul Beck and T. & S. D. Cowles.

"There were several entries of horses from Amherst, among them two by H. A. Cook, and one stallion by E. F. Cook, each of which drew premiums. Joseph W. Weeks, proprietor of the Nassawano house, Palmer, entered a fine matched pair of Stallions named "Hiram Drew and Gray Rock Messengers," which attracted much attention. Mr. William Fuller, also of Palmer, entered a nice pair of matched horses, black.

"There was a very good display of Fowls, among which we noticed some full blood black Spanish, by Arthur Howard. Mr. Howard also exhibited 60 varieties of Verbenas.

"The exhibition in the hall exceeded that of any former year. The tables were all well filled and the walls hung with pictures and fancy work. The show of fruit was excellent, considering the year. R. S. Underwood of Northampton exhibited fine specimens of Baldwin apples, also a variety of pears, and Lyman Sabin had 19 varieties of fruit. There were some excellent specimens of seed corn.

"Among the many articles worthy of mention were a Bread-mixing machine by Forbush & Co. of Boston, which seemed to work well. A bed quilt, by Mrs. Franklin Dickinson containing 4,238 pieces.

"Some very fine specimens of pencil drawings were exhibited by Miss Cheney. Of Sewing Machines there were Grover and Baker's, Wheeler and Wilson's, Howe, and Warner's Favorite Family machine.

"The number of entries in the hall were as follows:

"Fancy Articles 54, Domestic 17, Paintings and Photographs 25, Flowers 7, Vegetables 44, Apples 17, Pears 6, Quinces 3, Grapes 6, Cranberries 2, Peaches 3, Grain and Seeds 23, Bread 16, Cheese 9, Butter 8, Cake 7; Miscellaneous Articles 12, Honey, Maple Sugar, Jellies &c 9, Wine 2.

"At one o'clock P. M. a procession was formed in front of the Town Hall and marched, headed by the Belchertown Cornet Band, to the Belcher House, where F. S. Cook, proprietor of the house, had prepared an excellent dinner, which was relished by a goodly number. Dinner over, and music by the band, Col. Elliot Bridgman, President of the Society, made a few appropriate introductory remarks, and offered several sentiments, which were responded to respectively by Rev. Mr. Woodworth, Rev. Mr. Blake, Rev. Mr. Curtis, J. L. Skinner of Amherst, H. S. Gere of the Northampton Gazette and H. K. Starkweather, Treasurer of the Northampton Agricultural Society.

"Among the things that created the most sport at the exhibition was a sack race on the common, for which there were four premiums offered, and six persons contested for the prizes, which were awarded as follows: George M. Fisher $4, Chas. Baggs 3, Jimmie Doyle 2, George Sanford Jr. 1.

"About the time for the trotting to commence it commenced to rain and there were several small showers, making the track muddy and slippery, but the trotting went on nevertheless.

"In the first class, premium $15, best two in three, there were three entries, G. Austin White of Belchertown, S. C. Herring of Brimfield, and A. F. Wilds of Springfield, naming Columbus. Mr. White withdrew his horse, leaving the contest between the other two, which was won by Columbus, time 2,58 and 3,07.

"In the second class, premium $10, best two in three, there were four entries, Austin White, S. C. Herring, L. D. Felton, Palmer, 'Brown Jim,' and H. A. Cook, Amherst, 'Black horse.'

"Fuller's sulky broke down after the first or second heat, and he was obliged to withdraw. The race was won by 'Black horse,' time 3,04, and 2,56, which was very good time, considering the condition of the track.

"The exhibition was in all respects a complete success. The receipts at the hall door were $59.30.

"The following is a list of premiums awarded which comprises all that were returned by the committee up to Tuesday night. The committee on Working Oxen and Steers 3 years old had not brought in their report, and we were unable to ascertain their decision.

made a big bid for oyster stew business by hanging across the street a mammoth sign with gay streamers attached. (Anyone would have thought the town was observing its 200th anniversary.) Other stores served the visitors in greater or less degree, dispensing doughnuts and coffee, cigars, confectionery, etc. At the M. E. church, the ladies of the Social Union sold fancy articles in the vestibule while in the vestry below a cafeteria, launched on the spur of the moment, was conducted by the church people.

At the chapel the Girl Scouts had charge of a rest room for mothers and babies and a lost and found department. Boy Scouts had a first aid tent near the grandstand and also assisted in handling the traffic. M. C. Baggs had a display of furnaces on the common and the automobile dealers of the town were busy tucking information under people's hoods. The Junior class of B. H. S. conducted a luncheon booth on the midway.

In fact, it seemed as if most every one in the immediate environs of the fair (unless it was the Boy and Girl Scouts) took advantage of the opportunity to make a dollar, even if it was only parking cars. Many a householder in the center spent the day waving to prospective parkers to come and camp in the shade of the old apple tree.

But the music, furnished faithfully by Starrett's band of Athol, at last died away, and the guests of the day left as quickly as they came, leaving the village to settle down to more quiet ways. They will come again next year, and just as long as people come, the fair will be termed successful.

films made in America, many of which she was sorry to say, could not be shown here, are sent to Japan. They depict American life "as it is not."

Miss Thurston told of the eagerness of the Japanese to follow Western ideas. The way we wear our hair is copied, and baseball has put real American words into their vocabulary. As far as autos are concerned, she said that there are many doctors, but none own their own car, and the same is true of farmers. Automobiles are only possessed by the wealthy.

The speaker told of the earthquake that visited Japan and of how the people can never forget what America did after that disaster. They were astonished at how much money was given, how quickly it was sent, and how widespread was the giving.

As to Christianity being accepted by those in authority, she said that there is at least toleration in the highest circles, illustrating her point by citing an incident of the empress attending a Chrisian chapel service.

Perhaps Miss Thurston's most interesting comments were on the way the Japanese reacted to the Exclusion law passed by the United States. She said, "They get disappointed when we fail. We had talked so much about world brotherhood, and then we drew the color line, giving the lie to all we had said." They realized that the United States had the right to exclude, but it was not in accord with their preconceived opinion of us. Miss Thurston said, "There are bad Americans and there are bad Japanese, and we wouldn't want to live next door to either." She hoped the day would come when some adjustment would be made. The speaker paid high tribute to the self control manifested by a large number of the Japanese in their public utterances, in those trying days when for safety's sake, police protection was afforded her and her associates.

Miss Thurston called Japan a country, where in the terms of the business man, quick returns can be secured on money invested in missionary enterprise. Three times as many boys and girls desire High school education as can be accommodated, so examinations are taken, thus giving the schools the flower of Japan's youth and allowing such to become "exposed to Christianity" which American Christians are trying to "export".

The offering of the evening went to the World Service Work.

Grange Notes

Union Grange meets in Grange hall next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. The program for the evening, which is a debate, will, no doubt, be a great attraction for local grangers. The subject, "Resolved that the government should limit the selling prices on articles that farmers buy," furnishes one of the livliest topics to come before the local organization in a long time. Wilfrid Noel is the affirmative leader of the debate, and William Kimball is the negative leader.

Pitt Parker Next Friday

Pitt Parker, cartoonist and modeller, comes to Belchertown again next Friday evening, this time under the auspices of the M. E. church as the first number in their Lyceum course.

A number of years ago Mr. Parker gave a similar entertainment in the Congregational church in connection with a lecture course. Some still recall his ability to draw pictures at any angle and from any angle, and to place any part of the human anatomy on points that anyone would designate. No one surmises that his hand has lost its cunning.

The entertainment, which is a two-hour production, will be given at 8 p. m. Admission will be 40 cents; children, 25 cents.

The management regrets that this was the only date available for this entertainer, inasmuch as it coincides with the date spoken for by the Social Guild, but hopes that this program will in no way interfere with the supper and sale which had the right of way.

The Methodist and Congregational churches will unite in special services, Sunday evening, Nov. 1st, at 7 o'clock. The services will be conducted by the W. C. T. U. There will be special music, and the speaker of the evening will be Mrs. Jeannette Mann of Boston. Mrs. Mann is National Lecturer of the W. C. T. U., and is a ready, well-informed and forceful speaker, both in regard to the work of the W. C. T. U. and the cause in general. Her pleasing personality, good voice and thorough knowledge of the subject will hold the close attention of her audience from start to finish.

The press considers her "one of the most eloquent and attractive women orators of the American platform of today." Belchertown will surely be fortunate in having Mrs. Mann in her midst for the day.

Scouts Observe Hallowe-een

The Girl Scouts and their leaders were guests of the Boy Scouts at a Halloween party at the Grade school building, Wednesday night. About 60 boys and girls were introduced to a variety of games under the leadership of Rev. W. H. Snape.

The climax of the evening was a story related by Mr. Snape, a story wild and wierd, as befits the Hallowe-en season, a story of Dr. Wilder's exciting experiences as a member of the detective force, a story which was a story, indeed. It was told with the lights out and illustrated by numerous shivvery objects passed from hand to hand around the circle. The excitement at times rose above the speaker's voice and nothing but ice cream and cake could have cooled things. A general sing around the piano closed the evening's fun.

The room was bedecked with orange and black streamers and black cats and witches, while some of the electric lights were encased in crepe paper pumpkins.

Sale and Supper

Don't neglect to attend the supper and sale to be given by the Social Guild in the Congregational chapel, Nov. 6.

Come and partake of one of those appetizing suppers, the kind and price to be announced in next week's Sentinel.

Vegetables, candy and children's tables will furnish pleasure for all.

Don't miss the opportunity to prepare for Christmas at the table of hand-made articles. Sale begins at 4 o'clock; supper served at 6.30 o'clock.

Evolution and Genesis

The trial in Tennessee brought the first few chapters of Genesis to the forefront of men's minds and on the front pages of the newspapers as it is on the first pages of the Scriptures. We would do well to read those first few chapters of the Bible again as though we had never read them before, and use our common horse sense.

The very first question to decide as we read is "Is this history, or is this story?" No one need answer this question for us. Very fortunately, we do not have to take any one's say so here. We can decide this matter ourselves. The Bible contains both history and story. The four gospels are largely historical, and yet they contain many stories like "The Good Samaritan," and "The Prodigal Son." No one has a right when he takes up the book of Genesis to say, "Now this is history" or "This is story." The thing for him to do is to read the book and find out.

One does not need to read very far in the book of Genesis to find his answer. On the second page he reads about the "tree of life also in the midst of the garden, and the tree of the knowledge of good and evil." Now that sounds very much like a story for we have never heard of a tree of that name. But if we are in doubt, all doubt is removed on the third page when we read of a snake talking with a woman.. A person does not need to have a college education to decide whether this is history or story. A boy or girl in the third grade can answer this without a moment's hesitation. The answer is so plain that the author of those chapters would have laughed at the idea of his telling his readers in advance what it was.

Now a story should teach a lesson. And a story in the Bible we would naturally think would teach a religious lesson. So the next question to answer is, "What lesson or lessons did these stories aim to teach?" The answer here is easy. The lessons are "God made everything. God made man in His image, as the crowning act of his creation. God expects obedience of man. When man disobeys, he suffers."

Evolution contradicts none of these ideas. Why make Gen. I-III a scientific treatise on evolution when its only purpose was to teach religious truth? It is folly to subject a religious story to scientific investigation. The writer was not concerned as to how earth or man came to be, whether instantaneously or through evolutionary processes; he was careful to teach that God was behind it all and through it all. Our best scientists are as fully convinced of this as they are of any truth. Science and Gen. I-III are not foes.

Turkey Hill Items

H. L. Crowe of Springfield spent Tuesday at C. R. Green's.

C. R. Green, in company with L. L. MacDonald, returned Sunday from a trip to Auburn, Me., the twin city of Lewiston. The party traveled over 27 miles of the famous Gray road, which cost one million dollars to build, many parts of which were so straight that a distance of one and one-half miles was visible. They returned by the shore route, which was a very dreary drive, because of the severe storm. The party witnessed breakers from 10 to 12 feet in height. They brought back a consignment of seven angora cats.

Jerry Green, the veteran horse of Turkey Hill, passed away Sunday night. He has been owned by Mr. Green for many years, being about 22 years of age. The cause of his death was paralysis of the throat.

Mrs. Jewell B. Knight is in town calling on friends and relatives.

Mrs. E. F. Shumway entertained 15 of the Ladies' Social Union at a thimble party on Wednesday.

Lester Allen entertained during the week, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Allen, and his brother, Perley Allen and wife and child, all of New Haven, Vt.

Mrs. Charles Booth entertained on Sunday her brother, Dr. William Benham Snow and wife of New York City. George Booth accompanied them on a two days' trip to Boston, Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Newman motored to Winchester Sunday, and J. R. Newman, Sr., returned to town with them to spend the week.

Semi-Annual Meeting

large part of the evening. A settlement was reached with D. D. Hazen, one of the trustees, who had claims on the estate for fixtures and improvements that he had made at the store building which he occupied for a long term of years. Nothing stands in the way now of closing up the affairs of the estate and the formal turning over of the property in question to the association or to its trustees.

The membership of the society is increasing and all the time desirable antiques are being contributed to the association. Those at the meeting Monday evening remember the sound of a clock striking the hours away in an adjoining room. This was a handsome shelf clock, 75 or 80 years old and was a recent gift of Sheriff J. V. Daly of Northampton, an interested visitor at the Stone House.

Union Services Sunday Evening

As the lecturer asks a fee, and her traveling expenses have to be paid, it will be necessary to take a silver offering during the evening.

Members of the W. C. T. U., Loyal Temperance Legion and Young Peoples' Branch will sit in a body.

This service is not meant for the benefit of the W. C. T. U. alone, but for every patriotic citizen in the town. Everyone will receive a welcome and will have the less common experience of seeing an evening service conducted by women. Every mother and father should make an effort to be present.

Let Sunday evening, 7 o'clock, be the great hour of the year to all who are interested both for and against the cause of temperance.

C. E. Halloween Party

The Christian Endeavorers made merry at the chapel Tuesday evening, the occasion being a Halloween party. About 40 were present to get the tinge of orange and black, see the cornstalk man with the pumpkin head, have the thrill of bobbing for apples, and eating doughnuts and apples off a string, besides enjoying the doughnuts and coffee served by the "Whatsoever class" (Miss Jackson's) of the Sunday school. The social committee had the evening's program in charge.

D. F. Shumway has received the following communication:

October 14, 1925.

To the Collector of Taxes:

As the first day of November falls on a Sunday, the question is raised as to what is the last day in 1925, under the provisions of Sect. 57, Chap. 59, General Laws, that taxes may be paid without interest.

An opinion from Jay R. Benton, Attorney General of the Commonwealth, under date of October 8, 1925, relative to this question, is to the effect that interest should be collected on taxes paid on Monday, November 2, 1925.

This makes it necessary for the tax-payer, in order to avoid interest, to make payment on or before October 31, 1925.

Nason-Wilder Wedding

Miss N. Althea Nason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic A. Nason of Ipswich, became the bride of Dr. F. Calvin Wilder last Saturday. Rev. F. T. Kenyon, pastor of the First Congregational church, performed the ceremony which took place at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Eleanor Janvrin, and Dr. Arhur E. Westwell, a classmate of the groom, was best man. Charles F. and Clyde A. Nason, brothers of the bride, were ushers and Miss Marion Bollman of Newburyport played the wedding march.

The bride was gowned in white chenille brocade with orange blossoms and wore a veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas and carnations. The bridesmaid wore peach colored taffeta and carried white chrysanthemums.

The ceremony took place beneath an arch of evergreen, and the home was further decorated with Roxbury waxwork, evergreen and chrysanthemums.

The bride is a graduate of the Manning High school of Ipswich, and has made a deep study of pianoforte in which she has obtained marked success, her specialty being the training of children.

Dr. Wilder was born in Dennysville, Maine. He was graduated from Tufts Dental college, class of 1923, and is a member of Delta Sigma Delta Fraternity. During the war he served overseas with the 101st Infantry, 26th Division. At present he is practising dentistry in Belchertown, where he is also assistant leader of the Boy Scouts.

Dr. and Mrs. Wilder arrived in Belchertown Wednesday evening and will make their home at the Michel place on West Walnut St.

Town Taxes—Now Water Taxes

The office of D. F. Shumway, tax collector, was a busy spot last week, especially Saturday, when extra help was required to take care of those who wanted to avoid paying interest.

October was the banner month for tax receipts. $31,115 was received as against $29,217 collected in the same month last year. In all, Mr. Shumway has collected about $36,000 this season.

WATER TAXES

The water district tax bills have been printed and will shortly be mailed. The rate is $7.50 per $1,000, instead of $8.00 as previously stated. This tax covers the special appropriation of $1,500 for construction, the deficit in operating expenses this last year, and the estimated deficit next year, up to Sept. 1, 1926.

These tax bills are dated Nov. 1, and interest will be charged from Nov. 15 on all bills unpaid after December 1.

D. F. Shumway collects these taxes in the same manner as town taxes, but receives his compensation from the water district.

Supper and Sale Today

The chapel has been a busy spot for the past few days, getting all in readiness for the sale of the Social Guild. It is said that the booths are "more attractive than ever," and as for the articles offered, the ladies have been working for a whole year making things useful and ornamental for this occasion. The sale begins at 4 p. m. instead of 4.30.

Supper will be served at 6.30. The menu includes scolloped potato, beef loaf, beans, rolls, pickles, pies, coffee. The charge will be 35 cents.

Pitt Parker Tonight

If the logic of mind over matter still holds good, Memorial hall will be a good place to go tonight to top off the evening. Bring your troubles with you if you must, but you'll forget to take them away. Furthermore, Pitt Parker will see to it that no matter how much one eats at the supper, he will not be troubled with indigestion.

Rev. James Gordon Gilkey of Springfield and other notables vouch for Mr. Parker, but Belchertown people are in need of no recommendations.

Tree Planting Exercises

Two maple trees were set out at the entrance of Mount Hope cemetery by the Girl Scouts Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. L. G. Warren, chairman of the Girl Scout committee, was master of ceremonies. The first assistant was Miss Marjorie Peeso of Troop 1, while Miss Irene Lodge of Troop 2 was second assistant. Miss Joan Rowland recited "Trees" by Joyce Killmer and Miss Frances Sauers gave a reading. Singing by both troops closed the exercises, the first of the kind attempted by the Girl Scouts in Belchertown. The trees were the gift of Dr. G. E. McPherson of the State school, to whom also the Scouts are indebted for assistance in the planting.

Glee Club at B. H. S.

At the meeting of the Glee club of Belchertown High school on November 2, 1925, (recently organized by Mr. Gorham, supervisor of music) the following officers were elected: President, Estella Snow; vice president, Eleanor Gay; secretary Gladys King; treasurer, Marjorie Peeso. Miss Esther Hagestrom of the faculty was asked to act as pianist.

Parent-Teacher Association Meeting

A meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association was held at the close of the Halloween exercises at the Grade school building last Friday afternoon. Besides other business, the matter of serving cocoa at the schools was discussed and a committee appointed to submit plans.

Mrs. J. L. Collard, Mrs. George Hussey and Mrs. Etta B. Randolph, who attended the Parent-Teacher Association convention in Springfield last week, gave reports of the meetings.

In connection with these reports, the attention of the members of the local organization is called to the words of Dr. Neumann, editor and publicist, of New York, who spoke Friday evening and pleaded for a program in the upbringing of the young, that should be positive instead of negative, also he held that "the high task of the parents is not merely to prevent their children from growing into gangsters or gunmen, but to keep before them and to instill into them the highest of life's ideals.

"There is more to the technique of home teaching than just stopping our children from mischief and lying. Aim high, put before them the worth while things of life and they themselves will recognize the negative virtues."

He advocated that parents attempt to study those things deep in their children's hearts, be their comrades as well as guides, and talk over with them the ideals of life and the work they may do.

Reports Council Meetings

Rev. D. L. Hilliard returned last Friday from attending the National Council, and Sunday morning gave a report of the meetings.

Mr. Hilliard was impressed at the outset of the gathering with the expectancy of the delegates, not so much to hear great addresses as to press on in the advancement of the kingdom. He spoke of the unanimity which characterized the business sessions, even though time-honored forms of organization were abandoned. The missionary societies were reduced to two, while the matter of merging the three denominational publications was laid on the table.

Mr. Hilliard spoke of the message given the council by President Coolidge, who looked to religion as the hope of government. Mention was also made of the social ideals adopted by the council and the work foreign missionaries are carrying on in South Africa.

Communion was postponed one week to allow for a fuller report than could otherwise have been given.

Halloween at the High School

The first of the class parties in the High school was given last week Thursday evening in Memorial hall by the Seniors under the direction of Miss Conklin.

As the guests came in, they were escorted through one of the corner rooms where they met the "Fly" family. Then came bobbing for apples and grabbing for doughnuts and chewing for marshmallows.

The program of the evening included a stunt from each of the classes. The Freshmen put on an act based on the popular songs of the day. The Sophomores gave the comedy, "Wanted—a Wife." The Junior stunt was a Halloween affair, members of the class being taken through a darkened room which proved to be a witches' den. The Seniors depicted a schoolroom where different boys "took off" members of the faculty.

The final number was given by a mummy (Miss Ross) from King Tutankahmen's tomb, who told ghost stories and before she returned for another 5,000 year sleep, gave a 'cello solo, accompanied on the piano by Miss Higgins.

Refreshments of cider, doughnuts and apples were served, followed by dancing.

The hall was appropriately decked with streamers of orange and black, the small side lights shone against the silhouette of a witch or a black cat on orange paper and a huge cardboard pumpkin adorned each end of the platform.

Finds His Vocation

The finding of one's real calilng in life is often a long and tedious quest. Some, to be sure, find their niche early, but the vast majority try one thing and then another till all of a sudden they blunder into the occupation for which they are most fitted. Such seems to be the case with one of our local store keepers. He didn't intend to be expert in this line, in fact, he didn't put over much thought to it, but when he received a check for $15 this past week for taking second prize in a contest for selling—hair nets, the cat was out of the bag. No matter what it was a lady came into the store for in the line of groceries, she always came out with a hair net. Neither party seemed to blame—it just couldn't be helped. Our only concern is lest some Woman's Shop looking for a star salesman, will run on to this article regarding A. H. Phillips' local manager.

Town Items

A very pleasing Halloween program was presented at the grade school building Friday afternoon before an audience that filled every available seat. Recitations, songs, exercises, drills and an amusing p'aylet were all well given. The window shades were drawn and the electric lights shining through paper pumpkins and the orange and black streamers and other Halloween novelties made an appropriate setting for the occasion.

Observe World's Temperance Sunday

World's Temperance Sunday was observed Sunday evening, when a union service in charge of the W. C. T. U., was held in the Congregational church. The local temperance organizations, including the W. C. T. U., the Loyal Temperance Legion and the Young People's branch, marched in and sat in a body.

Miss Elsie Shattuck, president of the W. C. T. U., presided. Miss Irene M. Jackson led with the responsive reading, Miss Marion E. Bartlett offered prayer, and Mrs. Etta B. Randolph of Dwight read the scripture lesson. The choir sang several selections and Mrs. William E. Bridgman rendered "Where is My Wandering Boy Tonight?"

Previous to the address by Mrs. Mann, national lecturer, Bartlett Green of the Loyal Temperance Legion gave some statistics concerning the nicotine industry and enumerated some of the harmful effects tobacco has upon those who use it. He not only quoted on this subject but gave some personal advice on his own account.

The subject of Mrs. Mann's address was "Broadcasting the Truth." Starting in with the words of Christ, "Ye shall know the truth and the truth shall make you free," she said that man has ever been searching for truth, and as he has learned it, it has set him free. Finding the truth has set the body free; it has curbed pestilence and famine. The truths of science have set men free from ignorance and superstition; it has also set men free from the limits of time and space. Therefore, because some have found out the truth, mankind has been set free in many ways.

Here in the United States we are engaged in a warfare, and to the W. C. T. U. has fallen the duty of bringing back the truth to the people and setting them free from the doubts and misunderstandings incident to prohibition. Wet propaganda is being broadcast to confuse men's minds.

Mrs. Mann recounted the 50 years of effort that the W. C. T. U. had put in and some of the evils that had been eradicated. She claimed that the liquor traffic had been the greatest stumbling block in the way of children and quoted Com. Booth of the Salvation Army to the effect that its abolishment had done more to bring in the kingdom of Christ than any other movement.

In these days when gains must be conserved, the speaker recalled England's slogan in the war, "England expects every man to do his duty," and paraphrased it to read, "America expects everyone to do his duty"; also every Christian. She called upon each one to do his bit. While the World war was great as compared with other wars, it was small beside this struggle of the ages.

A new organization has just been formed across the water, powerfully financed, for the purpose of defeating prohibition in America. This year, also, the National Liquor Dealers' association will ask the U. S. government to share the loss the brewers sustained when their business was outlawed.

Mrs. Mann said in combating propaganda, "Broadcast the truth and be sure people get your wave length."

She spoke of the campaign trip she took with others of the W. C. T. U. throughout the state just previous to the election when the effort was made to align Massachusetts laws with the Federal laws. She wished that there had been as much interest in the churches as she found manifested on the street. The former seemed to have laid down on the job, thinking the task was over—but she did not think so. In a letter to its constituency, asking for contributions, the Massachusetts Liquor Dealers association still speaks of "trying to bring back our business." Lawyers with million dollar retaining fees are employed by the opposition and "they are going to get their money's worth." Even in Boston, high priced lawyers are much in evidence when it comes to championing the cause of the wets.

In closing Mrs. Mann said that prohibition is the greatest test democracy has ever had, and the fight concerns not only this country, but all the world.

There was a large attendance at the meeting and the speaker was cordially received.

On Monday Mrs. Mann spoke to the pupils in both the High and center grade schools.

Grange Debate

Government," took place at the Grange meeting Tuesday evening. The affirmative side was taken by Wm. F. Kimball, Mrs. E. F. Shumway and Charles Sanford, while the negative debaters were Wilfrid Nocl, Mrs. Charles Sanford and M. A. Morse.

The affirmatives declared it was a poor farmer who couldn't plan an hour's work in the early morning when the dew is on (although not as much was said of the hour at night) —the haying season is short anyway, and children get accustomed easily to the new schedule (although M. A. Morse declared his hens didn't), while the leader of the opposition commented on interviews with railroad men, and others argued that amusements had taken the place of "war gardens," etc.

The judges, Mrs. E. A. Randall, Mrs. Alvin Cutting and Mrs. Dora Wesley, declared "The affirmative have put up a very good bluff, but the judges think they have not treated the subject broadly enough..... therefore we have decided that the noes have the right of the question."

Resolutions drawn up by Miss Ruby Knight, Mrs. Elvira R. Cutting and Mrs. Amy B. Witt, on the death of Homer Pratt, were adopted.

A covered dish supper will be served at the next Grange meeting, when officers for 1926 will be elected.

Death of Mary Anne Courchesne

Father and Son Social Night

In one respect the Father and Son social night at the M. E. church Monday evening brought to mind the Summer School of Religious Education. In both cases the "kids had to be kicked out" when the hour for home going came. So one can imagine that the program of the evening was fairly interesting.

Rev. Mr. Snape led the singing of Father and Son songs with one foot on the stove hearth, but things warmed up as the evening progressed, and when the lashes commenced to fall on a luckless son or father, unable to outdistance his pursuer in the dash around the circle, one realized that there were other substitutes for anthracite than those listed in the newspapers.

The games were not all boisterous, however. There was the "box-

Vermin Hunt Saturday

The Metacomet Fox, Rod & Gun club will stage a vermin hunt Saturday, and at the close of the day enjoy an oyster supper at Grange hall.

The hunt is in the nature of a contest, David Warner and Herbert Peeso being the captains. The losing side pays for the supper. As it is uncertain who will go on the hunt, and as it is not considered practical to start from a specified location, the sides will be chosen in blind fashion later in the day.

The winning side will be determined on a basis of points, according to the following schedule:

Animal	Points
Crow	200
Hawk	200
Owl	100
Fox	500
Red Squirrel	100
Starling	300
Blue Jay	100
Skunk (alive)	10
Coon	100
Mink	300
Weasel	300
Bob Cat	400

It will be seen that there is no great bounty on skunks. The captains insist that these must be alive and in the pocket.

The sportsmen are requested to bring in their spoil at 7.30 p. m., so as to be in readiness for the supper at 8.00. Union Grange serves the repast.

The best of weather is hoped for, but the idea is to run the hunt off anyway. The club has a large membership, many residing out of town.

Children's Clothes Project

Letters have been received in town from Mildred W. Boice, home demonstation agent, to the effect that a children's clothes project will be started in the Methodist vestry next Wednesday at 2 p. m. This is of particular interest to mothers, but others are perfectly free to come.

Bound button holes and set-in pockets, various short cuts in finishings, use and alteration of commercial patterns will be taken up. Those attending are asked to bring work basket fully equipped and a piece of cotton cloth for making button holes.

Miss Boice hopes that at least 25 will be interested along these lines.

Vernon Lodge Officers

Vernon Lodge elected the following officers at their annual meeting Tuesday evening: Worshipful master, Felding F. Jackson; senior warden, Winfred F. Forward, Granby; junior warden, William Bridgman; treasurer, William E. Shaw; secretary, Harry A. Hopkins; trustee for three years, George B. Jackson; associate member, board of Masonic relief, F. Dudley Walker; proxy to Grand Lodge, F. Dudley Walker.

Supper was served by the Eastern Star at 6.30. There was a good attendance at both business meeting and supper.

Sale and Supper

It seemed as though everyone Protestantly inclined came to the Social Guild sale and supper in the chapel last Friday. The decorations in pink and white, elaborately executed, were enough to attract anyone, to say nothing of the real worth of the supper and the articles offered for sale. Even the men could not escape the lure of the occasion. More than one of the sterner sex found out what their wives had been doing the previous afternoons and evenings, and when they saw the glowing effects, had nothing more to say. They bought candy and pop corn, and would probably have kept on purchasing had they been sure of the uses of some of the other offerings.

Fancy work and articles of utility were there in abundance, while at the vegetable booth most everything in the produce alphabet from apples to vanilla was attractively displayed.

Not only had the ladies given of their best to the occasion, but there were evidences of the young folks also having been inspired. One of the tables bore a small pine tree, on

One Hundred Per Cent Americanism

We hear much these days of per cents. The opponents of the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead Act are making a great hue and cry for a drink that has 2.75 per cent of alcoholic kick in it. Other citizens are shouting for 100 per cent Americanism. As a citizen I am not interested in the per cent of alcohol in any beverage that may be sold legally. But I am interested in Americanism and am pleased that the subject is receiving increasing attention, and if it can be expressed by per cents, why the nearer 100 per cent Americanism we can come the better. We cannot have too much perfect Americanism in America—that, I take it, is what the 100 is intended to mean.

We can analyze a drink and find out if there is alcohol in it, and the percentage of its alcoholic content, but Americanism cannot be determined by the chemist or be measured by the mathematician. It is not a new thing for people to claim a high degree of Americanism on a somewhat narrow and unstable foundation. Much vaunted Americanism is based upon the accident of birth and ancestry. I can say that my great-great-great-great grandsire was a member of the first board of selectmen of a New England town and a deacon of the New England church of that colonial town, but because I bear his name and inherit his faith, can I claim a higher and purer Americanism than some citizen whose parents were not born in this land and whose religious faith is unlike mine? Americanism cannot be based upon external conditions, such as birthplace and descent and religious faith and race.

We must define Americanism broadly to include the many examples of loyalty to American ideals, institutions, laws and government shown by citizens of alien birth and parentage. It is time to get rid of some of the untenable notions founded on race and religious prejudicies of what true Americanism is. As the President said at Omaha: Whether one traces his Americanism back three centuries to the Mayflower or three years to the steerage, is not half so important as whether his Americanism of today is real and genuine.

Citizens who boast a high per cent Americanism should illustrate with special clearness what is best in the American spirit, laws, institutions, ideals and history. There are many vociferous claimants of the 100 per cent Americanism who are not illustrating the best in the American spirit, laws, institutions, ideals and history. The per cent of their Americanism is far below 100. They are self deceived and in their zeal for America are seeking to persuade others to accept their imperfect definition of Americanism and join with them in a movement, the growth of which will result in social, political, religious intolerance and animosity.

True Americanism springs from love and loyalty to the principles of civil and religious liberty and equality embodied in our constitution. Let those who boast their 100 per cent Americanism read the constitution. Let them study the struggle for freedom of conscience, for civil and religious liberty as that struggle is traced through the history of the different colonies till it won its glorious triumph in the constitution of these United States and they will get a vision both broader and clearer of the meaning of Americanism. Not all the colonies at first gave to others what they came to America to find for themselves. Some did and lifted up the standard for others to follow. William Penn said: "What we wish for ourselves we should give others." Roger Williams in Rhode Island gave the colonists who followed him the freedom he sought for himself. When the colonies won their fight for independence and became a nation, the principles of civil and religious liberty advocated by Penn and Williams triumphed in our constitution.

The Americanism that wants for itself what it denies to any citizen whatever his birth, or creed, or race is not 100 per cent. The Americanism that fosters class, race or religious animosity is not 100 per cent.

The Haunted House But—

The haunted house one usually finds is on some sequestered lane. Shrubbery obscures the windows and the limbs of age-old trees rub the shingles. Ghosts on Main street are unthinkable, and so they should be, but one was seen yesterday morning in the insurance office recently vacated by Geo. F. Bell. The figure was that of a woman wearing a straw hat, a dark blue waist, and a makeshift white skirt. When the sun came out, the figure faded. Funny—but vacant buildings are the places where things start, so a word of warning concerning this danger spot right in the center of the town is not a bad appendix to this ghost story.

Girl Scout Week

This is Girl Scout week. Girl Scouts, their leaders, and the Scout committee are all observing it in some special way. In accordance with a country wide plan, the local Girl Scouts chose one night, Tuesday, when each Scout prepared supper in her own home, thus giving her mother a holiday. Saturday, Troop 2 has planned a hike to Turkey Hill and Sunday both troops will attend church in a body, Rev. W. H. Snape having extended the invitation in the name of the Methodist church.

Meanwhile the Scout committee is seeking to raise funds to help carry on Scouting in state and nation. The quota for Belchertown, based on the number of registered Scouts here, is $40.50. Springfield headquarters has rendered so much assistance to the local leaders the past year, that they feel a special obligation to raise this apportionment, if possible. Those who are interested and wish to help are asked to leave their contribution with either Mrs. L. G. Warren, chairman, or with Mrs. William E. Shaw, treasurer.

Vaccination Compulsory

At the state conference for school superintendents, physicians and nurses held at the Westfield State Normal school Nov. 4, the question of compulsory vaccination of school children was quite thoroughly discussed. It was definitely stated by Dr. Merrill Champion, director of the division of hygiene, that it is a state law, upheld by the Federal courts, that every child entering school must be vaccinated or bring a certificate from a physician in good standing giving some good reason for his not being; and that the law upholds the school authorities in demanding a renewal of these certificates every two months.

It was made still more emphatic by Dr. Burr Jones, supervisor of elementary education, who stated that it was a Massachusetts school law that every child entering school should be vaccinated and that the department of education had the authority to withhold the state aid from any town that did not comply with the Massachusetts school laws and would in the near future exercise this authority, as it had just been brought to the attention of the state department that in many of the small and remote towns, there were many children attending school, year after year, who have not been vaccinated.

Father and Son Social Night

ing" game, for instance. Just wiggling a small match box cover off the end of one's nose on to the next fellow's was a real dainty task, requiring alternate deflation and inflation of the nostril column, but 'twas a long time before the men at the ends of the two lines experienced the sensation.

But the evening's program was no lop sided affair. The heart-to-heart talk by Rev. Orville Crain of the First M. E. church of Holyoke was something fathers and sons will remember when the games are forgotten.

Mr. Crain revealed the sons to themselves, and their eyes fairly bulged as the reason for their deviltry and oft misunderstood actions was brought into the limelight. Mr. Crain solved the riddle as to why stealing watermelons is alluring, why at a certain age boys don't want to clean behind their ears, why the normal boy wants a gun, why mythology appeals to a child, why with advancing years boys commence to black the heels as well as the toes to their shoes, why the teasing of girls is displaced by knighthood and chivalry. It is all because we are the product, not only of our immediate parents, but of the whole race, and, as savagery, force, the desire to hunt, the oppression of woman, and their better counterparts represented stages in the development of the race, so these same elements, as voices from the past, "live in each new born child."

But the speaker gave the "sons" no license to follow their inclinations. In fact he said that not everything in the past is good to follow, and he who runs the full gamut is doomed to utter defeat. Each succeeding generation must modify the tendencies in life that are not worth while.

The speaker said, "Our greatest assets are our children. There are no substitutes, evidences to the contrary notwithstanding." He took occasion to say that Roosevelt was right in what he said about race suicide. The average births in American families is less than one, while in Italian families it is over fourteen.

As Mr. Crain is the father of four "live wires," his statements were not wholly theoretical. He confessed on many points to be "still in the dark," but with calm assurance said, "If we fathers do the best that we can, it will come out all right."

As for holding the boys in church and Sunday School, he disparaged all "red and blue" contests, offering instead the simple formula of "building a wall of fathers before the doors."

And so, with songs to draw the sons and boys together, a virile message, replete with many a story, by Mr. Crain, games that developed the fine art of working and playing together, and coffee, doughnuts and cheese for refreshments, it was no wonder that curfew rang all too soon.

First Number a Success

The first number of the Lyceum course—Pitt Parker, the crayon artist and modeller—proved a success last Friday evening. For the third time the townspeople came out in large numbers to see this wizard draw, and drink in his fun and philosophy. Rev. Mr. Snape, in his introduction, stated that 23 years ago Mr. Parker came here just at the outset of his professional career. He can talk as fast now as then, and his pictures fairly fly off the chalk. While Mr. Parker drew one elaborate Canadian scene in color, most of his work was in lighter vein. The entertainment closed with a demonstation in modelling.

Supper and Sale

which hung cloth bags, each containing 25 cents that had been "really and truly" earned by the Juniors of the church. This meant a contribution on the part of the young folks of $13. The net proceeds of the sale and supper were $210.

But the returns were not all in cash. Sociability was a valued by-product. Both were enhanced by the presence of a number from Granby who recognize the "Harvest Dinner" counterpart of their sister church.

Those in charge of the booths were: Apron Mrs. George Scott; fancy work, Miss Maggie Hales; candy, Miss Esther Jackson; handkerchiefs and bags, Mrs. Olive Hamilton; children's, Mrs. Mary Spencer; pop corn, Miss Evelyn Shumway; vegetables and miscellaneous, Mrs. Dwight Randall. Mrs. E. A. Randall was chairman of the supper committee. Much credit for the success of the affair is due Mrs. Hattie Taylor, president of the Social Guild.

Game and Vermin Hunt

Considerable interest was manifest in the game and vermin hunt staged by the Metacomet Fox, Rod and Gun club last Saturday. The day was not very propitious, but there were thirty who pulled through to the oyster supper served by Union Grange in the evening.

As the sides had not been previously determined, each sportsman's name was written on a piece of paper with the list of game he had taken. They were then put in a hat and the captains, Herbert Peeso and David Warner, drew for sides. Strange to say, when the totals were made up each disclosed 5,000 points. According to the agreement, the losing side was to pay for the supper, and as the result showed that nobody had lost, a coin was tossed and David Warner's line-up had to shell out and settle the bill.

The joke of the evening was in the drawing of names. To all appearances Peeso had an intuition that Warner was going to lose, and his fraternal spirit wanted to save his "comrade in arms" from impending humiliation. At any rate, by fair means or foul, the names of the captains got into the hat, and Peeso not only drew his own name but the name of his opponent. So Warner was acclaimed a winner as well as one of the losers, but the latter made him sit at their table and "stew" along with them.

But the losers don't intend to stand their humiliation long, for they immediately challenged the other side to another contest a week from Saturday with another oyster supper served by Union Grange, as spoil. The same schedule of points will be in force and no drawing of names again will be necessary.

Pautaupaug Club Celebrates

The Pautaupaug Hunting club held its third coon supper of the season at Lake Arcadia, Saturday night, Harold Kimball again furnishing the coon. Chicken was also on the menu. After the supper, dancing was enjoyed.

There were twenty-two present, including guests from Springfield and Northampton. The Pautaupaug club, so we are informed, is just a "good bunch of fellows", mostly local people, who have not as yet yielded to the temptation to have a membership list and a set of officers, although that may come later.

The "bunch" meets at the cottage of George Hubbard of Springfield, who is large in body and in spirit. Somewhat lamed from tramping the woods last Saturday, he caused considerable merriment in the evening by his oft repeated ejaculation as he limped around in real burlesque fashion, "Did you ever go hunting? If you haven't, don't do it."

Shower Father Dunphy

The new parish house of St. Francis church was the scene Monday evening of a kitchen shower, a large number of friends of Rev. J. A. Dunphy bringing articles with which to equip the kitchen of the new rectory. A very pleasant evening was spent. Ice cream, candy and cake were the refreshments.

THE PARISH HOUSE.

Although there are a number of finishing touches to be added to the parish house, Fr. Dunphy moved to his new quarters Wednesday. The building, which is a 12-room house, is not only pleasing as to its exterior, but the inner appointments combine beauty and durability. The front door, a work of art, with its vari-colored glass, opens into a spacious hall running the full length of the house. At the left, in front, Fr. Dunphy has his office, while at the right is the living room. Opening from this is the inviting dining room, while adjoining it is the spacious kitchen replete with a modern electric range. Directly over the living room is the pastor's study. The bath rooms on the second floor are the latest thing in open plumbing.

The house is finished throughout, floors as well as doors and casings,

Grange Notes

The Grange meeting of Tuesday evening was a combination of a covered dish social and an annual meeting. The covered dishes contained no blanks; beans, salads, cheese, rolls, pie and cake were there in abundance. Coffee also was served.

At the business meeting the following officers were elected: Master, Charles H. Sanford; overseer, Wilfrid Noel: lecturer, Mrs. Edwin F. Shumway; steward, Charles Trainor; assistant steward, Charles Austin; chaplain, Miss Ruby Knight; treasurer, Mrs. Dora Wesley; secretary, Mrs. E. G. Rowland; gate keeper, H. F. Putnam; Ceres, Mrs. Wilfrid Noel; Pomona, Mrs. Jennie Chamberlain; Flora, Mrs. Bertha Conkey; lady assistant steward, Miss Darsa Dodge; pianist, Mrs. C. H. Sanford; member of the executive committee for three years, Dr. E. G. Rowland.

It was voted to purchase new Grange song books and also to serve an oyster supper a week from Saturday night to the hunters of the Metacomet Fox, Rod and Gun club, who go out on the hunt scheduled for that day. Mrs. Austin and Mrs. Trainor are the committee appointed to get up the supper.

Girl Scout Sunday

About 30 Girl Scouts and their leaders were guests of the Methodist church Sunday morning when Rev. W. H. Snape preached a sermon especially for Girl Scouts. He took the book of Ruth as a basis for his comments on life and the fine qualities of the heroine as a model for Girl Scouts.

He began with Naomi and Elimelech and their two sons, and the journey to the foreign country Moab. He spoke of the inevitable changes which would take place in their lives as they adjusted their habits and customs to conform with those of their new neighbors, but he felt sure that in one thing there was no change, their religion remained the same. He wished he were as sure that boys and girls leaving home for in oak. The wall paper is rich in color and warm in tone, while the varying patterns nicely harmonize.

In the basement with its cement floor, is located the steam heating plant with oil burning attachment. In the south-easterly section is located the garage, while there is also space for cars on the opposite side.

D. I. Ferriter & Co., of Springfield had the contract for building the house, while the plumbing contract was awarded M. C. Baggs, and the electric installation was made by H. B. Sessions.

Not only has Fr. Dunphy had oversight of the work, but he was his own architect, planning the house in every detail. The result of his work is very evident, and is as well, a tribute to his constituency, who have in a comparatively brief period, brought to realization the dream of a worthy church home.

Girl Scout Hike

To go, or not to go, that was a question often asked by the Girl Scouts of Troop 2 Saturday morning. Central had a busy time of it, plugging in for the numerous calls, locating the captain at various places and making all the desired connections. Perhaps she remembered her own Scout hikes and understood how important the calls were. Anyway, she was wonderfully accommodating.

At 11 o'clock, the hour set for starting, a discouraging rain began to drizzle down. But nobody really seemed to want to give up the hike and one of the parents was quite willing to help things along by giving the girls a ride to their destination.

So the hike began with an automobile ride and a gentle little rain which soon became hardly more than a mist, and part way to their destination the Scouts took up the trail afoot.

Arrived at "The Orchards", Mrs. Newman met them and soon all were gathered around a roaring bonfire, toasting sandwiches, cooking hot dogs and steak, roasting peanuts and apples; even baked banana was attempted. Delicious hot cocoa and cake furnished by Mrs. Newman and the Turkey Hill members, was greatly appreciated.

The rain had had its little fling and the hike home was undisturbed by any misgivings as to what the elements would do next. So seventeen Girl Scouts have proved themselves unafraid of wind and weather and have pleasant memories of the comradeship of a day in the open.

To Speak in Enfield

On Monday evening, Nov. 23, at 7.30 in the Enfield chapel, Mrs. Helen Talboy will speak upon International Current Events. She comes to Enfield under the auspices of the Quabbin club. The members extend a most cordial invitation to all who read this notice, and their friends, to meet with them on Monday evening.

Mrs. Talboy will talk about the World Court and the League of Nations. Even though our country is not a member of either, people are, in sentiment, behind all the great interests and humanitarian causes for which they stand, and will therefore find Mrs. Talboy's talk interesting and profitable.

work or college took their religion with them to the new fields.

As the story went on with the death of the husband and sons, Mr. Snape commented on the tragedy, remarking upon the loss of loved ones which comes to all, and the oneness of sorrow, saying that tears were the same in Boston and New York that they were in Bombay and Egypt.

As he told the story of Naomi's return to her native land, Mr. Snape used the friendship of Ruth and Naomi as an illustration of the tie which often binds a girl to an older woman and which mothers sometimes forget or delegate to another, and said it was the basis of the Scout idea, the guiding friendship which a girl accepts from someone who has been over the road ahead of her.

Ruth went into the fields to glean. Here Mr. Snape suggested that Ruth would have made a good Scout, judging from her industry and her willingness to help her mother. He spoke of how easy it is to do a "good turn" outside of one's home and how often just doing dishes appears in the light of a thing that has to be done and not as the "good turn" which it really is.

When the speaker came to the part of the story where Ruth appears before Boaz in all her finery, he said that there was no harm in looking one's best, that people like beautiful girls—"at least the men do"—but warned the girls against the kind of beauty that comes out of a Five and Ten. "Let me give you a tip," he said, "don't do it. The boys don't like it."

In closing he told of the son born to Ruth and Boaz, who became the father of Jesse, who was the father of David, and of whom in later generations was born the Christ, and held up the ideal common to both Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts—that of clean thinking and clean living, saying, "Who knows what girl may be the mother of a Lincoln or a Washington, or of one whose life shall be very like that of the Christ himself?"

Max Eaton of Turkey Hill had the honor of bringing in the only fox of the day, thus crediting his side with 500 points, the highest number obtainable for a single animal. Several starlings were taken, also four or five crows. Strange to say, no skunks were brought in, either to swell the totals or to break up the assembly. Roy Shaw and Richard Lewis were "tellers" for the occasion. Herbert Peeso was high scorer for the day, bringing in a total of 1,500 points.

Torch for Better Citizenship

The "torch for better citizenship," which has been borne from Boston to the extreme western part of the state by High school boys on foot, is now being relayed to New Bedford, where a convention of the Hi-Y, under whose auspices the enterprise is being furthered, will open Saturday night.

The torch will leave Holyoke Saturday morning at 6 o'clock and is scheduled to reach here at 7.30. A relay from the local High school will deliver it in Ware, where it is due to leave at 9. From there it passes through Warren, Brookfield, Spencer and Worcester.

This is all in the interest of attracting attention to better citizenship. The Hi-Y is affiliated with the Y. M. C. A., being composed entirely of High school boys, and is non-sectarian in character.

Insurance Rates.

The long talked about lower insurance rates on property in the water district are now in force. Local agents have received the new schedules which show an average reduction of about 30 per cent. This is what was predicted by the water commissioners.

The following new schedule on dwellings and contents will be of interest:

Dwelling: frame, combustible roof.
1 yr. 23c, 3 yrs. 57c, 5 yrs. 92c
Contents
1 yr. 24c, 3 yrs. 60c, 5 yrs. 96c
Dwelling: frame, non-combustible roof,
1 yr. 21c, 3 yrs. 52c, 5 yrs. 84c
Contents,
1 yr. 22c, 3 yrs. 55c, 5 yrs. 88c

These rates are as of Sept. 16, 1925. While we have not ascertained the attitude of the several agencies in town, Geo. F. Bell stated this week that as far as his Agency is concerned the reduced rates will be retroactive to that date, and checks will be mailed to his customers as soon as possible.

The special risks in town did not all come in for the expected reduction. In fact some properties will take a higher rate than formerly. Two rates are given on this class of property. Those insuring for 80 per cent of the full value have the advantage of a much lower rate.

TOMORROW

Observe 25th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Wellington A. Sauers observed their 25th wedding anniversary at their home in Blue Meadow district, last Saturday evening. Over a hundred guests were present to congratulate them on the passing of this eventful milestone in a journey begun twenty-five years ago, when they were united in marriage at the Congregational chapel by Rev. J. B. Adkins.

Not only did relatives and friends tender congratulations, but they brought tokens of love and esteem in the form of a purse of $45 and a great many pieces of beautiful and valuable silverware.

The program of the evening included readings by Mrs. Louise Sherman and Mrs. H. H. Witt and piano selections by Miss Oris Fuller of Ludlow, who also played for a "sing," in which all participated. Refreshments consisted of ice cream, cake and punch.

Guests were present from Springfield, Westfield, Monson, Bristol, Ct., Bondsville, Amherst, Granby, Enfield, Ware and other places.

The festivities took place in rooms decked with evergreen and red berries. The house, which Mr. and Mrs. Sauers purchased of M. G. Ward, and to which they moved 18 years ago, is one of the old and interesting houses of the town, being known as the Owen place.

Mrs. Sauers was born in town and is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Shumway. Mr. Sauers is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Adam Sauers of Tolland. Mr. and Mrs. Sauers have two daughters, Frances and Barbara. They are members of Union grange and identified with the Congregational church, Mrs. Sauers being a member.

State School Play

Last Friday evening was "Guest Night" at the State School, or so it might be termed. Arrangements had been made whereby a larger number of the townspeople and others could be accomodated at the play given that night than is usually permissible on such occasions. An adaptation of "Rose Marie" was the attraction, and as most of the pupils had had the opportunity of witnessing the performance on three previous presentations, guests from the center and from out of town formed the majority of the audience, only 160 from the institution being present.

Dr. McPherson, superintendent of the school, in a brief introduction, told his guests they were in the laundry, (the entire building is eventually to be used for that purpose), but the uses were not wholly dissimilar after all, for as sunlight sometimes breaks up into rainbow colors as it plays on the whirling suds, so the colored lights, as they played on the five animated scenes so well enacted, produced entrancing results.

While the school had a number of sets of scenery on hand, an entirely new series was made for this occasion. This included a log cabin setting, a ball room, a church and a scene in the Canadian Rockies. Although coach Westwell claimed that on close examination there was "nothing to it," there was something about it that the audience appreciated, and they broke out into applause at the very sight of the "Rockies."

The costuming was elaborate, and although it was stated that it was mostly cheesecloth dyed with Twink, the effect was certainly very pleas-

With Our Subscribers

We are glad of permission to print the following letter recently received from Rev. C. G. Burnham.

Dear Mr. Blackmer:-

Here we are in Dixie. The particular location is St. Petersburg on the west side of the Florida peninsula. Its citizens, native and adopted, white and black, call it the Sunshine City and tell you that the whole edition of one of the daily papers is given away whenever the sun does not appear during that portion of the day when it should be up and shining.

The topography, flora and fauna, of this region, is different from that of Belchertown. The country is flat. Perhaps within the city dimits there may be a grade down which water would run, but it would not run very fast. The soil is fertile, though sandy.

The shade trees are not maples and elms but live oaks, palmetto and other palms, camphor and other tropical and semi-tropical trees whose names I have not learned. We cherished once in our home an anaemic rubber plant. Here the rubber plant is a lusty tree through whose dense foliage a ray of sunlight can hardly find a path. The most noticeable flower just now is the hibiscus whose beautiful, bell-shaped blossom we learned to like in Hawaii. We are promised a profusion of other blossoms in their season. Of course, about-to-be brides need not send out of the state for orange blossoms.

I anticipate meeting some old acquaintances among the birds, that like many northern people, winter in Florida, and in making new acquaintances. Already I have met the Florida grackle. I see the mocking bird every day, and when I go down to the shore there are gulls and other aquatic birds—and the pelican. When any one mentions the pelican he generally remarks about its bill. It is a long one at the end of a long neck and has a pouch on the lower mandible. His only rival as to bill is the St. Petersburg landlord with his bill for rooms.

The city is excited by the rush of people to buy houses and land. "Crazy" is a term I have heard applied to the peculiar psychological reaction to the present boom in Florida. There is great activity in real estate, in buying, selling, developing new sections, and in building new homes and apartments and hotels. The news is almost crowded out of the papers by the advertisements of bargains in corner lots, bungalows and other houses. Sellers and buyers block the sidewalks. Men and women importune you on the streets and at your lodgings for the privilege of taking you to view their property. "We have no thought of investing," we say, as they urge upon us tickets for free rides in a luxurious motor bus from this Florida Dan to Beersheeba. "Never mind, take the tickets, perhaps you will tell your friends about it," they say with a smile. The usual winter visitors are swarming in now, and St. Petersburg is busy and happy trying to find a temporary or permanent hive for them. In the meanwhile Mrs. Burnham and I with our friends are settled quietly and comfortably in our rooms getting some fun from watching the excitement of this booming time.

Yours truly,
C. G. Burnham

State School Play

ing.

But the people inside the costumes were the life of the performance. Although all were pupils in the institution (about 40, altogether), and their mental age averaging only nine years, still their dramatic powers seemed very keen, and it was not altogether a case of smugly seeing "backward races" perform. They commanded the admiration of all present.

The little girl who sang "You and I" endeared herself to the audience, the four girls who gave an exhibition of comedy dancing, were alike encored, and the audience would have liked many episodes repeated. The twenty "totem poles", in their drill and dance was a distinctive feature.

The music between the acts was furnished by Gould's orchestra and State school musicians. Miss Dray, music teacher of the school, and Mrs. F. C. Wilder, gave piano duets.

The guests, on departing, showered Dr. Westwell with well deserved congratulations on the outcome of the work he had put in to bring the performance, the most ambitious yet, to such a state of perfection.

Dr. H. M. Watkins of Boston, director of the department of feeble minded, former senior associate physician at the school, and three staff physicians from the Waverly school, were present, as were also practically all of the trustees of the local institution. Francis Aldrich of Chicopee, a member of the governor's council, was present at his request. Dr. Doorne of Holyoke was likewise a guest.

Others present were Prof. Toll of Amherst college with 45 students in psychology, Prof. Glick and a few students from M. A. C., a group of special students from Smith college, a group from Mt. Holyoke, and special class teachers from Springfield.

Dr. McPherson announced at the close of the play that the next big event at the school would be a minstrel show to be given about Jan.1. He extended an invitation to all present to attend.

Town Treasurer Courtland G. Bartlett has received from the state a check for $9,531.38, the amount due the town according to the accompanying balance sheet. The items on the debit side of this sheet are about the same as last year, except for that of the state tax which is $3,720 as against $2,400 last year. On the credit side the corporation tax, public service, is increased from $258.14 last year to $412.87. Other items are less; the corporation tax, business, is $1,647.45 as against $1,993.61 last year; the income tax is $9,308.10 as against $9,329.20 last year; so that the final balance of $9,531.38 is considerably less than that of last year.

Rev. Herbert C. Laskey of Springfield will preach at Dwight chapel Sunday afternoon.

46th Wedding Anniversary

When the last M. E. church night supper was announced, it was stated that a special treat was in store for those who came. Through the week it leaked out occasionally that the committee would serve scalloped oysters at the supper and that the price would still be ten cents. But those who went with the idea that they knew all about the surprise awaiting them, found a different one coming their way.

The scalloped oysters and baked beans had received their share of attention, the squash and pumpkin pies were well on their way to their appointed destination when strains of the familiar wedding march from Lohengrin were heard and in front of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Witt was placed a large wedding cake with a tiny bride and groom on the snowy top beneath an arch of green, while Mr. Snape announced that it was understood that the next day was Mr. and Mrs. Witt's 46th wedding anniversary. Mr. Witt admitted that it was, but he didn't see how they knew it, and, genuinely surprised, tried to thank his friends and tell them a bit about the day 46 years before. The cake had been duly admired and cut by the bride when the next number in this series of surprises took place.

Mrs. Bertha Conkey with a bouquet of beautiful chrysanthemums was saying, " You hear a lot these days about 'saying it with flowers', so we of the Social Union are trying to express with flowers our love and respect for Mr. and Mrs. Witt." These sentiments were encored by the company present and further speech making was in order.

After a hearty sing the company quieted down to the usual order of study classes and devotions. About 45 or 50 were present, part of whom remained to play games after the regular program was over.

Fire at Dillon Block

Belchertown "cashed in" on its water system last Saturday afternoon, when a good stream of water from the hydrant near the chapel quickly put out a fire discovered in the attic of the Dillon block at about two o'clock. Robert Chamberlain, a clerk at R. M. Shaws, on taking some boxes up stairs, had come in contact with smoke emanating from around the chimney.

On the arrival of the fire department, which was quickly on the scene with all equipment, water was forced down in the space between the chimney and the casing, which to all appearances, contained paper and refuse carried there by rats. The heat from the chimney had evidently ignited this material.

Some damage was done to the woodwork around the chimney, and water came down into Shaw's department store on the first floor. The floor to Grange hall was covered with a sheet of water which bid fair to upset plans for the oyster supper in the evening, but the room was dried out in season for the event.

FIRE DEPARTMENT SUGGESTIONS

In view of the fact that there have been several fires of late which might have proved very disastrous, there have been a number of suggestions offered by our townspeople, intended to make doubly certain a

Won First Prize

Union grange won first prize yesterday at Pomona grange against 11 other granges in the exhibit of handwork of 4th and 5th degree members, being first both as to quantity and quality. Prize winners were Mrs. Myrtle Williams, Mrs. Emma Green, Mrs. Julia Shumway, Mrs. Ora Davis and Miss Emma Stadler.

Second Game Contest

No coins had to be flipped last Saturday night to determine which was the winning side in the second game and vermin hunt contest of the Metacomet Fox, Rod & Gun Club. Peeso's side ran away from its opponents captained by David Warner, to the tune of 13,200 to 7,100. This was double the total score made in the previous contest.

There were plenty of thrills when the count was made at night. To all appearances the challengers had won, for their count was taken first, and scores ran higher than in the last hunt. The opponents therefore had to take some banter, as their defeat seemed impending, but the Peeso brothers and Roy Shaw, who went out together, knew they had thirty starlings (9000 points) on their own account, so they bided their time and laughed "best" and "last" as the totals of their side took the lead.

But it was all in good fun and the losers were game. The oysters served by Union Grange tasted as good to one side as to the other.

As before stated, the hunt ran to starlings, 67 being taken. One blue jay was brought in. The tellers this time were Arthur Warner and Roy Shaw.

There were a few on both sides unable to go on the hunt Saturday, but otherwise the line-up was practically the same.

Six Boys Carried Torch

B. H. S. boys did their part in bearing the torch for better citizenship on its way last Saturday. It was due to arrive here from Holyoke at 7.30, as stated last week, but was about ten minutes late. Those who relayed it from here to Ware were Thomas Landers, James Keyes, Eugene Flaherty, Douglas Rhodes, Elwyn Wood and Julian Hussey. Each had a lap of about two miles.

The boys say that in Ware the torch was held up for a half hour. The Ware principal was out of town, and the head of the movement from Springfield, who was on hand, had to corral the boys appointed to bear it on its way.

Supt. of Schools, A. R. Lewis, accompanied the boys to Ware in Roy Bardwell's car, which was used to let out and pick up the runners.

Death of Mrs. E. E. Brooks

TURKEY HILL NEWS

The death of Mrs. Sadie (Smith) Brooks, 55, wife of Edgar E. Brooks, at her home in Turkey Hill at 2.30 Tuesday morning removes one who has been a valued member of this neighborhood for the last 11 years. About a year ago she underwent an operation from which she never fully recovered. Although in ill health, her condition was not considered immediately serious till a few days previous to her death.

Mrs. Brooks was born in Westfield, Vt., Dec. 1, 1870, and on the early death of her parents was brought up in an orphanage. April 13, 1898 she married Edgar E. Brooks of South Vernon where they lived till they moved to Belchertown and bought the Thompson place which they have since occupied.

Although of a retiring disposition, Mrs. Brooks contributed greatly to the social life of the community, both by reason of her own hospitality and her interest in starting and supporting a variety of social events.

The body was taken to South Vernon Tuesday morning where funeral services were held yesterday afternoon at 1.30 in the Advent church, where she was for many years the organist. Burial was in Tyler cemetery.

Eight of the neighbors went to South Vernon to attend the services, taking with them a profusion of flowers as a last tribute of devotion.

Grange Notes

The Grange meeting of Tuesday evening was largely given over to a discussion of routine business. Six new members were voted into the order. The first and second degrees will be conferred at the next regular meeting.

The program of the evening consisted of a reading by Mrs. George Davis, a piano solo by Mrs. Charles Sanford and a "sing" from the new Grange song books just secured.

Golden Rule Sunday

Next Sunday is Golden Rule Sunday. As is well known, the Near East organization asks that orphans (the product of the war) under its care, be remembered. They suggest that people eat regular orphan fare on that day (breakfast: cocoa and bread; dinner: beans, (lamb stew once a week), bread; supper: grits, apricots, bread) and give the difference in cost between this and the usual meals, to further this great work of redeeming humanity. For those who do not want to go the limit, they suggest either of the following four menus for the Sunday dinner:

I: Meat Stew (use the cheaper cuts) —Stewed apricots—Cocoa.

II: Cocoa—Bread and Milk—Stewed prunes.

III: Boiled rice served with Karo syrup—Cocoa—Stewed prunes.

IV: Scalloped macaroni made with evaporated milk—Stewed prunes —Cocoa.

At the M. E. church on Sunday, Rev. Mr. Snape will distribute envelopes to be turned in the following Sunday by those who will follow the above suggestion or donate a larger sum to the work designated.

Near East cards were given out at the Congregational Sunday School last Sunday, and both pastors announce that they will be glad to receive offerings for this worthy cause.

Christmas Seals

Mrs. Hoag has received Belchertown's annual quota of Christmas seals ($200.00) and they are now being sold by the school children about the town. It is earnestly hoped that the children's efforts will be most generously rewarded as the cause is a very worthy one—The National Fight against Tuberculosis!

The Hampshire County Public Health association with headquarters at Northampton is the local representative of the National T. B. association and will receive 85 per cent of the seal sale money this year. Let us all do our bit and see if the dream of our county public health workers in regard to establishing a summer health camp for the undernourished children of the county can not be made a reality. The land for this camp was donated the association several years ago, but as yet it has been impossible to get money enough to equip and maintain it.

So, when buying the seals, do not be guided by the exact number of them you may wish to use but by the fact that every dollar you give to this cause brings you and your family so much more protection against this dread disease, tuberculosis.

The first annual report of the Mary Lane hospital of Ware, just printed, shows that eleven from Belchertown availed themselves of treatment at that institution. Possibly our citizens would be interested in some of the minor needs of the institution as indicated in the report: "kindergarten sets for children, daily and weekly newspapers, books, magazines, playing cards, a small safe for the office, not necessarily new, plants for sun parlors, and a Victrola for the hospital."

The Fourth Quarterly conference of the M. E. church was held Wednesday evening, Dr. L. A. Neis, the district superintendent, and his wife from Springfield being present. Reports of the Ladies' Social Union, Sunday school, Epworth League and Woman's Foreign Missionary society were given. Dr. Neis took especial interest in the report of the Daily Vacation Bible school and also congratulated the church on its work in general which compared very favorably with that of other churches in the district. An adjourned session of the conference will be held at a later date and will be conducted by the pastor, Rev. W. H. Snape.

The last of the present Church Night series will be held next Thursday evening. This will be Sunday school night. Each Sunday school class will have a table of its own at the supper hour, 6.30 to 7.30. They will solicit their own food, provide their own decorations and vie with one another in making the others wish they "belonged". Following the supper will come the usual classes, while at 8 there will be a social hour in which each class will put on a stunt. A community sing will complete the evening.

Season tickets are now on sale for the remaining four numbers in the Lyceum course under the auspices of the M. E. church. The price of these tickets is $1.50. The second entertainment in the course comes next Friday night when Mrs. Smith and others from Springfield will give a concert in Memorial hall at 8 p. m.

D. C. Randall and A. S. Brown & Son have joined the Hampshire Co. Cow Testing association, which is a cooperative enterprise to ascertain what each cow in a particular herd is doing. An inspector makes the rounds once each month of the 48 farms whose owners have joined the association. The inspector made his second visit to Belchertown this week.

George Butler is ill at the town farm.

A Christian Endeavor rally will be held at the North Amherst church Monday evening, Dec. 7, at 7.30. The local society is invited to be present.

At a meeting of the Sunday School Board of the M. E. church Wednesday evening, it was decided to hold Christmas tree exercises Dec. 23. A nominating committee to bring in names of officers for 1926 was appointed.

Miss Mae Bardwell of East Northfield is visiting Mrs. Charles Trainor.

A telegram has been received by Mrs. Iva G. Peeso announcing the death, on December 1st, at Stony Point, N. Y., of Della White Redner, wife of Arthur Clyde Redner. Mrs. Redner was born in this town May 27, 1872, and spent her early life here. She was the daughter of Wilbur F. and Orilla (Shearer) White. Besidese her husband she leaves a nephew, Carlton E. White, of Springfield. The body will be brought to Belchertown for the funeral and burial will be in the family lot in Mt. Hope cemetery.

quick get-away of fire equipment in case of an alarm.

One suggestion is that engine house hall be made into a tenement, and a furnace placed downstairs, thereby heating the room where the motor equipment is stored, as well as providing heat for the family above. There are a number of adherants to this idea.

Another suggestion put forth is that the town hire a stall in a local garage and have the motors kept there and started once a week.

We understand that insurance rates are determined by the amount and nature of fire equipment, rather than by the efficiency of the fire department, so that nothing would be gained in this direction by either of the two schemes, but the citizens are of course interested in providing every reasonable facilty for their fire department, thereby securing greater protection for their property.

Last Thursday the writer viewed the ruins of the Bellows Falls High school building, a brick structure erected in 1896. This burned last week, and the account of the fire in the local paper stated that the firemen were unable to get a stream of water to the second story. There was little pressure and the hose broke in several places. The reporter stated that it was enough to drive a sane man frantic. The inhabitants are already commencing to dread the high taxes which will come as a result of the new building which must be erected.

The obvious lesson was that it is cheaper to philosophize before a catastrophe than after. Bellows Falls people are doing considerable thinking and talking now that the building is gone. The writer was glad that while the walls of our public and private buildings in Belchertown still stand, there is an alertness to see that they do not become the wailing places of discouraged tax payers.

Annual Meeting and Roll Call

Members of the Congregational church and parish gathered in the chapel last Thursday evening for the annual meeting and roll call. There is a warmth about these occasions that the common term of annual meeting hardly covers, however, and it was quite in contrast with the weather outside on this particular night, which was doing its best in the form of a driving rain to keep people at home. But it achieved no great success for the church family was a large one that sat down to the banquet served by the Social Guild.

With the satisfying of the inner man, Carl F. Aspengren read the warrant, following which A. R. Lewis was elected moderator. Reports were then rendered by the officers of the church and the secretaries and treasurers of the various organizations. The financial reports indicated that all along the line there had been good work put in raising money to pay for the furnace installed last season at a total cost of $1,075.23. It was also evident that in the matter of sending the pastor to Washington to attend the National Council, there had been contributions from many sources. The church had contributed $200 to benevolences besides $92 sent by the Woman's Foreign Missionary society as its annual Thank offering, and contributions to other worthy objects by the several societies. As regards membership, there appeared to be little change.

The removal of the horse sheds and the improvement of the grounds adjacent to the cemetery evoked favorable mention and the trustees were tendered a vote of appreciation for their work in this connection.

Following the election of the new officers, noted later, the roll of members was called by the clerk, Miss Marion E. Bartlett. Eighty-three responded to their names, either in person or by message, 26 of these being from out of town. The first three names called were Dea. A. H. Bartlett, Mrs. M. D. S. Longley and Mrs. Julia Walker, all of whom joined in 1856. All three sent responses.

The idea of the church family and the spiritual tie that binds them together was especially manifest in the calling of the roll. Members who had gone out into the wide world sent back words of faith and hope, as well as giving brief pen pictures of the surroundings in which their lives are now cast. As is always the case they were not unmindful of the financial needs of the church at home. A few letters have been received since the meeting.

Following the roll call, In Memoriam, prepared by Mrs. M. D. S. Longley, was read by Mrs. Dora Bardwell. Herein was recorded the deaths of Mrs. Sophie B. Thomson and Mrs. Alice M. Kendall, the latter of whom had herself gathered data for In Memoriam for twenty-one years.

The offering of the evening went to provide for final obligations in connection with the furnace installation.

An Idea That Will Not Die

2,600 years ago, a great statesman wrote the following sentence: "They (the nations) shall beat their swords into ploughshares, and their spears into pruning hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Some have declared that this was the most important sentence he ever wrote.

He must have been even more than a great statesman to have an idea of a warless world, for he lived in a century of war. The three great world powers of his day were military powers. War was a favorite pastime among kings and nations. The king was the most honored and famed who won the most brilliant and the largest number of victories. Even his own king was an ardent advocate of preparedness and had a large army and many implements of warfare. It is remarkable that the idea of a warless world was born in a century of war.

It is remarkable that this idea has lived through these 2,600 years. It has survived in the face of all that has happened. Kings have laughed at the idea, nations have scoffed at it, military experts have kicked at it, and warriors have poured out their wrath upon it and yet the idea still lives.

It is wonderful that men cling to the idea since wars have increased in severity and barbarity and cruelty and brutality. The last war was the most destructive and far reaching, killing more millions, and bringing the most anguish. The idea of a warless world is indestructible.

We give up the idea, it follows us, we throw it away, it pursues us. It will not be downed. It is an unconquerable idea.

Some day this immortal dream will come true. Why not make it come true in our own day?

A Place Called Dwight

Contributed to the Neighborhood page of The Springfield Republican of November 29 by the local correspondent.

A trip over the state road between Amherst and Belchertown, just completed, is a heart-felt joy to every motorist. A perfect road bed, easy grades, no railroad crossings, the man at the wheel has a soft snap. But the pleasures of the road itself are apparent to anyone with a car. They need no rehearsal. All can see for themselves.

There are bits of interest along the road which are not so evident. About halfway between Amherst and Belchertown, west of the highway, is a group of houses, hardly enough to be called a village, for the brief glimpse which the motorist has scarcely reveals the store, the post-office, the railway station and the chapel, but unless you are a stranger in these parts, you recognize that you are in Dwight, a settlement dating back to 1734 when young Capt. Nathaniel Dwight, Jr., of Northampton, agent for Gov. Belcher, took up his homestead on a mile square of land. Four generations of Dwights left their imprint and gave their name to the village, which is a part of the township named for Gov. Belcher. (Another member of this same family has perhaps even more permanently and widely commemorated his name by the familiar packages of Dwight's Cow Brand soda.)

It was at Dwight that, according to tradition, a pesthouse was located. In the old days when some one came down with the smallpox, he was isolated at the pesthouse. Then a group of daring young people would go there, expose themselves to the disease and, if they recovered, be forever immune. The same theory holds today among mothers who argue that children had better have the measles (or something else) while they are young and be over with it. As near as one can judge from the stories handed down, the visit to the Dwight pesthouse began as a sort of house party. The young people played games or sat around the fire of an evening, when suddenly some one would call out, "Look at Susan! She's coming down all right." Whereupon said Susan would straighten her aching back and proudly declare her immunity, only to slump again soon. But perhaps it would be George who was caught next and in spite of vigorous protests, he couldn't convince himself that he hadn't a rotten headache. So in the end, they succumbed, one by one. Daily the doctor visited them and saw that they were cared for. Probably he bled them if they got too sick. Those who recovered, as was said, were thoroughly vaccinated.

About 40 or 50 years ago one of the residents of Dwight took an old, rundown farm, named it Pansy park, and made it live up to its name. Pansies and other flowers bloomed in profusion along the sandy road, a greenhouse and seedhouse grew up over night, the farm buildings were modernized and everything put in a prosperous condition. In an artificial pond were grown water lilies, the victoria regia, a variety which had never been grown in open air in New England except by L. W. Goodell in 1890. Travelers from distant places stopped at Dwight and visited Pansy park, a name which was also adopted by the Central Massachusetts road for their way station at this place. The victoria regia are no more but in the springtime pansies still brighten the roadside and you may know that you are in Pansy park.

Within sight of the highway is the spot where Henry Ward Beecher, while still a student at Amherst college, preached his first sermon. The brick schoolhouse which held his audience was taken down some 20 years ago, but the historical fact remains.

Not far from Dwight is a spot of no special interest to the casual observer. There is only a cellar hole, an old stone doorstep and a few lilac bushes. Why should one pause here? Because it is the birthplace of the essayist, novelist and poet, J. G. Holland. Not that J. G. ever cared particularly for the spot—in fact, it is said he rather repudiated any claim Belchertown had on him. But Belchertown does not intend to forget or let others forget that "the doctor" was her son. But this is another story, reserved for another day.

Mrs. Trembley of Willimansett has the joke on the deer hunters of the town, and especially on the other members of the party of five occupying the camp near the old Putnam place on Turkey hill. They took the trail yesterday for the popular game, tramping nobody knows how far, while she remained at home—when lo and behold—right into the yard walked a deer which she promptly shot.

Dies in Groton

News was received in town last week Thursday evening of the death of Miss Elsie Shattuck in the Groton hospital at 6 o'clock on the afternoon of that day. Her death followed an operation, or rather one which could not be completed by reason of her condition. Miss Shattuck was 38 years of age, and while she had been in ill health for some time, she was in her school room as usual four weeks ago.

Miss Shattuck's school, the 7th and 8th grades, which she has taught since 1920, was especially dear to her heart, and she sought not only to impart book learning, but to instill into her pupils, by means of definite activities, the idea of being useful in life.

Her own endeavors carried her beyond the confines of her school work. She was instrumental in organizing the Parent-Teacher Association and the W. C. T. U., both of which she served as president, and this fall had organized the Young People's branch and the Loyal Temperance Legion. As our readers well know, she was always promoting in our columns causes that were worth while. She was a member of the Congregational church and helped in varied ways in its work. Whatever her task, she spared not herself.

The funeral was held at her home in Groton, Saturday afternoon at 2, Rev. D. L. Hilliard officiating. The Junior High school and former pupils sent floral tributes, and A. R. Lewis, superintendent of schools, attended the ceremonies.

Celebrates 80th Anniversary

George H. B. Green expected that perhaps a dozen people would call and pay him their respects on his 80th birthday Tuesday, but he was not quite prepared to see over fifty others who had been tipped off on the ceremonies that were to take place in his honor. One by one and two by two and in parties they came to congratulate him and to receive his almost boyish greeting. Playmates of school days, pupils in his charge when he was school master, teachers whom he had hired as a member of the school committee, town officials, neighbors, friends and relatives eagerly grasped his hand.

While he was not prepared himself for such a company, his family were, and ice cream, punch and cake were provided to help make the party merry—and then there was the anniversary cake with its eighty candles. After all but five of them had yielded to the fatal blow of Mr. Green, he was enticed to his chair in the corner, when his lifelong friend and neighbor, D. F. Shumway, "hitched up" and proceeded to give him a "good, sound talking to". Starting with their meeting 69 years ago, he proceeded to unfold the events that time had wrought, enumerating especially the long list of offices to which Mr. Green had been entrusted and which he had acceptably filled. At the conclusion of it all, Mr. Shumway handed the guest of honor an envelope containing $115 which, he said, "came from loving hearts and willing hands."

Surprised, but decidedly at ease, the recipient proceeded to express his appreciation, and to comment himself on what 80 years had brought. He was not unmindful of the length of the span of his life thus far, in fact he stated that it was almost unbelievable that two such spans would more than compass the history of this country since its independence.

Mr. Green testified that while the years had brought him sorrow as well as joy, still he would be glad to live them over again, and gave it as his testimony that magnifying our blessings and "always being cheer-

Gets Deer Near Wendell

So far as known, James Lemon is the only local sportsman to capture a deer last week. He secured his trophy near Wendell. At the regular meeting of the Metacomet Fox, Rod and Gun club held this week, it was anticipated that there would be many a deer story to swap, but the program along this line was very brief. There will be a special meeting of the club next Tuesday evening.

Sunday School Night

The present series of church nights closed last week with a gala affair. About 70 sat down to supper according to Sunday school classes. The ladies' class was easily first as to numbers, requiring two long tables to seat them. The men's class with their chicken pie couldn't be "beat" on the "eats", if you accept their opinion. The Christmas tree on the young ladies' table was perhaps the most outstanding of the decorations, although the color scheme of red on the young men's table with a red geranium for a center piece was very effective. The ladies' class boasted a real cheer, pre-arranged, but extemporaneous cheers and yells from the other classs were quickly forthcoming. Thus the supper hour passed.

Following the study classes, conducted as usual by Rev. Albert Higgins of Chicopee Falls and Rev. W. H. Snape, each class put on a stunt. The young ladies' class went through a feverish pantomime which might have indicated a rummage sale but for the quality of the goods, borrowed from the ladies' cloak room, and which was correctly guessed as a bargain sale.

The senior ladies put on a stunt new to Belchertown. The musical members were grouped in a semi-circle around the organist who skillfully drew from each in turn one note of the piece of music before her. "It sounds like the church organ," came a voice from the audience.

When it came to the men's class, several husky fellows appeared bearing a quiet form which was placed on a long table. Consulting doctors shook their heads anxiously and attendant nurses stood around awaiting orders. It was a tremendously serious case, as anyone could see. Finally the contents of an empty milk bottle, poured into a tin dipper, served to properly etherize the patient and the waiting surgeon began to whet his carving knife. An incision, a probing with a mixing spoon, and the surgeon announced as he displayed his find, "Can, Sir." (cancer). Another probing brought to light "Two more!" (tumor). The sewing up process was speedily accomplished, in spite of a rather too long thread, the patient was hoisted on another's broad back and retired to the kitchen again, along with the procession of doctors and nurses.

The young men put on an abbreviated drama. The different characters, as they came on the stage, introduced themselves by saying, "I B P A," or "I B M A" etc. The ardent lover on bended knee before his lady love plead, "Q T, B M R S!" Everything seemed to end very happily in spite of the abbreviations.

At this point in the program Mr. Snape said that he wished to try a rehearsal of a play they were going to give. He asked members of the audience to help out by acting as different parts of the stage setting, scenery, etc., and assigned the parts of the hero, heroine, the irate father and mother. Just as the curtain was about to rise on the first scene, he remembered that he had neglected to give the title of the play, "The Gathering of the Nuts."

The final surplus of spirits was let off in a community sing, including, of course, "Old MacDonald had a farm." The singing of "Silent Night, Holy Night," and "Home, Sweet Home," was followed by a moment of silent prayer and then Mr. Snape pronounced the benediction.

It may be that you have planned on giving the usual Christmas trinkets this year—gifts that are without constant value. But do not forget that they are set aside or disposed of shortly after Christmas. It is seldom that any of these gifts have real intrinsic value—and it is not often that they are an investment that will give joy and entertainment to all members of the family and all your visitors as well.

Our suggestion to you for a real worth-while Christmas gift is one of our Stewart-Warner Matched Unit Radios. This radio is built by an Institution whose reputation for high quality products is known the world over. There are over 12 million users of Stewart-Warner products today. You, no doubt, are using one or more of these products on your motor car right now.

Every Stewart-Warner Radio is backed by the strongest of guarantees. Think what that means. You are absolutely protected. You take no chance.

Don't delay. Call today, and leave your Christmas order. Prices range from $65.00 to $450.00. Make this Christmas a happy one for your entire family.

Grange Notes

The first and second degrees were conferred on a class of six candidates on Tuesday evening. The first degree work was in charge of the regular officers while the second degree was conferred by the men's degree team. After the degree work, the grangers made merry at a Christmas party, replete with Christmas tree, decorations, and gifts. A guessing contest added to the fun of the evening. Dancing also was enjoyed.

A Tremendous Price Reduction

On January 7th, 1926, Dodge Brothers, Inc., will announce a tremendous reduction in the prices of their complete line of Motor Cars.

These reductions will apply on all cars bought after midnight, December 15th, 1925.

When the new prices are made known on January 7th, the full amount of the reductions will be immediately refunded to all purchasers since December 15th.

These revolutionary reductions are made possible by a recently completed $10,000,000 expansion program--new buildings and equipment that will nearly double the capacity of Dodge Brothers factories in 1926.

There is no change in the policy upon which Dodge Brothers established their leadership eleven years ago ---the policy of consistent improvement without yearly models.

ful" were the secrets of a long and happy life. He also said that he had always been surrounded by friends, even among strangers, and few will forget his simple words on the kindness of common humanity.

As a further testimony of thoughtfulness, Mrs. Henry Witt read a poem and Mrs. H. F. Putnam a historical sketch replete with many an interesting anecdote.

In fact many a memory came to the surface during the evening. Mr. Green stated that he had been moderator of exactly fifty town meetings. And the end of his career is not yet. Although, in his own words, his "legs got discouraged after seventy-five years of service" and he has only one eye by reason of an accident, still he performs his duties as town clerk, and, as Mrs. Putnam intimated in her sketch, more than one person in a dilemma about "affairs" has gone away from his office with a light heart and a "you are entirely welcome."

Although Mr. Green shrank from being "spoiled" if not "ruined" by the evening's bouquets, a review of his career makes one wish for more of the spoilage.

Born in Southampton, George Henry Bartlett was doubly orphaned when a child. He was brought up in the home of his uncle, Reuben Green of this town, whose name, Green, was legally added to his own. Largely through self study he obtained a good education and for 40 winter terms taught school, farming the other winter months. For 34 years he was a member of the School Board. He also served the town as assessor for eight years. In 1892 he was elected Representative and in 1893-94 was State Senator.

For 25 years he was bookkeeper for the Belchertown Co-operative Creamery Association, and was secretary of the Farmers' and Mechanisc' club for a like period.

As a farmer Mr. Green had faith in the apple industry and built strong along those lines, achieving a success that amply justified the venture. Fifteen years ago he moved to the center leaving "Fruitlands" to be carried on by his son, C. R. Green. There are also living two other of eight children born from his union with the late Nancy Sanford in 1868, Mrs. Iva Peeso of this town and G. H. B. Green, Jr., a lawyer of Boston. In 1913 he married his present wife, Emma Palmer.

During his residence in the center Mr. Green was treasurer of the Methodist church for five years. He also served the Federated church in a similar capacity. Mr. Green is a member of Union Grange.

Such are the outstanding events in a period of 80 years, which friends who greeted Mr. Green Tuesday night, and others who sent cards and letters, trusted would be extended past many another birthday.

B. H. S. Christmas Festivities

Seats were at a premium in the gallery of Memorial hall, Monday evening at the Christmas exercises of B. H. S. Even the delay caused by the Greenwich and Bondsville busses being late did not thin the audience. They stayed and were amply repaid for so doing, as the following program would indicate:

Chorus A Merry Life Denza
Chorus Cradle Song Schubert
A Queer Stocking Irene Sullivan
Trio Stilly Night Gruber
Misses Snow and King, James Clain
Chorus O Little Town of Bethlehem Redner
Play Isadore (from the French)
Senior Class
Violin Solo Souvenir Drdla
Miss Helen Shea
Chorus Cantique De Noel Adams
Soprano Solo, Miss Estella Snow
Play Van Dorn's Christmas
Junior Class
Chorus Adeste Fideles Reading

The musical numbers were by the Glee club and were directed by Francis Gorman, music teacher, with Miss Hagstrom as accompanist. Miss Shea's violin solo was encored, but there was too much on the schedule of festivities to repeat the process to any great extent. The plays, gotten up on short notice, were rendered with spirit and took immensely with the audience. The first was especially "nutty", while the latter combined fun and a feasible Christmas lesson.

Following the program, the Seniors made havoc with the big Christmas tree burdened with presents from top to bottom.

The floor was then cleared for the dance, music for which was furnished by Gould's 6-piece orchestra. Refreshments were sandwiches, and candy made in the domestic science department of the school. Home, Sweet Home sounded at midnight, which came all too soon, but Prin. Thos. Allen, who was master of the evening's festivities, kindly announced that school would not begin till 9.30 the next morning.

The Test

One day centuries ago a little baby boy was carried by his parents into the temple at Jerusalem to do for him after the custom of the law of their religion. A venerable priest of the temple received them and his heart was filled with joy as he took the little one into his arms, and reverently he thanked God that he had lived to see the babe. He gave the three his blessing and spoke words about the child at which his parents marvelled. "This child," he said, "is set for the fall and rising again of many in Israel." Strange words! What did they mean? That little one was he who gives the Christmas season its significance, and the meaning of the priest's words has been interpreted more and more clearly by the passing centuries. The character and conduct of that child, Jesus, has become the standard, the test of human conduct and character, and men and nations are today falling or rising as they are able or unable to meet the test of comparison with him.

O Lord and Master of us all,
Whate'er our name or sign,
We own thy sway, we hear thy call,
We test our lives by thine.

Masonic Installation

Vernon Lodge, F. and A. M., held its annual installation in Masonic hall Friday evening, December 18. Grand Lecturer Edwin L. Davis of Chicopee Falls was the installing officer, and was assisted by Worshipful Roy Perry Miles as marshal, and Worshipful Frank P. Beardsell as chaplain, both of Chicopee Falls. A large number of Eastern Star members and Masons were present, including several from neighboring towns.

The following officers were installed for the year 1926: Worshipful master, Belding F. Jackson; senior warden, Winfred F. Forward; junior warden, William E. Bridgman; treasurer, William E. Shaw; secretary, Harry A. Hopkins; chaplain, Thomas Allen; marshal, Dr. James L. Collard; senior deacon, Everett A. Geer; junior deacon, Edward Snyder; senior steward, Roy G. Clocks for the Schools

The school board have received this week eighteen Seth Thomas octagon clocks which they plan to install in the schools of the town, one in each of the rooms in the center and one in each district schoolroom. The new term of school will likely see these useful articles in position.

When the Memorial building was erected, the idea of having a master clock with several others connected therewith was considered but the expense was found to be prohibitive and the arrangement not altogether satisfactory. Thus the present more economical purchase.

Pageant at M. E. Church

A brief but impressive pageant, "The Nativity," was rendered at the M. E. church Sunday evening by the young people of the church. With candles at the windows and an organ prelude of single verses from the immortal Christmas hymns, one truly breathed the air of Christmas.

Rev. W. H. Snape and Newell Booth were the narrators. They occupied positions at either end of the stage, in front of curtains arranged especially for the occasion. They appeared in oriental costume, as did the other participants and read scriptural passages preceding the three scenes enacted, viz: "The Three Wise Men," "The Angels and the Shepherds," "The Nativity."

The star of Bethlehem, mechanically arranged on the east side of the church, added impressiveness to the scenes. Singing by the actors, and members of the choir at the piano on the opposite side of the room, were features of the presentation. The audince was quietly dismissed with a brief prayer by the pastor. There was a good attendance at the service.

Chicken Supper and Entertainment

While there was not a record attendance at the chicken supper and entertainment given by the members of St. Francis church at the Park View hotel last week Thursday evening, still there was a sizable company and everyone had a good time. The supper was in charge of Thos. Ferriter, proprietor of the hotel, and Michael McKillop.

At the entertainment in charge of E. F. Flaherty, Dr. O'Reilly of Hol-

Rev. W. H. Snape and Newell Booth were the narrators. They occupied positions at either end of the stage, in front of curtains arranged especially for the occasion. They appeared in oriental costume, as did the other participants and read scriptural passages preceding the three scenes enacted, viz: "The Three Wise Men," "The Angels and the Shepherds," "The Nativity."

The star of Bethlehem, mechanically arranged on the east side of the church, added impressiveness to the scenes. Singing by the actors, and members of the choir at the piano on the opposite side of the room, were features of the presentation. The audince was quietly dismissed with a brief prayer by the pastor. There was a good attendance at the service.

Chicken Supper and Entertainment

While there was not a record attendance at the chicken supper and entertainment given by the members of St. Francis church at the Park View hotel last week Thursday evening, still there was a sizable company and everyone had a good time. The supper was in charge of Thos. Ferriter, proprietor of the hotel, and Michael McKillop.

yoke, a great story teling favorite with the audience with witty sayings and funny stories. John Gorman of So. Hadley Falls sang two selections, and Henry and James Sullivan of Thorndike contributed solos and duets. Mrs. J. C. Bothwell served as accompanist for the evening.

Stunts were on the program, and blankets and other articles were sold.

Those aiding Fr. Dunphy, pastor of the church, in the form of a general committee for the occasion were John Garvey, chairman; J. C. Bothwell, publicity agent; Messrs. Flaherty, M. McKillop and Ferriter.

The following served as a hospitality committee: Mrs. Henry McKillop, Mrs. E. F. Flaherty, Mrs. Thos. Hanifin, Miss Helen McGee, Miss Corinne Giguere and Miss Gertrude Riley.

Cong'l Sunday School Parties

The chapel was a merry spot last Saturday afternoon and evening. Children of the primary department frolicked from 2 to 4, and the older ones made good use of the hours from 7 to 9. Mrs. Hilliard and the primary teachers had charge of the children's program, which consisted of exercises, games, story telling, and of course—a Christmas tree, boxes of candy and refreshments, with liberal dishes of ice cream.

Stories of Christmas in other lands made the program not only interesting but instructive. 33 of the young folks, 6 of the parents and some others constituted the party.

In the evening the tree was again laden with gifts. Before their distribution, however, the following program in charge of Miss Irene M. Jackson, was rendered:

Christmas Carols
Reading Jane Shumway
Exercise 4 girls, Miss Howard's class
Christmas Letters Harold Cook
Cello solo Miss Ross, Miss Hagstrom accompanist
Recitation Emily Kaleta
Duet, The Christmas Tree
Geo. McPherson and Louis Fuller
Another Christmas Wish
Priscilla Rowland
Recitation, The Christmas Rule
Harry Sanford
Duet, O Little Town of Bethlehem
Maxine and Louis Fuller
Cello solo Miss Ross, Miss Hagstrom accompanist
Exercise, Edith Atwood and Barbara Rowland
Recitation, Do Your Best
Evelyn Sessions

The Christmas tree came next, followed by games in charge of Belding Jackson, assisted by Francis Allen and Edward Shuttleworth.

The hour was nearing 9, but as no one had to go home, the time was extended a bit. Refreshments of ice cream and cookies, of which Mrs. Thomas Allen and Mrs. Louise Sherman had charge, were served the children, which comprised a large proportion of the approximately 75 present.

M. E. Sunday School Entertainment

A pleasing entertainment was given by the Primary department of the Methodist Sunday school in the vestry Wednesday evening in a program of songs, recitations and short plays. The little folks appeared in several numbers grouped on the platform, either around the story teller, or for some song as at the close when after singing to the dolly which each small girl rocked in her arms, the tired heads drooped down and the song about not finding Santa died away in drowsiness, and then suddenly the outside door opened and with a "Ha, ha, ha!" Santa himself appeared with his pack and gave presents and boxes of candy to all.

Following is the program of the evening arranged by Mrs. B. E. Shaw, assisted by Mrs. William E. Shaw.

It Came Upon the Midnight Clear

Report Allowed

Concurrent with the appointment of Mrs. Mary E. Spencer as trustee of the Harriet Dwight Longley estate on the 8th, noted last week, the report of the auditor, Walter L. Stevens, was allowed. The audit was authorized by the judge of probate on the resignation of the previous trustees, D. D. Hazen and Miss Lucy D. Thomson. Mrs. Spencer will act in the capacity of trustee until such time as the property may be turned over to the association, which will undoubtedly be petitioned in the not distant future.

As the trusteeship has involved not only the purchase and remodelling of the Stone House, but the care of other property, principally the Hazen block on Main street, and the tenement on Maple street, besides extensive alterations on the former according to special agreements, the accounts became complicated and considerable unravelling had to be done.

Nothing is to be gained by entering into the controversial factors in the situation. The only danger is that, as in the case of the water works, the principal cause for gratification may be lost sight of.

The people need to be reminded that Mrs. Longley's executors turned over to the trustees personal property and real estate valued at $20,296.21, (out of this the Stone House was purchased for $2750 and remodelled at a cost of $10,314.16) and that while the real estate has been raised in value it has been offset by the depreciation of railroad securities that have had hard sledding, which formed about half of the bequest, the amount increased to $28,193.00 over a period of about 15 years, besides providing for one of the beneficiaries till her death in 1911.

These are the vital figures in the report allowed and show the present proportions of this bequest which has made possible the display and perpetuity of a noteworthy collection which is becoming more widely known with each passing year.

Christmas at the Grade Schools

An interesting Christmas program by the center grade schools was enjoyed by an audience of mothers and friends Wednesday afternoon. Santa Claus appeared in several plays and playlets, one being well presented by two children in the 1st grade. A nearly two hour program from the combined schools told the Christmas story in song, recitations and plays, concluding with an operetta, "Christmastide," by pupils of Miss Orlando's and Miss Stadler's rooms.

The new curtain was used for the first time and aided greatly in making the changes in the different settings. Costumes for fairies, Jack Frost and a Brownie, besides a number of costumes for old St. Nicholas added reality to the scenes and were further evidence of the painstaking care with which the program had been prepared.

J. G. Holland Memorials

Contributed to the Neighborhood page of The Springfield Republican of December 6 by the local correspondent.

The tourist on the new Amherst-Belchertown state road, who has noted the little village of Dwight about half-way between Amherst and Belchertown, may be aware that he passes not far from the birthplace of the essayist, novelist and poet, J. G. Holland. But he may not be aware that somewhat back from the road is a picturesque spot which bears the name of this man, perhaps the most widely known of Belchertown's sons, a spot preserved to posterity by the Belchertown Historical association, called Holland Glen. Josiah Gilbert Holland may have resented the fate which links his name irrevocably with that of Belchertown, but no one could object to his name being attached to a bit of Eden like this.

Holland Glen lies easterly from Dwight but it is not found at once Nature cherishes her treasure within high walls. It is really a cleft in the earth, from the edge of which one looks into the tops of tall trees growing below. Perhaps the easiest direction to use in finding the glen is, "Follow the brook." This little stream meanders through the meadows below and by following it up stream, you inevitably come to the glen, and unexpectedly. The walls rise abruptly. At once you are among "the murmuring pines and the hemlocks." The sunlight is left behind in the meadows. Sounds, too, have faded away, except the song of the brook. Listen as it tells of its patient carving out and widening of this crack in the old earth's crust, of its slow deepening of it even today, of its ceasless wearing of the rocks in its path, a patient, tireless force. Listen as the trees take up the story and tell of their part in the making of this temple of God. Come farther along, around this curve, and there in the chancel is the altar and the choir invisible. The little brook as it enters the glen over a rocky embankment, drops sheer to a gravelly pool below, but it is really the trailing robe of an angel chanting a hymn of praise. Step softly; this is not of mortals.

Out into the sunshine again. It seems too glaring, too barbaric, at first, but normalcy comes with the vigorous climb up around the head of Holland Glen and up the hill. It is a stiff climb for a few minutes. But don't look back; eyes straight ahead. Now in this opening, stop and look around. What a sweep of countryside! Hills beyond hills, a lake nestling at our feet, yes, and another one farther to the left. And the warm, golden sunshine over all.

Not far to the north from here is a highway leading from the state road up over the hills and known as the "Gulf road." Was its name originally connected with the glen, you wonder? In the days of leisurely travel with Dixie or Dobbin, this road was one of the excursion trips for summer guests. Forty years ago the road was banked on either side with mountain laurel. In the latter part of June its lovely pink and white bloom sloped upward almost from the very ruts of the narrow mountain road. Commencement exercises always demanded a bank of laurel along the platform, June brides used unlimited quantities, for the ceremony had to be performed beneath an arch of laurel, Christmas festivities pruned the bushes of their glossy leaves and later, owners of Lizzies and Henrys made ruthless demands upon this mountain beauty until today it must be searched for in the deeper woods.

As the road tops the hill and prepares to descend on the other side, there is, almost unnoticed, another road turning sharply to the right and climbing still higher up. Go slowly here and keep watch through the screen of trees at your right. There, right here is the view. Do you see that wide sweep of meadows with the Holyoke range at its farther rim? Look closely. Can you see a silver ribbon at the foot of the range? Yes, that is the Connecticut river. From this point it appears to be set up above the meadow lands, as if the waters were held in by dikes. It would seem an easy matter for a giant to poke a finger in the river's side and change its course completely. Perhaps you have felt the giant stirring in his bed lately and may it not be possible that some day he will turn over and perhaps break that silver thread?

We are some distance from Holland Glen and the birthplace of J. G. Holland. Along the state road again, we glimpse a small sheet of water, the same one seen from the hill above Holland Glen. This is one of three interesting bodies of water not far apart and once conveniently known as middle, upper and lower ponds. Perhaps there is nothing in a name, but there came a time when the attractiveness of these sheets of water was recognized by the inhabitants and one of them, now the president of the Historical association, suggested that more appropriate names might be Lake Metacomet, Lake Arcadia and Holland Lake. Thus again the name of J. G. Holland was permanently linked with that of Belchertown with no regard for the feelings of the man himself. But possibly he would forgive his native town its insistence on this point, realizing that no more beautiful spots could be found in the township than Holland Glen and Holland Lake.

Rideout-Booth Wedding

TURKEY HILL NEWS

In an informal beautiful wedding service, Esma Myrtle Rideout and Newell Snow Booth were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, 29 South Street, Raynham, Mass., at 2 o'clock, Monday, December 28, 1925. Miss Flora Rideout, a sister of the bride, was the maid of honor; George Booth, a brother of the groom, was best man. The ceremony was conducted by the Reverend Kermer, pastor of the Methodist church at Raynham. "Oh Promise Me" was sung by Rev. Rae Keemer, a classmate of the groom.

The bride wore a gown of white satin crepe, a bridal veil, and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lillies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a gown of orchid crepe, and carried a bouquet of roses and orchid sweet peas.

Mrs. Booth is a graduate of the College of Liberal Arts of the Boston University, and is a teacher in the High school in Providence. Mr. Booth is a graduate of the same college and is a student at the School of Theology where he is assistant to Prof. Brightman of the Chair of Philosophy.

Guests were present from Raynham, Taunton, Boston, Stafford Springs, Ct., Newton, Dorchester, Brockton, Belchertown and Bellaire, Ohio.

After a brief wedding trip, the young couple will make their home in Providence, R. I.

Grange Notes

The 1926 officers will be installed at the regular Grange meeting next Tuesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Forward of Granby will be the installing officers.

The Story of 1925

One of our citizens was recounting the other day the changes that had taken place on her street during the last few years and the result was surprising. Perusing Belchertown's history for the past twelve months also brings to light quite a long list of interesting facts. Perhaps the mention of some may be worth while.

TOWN AFFAIRS

Early in January the valuation and taxes were printed in book form. The list had not been printed since 1909. On Jan. 16, at a special meeting, it was voted to elect town officers as well as state officers at the newly established precinct at South Belchertown, thereby making necessary two days for the annual town meeting, one day for the election of officers and another to consider appropriations.

At the annual town meeting last year the new town by-laws were adopted and later were approved by the attorney general of the state. $2,000 was voted for fire equipment at this meeting and money for hydrant service was voted for the first time.

One of the biggest enterprises in which the town was interested was the new Amherst-Belchertown road. This was completed last year and is a fine piece of work.

WATER WORKS

1925 saw the erection of a 100,000 gallon standpipe in the rear of the town hall and the building of a pump house, installation of pumps and connections made with the Davis wells purchased by the district.

THE CHURCHES

The year has been an active one in the churches. The Catholics brought to completion in 1925 their new parish house erected just south of their church. This is modern in construction and a valuable asset to the con-

The Skating Rink

The skating rink on the King lot is in excellent condition this season. The boys themselves have seen to it that the weeds and grass were burned off before flooding and the embankment put in good condition to retain the water. One regrettable feature, however, that has come to our attention is that the boys are not careful as to where they get their firewood, taking some material that is valuable. J. W. Jackson had his grape arbor taken down for him and the vine damaged in addition. The young folks are getting a lot of privileges these days. No one begrudges them these providing the rights of others are respected.

MacNeill-Spencer Wedding

The following account of the MacNeill-Spencer wedding, noted last week, was taken from the New York Herald Tribune.

News of the marriage yesterday of Mrs. Charles Mather MacNeill, of 300 Park Avenue, to Mr. Willing Spencer, of Philadelphia and Newport, and for many years in the United States diplomatic service, will come as a great surprise to society. No announcement of the engagement had been made and few outside of the families knew that the former Miss Marion Parsons, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence S. Parsons, of 1060 Park Avenue, was to be married again.

The ceremony was performed in the Chapel of the Intercession by the Rev. Milo Gates, the rector, assisted by the Rev. Stanley C. Hughes, rector of Trinity Church, Newport, where Mr. Spencer has a summer home.

On account of mourning only members of the immediate families and a few intimate friends attended. The bride was given in marriage by her father. The bridegroom was attended by his brother, Mr. Arthur Spencer, of Philadelphia. A wedding breakfast was served at Sherry's.

The bride is the widow of Charles Mather MacNeill, of 19 East Ninety-first Street, and has a summer home near Amherst, Mass. Since the death of her husband she has travelled extensively in Europe.

Mr. Spencer is a graduate of Harvard and the University of Pennsylvania Law School and served for fifteen years in the diplomatic service until he resigned last year upon the death of his father, John Thompson Spencer, in Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Spencer will sail soon for a trip to Egypt.

Old-fashioned and modern costumes were in evidence and were tastefully carried out. Souvenirs from a Christmas tree with original verses by the troop leaders were a jolly part of the program. There were also games, dancing and refreshments. The Scouts of Troop 1 distributed about ten Christmas boxes to the sick and shut-ins.

Emory Munsell returned to Feeding Hills Monday atfer a ten days' visit in town.

Miss Isabel Bardwell is in town for a part of her vacation.

William Chamberlain, who was at home for Christmas, is substituting in the schools of Hinsdale.

Mrs. F. L. Gold has returned from New York where she spent the holidays.

W. F. Nichols went to the Springfield hospital Wednesday. The preliminary operation yesterday was successful.

Get Into Print

The current issue of the Farmers' Monthly has several allusions to Belchertown people. Under the caption, "Who's Who in Poultry," appears the name of H. C. Booth, one of 12 in the county to report an egg production of over 160 eggs for the year ending Oct. 31, 1925. His average was 166.

The name of D. C. Randall is shown in the list of Cow Testing Association members having cows making over 45 lbs. of butter fat during November. His name is 12th in the list with a score of 53.

In the list of 4H Club leaders for 1926 appear the names of Mrs. E. F. Shumway, Miss Nellie Shea, Miss Helen Keyes, Miss Gertrude Makepeace, Miss Mabel Randolph, Miss Martha Conklin, Miss Bridget Fitzgerald.

Allusion is also made to the children's clothes project undertaken by the ladies of this community.

25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Burt Hurlburt of Ludlow, formerly of this town, celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage Saturday evening at the Gate House, Ludlow, keeping open house to their many friends. They were married by Rev. J. B. Adkins of this town Dec. 25, 1900.

Mr. Hurlburt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. P. B. Hurlburt and was born in Belchertown in 1874. Mr. Hurlburt has been employed by the Springfield Water Dept. 23 years as gate keeper, succeeding the late Francis Blackmer of this town. Mr. and Mrs. Hurlburt moved to Ludlow 16 years ago.

Mrs. Hurlburt is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rufus Capen and was born in Amherst May 22, 1884. She was a member of the Baptist church of this town. Mr. and Mrs. Hurlburt have one son, Prosper Edward.

An oyster dinner was served to about 50 guests Saturday night. Fleury's orchestra of Three Rivers furnished music for the dancing, Robert Munsing prompting.

The house was decorated with red and green, with the exception of the dining room, which was silver and white. Two large wedding cakes graced the dining table, one weighing 35 lbs. and the other 20 lbs.

The esteem in which Mr. and Mrs. Hurlburt are held was manifested by the beautiful silver pieces presented them.

Guests were present from Bridgport, Ct., Waterbury, Ct., Gardner, Springfield, Spencer, Ludlow and this town. Congratulations were received from Providence, R. I., Philadelphia, Pa., Atlantic City and Vermont.

The friends of Mr. and Mrs. Hurlburt departed at 2 a. m., wishing them many more pleasant and successful years to their golden wedding.

The Methodists ran a series of training nights in the spring and have just completed another series of church nights. These have combined religious teaching and sociability. This church observed Old Home Sunday September 20, which was a noteworthy occasion. At present the Methodists are conducting a Lyceum course.

All the churches have held suppers and social occasions galore. St. Francis church held a two days' carnival and lawn party in August, and the Congregationalists conducted a community lawn party the same month. The Methodists sponsored a community picnic.

THE SCHOOLS

As churches are for preaching, so schools are for teaching. The courses have been taught as heretofore with the addition of a domestic science course at B. H. S., inaugurated last March.

The town voted money for seats at the center grade school building. These have been received and are in use. Through the efforts of the teachers a curtain has been procured for the stage in the auditorium. Eighteen new clocks have also been received for installation in the school rooms.

B. H. S. has held numerous class parties and observed its annual Field day October 2. Twenty-one graduated at the Commencement exercises in June.

OTHER ORGANIZATIONS

One noteworthy organization came to its demise last year—the Belchertown Community League, Inc. This was the organization that bought the Baptist church and made it over into Community hall. With the erection of Lawrence Memorial hall this building was uncalled for and was therefore sold.

The Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts have been active in 1925. The boys came out in their new uniforms during the year and held a rally and dance May 22.

The Girl Scouts conducted a rummage sale in May, gave a play June 5, also held a rally, have made and dressed dolls to give away at Christmas and remembered sick and shut-ins. They also saw to the planting of trees at the entrance of Mt. Hope cemetery.

The Grange has kept itself before the community during 1925. It held a rally night March 3, took prizes for exhibits and floats on fair day and captured worthwhile prizes at a recent Pomona grange meeting.

The Metacomet Fox, Rod and Gun club has been in the limelight of late, holding a fox hunt and two munity. Fr. Dunphy assumed his duties as pastor of the parish in January, succeeding Fr. McGrath of Bondsville who preached his farewell January 18.

The Congregationalists completed the installation of the heating plant last year and have finished payment on the same.

Aside from the preached word, which undoubtedly is the backbone of a church's usefulness in the community, the most outstanding of worthwhile enterprises this year was the three weeks' daily vacation Bible school conducted jointly by the Methodists and Congregationalists.

game and vermin contests. The Pautaupaug club, so called, have held a number of coon suppers.

EXTENSION WORK

Belchertown profited by the Extension service in 1925. The poultry school February 24 was a banner school. Club Agent Whippen conducted a field day for the grade school children May 8, and Miss Boice is now conducting a class in sewing.

SOCIAL LIFE

Outstanding among social events provided by the various organizations are the concert of the M. A. C. glee club on Jan. 23, the entertainment of the Roister-Doisters on Apr. 22, the Vernon Lodge concert and ball February 23, and the Easter Monday ball conducted by the O. E. S.

COMMUNITY ENTERPRISES

The removal of the horse sheds by the Congregationalists was a community enterprise and was furthered by the town which erected a wire fence continuing the present wall.

As far as gatherings are concerned, the Union Memorial service Sunday evening, May 24, was the largest service in which all denominations cooperated last year.

During the year $400 was given the library by Sarah Loraine Graves of New York. A large curtain was hung so as to separate the reading room from the wing containing the books, thus conserving fuel during the winter.

A chest clinic was held in the schools in May and Dr. Wilder has recently concluded a dental clinic in the schools.

As far as philanthrophy is concerned, the churches have taken the lead, contributing money to a variety of causes. Money has been subscribed by the townspeople to the Red Cross and Christmas seals have been on sale.

FIRES

There have been several fires in town, most of them happily not resulting seriously. The fire at the old Sabin house removed an old land mark in April. Our people were also interested in the destruction of the West Ware chapel in August.

BUSINESS CHANGES

The past year brought a number of business changes. Wm. Squires purchased of B. E. Shaw his blacksmith shop opposite the old creamery site and is using the same as a garage. Owen Durant fitted out garage quarters at H. F. Curtis's shop, but has since left town. It is still maintained as a gas station, however.

On May 1, H. B. Ketchen started the operation of the Springfield bus line which has since maintained regular service. A two-car gasoline-electric train has been put on by the B. & M. and running water and toilets installed at the station. Caswell and Wilder opened a Beauty shop on North Main street and have lately moved to the building east of the hotel.

Dr. F. C. Wilder opened dental parlors in the old Bank building, taking up the practise of Dr. A. E. Westwell. He has just moved to quarters over the Belchertown Motor Sales, Inc. George F. Bell has also moved his insurance office to the same building, occupying the room formerly used by the Telephone company which has taken new quarters at the Kendall house on South Main street, purchased by M. C. Baggs. Mrs. Mae Quinn of Ware purchased of Mr. Hornsby the grocery store in the building formerly occupied by the late F. W. Fellows. F. O. Michel gave up his taxi business and moved to Springfield. As with most towns numerous Belchertown people have engaged in the wayside stand business, several such having been opened on the Holyoke road last season.

STATE SCHOOL

While there have been no building operations at the State school in 1925, the social life has been such that it is worth mentioning. A big Fourth of July celebration was the biggest affair of its kind given yet, and plays, out door frolics, and inside entertainments have been furnished all through the year.

IN CONCLUSION

As stated at the beginning, this list of events is not complete but it does show that Belchertown is not static.

Grange Notes

Members of Union grange are trusting that a good beginning will not make a bad ending in their year's activities, as the year started off auspiciously Tuesday evening with the installation of officers by Winfred F. Forward of Granby, one of the state deputies, assisted by Mrs. Forward and Mrs. Leon Williams. There were fully fifty present.

The officers installed were: Worthy master, Charles H. Sanford; overseer, Wilfrid Noel; lecturer, Mrs. Edwin F. Shumway; steward, Charles Trainor; assistant steward, Charles Austin; chaplain, Miss Ruby Knight; treasurer, Mrs. Dora Wesley; secretary, Mrs. E. G. Rowland; gate keeper, George R. Davis; Ceres, Mrs. Wilfrid Noel; Pomona, Mrs. Jennie Chamberlain; Flora, Mrs. Bertha Conkey; lady assistant steward, Miss Dorothy Peeso; pianist, Mrs. C. H. Sanford; member of the executive committee for three years, Dr. E. G. Rowland.

Miss Dorothy Peeso was elected lady assistant steward in place of Miss Darsa Dodge, resigned. Refreshments were served and dancing followed.

Watch Night Service

There was a good attendance at the Watch Night service at the M. E. vestry last Thursday evening. Like its immediate predecessors, the program was a varied one and quite unlike those of the olden days when people took their religion undiluted, and made it one continuous devotional service without relaxation, even though the hours dragged.

Miss Alice Booth of Bellaire, O., spoke at the first service of the evening. Her talk was in the nature of a challenge to the church people to treat immigrants in a friendly manner and thus win them to better citizenship. She spoke of visiting Ellis Island and contrasted the treatment immigrants receive there as a matter of duty, with the more intimate contacts which enterprises in which she is engaged, are making possible. When each party comes to know the other, there is a basis for understanding and helpfulness. Misunderstanding breeds suspicion.

Miss Booth teaches 21 classes a week in Bellaire, O., her work being mostly among the Italians. She teaches the English language to women who gather in groups on afternoons in homes in various sections of the city and at night has regular classes in the church parlors for people of all ages. She has been instrumental in starting sewing classes and has also been the means of establishing an orchestra to assist in the church services.

The second period of the Watch Night service was given over to games. These were in charge of the pastor, Rev. W. H. Snape, who always has some new ones in store. Refreshments consisted of cake and cocoa.

The New Year was welcomed in with a candle light service in charge of the pastor and was devotional in nature.

Supper and Entertainment

The tables at the chapel were well filled Wednesday evening for the Social Guild supper, about ninety enjoying the usual bounteous repast. Almost everyone remained for the entertainment. The program was somewhat abbreviated by reason of sickness and otherwise.

The following numbers were given in the order named:

Reading	Miss Irene M. Jackson
Play "Getting into Society"	8 girls
Selection	Male Quartet
Song	Louis Fuller, Emily Kaleta
Piano solos	Mrs. Wilder
Reading	Miss Jackson
Selection	Male Quartet

The quartet consisted of Messrs. McPherson, Allen, Shaw and Aspengren. Mrs. Aspengren was accompanist.

The young ladies in the play were the Misses Esther Squires, Jane Shumway, Ola Campbell, Joan Rowland, Barbara Rowland, Alice Hussey, Evelyn Sessions, Emily Kaleta. The first two girls were a bit suspicious of the rest, members of the F. B. C., thinking the letters designated the exclusive Fontaine Banquet Club, but were agreeably surprised when they found it to be the Friendly Bible Class.

The supper committee was Mrs. F. E. Austin, Mrs. E. A. Randall, Mrs. Louise Sherman, Mrs. Winslow Piper, Mrs. Frank Morris, Mrs. Henry Gould.

Vaudeville at State School

Pupils at the State school enjoyed a novel New Year's entertainment this year in the form of a professional vaudeville show secured through the generosity of the employees under the leadership of Mr. Cronin, who took this method of pooling their Christmas gift to the school for the enjoyment of all. There were 24 in the troupe secured through an arrangement with the Victory theatre of Holyoke. Two 2-hour performances were given, one in the afternoon for the small children and one

Hopeful Peace Signs

1925 has given much encouragement to friends of peace. Two great conferences were held in Stockholm in August. The first was that of the International Committee of the World Alliance at which were present about two hundred, coming from all parts of the world. Two questions were before this body, the rights of religious minorities and the part the church should play in rebuilding the new world order. If not as much was accomplished as some friends of peace expected, yet there was great profit in listening to the attitude of the different groups, and all went away in a good spirit and with better understanding.

The second great conference was that of the Universal Christian conference on Life and Work which brought together more than five hundred delegates, coming from thirty-seven different nations and representing practically every communion but one. It should be borne in mind that these delegates came as official representatives of their communions. It was the first time in twelve centuries that the Eastern and Western churches met together for conference. It was an impressive moment on the opening day when the king of Sweden declared that mutual trust must precede laws and treaties, and that the conference was met to lay the foundation for this trust. The chief topic of the conference was the attitude the church should take toward war; and the applause was the loudest whenever anyone declared it was the church's business "to shake off her fear and timidity and have done with this unholy war business forever."

There is cause for rejoicing in that the League of Nations was able to stop the hostilities between Greece and Bulgaria and it will be still more significant if Greece pays the award,—as it seems now that she will—of a quarter of a million dollars as a fine for her misconduct. This will be a step not taken before in history.

But the cause for greatest rejoicing is in the Locarno treaties by which France and Germany agree to arbitrate all their differences. 1925 has seen much progress toward peace.

Gas Electric Train

The following is taken from an account in the Boston Globe (reprinted in the Ware River News) of the new gas electric train which runs through town.

The Boston and Maine Railroad has a unique, special train de luxe, which has been in operation now for ten days or more, the Joyriding Jigger. It runs over the old Central Massachusetts division between Boston and Northampton, it travels a whole mile and a half on a gallon of gasolene and runs by electricity; it hits 50 miles an hour down hill, and the Central Massachusetts division is mostly down hill and up the other side. The train has electric lights, is smokeless and cinderless and jerkless; it solves the problem of the non-paying railroad track, and it indicates a way by which electrification may come without heavy initial expenditure.

The route over which it travels is an old one, crossing the state and twisting back and forth from one country town to another on its way, climbing up 660 feet over the highest point in Massachusetts, at Rutland, and connecting with lines for Worcester and for Nashua, half way at Oakdale. It is a line which has never paid dividends, because of a length of track and a maintenance cost all out of proportion to the traffic. Yet it is too important a line to be dropped. This roaring gasolene car is believed to be the solution of the problem.

A trip on this electromotive train has many novelties, and a 214-mile jaunt to Northampton and back to Boston has thrills in the bargain, such as a 15-mile coast at 50 miles an hour through the darkness of the night, swinging around perpetual curves, clanging over grade crossings, slowing down under the grind of the brakes at Jefferson, and then coasting through the night again, from West Rutland to Oakdale.

As you approach the train in the North Station, it seems to be two coaches waiting for the locomotive, the forward car smaller than the second and peculiar in shape. It is only when you walk around it that you discover that its front face consists entirely of a huge radiator, like that of an automobile, while a baby cowcatcher, below it, acquaints you with the fact that this is all the locomotive you are going to get.

When the train starts again, you realize the difference. Instead of the jerk, slide, jerk of the steam locomotive, with preliminary fuss before you are under way, this train merely starts. With a clang of the bell, you begin to move, and smoothly and slowly pick up speed. There is the same difference when you stop, but one of the greatest advantages, which has already made the train popular with its passengers, is its cleanliness. Literally, there is no soot and no smoke. Your window sill does not get gritty, your nose does not get a smooch on it, and your face is still clean when you get to your destination. In summer time you can leave the windows wide open without fear. This alone makes it a de luxe outfit.

In a way, this train is a throwback to early transportation conditions, modernized. It runs through the country for most of its mileage, leaves empty milk cans and picks up full ones, carries two prize pigs to a Polish farmer in Hatfield and a puppy to its new master in Amherst. It even drops children at way stations; on the reporter's trip a pleasant faced woman hurried two children out of the car to the station platform where they were welcomed by another motherly woman, who is to care for them for the state. The first then returned to guard two more children, bound for another home farther on.

The train, moreover, is an all-sufficient unit, meeting all the transportation needs along the line. Of the two cars, one is a regular coach such as is used with steam locomotives, but divided into three sections, principally a passenger section accommodating 42 persons, with comfortable leather seats arranged peculiarly; those on one side of the aisle seating three persons each and those on the other side two. Ahead of this is a baggage section, and at the head of the car, the cab, in which are the gasolene engine, the electric generator, and the motor which actually drives the train.

The engine is of 175 horse power with 6 cylinders, perfected in many ways for the special service for which it was built. It has two magnetos and two driving motors, one for use in case the other fails. It has a set spark and a governor limiting the speed to 1,000 revolutions per minute. There is a carburetor a foot high, and exhaust manifolds, which, when the engine is running at full speed, become red hot from the gasses passing through them and up the chimney. There is a three speed fan, with its separate motor, which cools the water passing through the engine, and keeps it operating at a heat of between 160 and 180 degrees.

Seventy-five gallons of gasolene are used up on the round trip between Boston and Northampton and return, the engine varying from one mile to a gallon to 1.6 gallons, depending on whether it is climbing up to Rutland or coasting down the other side. The engine also carries 20 gallons of oil, and uses up three pints of it on every round trip. In the water system there are 65 gallons, three of which have to be replaced every trip.

The water heating system is unusual, connected as it is with the radiator of the engine. This, too, is a throwback to the early days, for in a corner of the baggage compartment stands a little stove, a very modern one, to be sure, into which the baggage master-brakeman-fireman throws enough coal to keep hot water circulating through the car for the comfort of the passengers.

This stove works reciprocally with the engine; if necessary, a valve can be opened, and the hot water from the radiator travels through the whole car, heating it and returning nicely cooled. On the other hand, when the car is standing idle at night, the same valve is opened, and warm water from the stove travels through the radiator, preventing it from freezing. No alcohol or glycerine is necessary in this automobile.

The cab itself is very crowded, the engine filling one side of it, opposite it the fan and the motor which drives it, and on the same shaft with the engine, the round bulk of the generator. There is just room at one side for the engineer who sits comfortably before a wide window, which even has a windshield cleaner. At his left hand there is a controller similar to that on a street car, but with only three speeds, and greater sensitiveness, governing the generator. Over it is a throttle such as is used on steam locomotives, controlling the engine.

On the farther side, between the engine and the fan, there is a little less than enough room for one individual, and here the reporter spent a glorious afternoon, with nothing between him and the roadbed, looking ahead, but a sheet of glass. From behind, a blast of heat from the engine scorched his neck and filled one pocket with soup made out of a bar of chocolate which the reporter forgot was there; underneath came a blast of cold air from the fan, but ahead was the Central Massachusetts division, winding always, climbing or dropping most of the time, and always a sight worth watching.

Amherst College Musical Organizations

The Amherst College Musical organizations were enthusiastically received at Memorial hall last Friday night. Ability in rendering selections both classical and modern plus a winsomeness of presentation were a taking combination. While most of the numbers were encored, the audience would have kept the specialty men busy all night. There were about thirty men in the combined clubs.

Rev. W. H. Snape announced that the next number in the Methodist Lyceum course would be M. S. Sherman, editor of the Springfield Union, who would speak on "Lincoln's Conception of Popular Government."

Death of Wilbur F. Nichols

Wilbur Fisk Nichols, 68, educator, public servant and fellow citizen, died Tuesday night of bronchial pneumonia at Chapin Memorial hospital, Springfield, following an operation which it was hoped would materially prolong his life. His death came as a distinct shock to the community that had learned increasingly to appreciate his contribution to knowledge, his ready response to calls of civic need and his alertness in initiating worth-while endeavors. He was ever a fearless champion of causes which he deemed to be right.

His most conspicuous contribution in recent years was his service on the building committee which served without recompense in erecting the new school buildings and Memorial hall.

Mr. Nichols was born in Stillwater, Minn., in 1857. At the age of 3 he was doubly orphaned by the accidental drowning of both his parents. He was cared for during his childhood and youth in this town by his aunt who had lost her husband in the same catastrophe.

He received his early education here. In 1876 he graduated from Wilbraham Academy and from Amherst college in 1880, receiving his master's degree from Amherst in 1883. He was a teacher for 33 years, beginning in Sheffield and Florence, and in 1882 becoming principal of the Park-street school of Holyoke and later of the Hamilton-street school. In 1889 he became supervisor of the Eaton district in

75 Names Added

At the meeting of the registrars Wednesday, 75 names were added to the list, 69 to the Precinct A list and 6 to the Precinct B list. Last Saturday at South Belchertown, 9 new names were added.

It is interesting to note that by reason of the State school and a more shifting tendency in the local population, voters' lists do not last as long as they once did.

Riley-Putney Wedding

Miss Anna Riley and Ransom Putney, both of whom have positions at the State school, were married at St. Francis church Tuesday morning at 9.30. Rev. J. A. Dunphy performed the ceremony, using the double ring service. Mrs. J. C. Bothwell was organist and Miss Helen Magee sang, "O Promise Me." The couple were attended by Miss Gertrude Riley, cousin of the bride, and a brother, Michael Riley, was best man.

The bride wore white crepe de chine with veil and carried a shower bouquet. The bridesmaid wore grey georgette over green with green hat and carried pink carnations.

The bride's gift to the groom was a pair of cuff links and the groom gave the bride pearl rosary beads. The best man received a watch chain and the bridesmaid an amethyst pendant and chain.

Guests were present from New York, Boston, Springfield, Holyoke, Amherst and Belchertown.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride's sister in Holyoke and the bridal couple left for a two weeks' wedding trip.

The Town Warrant

The selectmen have prepared the town warrant which contains 18 articles. The meeting for the election of officers takes place Feb. 1, while the meeting to act on appropriations takes place on the evening of Feb. 8. A reprint of the special articles is, for the most part, self-explanatory.

Articles 11 and 12 bring up again the matter of selling land to Carl Hill of Dwight, which was favorably acted upon at a special meeting. A technicality developed, the selectmen finding that they had the power to sell but not to convey. The new article reads "selling and deeding."

Article 16 is a case similar to that of Mr. Hill's, growing out of damages awarded by reason of the Amherst-Belchertown state road construction.

Sunday Night Service

M. E. Church

The Epworth League had in charge the seven o'clock service at the M. E. church Sunday night. The Misses Stella Snow and Eleanor Gay sang a duet. Harold Fitts had charge of the responsive reading, while Andrew Ketchen introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. John Hanna of Amherst, who took for his subject, "Different Ways of Looking at Human Beings."

He emphasized two attitudes people take toward one another, which in reality simmered down to trust and distrust. One attitude rested on the belief that all men are descendants of the devil, a view which was held by many Biblical writers whom he quoted. When one turns from the Bible to the creeds, the speaker said we find the same idea. Jonathan Edwards, the famous New England preacher, founded his most outstanding sermons on that idea.

In contrast to this Mr. Hanna quoted other passages to the effect that men are but a little lower than the angels, sons of the Most High and made in the image of God. Christ acted on the assumption that all men were not possessed of the devil. He associated with sinners, tax gatherers, always finding something worth while in them. He saw rock-like qualities in the shifting Peter.

Mr. Hanna said that after 19 centuries our prisons are run on medieval notions, children are brought up on the theory that they are naturally bad, teachers get into the same hablt of mind and many a dean's attitude is that one is a liar till he has proved himself honest.

The speaker said that we find our government has the dual attitude. We talk good will and yet our spies are out tonight prying into the affairs of other peoples on the contrary assumption. We have the spy system in business. Employers run in spies in the employees' councils.

Missions are based on the opposite theory, however, that there is latent good in all, and the Salvation Army calls a man down but never out.

In closing the speaker said that you can take your choice of attitudes, either that every man is out to do you and you'd better look out, or the attitude, sometimes disappointing, that confidence will be rewarded.

The Caucuses

DEMOCRATIC

The Democratic caucus was held Tuesday evening. E. F. Flaherty was chairman and C. M. Lynch, secretary. The ballot clerks were Edward Parent and Paul Austin. Mrs. Thomas Flaherty and Patrick Earley were tellers. There were no contests, so the slate as drawn up by the town committee was nominated.

REPUBLICAN

The Republican caucus Wednesday afternoon drew a crowed house, a large proportion of the audience having to stand. The check list was only used twice, once for nominating the selectmen and again for a school committeeman for three years, but it was used with a will on both these occasions. To all appearances the people appreciated the right of franchise.

The four candidates for selectmen received votes as follows:

Jacob V. Cook	136
Henry H. Witt	136
Winslow S. Piper	126
Edward A. Fuller	83

The vote for school committee was a close one. Belding F. Jackson was nominated from the floor as a candidate to run against Mrs. Ida Hurlburt, whose name appeared on the regular ticket. The vote in this instance resulted as follows:

Belding F. Jackson	88
Mrs. Ida Hurlburt	87

William A. Kimball was chairman of the caucus and William E. Shaw, clerk. Harold F. Peck and Edwin F. Shumway were tellers.

The following were those nominated:

Grange Notes

The program Tuesday night at grange was a musical evening in charge of Dr. A. E. Westwell, who showed something of the development of music, illustrating his talk with selections on piano and cornet of the music of the different periods. Sketches of prominent composers were introduced in connection with the works presented. At the close, Dr. Westwell played a very modern piece, one only two weeks old, a meditation which he composed himself.

Following is the program of music which was interspersed with comments and explanations by Dr. Westwell:

Death of Michael Ward

Michael Ward, 54, died early Wednesday morning at his home on Sargent street after a considerable period of ill health. Mr. Ward was born in England and was a paper maker by trade. For the last nine years he had been employed by the Albian Paper Co. of Holyoke. He came here to live about two months ago.

He leaves besides his widow a sister, Mrs. Alice Stewart, and two brothers, Peter and Frank Ward, all of Holyoke.

The funeral will take place Saturday morning at 9 at St. Francis church. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery, Holyoke.

Funeral of Wilbur F. Nichols

The funeral of Wilbur F. Nichols was held at the home on South Main street last Friday afternoon at 2. Rev. D. L. Hilliard officiated and paid a worthy tribute to Mr. Nichols, speaking of him as one who had laid hold of the fundamental things and had interpreted them in terms of a vital Christian life. He spoke of it as a life triumphant that had found expression in the field of teaching, public service and as a neighbor and friend. Flowers sent by organizations and friends testified to the appropriateness of the tribute.

The bearers were Dr. G. E. McPherson, George E. Scott, Edward A. Fuller and Carl F. Aspengren. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

The stores were closed from 2 to 3 out of respect to Mr. Nichols's memory.

Parent-Teacher Meeting

Belding F. Jackson gave an address at the Parent-Teacher association meeting Monday evening. He pointed out that the original idea in the system of education was to emphasize the intellectual and that care must be taken in these days when so many good things are demanding a place in the school program that this idea be not displaced.

Mr. Jackson also plead for an early decision in one's school life as to the ultimate goal of endeavor, as many students find in their Senior year that they are at a decided disadvantage to continue their favorite subjects because their preparatory years were spent along other lines. So, whether one's field is work, college, normal school or business school, it is well to have more of a definite plan.

Speaking of advanced education, Mr. Jackson strongly recommended that insurance be taken out for children so that it would mature at a time when added funds would come in handy.

The speaker emphasized the need of tending to business in school work and said that the report card average needs to be watched as well as the batting average.

Mr. Jackson advocated a more vital interest in the school on the part of the parents, with frequent visits and definite inquiry as to the progress of their particular children in knowledge.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. D. L. Hilliard, who gave a brief talk on the relationship between church and school, stressing the fact that both are working for the good of the community.

A committee was appointed at this meeting to draw up resolutions on the death of Miss Shattuck, a former president and ardent worker for the association. This committee comprises Miss Conklin, Mrs. Hussey and Miss Edith Towne.

The attendance was not large but the program was decidedly worth while.

M. E. Church Notes

The committee for next week's church night supper is Mrs. H. F. Putnam, Mrs. Ella R. Hunt, Mrs. W. H. Snape, A. R. Ketchen and R. A. French.

Sixteen from the Epworth League attended the "Kid party" at South Hadley Falls last Saturday evening. The Chicopee Falls society was also present. Sixty were present altogether.

Rev. Mr. Davenport, a district superintendent from Vermont, addressed the prayermeeting last week Friday, speaking on "The Church in the Rural Community." He emphasized its importance and told of the part federation had played in making more effective the work of country churches in Vermont. He stated that out of 100 churches that had federated there, only nine were failures.

Boy Scout Doings

The Boy Scouts are planning to have a basket ball team. All those interested are requested to attend all Scout meetings.

The Scouts have in their treasury a fair sum of money.

We have found that some of the boys are getting too large for their uniforms. These suits will be passed in to the Scoutmaster.

The Scouts are proud to say that they have a very extraordinary "bugler," a "first class Scout," Henry Ritter, known to the Scouts as "Beans," so called because his last name is the name of a well known bean—"Ritter's Beans." He is no relation of the Ritter who puts up the beans. He can play most all the bugle calls, both American and French.

George McPherson is a Second Class Scout. Louis Fuller, Robert Camp, Paige Piper and Bartlett Green have one or two more tests to pass, after which they can become Second Class Scouts.

There have been new patrol leaders appointed. Henry Ritter is leader of the younger Scouts, Paige Piper of the middle aged boys and Harold Allen of the older boys. Julian Hussey has been appointed as flag bearer and Dunbar and Allen, guards.

'Bout 'Lection Time

We just nod and that is all,
"Strangers" on this little ball;
Fished together 'n days gone by
But now it's "you" and now it's "I".

"My" crowd 's just across the street,
See them step with nimble feet.
Yes, I'll sidle up to them,
But the other bunch—Ahem!

Oh, we "fit" the wars together,
Climbed the trenches o'er each other,
Saved the world and did it well,
Went through more than tongue could tell.

But now a nod and that is all—
All right summer, spring and fall—
But along election time
Get a little smeared with grime.

Think I'm better far than he,
He likes him but don't like me;
So we mark a cross and glide
Over to the other side.

Friend and brother'll come together,
Just live through this spell o' weather,
Find that on this little ball
We're children of one mother, all.

The Election Monday

The election Monday was one of the most feverish elections in the town's history. In spite of the bad snow storm, 629 of the 798 voters went to the polls or were taken there. The special interest was attributed to the strong Klan and anti-Klan feeling. Most of the candidates supposed to represent the latter faction won the contests by sizeable majorities. The town, which is normally Republican, swung into the Democratic column quite strongly for this reason. The results are shown on page 4.

Social Guild Supper

The Social Guild served a baked bean supper in the chapel on Wednesday evening. The tables were prettily decorated with a variety of artificial flowers. At the entertainment the following program was rendered:

Reading	Belding F. Jackson
Vocal solos	Mrs. Wm. Bridgman
Piano duets	Miss Hagstrom and Miss Higgins
Fancy dance	Leila Stevens
Recitation	Evelyn Sessions
Reading	Mrs. Thomas Allen
Piano duet	Miss Hagstrom and Miss Higgins

The committee in charge of the supper were Miss Maggie Hales, Mrs. J. V. Cook, Mrs. Howell Cook, Mrs. F. M. Fuller, Mrs. Stevens and Mrs. Olive Hamilton.

Death of Mrs. Mary B. Blackmer

Mrs. Mary Barton Blackmer, 69, wife of Rev. Edmund F. Blackmer, died at her home on Mill Valley road Wednesday evening at 8. Death was due to heart failure following a month's illness.

Mrs. Blackmer was born in Enfield Jan. 21, 1857, the daughter of Nathan and Bethsina (Root) Barton. She was married in Enfield to Rev. E. F. Blackmer, May 20, 1884. She was a member of the Congregational church of North Hadley, where Mr. Blackmer served as pastor.

She leaves besides her husband, three children, Victor A. of Danbury, Ct., Mrs. Nina M. Dandurand of Ticonderoga, N. Y., and Stanley P. at home.

The funeral will be strictly private and will be held at the home Friday afternoon at 2, Rev. Dow L. Hilliard officiating. Burial will be in South cemetery.

The Morning After—Election and Otherwise

Last night upon the back-yard fence,
He howled and spat with all his strength;
But now, beneath the kitchen stove,
The Tom Cat basks his lazy length.

Last night he filled the pure, cold air
With many odors vile and ill;
But now, within his cozy den,
The Pole Cat snores and dreams at will.

Last night he swore and damned mankind,
And called his foes all "dirty blokes";
But now, beside his parlor fire,
The politician smiles and smokes.

The Town Report

The first installment of the town reports will probably be issued Saturday. The book this year comprises 115 pages.

The document opens with a list of 1925 town officers, elective and appointive, the jury list and names drawn last year. Minutes of town meetings cover the special one in January regarding precinct voting, the annual meeting in February, and the special meeting August 11.

The town clerk's report shows 40 births, 32 marriages and 54 deaths. Of the deaths two were of those over 90 years of age. The vital statistics in detail follow.

The assessors' report shows a total valuation of $1,471,305 in contrast with $1,426,870 the year preceding. Fowls jumped from 12,735 to 13,575. There are 28 less horses.

Tax Collector D. F. Shumway in his report states that he has collected $42,499.74 of the 1925 taxes, leaving a balance of $13,823.62 uncollected.

The treasurer's report shows receipts of $326,948.84 and expenditures of $308,206.90.

Pages 23 to 63 inclusive contain the itemized report of receipts and expenditures in all departments.

The cemetery commissioners report expenditures of $377.08, leaving a balance of $22.92. The balance of interest on endowment funds is $334.86.

The Overseers of Poor note aid furnished five persons in their homes, one case of which is permanent and four temporary. There are three inmates at the town farm.

The warden's report shows receipts and bills due to the amount of $3,664.58 with farm and household expenses and warden's salary amounting to $4,126.72. Mr. Sanford reports two inmates for the whole year, one for six months, one for five months and one state charge for four days. Fourteen prisoners and one tramp have been housed, also one state boy for nine days. The inventory at the farm is also shown.

The board of health calls attention to 84 cases of contagious diseases reported, 71 of these from the state school.

The town accountant's report opens with the balance sheet. The summary of receipts and expenditures, previously printed in the Sentinel, follows. A list of outstanding bills, the town debt statement and reserve fund transfers closes this report.

C. F. Austin, sealer of weights and measures, gives a list of scales sealed last year. "14 gas pumps" is one of the items.

SELECTMEN'S REPORT

The selectmen in their report call attention to the completion of the Amherst-Belchertown road, which at first was not thought possible early in the year.

They also speak of the purchase of fire department equipment—a hose wagon mounted on a Ford ton chassis for use in the water district and the chemical apparatus taken from the half-ton Ford chassis and remounted on a new Ford ton chassis, the latter to be used outside the district. The outside unit carries extinguishers, shovels, ladders etc. and can be used to carry men and tools to forest fires.

In addition mention is made of the new method of putting gravel on the roads last year. Dump trucks were used in place of teams at a reduction of 60 cents per yard.

SCHOOL REPORT

The school committee calls attention to the purchase of 120 chairs for the grade school assembly hall. They state that studding and re-lathing one of the rooms at Franklin has gotten rid of the moisture on the side walls and they hope to repair another room similarly out of next year's regular appropriation. Extensive repairs were made at Rockrimmon. The committee feel that they are getting by with the coal situation due to the recent purchase of a car of Welsh coal. They also speak of the popularity of the home economics course and the broadening of the course in physical education.

Supt. A. R. Lewis submits his 18th and final annual report, expressing as he does so, his appreciation of the support accorded him during his term of office. Mr. Lewis speaks of the changes in teachers, the death of Miss Shattuck, the "excellent work" in the domestic science department and the "rapid strides" in the physical training department, for which considerable gymnastic equipment was purchased.

Mention is also made of industrial work which has been carried on in the Center, Franklin, Cold Spring and Union schools, under the direction of Mr. Whippen. 18 girls registered for sewing at Franklin and 28 for handicraft. 30 chairs were caned in 1925 and now plastola work is being carried on.

Prin. Thomas Allen calls attention to the fact that "schools were founded and have existed to educate the youth and train the intellect," and that "parties, plays, athletics, debates and the like—ought to be secondary to the main object." He emphasizes the importance of home study, the good work being carried on in the commercial department, the new clocks, the new encyclopedia, and also duplicate copies of books presented by the trustees of Clapp Memorial Library.

Miss Conklin, who submits the first annual report of the household arts department, speaks of the "pleasant, well equipped laboratory" and is confident that the benefit of the work will be felt in all the homes. Six pages are given over to detailed courses of study in this department.

Miss Conklin tells of prizes won by the scholars and the Christmas dinner served to the Belchertown and Enfield school committees. The productivity of the sewing classes is valued at $250.

In speaking of the lunch system, attention is called to the fact that cocoa is served at the grade school building and soup and cocoa at the High school. This project is self-supporting.

Francis J. Gorman, supervisor of music, suggests the purchase of three record recording machines and says, "Why not then permit the children to become familiar with minuets by Hayden and Beethoven, the gavottes of Gluck and Mozart, the lullabies and other beautiful melodies of many generations thru hearing them?" The orchestra and glee club he considers an active factor.

D. F. Shumway reports that he has responded to 20 summonses to attend to absentees from school.

The school nurse, Mrs. Hoag, in her report calls attenion to the comparative freedom from contagious diseases during the past year. She speaks a good word for the serving of cocoa and hopes for an even larger patronage. Mention is made of the dental clinic conducted without charge by Dr. Wilder, the chest clinic in May, etc. She closes her report with a comment on more stringent obedience to vaccination laws and a plea for more sanitary toilet facilities in the outlying district schools.

The list of teachers shows that 21 are being employed beside the school nurse. For the school year ending

In the list of Eastern Star officials published last week, the names of Mrs. Evelyn Ward, chaplain, and Mrs. Jennie Walker, marshal, were omitted.

The Social Union will serve a supper in the vestry Feb. 17.

Owing to the severe snow storm of yesterday the schools were closed, bus line service was suspended and rural delivery carriers were unable to complete their trips.

Owing to the storm, the Church Night program was omitted last evening. The committee for this week will serve next week.

A meeting of the Hampshire county sewing class will be held in the small vestry of the M. E. church next Wednesday at 1.30 p. m.

Just to get a single fox in a day no longer causes much comment in town. One has to get at least two, for J. W. Jackson secured two in one day a fortnight ago, and Tuesday James Lemon repeated the performance, getting one brush in the north part of the town and one in the south. Robins go in larger numbers. More than a dozen were seen by J. W. Jackson on Candlemas day.

Ten boys and girls in town have entered the reading contest being conducted by the state library commission which awards a certificate to the boy or girl reading and reporting on five books selected from a certain list, and an honor certificate to the one reading and reporting on 20 books, five of which must be non-fiction. George Roode has won his honor certificate, having read twenty books, ten of which were non-fiction, double the required the number.

Others in the contest are Walter Roode with 12 books to his credit, Edward Schmidt 10, Lillian Upham 7, Barbara Baggs 5, Evelyn Sessions 5, Jane Shumway 4, John Fairchild 3, Priscilla Rowland 3, Barbara Rowland 1.

Miss Ida M. Smith of Springfield visited the Girl Scouts of Troop 1 at their meeting Wednesday afternoon and invested Helen Camp and Mae Holcomb as second class Scouts. She also met the Scout council at Mrs. Warren's in the evening and advised them in regard to carrying out their part in this organization. Incidentally it developed that Troop 1 is fully as large as any troop of older girls in this section.

Another Big Storm

Those who migrated to Florida missed something this time. On top of the big storm of last week which closed the schools Thursday and Friday, came another big blizzard Wednesday of this week, which put the schools, bus lines, etc. out of business again, postponed the Masonic ball, Ladies' Social Union meeting and the meeting of the sewing class.

The milk trucks from Holyoke and Springfield were unable to reach the center either Wednesday or Thursday and teams of horses with sled loads of milk left the village in an attempt to make communication with the trucks "somewhere".

Some grocery staples are getting low in the stores, depending as they do on supplies being brought by truck. Last week's storm prevented the arrival of some supplies and the storm this week also tied things up on "truck day".

The schools were closed Wednesday and Thursday and it is probable that there will be no school today.

The State school did its usual "good turn" in opening up the center streets after the storm and the town has been busy plowing out with a tractor. The tractor of the Boston Duck Co. of Bondsville was busy yesterday opening the main roads. No attempt will be made to scrape

The Appropriation Meeting

As town meetings go, the meeting of Monday evening was a rather tranquil occasion. There was a large attendance, but few of the articles drew fire. The Bondsville road was the chief bone of contention; and here all parties were agreed that permanent repairs are necessary and willing that they should be carried out, but whether a chance should be taken on securing a sufficient appropriation from Chap. 81 or whether a special appropriation should be made to cover it, caused the argument.

The citizens of the south end were afraid they would be left out in the cold if they trusted in getting a slice out of the regular appropriation and so held out strongly for a special one, which they succeeded in carrying. William Sullivan led the fight for the proposition. J. C. Bothwell, chairman of the selectmen, argued that there was no use in raising the tax rate when it was so evident that the state would approve of the same work being done from Chap. 81 appropriation.

After the south end people had secured the vote, an effort was made later in the meeting to reconsider the article, and considerable argument was indulged in, but the meeting refused to budge from its previous action.

M. A. Morse viewed the matter as a definite obligation due the Bondsville section, in view of the fact that they had patiently waited their turn while the Turkey Hill and Three Rivers roads received consideration. With Mr. Morse it was a case of fair play. Mr. Bothwell claimed he was equally in favor of repairing the road, it being simply a matter of where the money should come from.

With but few exceptions the meeting followed the recommendations of the finance committee. D. F. Shumway asked for and received an addition of $50 to his salary. He promised to collect the poll taxes earlier next year with a separate levy so that the town would get a larger proportion of them. $600 instead of $500 was voted for state aid in

Resigns as Water Commissioner

E. C. Witt tendered his resignation as water commissioner yesterday, giving as his reason that he did not approve of the way the business was being conducted.

Mr. Witt has been chairman of the board since its inception and was foreman of the gang that made the installation. Mr. Witt has worked for the interests of the district and the board will lose a valuable member through his resignation.

Mr. Butler, who operates the State school pumps, has charge of the district pumps as well while Harold Davis attends to the fires. The district uses over 10,000 gallons of water a day, necessitating a pumping period of about 28 hours a month.

Grange Notes

The Grange meeting next week will be in the nature of a costume party. All those who come are requested to dress in costume. If one does does not wish to attire elaborately, come at least dressed in overalls or gingham dresses. There will be an entertainment of games and old fashioned dances.

"The Value of a Church in a Community"

In preaching last Sunday morning on the subject, "The Value of a Church in a Community," Rev. D. L. Hilliard emphasized the fact that a church demands the attendance, interest and support of a community, and that in return certain tangible results are forthcoming.

He stated that in his comparatively brief stay in town he had become acquainted with 28 young people who had gone on to higher institutions of learning, and of these 28, 26 were members of the church and one of the other two was an attendant. Nineteen went from the Congregational church and 6 from the Methodist. Five of the number went into the ministry. These figures were cited as indicative of the fact that the church furnishes an incentive to young people to go on into fields of greater usefulness and service.

The Living Room

Contributed to the Neighborhood page of The Springfield Republican of January 10 by the local correspondent.

A bath room and a living room seem to be the two necessary appointments of the modern home. The bedroom may be only an alcove and the kitchen a well-equipped closet space, but one manages in comfort if there is only a living room.

Time was when the term "living room" would have conveyed as much meaning to a Yankee as "salon" would have meant to a Fiji Islander. "Parlor" everybody knew. Everybody had one. Not that it was of any use, but it was ornamental (judged by the standards of that day), and you had to have one to be at all respectable. Its black haircloth or red plush, its wax flowers or hair wreaths, the family Bible and the family album are all classics. But by no stretch of the imagination could it be called a living room. In fact, it never became a living room. It merely ceased to be.

But we have the living room in place of it, you say. No, nothing so cheerful and colorful as a living room grew from the black haircloth, straight-backed parlor. The ancestry of the living room is wholly another matter.

In every New England home, it is safe to say, was one room lived in daily. It was usually large, sunny and warm in winter, with cooling breezes in summer. A red geranium bloomed on the window sill until some frosty night when the fire went out. A red cloth covered the table. Old Shep lay undisturbed behind the stove while Kitty Grey in the chintz-covered rocker relived with twitching paws and whiskers her last thrilling rat hunt. Pa with his feet in the stove oven, overcome with drowsiness after a day in the open, slept in spite of the noisy game of flinch around the lamp-lighted table where mother smiled as she patched and darned.

Yes, the kitchen was the real living room in those days. An earlier generation had begun the custom. The huge fireplace, so large that its back log was drawn in by a horse, according to tradition; the hearthstone around which family and neighbors gathered and which radiated warmth such as the more genteel fire places of the sitting room and parlor could not summon—this big fireplace with its pots and pans, its cave-like brick oven, its andirons and tongs, this was the living, glowing heart of the home. Here life was lived. Here the spinning wheel sang its song of life and love. Here the woolen socks were knitted, one by one, and the broom corn tied and the husk mats braided. Along one side of the room were the shelves where the heavy earthern pans of milk were set in winter. Here on cold winter nights the trundle bed was brought out from the bedroom adjoining. Here the family ate and worked and laughed and loved and lived—truly a living room.

More truly a living room, perhaps, than that which we now call by this name. Yes, we live in our living rooms, but only in snatches. Mother looks in to see that it is in order before leaving for the bridge party; Anne remains there long enough to practice her music before Bob comes to take her to the movies; Dick wanders through on his way to get out the old bus; Dad, finding everyone out, occasionally reads his evening paper there. A living room? No, not really. A reception room, a music room, a reading room, not truly a living room.

Nature does away with useless things. Fish in never-lighted caverns no longer have eyes. Man, living countless ages above the waters of the deep, no longer has gills. The parlor, unused, has passed away Will the living room, abandoned, suffer a similar fate? If so, what have we left? A bath room, an alcove where we may sleep, a niche in the wall for a kitchen. We shall have, forsooth, less than the cave-dwellers. But it is possible, even yet, to bequeath a hearthstone to the next generation. Shall we?

view of unexpected expenditures.

$400 was voted for moth suppression, although J. A. Peeso argued that $100 was sufficient in view of the fact that the Federal gypsy moth detail does so thorough a job here. G. C. Allen claimed that the outskirts were not taken care of by the Federal men, and J. C. Bothwell stated that the town could be held for an appropriation of around $800.

$2,500 was voted the Three Rivers road, to be used with such sums as shall be contributed by the Department of Public Works and the county commissioners.

For the first time in its history the town voted money to Clapp Memorial library. $250 was raised and appropriated. It was stated that the library was in need of repairs and that its affairs are run on a very small income, which is not keeping pace with increasing expenses.

$150 was voted for the support of the Hampshire Trustees for County Aid to Agriculture, and E. F. Shumway was named a director of that organization.

Following the recommendations of the finance committee, the article relative to extending the street lighting system to the house of Anna E. Lapolice was indefinitely postponed, while it was voted to install one light on Everett avenue. No money was voted for a fence around the Lawrence Memorial High school property.

$150 was voted for a proper observance of the 150 anniversary of our independence, July 4. The selectmen were authorized to appoint a committee. $200 was voted to repair the tar walks in town.

Articles 11 and 12, technical in nature, regarding land authorized sold to Carl J. Hill, were favorably disposed of. The town also voted to convey land to Wesley M. Goodell of Dwight under similar circumstances.

In accordance with the by-laws adopted last year, all motions for appropriations had to be presented in writing, This made necessary the preparation of typewritten copies of anticipated motions so as not to delay the meeting. This feature added a touch of amusement to the meeting, as well, as not all the ones designated to "speak" knew just when their turn came and few from the floor cared to go to the bother of making motions under the circumstances.

Another ludicrous situation cropped out when the matter of reconsidering the Bondsville road article came up. After considerable discussion the previous question was called for but the meeting voted vociferously against it. When the matter was open for discussion again, however, no one offered to speak and the vote was taken almost instantly.

Another ripple came when the appropriation for the town clock was being considered. When the motion was made covering the recommended amount, the audience had "run down" and was as silent as our ancient timepiece. Moderator Lewis told them to speak up and then the wheels turned again.

Some offices were filled by nomination at this meeting. Mrs. Carrie Ketchen and Mrs. Mary Spencer were appointed almoners of the Whiting Street and Mrs. Susan M. D. Bridgman funds, each for one year, and H. H. Ward was elected trustee of the Calvin Bridgman fund for three years. Carl F. Aspengren and Michael P. Bowler were reappointed to the finance committe by the selectmen.

The meeting was opened by C. R. Green in the absence of his father, Town Clerk George H. B. Green, and Rev. J. A. Dunphy of St. Francis church offered prayer.

The complete list of appropriations follows:

Turkey Hill Items

Cheer up! Cherries will soon be ripe!

Miss Eleanor Gay saw the first spring robin on Wednesday, or was it the last one of fall?

The Bond bread truck was stuck in a snow bank somewhere on Turkey Hill from noon till nearly 8 o'clock on Wednesday.

Mrs. Estella Sanford went to Middletown, Ct., on Monday to visit her daughter, Mrs. R. W. Sellew.

Roy O. Baggs, a native of Turkey Hill, won out in a recent election of selectmen for three years in East Longmeadow, receiving 214 votes, his opponents receiving 141, 134 and 101 respectively.

Miss Edith Allen has been visiting friends in town.

Town Items

Seven Federal gypsy moth men are in town looking for nests. Others will probably join the detail later.

Rev. and Mrs. George T. Oborn of Boston were guests this week of Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Snape. Mr. Oborn and Mr. Snape were classmates in the Boston University School of Theology.

Rev. W. H. Snape's Sunday evening sermon will be in the nature of a biographical sketch of Booker T. Washington. The last of the mission study classes will be held at the Epworth League hour.

Owing to the snow storm the Masonic ball scheduled for Wednesday night, was postponed until the 19th, when the same orchestra will be present.

The sewing class which was to have been held Wednesday afternoon, will be held Mar. 3.

Owing to extreme weather conditions this month, the Ladies' Social Union has decided to omit the supper which was to have been held next Wednesday. This week's regular meeting of that organization has been postponed.

The platform at the chapel has been raised and also enlarged, so that it extends the full width of the room. This will accommodate to better advantage the plays that are occasionally given by the several church organizations. Geo. Hussey did the work which was sponsored by the Social Guild.

The folk dancing class of Tuesday evening was postponed owing to the illness of the instructor, Miss Boakes.

On page 53 of the "Itemized Reports" two items under the town farm expenditures are not correct and should read "H. F. Curtis, blacksmithing and repairs $4.35" and "A. E. Dodge, blacksmithing and repairs, $87.85." The error was made in copying the figures from the books.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the M. E. church will meet with Mrs. M. A. Morse Monday evening at 7.30 sharp.

The Social Guild will meet with Mrs. E. A. Randall next Wednesday at 2.30 p. m.

The lecture which was to have been given by M. S. Sherman, editor of the Springfield Union in Memorial hall tonight as the next to the last number in the Methodist Lyceum course, has been postponed by reason of road conditions to a date in March or April.

Welz-Jackson Wedding

At a very pretty home wedding in Northampton last Monday afternoon, Miss Freda Welz, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George F. Welz, of Butler Place, and Mr. Blake Smith Jackson, son of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Jackson of Walnut street of this town, were married. Rev. Kenneth B. Welles, pastor of the Jonathan Edwards church of Northampton, officiated, and the single ring service was used. The bridesmaid was Miss Esther Jackson, sister of the groom, and the best man, Mr. George F. Welz, Jr., brother of the bride. The ringbearer was Bernard O'Shea, nephew of the bride.

The bride was gowned in blue georgette crepe, trimmed with old lace, and carried bride roses. The bridesmaid wore honeydew crepe, and carried pink roses. The house was decorated beautifully in green and gold, with spring flowers in profusion, and the ceremony took place under an arch of flowers and foliage.

The bride's gift to the bridesmaid was a silver mesh bag and to the groom a gold auto-license container. The groom's gift to the bride was a brooch, and to the best man, gold cuff links.

Extension School

About thirty attended the Extension school at Grange hall yesterday afternoon. At 1.30 Miss Boice, home demonstration agent, gave an illustrated talk on "Saving Steps in the Kitchen." At the beginning and at the close she stressed the plea that her hearers take home with them the things they can do. In view of the varied social demands made upon the modern woman, she considered it imperative that the old time kitchen be turned into a modern workshop with sinks, tables etc. at proper working levels, and everything so stationed that work could be turned off with a minimum of "mileage."

Pictures were shown of kitchens in this and neighboring counties. Some were in a state of perfection; others were tending toward it. Miss Boice recommended doing something each

B. H. S. Basketball

The Belchertown High School's interclass teams have just completed the first round of the schedule under the direction of the physical director, Connie Moynihan. Although the Senior class teams of both the girls' and the boys' leagues seem to have the edge on their opponents, yet there is still some keen rivalry existing. This is especially true between the Senior and Sophomore boys as was shown in Wednesday's game in which the former won 10-9 in two overtime periods.

Class spirit has certainly developed as there are over two hundred spectators at each game cheering for their respective teams. A silver loving cup will be awarded to the winners in the league by Mr. Moynihan. Piper looms up the best scorer of the boys' league while Evelyn Shumway of the Seniors seems to be the pick of the scorers in the girls' league.

Coach Moynihan is so encouraged by the development of certain players that he is now going to pick a Varsity team to compete with other schools.

Dies in Hartford

Mrs. Julia D. Hubbard died last Friday of heart trouble at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Edwin Flint, of Hartford. She had been in ill health since last summer.

Mrs. Hubbard was born June 26, 1846, in Rupert, Vt., and was the daughter of Erastus and Susan (Durfee) Bixby. She was the last surviving member of her family. In her early years she taught school in Brimfield, Ludlow and this town. On Dec. 27, 1871 she married Alfred Hubbard, who died Feb. 12, 1914.

Mrs. Hubbard was Past President of E. J. Griggs Post W. R. C. and was one of the oldest members of the Methodist church, where she was long a teacher in the Sunday School and a faithful officer and member of the Foreign Missionary society. While of late she spent her winters with her children, she always looked forward to her summers here.

She leaves a son, Merton Hubbard year to bring about the desired goal. Some of the conveniences shown were drop leaf drain boards, drop leaf ironing boards, home-made tea wagons, kitchen cabinets, etc., all of which could be made with a minimum of expense.

While the speaker didn't believe in lugging the pantry into the kitchen, she advocated having certain constantly used knives, other cooking utensils and cooking materials immediately available.

A light directly over the sink, light warm colored walls, linoeum for floor covering (save where the boards are rough, when oil is the proper treatment), dish drainers for everybody were included among her recommendations.

Several of the pictures revealed the ingenuity of amateur home architects in making use of unique circumstances. There was the invisible wood box, table high, in the adjoining room, reached by a sliding door, and receding shelves, etc.

Miss Boice held the closest attention of her audience which contained a few interested specimens of the opposite sex, who were cited as essential in making over kitchens into workshops.

Roland A. Paine, county agent, followed with an illustrated talk on "Making a Profit from Milk Production." He stressed the importance of paying more attention to crops, rather than to add more cows to the herd. Hay and silage fed in increasing amounts, he said, would make it possible to decrease the grain ration.

Speaking of the practicability of raising grain in the east, he stated that corn is usually double what it is in the Central Western states.

Mr. Paine also argued for the proper care of stable manure, the use of acid phosphate and lime as fertilizers, and paying more attention to the upkeep of pastures. He said that one authority had it figured out that on certain pastures a cow, to attain good milk production, would need a mouth two feet wide and capable of cutting a swath 18 miles long a day.

As is his wont, Mr. Paine pithily put over his point. He said if it wasn't for daisies and the like on some of our farms the animals would all starve to death.

As in the home demonstration section, the pictures were those taken of crops and pastures in our immediate vicinity, which fact made them decidedly more interesting.

At the conclusion of Mr. Paine's talk the men and women segregated for conferences, when the real problems of those present were put forward.

About 75 guests, all relatives, were present, from many places including Springfield, Medford, Hartford and Meriden. The wedding gifts were many and lovely.

A wedding dinner was served in the home, after which the couple left on a honeymoon trip to the south, planning to visit Washington and Hot Springs, Va.

The groom is well known in Belchertown, having been born here and having attended the local high school. He is at present employed as Eastern Representative for the Oneonta Storage Battery Corporation, with headquarters in Hartford, Conn., where he and Mrs. Jackson will make their home.

An interesting feature of the wedding was that it occurred on the 30th wedding anniversary of the parents of the bride.

Death of Dea. Addison H. Bartlett

Dea. Addison Homer Bartlett, 83, died at his home Sunday afternoon following a period of invalidism dating from April, 1922, when he suffered a slight shock.

Dea. Bartlett was born at Belchertown, Feb. 15, 1843, the only son of Cyrus Sabin and Emily (Stebbins) Bartlett. On his mother's side he was a direct descendant of the first permanent settler here. He was educated in the town schools and at Wilbraham Academy, after which he taught school for several years in this town. He then took over his father's farm in the Cold Spring district, a farm which he brought to a high state of productivity.

In 1902 he moved to the village, occupying the Cyrus Bartlett place on South Main St., where he continued on a smaller scale his favorite occupation of farming and fruit growing.

While Dea. Bartlett loved to cooperate with Nature in its creative work, he drew his inspiration from and lived his life close to nature's Source, ever emphasizing the spiritual, which was his notable contribution to the life of the community. Through 70 years of membership in the Congregational church which he served as deacon for 44 years and as an officer and teacher in the Sunday School for 50 years, he found service and satisfaction in his church relationship. Concerned with the spiritual, nevertheless for a long term of years as an officer in the Church Society, he bore with a limited number of others, the burden of raising the wherewithal to provide for the maintenance of worship and the upkeep of the house which he loved.

Dea. Bartlett sought to maintain organized religious activity, yet many a by-way of life he brightened with his beneficence. Few bearing the title of deacon, were ever more affectionately called by that name.

On November 18, 1862, Dea. Bartlett married Violet I. Bardwell, who survives him. Of the seven children born to this union, five are now living, Mrs. Thomas Allen and Miss Marion Bartlett, both of this town, Dwight S. Bartlett of East Longmeadow, Francis A. Bartlett of Stamford, Ct., and Edward P. Bartlett of Washington, D. C. There are also six grandchildren, Francis S. Allen of Providence, R. I., Alice C., Ralph S., and Ruth V. Bartlett of East Longmeadow, Robert Addison and Jane Bartlett of Stamford, Ct.

The funeral was held at the home Wednesday afternoon at 2. Tribute in words by Rev. D. L. Hilliard and in flowers by church people and friends found appropriate expression. The bearers were the three sons, Dwight S., Francis A., and Edward P., and Thomas Allen. Burial was in Mt. Hope cemetery.

C. E. Notes

The Christian Endeavor meeting last Sunday evening was led by F. Brainard Lyman, president of the Amherst Local Union. Mr. Pushee, a former president of the Union, led the singing. Roger Cobb of Amherst, who has charge of the Good Citizenship program in the C. E. societies in this county, spoke of the meaning and purpose of the movement and solicited the co-operation of the local society. The two meetings Sunday evening were merged into one, giving more time for the visiting party to outline their work.

The Christian Endeavor meeting and the evening service at the Congregational church on Sunday evening will be combined in one service at 7 o'clock at which time stereopticon views will be shown, the subject being, "Among the American Highlanders—Their Home Life in Tennessee, Kentucky, North Carolina and Georgia."

Men's Supper

A meat supper will be served by the men of the Congregational church in the chapel next Wednesday evening at 6.30. The price will be 50 cents. Sometimes the men put on special features at their suppers, so of course something interesting may happen.

CHICK TIME

Once more the chick season is about due and now is a good time for the Poultryman to examine his equipment and make his plans for the season's work. Look over your brooders and order any missing or broken parts now. If you are going to need any new brooders, get them early. We plan to keep in stock the

Buckeye Standard Coal and Oil and Wishbone Brooders

Buy good chicks and feed them right and you are pretty sure to have a successful year. Cheap chicks are usually poor chicks and no kind of care and feeding will make them pay a profit. There is as much difference in laying strains of fowls as there is in the milking qualities of cows.

Wirthmore Chick Feeds

will start your chicks right and WIRTHMORE GROWING feed will grow them right, and that is more than half the battle. Next winter feed them Wirthmore Buttermilk Laying Mash and you will get lots of eggs.

Home Mixed Formulas

If you have a private formula for chick or poultry mash, we can mix it for you better than you can do it with a shovel, and the expense is not heavy. We can mix the Amherst formula or any other and will be pleased to quote prices on any kind of mash or ration.

Let's make 1926 a profitable year by starting right.

Originally introduced by Henry Ford on the Model T car in 1908 and since adopted for most American-made cars.

Three Point Motor Suspension—
First used by Henry Ford in 1903, and a feature of the Model T power plant for eighteen years.

Dual Ignition System—
Dual ignition is provided for Ford cars, (1) the Ford magneto and (2) the generator and storage battery. This has been a great factor in establishing the Ford reputation for reliability.

Planetary Transmission—

Multiple Disc-in-oil Clutch—
The multiple disc clutch is generally conceded to be the best and smoothest type for any car. The Ford clutch runs in oil.

Thermo-Syphon Cooling System—
Extremely simple—always efficient. No water pump to require packing. Circulation of water is governed entirely by engine temperature.

Simple, Dependable Lubrication—
Exceedingly simple, combining the splash principle with gravity flow. No pump required.

Torque Tube Drive—
Henry Ford originated the Torque Tube in 1908—a driving principle now embodied in many of the highest priced cars.

"We have never lowered the quality of the car to reduce the price"

Girl Scout Hikes
TROOP NO. 2

About half-past two Wednesday afternoon eleven Scouts with their captain started for a hike to Mill Valley. Before going very far we had collected two more Scouts. On the way to Mill Valley we played "Follow the leader," with Scouts Archambault and Whidden as leaders. After hiking as far as Campbell's, we stopped to rest. Then we started on our way back.

All except two (who went to get the Scout rooms ready) explored a small wood road. We reached the end of the road and thought it would be fun to take a short cut through the fields. So we started out across the meadows. Presently we came to a field where we sank to our knees at every third step. We passed the place at last and came to a hill. Nothing exciting happened, but one rubber was lost. Then we came to a hill which we rolled down.

Jabish brook was the next difficulty, because it was so hard to cross. We crossed one stream by jumping over and two or three others by walking across where the brook was covered with hard snow. Soon we saw the spire of a church, the standpipe and then the power house and we learned that we were near Jensen's. We then crossed the brook by

Poultry School Next Friday

The big event of the year for the poultrymen of the town comes next week Friday when the Extension Service holds its annual Poultry school. Complete details are not available but Prof. William C. Monahan of M. A. C. will be one of the speakers. It will be an all-day session with lunch at noon served by the Grange, for which a reasonable charge will be made. The school will be held in Grange hall.

The Men's Supper

90 people took a chance on the men's supper in the chapel, Wednesday evening and were not disappointed. No cotton fritters were hidden in the menu or similar deception indulged in. In fact it was a substantial meal from beginning to end. The men had it all planned out to a nicety—just so many pies to this table and so much potato to that—and from the decree there was no appeal.

White caps and frocks were not in evidence, but good old fashioned shirt sleeves and a few of mothers' apron strings lent distinctiveness to the landscape.

The kitchen was a bee hive of activity, as the women who took long distance glimpses of the scene, know full well.

The men are not saying much about the pastry. Somehow or other the ladies had a faculty of coming around and recognizing pie plates, cake tins, etc., just as the men were trying to make a fairly plausible answer to the constantly repeated question, "What man made that?"

But the gentler sex deserved credit for the most distinctive offering of the evening—the kumquats. One of these was beside each plate at the table. Mrs. Leroy M. Blackmer, who is wintering in Florida, sent these to the ladies of the Social Guild, who contributed them to the event. The proper method of eating them was almost as hard to find out as the name.

About the potato, though, the men

Death of Ernest Booth

Ernest Booth, 53, was kicked to death by his horses Wednesday morning at about 8.30. He had gone to his wood lot in the East Hill district and after loading the sled had apparently tried to turn the team around when he fell between the sled and the horses where he was found by Alec Masse, a neighbor, who came there with a team to work with Mr. Booth. Dr. J. L. Collard was out of town on a hospital case and Dr. E. G. Rowland of the State school responded to the call for medical aid. Dr. Rowland found the skull fractured in two places where a horse's shoe had left its imprint.

The district attorney of Northampton was notified and Medical Examiner Segur of Enfield was called.

Mr. Booth had a farm in the East Hill district where he was living alone, his wife and children spending the winter months in Holyoke. He was the driver of the school bus from that district to the center. Mr. Booth leaves his widow and eleven children, two of them married.

The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon at 2 at the Congregational chapel. The body will be placed in the tomb at Mt. Hope cemetery.

Belchertown Wins First Home Game

By Noel

The Belchertown basketball team, playing its first home game of the season, defeated the fast Enfield team on the town hall floor Wednesday night, 32 to 21. The game was featured by the brilliant playing of both teams and was witnessed by a large crowd. This is the second time within a week that Belchertown and Enfield have met and the local team won on both occasions. The first half was rather one-sided, with the home team holding Enfield scoreless from the floor, but the visitors staged a great comeback in the closing period by outscoring the local five, 18 to 9.

The game opened with Em Grayson of the home team shooting a free try. Then Fairchild tossed in a free try, followed with two similar shots by Grayson. Ritchie then scored Enfield's first point on a free try. For the remainder of the half, the local team held the visitors to two points, the half ending with Belchertown leading, 23 to 3.

In the closing period, Enfield, led by Taylor and Janik, two out-of-crawling on our hands and knees on a log. We soon reached the Scout rooms where a fire was awaiting us. We then had our supper and a peanut hunt. Then we said "Good-night" and "We've had an awfully good time."

TROOP 1

Wednesday at 10 o'clock the Girl Scouts of Troop I gathered at the post office corner with lunches, frying pans, and coffee pots ready for a hike to Holland Glen.

The hiking was very good until we reached a brook that was rather difficult to cross, but we managed to get across safely with only one Scout falling in.

As we neared our destination there were many "Oh's!" and "Isn't it beautiful!" and "Aren't we nearly there?" but mostly "When do we eat?"

After finding a place to build a fire, we started looking for firewood, which was rather scarce and refused to burn, but finally yielded to the matches.

Soon steak and hot dogs were frying, and every one enjoyed the dinner even though the steak was rare, but Bowser, the Scout dog, helped clean up the remains.

When everyone was warm we started back home. Brooks were crossed safely and everyone reached home, rather tired, but all agreed they had had a wonderful day.

—M. B.

Enough's Enough

"Round and round the house and leaves a white glove in every window." "A white glove!" It was a regular mitten this trip, a muffler, an overcoat almost. How thick the air was with the swirling, swiftly piling flakes of whiteness! "No school today. Hurrah!" And every Jack and Jill was happy over the unexpected holiday. Friday the sun shone on a glorious world, still and white. Another day of glad freedom for teacher and pupil.

Almost every winter in New England brings a day or two of joyous release to country school children, but this year winter reverted to the old time fashion and with only two days of school intervening, a second big storm was raging the next Wednesday. "No school today." The words passed from lip to lip. There was a bit of wonder in the tone. Two surprise parties within a week was rather unusual, but quite nice, really. Expressions of enthusiasm were a bit reserved and pleasure in the blizzardy aspect of the out-of-doors was not quite as keen as it had been at first.

Thursday morning saw the wind hard at work building drifts higher and higher, shaping, changing, working like a mad man here, there and everywhere. No possibility of school that day. It was getting tiresome staying in the house all day, and playing in the deep snow was pretty strenuous exercise to keep at very long. Besides, mother made remarks when you brought in too much of the outside whiteness.

Friday, "No school." "Aren't we ever going to have school again?" And this from the same little Jack and Jill who only the week before were shouting "Hurrah" over that very same message.

"To live and learn." But how slow we are to realize that enough is enough, even of play, and sometimes it seems as though we tire of that the quickest. The school pupil and the hard coal miner made a common discovery.

Belchertown Wins

By Noel

The Belchertown basket ball team, managed by Eddie Parent and playing its first game of the season, defeated its greatest rival, Enfield, last Saturday night on the Enfield Town Hall floor by a score of 29 to 18. This is the first time in years that a local team has beaten Enfield on its own floor.

Manager Parent, who has gathered together a fast quintet of players such as "Em" Grayson of Amherst, a former Interstate League player; Dave Horner, also of Amherst, a former Turners Falls player; Charlie Austin, veteran of many hard fought games; Jack Fairchild, Bill Bridgman, Guy Allen and Connie Lynch, which is able to hold its own against some of the best teams in this vicinity and showed its superiority over the fast Enfield team.

The game was fast and interesting. Horner of the local team opened the game with two free tries in succession followed with free tries by Grayson and Lynch. Then Fairchild dropped in a pretty field goal for the local team and Bobovitz scored Enfield's first point on a free try. The local team held the lead throughout the game, leading at half-time, 14 to 6.

Dave Horner, star center of the Belchertown five, played a wonderful defensive game and was the leading scorer of the night with four field goals and four gift shots for a total of 12 points. Em Grayson was guarded very closely and, although held scoreless from the floor, played a hard game and "pulled some good ones" on the Enfield players. Grayson caged eight free tries. Charlie Austin dropped in two long shots. In fact, the entire team played well. Harwood and Abbott played the best basketball for Enfield.

Em Grayson of the local five was the highest scorer of the night with two field goals and five free tries for a total of 9 points. Em also played a stellar game and in the first half, dribbled down the floor through the entire Enfield defense but missed his attempt at a field goal. George Williams of Amherst, who has played many a game on the local floor, played his first game for the home team and showed up well, getting three field goals and one free try. In fact, every Belchertown player scored at least two points. Taylor and Janik were Enfield's best players, scoring 14 points between them.

In the preliminary game, the Belchertown second team defeated the Enfield second team, 21 to 11. The local boys held the lead through the entire game, being ahead at half time, 16 to 3. Johnny Wood of the home team was the leading player.

"We have Never Lowered the Quality to Reduce the Price"

Since 1903, when the Ford Motor Company was formed, Ford cars have been constantly improved in quality, comfort, convenience and appearance. Recent improvements include new and attractive body lines — a lower center of gravity—closed cars in color, and all-steel bodies.

The basic features of Ford design have been retained. Three point motor suspension, planetary transmission, dual ignition system, torque tube drive, multiple disc-in-oil clutch, splash lubrication, thermo-syphon cooling system—all have been features of the Ford car for eighteen years. On the whole these features cost far more to manufacture than conventional design but are used because of their superiority.

The Ford Motor Company has carried out a program of price reduction that has consistently kept Ford value supreme in the automotive industry. This has been made possible by the magnitude of Ford production. With lesser resources, Ford quality would not be possible at anywhere near Ford prices.

The tremendous demand for Ford closed cars has again made possible substantial price reductions.

They "listened in" to the opposing camp regarding the proper amount, added a peck for good measure, and then barely squeezed through. But they enjoyed their job nevertheless. The squeezes simply added to the excitement. One man said he wouldn't have missed the fun for anything and from appearances the others felt likewise.

Boy Scout Hike

Last Wednesday afternoon was very pleasantly spent by the Boy Scouts. At three o'clock they assembled at R. M. Shaw's store, equipped for a hike, and carrying their supper in their knapsacks. The objective upon this particular hike was Mr. Shaw's bungalow on the Turkey Hill road. The bungalow being unoccupied at the present time, it is the idea of the Scoutmaster to use it for permanent quarters for the Scouts. And, judging by the enthusiasm shown, the Scouts themselves think it a very good idea. This is a four-room bungalow which can be used to very good advantage for Scout work.

Arrived there, of course the first thing was to chop some wood with which to build a fire in the kitchen stove. Some of the Scouts had a chance to demonstrate their ability in woodcraft.

The afternoon passed very quickly and the boys built fires out in the open and cooked their own supper. Hot dogs being roasted at one fire, steak at another, pork chops at another, eggs at another, say! that layout would make anybody hungry.

They were to have had a treasure hunt, but Scouts Green and McPherson were so long hiding the treasure—they must have done a good job—that the hunt was postponed until a subsequent meeting.

Not all the Scouts were present, but we hope that by next Wednesday afternoon, the news of the new quarters will have spread and there will be many more in attendance.

Watch for the Scout news.

Social Union Supper

There were about sixty who attended the Social Union supper in the M. E. vestry Wednesday evening. Baked beans and salads in endless variety were on the tables to delight the patrons. There was no entertainment but nearly everyone stayed for friendly greetings which bad weather conditions had made few and far between the last month or so. The committee in charge was Mrs. Harry Conkey, Mrs. Henry H. Witt, Mrs. E. F. Shumway and Mrs. Lillian Kelley.

Gypsy Moth Work

The Federal Gypsy moth detail that has been in town for some weeks, is still seeking out the insects and probably will continue to do so for a month or six weeks yet. Due to a thorough job last year, it is found that the numbers are not as large as they would be otherwise. About two-thirds of the town was covered last time and likely a similar area will be gone over this time, although the section missed last year will be made sure of on this visit.

The detail is in charge of Warren G. Harding of Meriden, Ct., who has had four years experience along this line. He was in charge of the work here last year. Aside from seeking out the moth nests, it is his duty to instruct new field men in the work so that they will be able to carry it on elsewhere. On this visit to town twelve men have been "shipped out" and the plan is to train about 30 before the detail leaves. There are 18 men here at the present time. It is evident, therefore, that a full-fledged vocational school is doing business right here in our midst.

The reason why western Massachusetts was singled out for an intensive campaign against the gypsy moth was because this region had become badly infested. Mr. Harding expects that this year's work will put Belchertown in good shape as far as the gypsy moth is concerned, so that next year there will not be the necessity for a continuation of such concentrated effort.

The town at its annual meeting, voted to raise and appropriate $400 for moth suppression. Guy C. Allen has been appointed local moth superintendent and is beginning the work sponsored by the town. Mr. Harding is coordinating his work with that of Mr. Allen, so that the best results may be secured.

Poultry School Today

Everyone interested in poultry is urged to attend the poultry meeting to be held in Grange hall today at 11 a. m. The following is the program:

11 a. m. "Some Poultry Problems and their Solution."
Prof. Wm. C. Monahan
12 m. Lunch served by ladies of Union Grange.
1 p. m. "Brooding and Rearing Problems." Prof. Monahan
2 p. m. "Labor Saving Equipment that Every Poultryman Can Make." R. A. Payne

The most valuable part of these meetings comes in the discussion period when questions are answered. Talks over the radio are good but here is the opportunity to talk back.

280 Towns Worse Off

It is human nature to sense satisfaction in the fact that other people are worse off than we are. This is true of towns as well. Supt. A. R. Lewis finds that 280 towns are poorer in school attendance than Belchertown. There are 354 towns in the state, so it can be readily seen about where we are in the list. Nine towns are tied with this town for position.

To Play Lathrops of South Deerfield

By Noel

Manager Parent of the Belchertown five announces that he has booked the Lathrops of South Deerfield to play his team on the town hall floor Wednesday night, March 17, at 8 o'clock. The Lathrops have a strong lineup and, by their 1925-26 record of 22 victories and 5 losses, play a fast brand of basketball.

The local boys, with three straight wins to their credit, are going along at a fast pace and expect to add the Lathrops to their list of victims. As Belchertown is now represented by a fast semi-pro team, all the team needs is the proper support of the fans.

The management is already planning to arrange a game with the West Boylstons of Easthampton, one of the best semipro teams in Western Massachusetts. It will take a big guarantee to have them play here.

Manager Parent will have his regular lineup for Wednesday's game, with Lynch, Bridgman and Williams at the forwards, Capt. Grayson and Horner at center, and Austin, Fairchild and Allen at the guards.

A County Champion Picked

The March issue of the "Dairy News Letter," a mimeographed publication edited by the Hampshire County Dairy members, contains the following article of local interest.

Alice Randall of Belchertown has been picked for County Champion in Dairying for the past year. This entitles her to the honor of having done a mighty good job in 4H Club Work as a dairy member and also a week at the State and County champions' camp (Camp Gilbert) at M. A. C. next July.

Alice has been a dairy member for five years. This is her sixth. She now has five fine registered Holsteins. Two of them are milking. During the five past years she has sold a number of animals which didn't prove to be as good as hoped. With this continual culling out she plans to build a herd of fine type and high producing dairy animals. Eleanor Pontiac Model No. 763,628 seems to be her choicest female for she speaks often of saving her calves and has swapped some of her animals with her father's, when she could get a near relative of "Eleanor."

Last summer we decided to organize our dairy membership and Alice was elected secretary of the club which now numbers over fifty young people.

Every year she has looked forward, prepared for and gone to the Eastern States Exposition with from one to five animals and taken her share of the prize money. Last fall she had five on exhibit and received eighty dollars in gold in the show ring. At the Tri-County fair in October she won $20.00. In her club story she writes, "Two weeks before the Exposition I had the job of turning the crank on a clipping machine for my father to clip seven head. It was certainly a hard task but they looked fine after we were through. Some of them had horns which I scraped, sandpapered and polished. It was a busy time."

All of the sixty or more animals on the Randall farm have been Federal tested and found free from tuberculosis. Mr. Randall depends on Alice's memory when buyers are there looking at the cattle. And she seldom fails to be able to tell the name and breeding of any animal the party wishes to know about. She is her father's right hand man. Can she milk? She has never had to learn. The cows are milked with a milking machine but Alice says, "I do every other chore on the farm."

Alice is nineteen years old, a graduate of Belchertown High school, and is surely now acting as her father's secretary and partner.

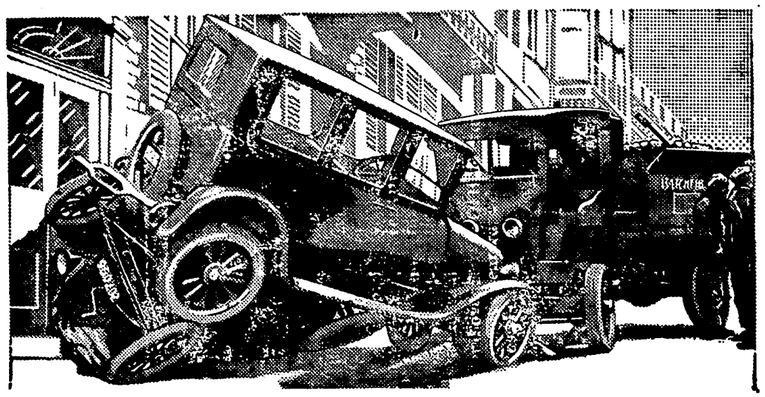
"YOU ARE ENTITLED TO KNOW THE FACTS"
DODGE BROTHERS, INC.

Only STEEL could meet a test like this!



A Dodge Brothers Motor Car . . . A speeding truck racing down hill and out of control . . . A collision . . .

Take one look at this photograph. It is not pretty, to be sure, but it will convince any sensible man that all steel construction is the only safe construction for a motor car body.

That is why Dodge Brothers introduced the all steel body more than eleven years ago, and this year greatly improved and perfected it.

In fact, Dodge Brothers are convinced that the day is not far off when wooden motor car bodies will be a curiosity. People will shudder at the thought of having ridden in them and will thank Dodge Brothers for the greater safety, durability—and beauty, too—of all steel construction.

A steel body will stand up under impacts that would crush the average body to bits. Steel cannot splinter. Steel cannot burn. Steel is an armor of protection on the crowded, hurrying highway.

Outwardly, nearly all types of bodies appear to be all steel. In reality, however, most of them are simply frames of wood covered by a metal shell.

Dodge Brothers Motor Car bodies are steel through and through—steel reinforced by steel—buttressed and braced by steel—even the frames and running boards are steel.

And slender, stronger steel corner posts replace the customary bulky posts of wood, affording full, unhampered driving vision on all sides—a safety feature of the first importance!

Travel in safety! Powerful, quick-action brakes, a chassis world-famous for its sturdiness, and a body of steel — these explain the enviable reputation for safety enjoyed by Dodge Brothers Motor Car —and the enviable feeling of safety enjoyed by those who drive it.

The car will continue to be a "four". No reasonable buyer will be distracted from the issue of QUALITY by mere CYLINDER propaganda.

"All of a Sunday Morning"

There is a man whom you all know,
Of credit and renown;
Most all his life, as I've been told,
He's lived in Belchertown.

With all men of his caliber,
There lies a hidden jest;
The one who knows the secret is
The chap who knows him best.

Now I have known this gentleman
Not very many days;
I know quite well his habits, and
His funny little ways.

I know just where he takes his bath,
(Don't quote me for a sage)
He takes it in the building where
He earns his weekly wage.

One Sunday he'd naught else to do,
He trod the beaten path,
Back to his place of business,
To take his weekly bath.

Arrived there in the course of time,
He'd not to travel far,
But very absentmindedly,
He left the door ajar.

Preliminaries over then,
From off his chair he rose;
As if he were to go to bed,
He took off all his clothes.

A spectacle he must have been,
Upon that Sabbath morn;
All dressed up in that nice tight suit
He wore when he was born.

"What's that I hear?" says this good man,
His glance led to the door;
He saw two well dressed ladies calm,
They walked across the floor.

"Ye gods," cried he, "What's happened here,
What shall I do, by Jove?"
And as they hove into his view
He leaped behind the stove.

He stayed there for an hour or more,
The fire was getting low;
He stood there shivering and said,
"When will they ever go?"

When they had finished with their task
They quietly left the room;
They did not know about the man
All overcast with gloom.

The water for his bath was cold,
He shivered as he stood;
Then jumped into his union suit
And carried in some wood.

And then he dressed, quite grave indeed,
And standing there alone;
He said quite sadly to himself,
"My baths, I'll take at home."

Ford

For the First Time $500 Buys a Closed Car

If you plan to spend over $500 F. O. B. Factory for an automobile, you can get the year-round comfort and convenience of a Ford closed car.

The price advantage which the public enjoys in purchasing Ford cars is the result of volume production. In 1920, when the Ford Motor Company was producing approximately only a million cars a year, the Ford Touring Car sold for $575. Today, with production on the basis of nearly two million cars a year, the Tudor Sedan, a high quality all-steel closed car, can be purchased for $520—$55 less than the Touring Car sold for six years ago. Open car prices are correspondingly low.

While this program of price reduction has been carried on, important refinements and improvements have been made in Ford cars. The latest improvements include new and attractive body lines—a lower center of gravity, closed cars in color, all-steel bodies, new brakes and new style fenders.

However, the basic features of Ford design have not been changed. Three point motor suspension, planetary transmission, dual ignition system, torque tube drive, multiple disc-in-oil clutch, splash lubrication, thermo-syphon cooling system—outstanding features of automobile design—have all been retained, regardless of cost.

Belchertown Defeats Another Rival

By Noel

The Belchertown basketball team, winning its third game of the season, handed the Bondsville five a beating on the Town hall floor Tuesday night, 44 to 26. Local fans who attended the game were treated to a fine exhibition of basketball, featured by the playing of the local boys, who showed the best form they have displayed this season, especially in the closing period, and the fine passwork of the visitors.

Belchertown got the jump on Bondsville at the start, when Capt. "Em" Grayson caged three floor baskets in succession. Goals by Donahue and N. Smith and a free try by Keyes brought the visitors' score within one point of the home team's score, 6 to 5. Charlie Austin's floor goal then made the score 8 to 5. Then Bondsville took the lead for the remainder of the half with baskets by Keyes, Galanski and Donahue in succession. The half ended in the visitors' favor, 19 to 14.

The home team, led by Grayson, decided to go on a scoring "spree" and took the lead in the early minutes of the closing period, which put the finishing touches on the argument. The local players displayed some fine team work and bombarded the hoop from all angles, running up a total of 30 points for the half, while they held the visitors to two floor goals and three free tries for a total of 7 points. It was a disastrous ending for Bondsville.

"Em" Grayson was the high scorer for Belchertown with seven baskets and four free tries for a total of 18 points. Bill Bridgman and Connie Lynch, alternating at left forward, both took a prominent part in the big victory. The former caged four baskets and one free try, while the latter played an excellent floor game. Bill Williams, Charlie Austin and Jack Fairchild also did their share, scoring 17 points among them. For Bondsville, Galanski had the best eye for the hoop, caging four double-deckers. Keyes and Donahue also played well.

The funeral of Ernest Booth was held at the Congregational chapel Saturday afternoon at 2, Rev. Chas. N. Thorp of the First Congregational church of Holyoke officiating. The bearers were three sons and a son-in-law. The body was placed in the tomb at Mt. Hope cemetery.

An invitation dance sponsored by several young couples of the town was held in Memorial hall last week Thursday evening and was largely attended, about 60 couples resonding. Guests were present from Ludlow, Amherst, Granby, Springfield and East Longmeadow. Connelly and his orchestra from Springfield furnished the music. It is expected that other dances, similar in nature, will follow.

The Social Guild at its meeting this week voted $30.00 towards church expenses.

Song of a Rainy Day

From the Tourist News, St. Petersburg, Florida

—By Rev. C. G. Burnham—

O, listen, my friends,
Unto my ditty
About the wet rain
In the Sunshine City.

When it rains, it rains
In this here city,
And the sun shines not—
The more's the pity.

Let it rain or not,
The realtors say,
We will sell our lots
On another day.

But with anxious eye
The editor man,
On a rainy day
Will the dark clouds scan.

For if sun shines not,
Some dark dreary day,
His whole edition
He must give away.

With nothing to do
In Sunshine City
On a sunless day
I wrote this ditty.

Death of Mrs. Alice E. Shaw

Mrs. Alice E. Shaw, widow of Asahel Shaw, died at her home on No. Main street Tuesday afternoon at 3.30. She had been in poor health for some time although confined to her bed for only about two weeks.

Mrs. Shaw was born at Wilbraham, the daughter of Orrin and Susannah Goodwill. She had made her home in town since her marriage to Mr. Shaw.

Mrs. Shaw was a member of the Congregational church, joining by letter from the Hampden Methodist church in 1890. Hers was a life of quiet simplicity and devotion to the tasks that lay nearest her.

She leaves two brothers, Milton and Clark Goodwill of Hampden, and several nephews and nieces. The funeral will be held at the home Friday afternoon at 1.30, Rev. D. L. Hilliard officiating.

Ladies Social Union Officers

The Ladies Social Union elected the following officers at their annual meeting Wednesday afternoon: President, Mrs. Bertha Conkey; vice president, Mrs. Rosabelle Putnam; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Clara French; secretary, Mrs. Ora Davis; treasurer, Mrs. Mabel Stebbins; work committee, Mrs. Rosabelle Putnam, Mrs. Lillian Kelley, Mrs. Julia Shumway, Mrs. Ora Davis, Mrs. Jennie Chamberlain, Mrs. Clara French; flower committee, Mrs. Amy Witt; entertainment committee, Mrs. Carrie Ketchen, Miss Ruby Knight.

The Poultry School

Interest in the annual poultry school still persists. There were about forty at the morning session last Friday and around fifty at the afternoon one. The speakers were County Agent Payne and Prof. Wm. C. Monahan of M. A. C. This is the combination usually appearing at these annual events, but they still hold the confidence of the poultrymen even though some were heard to remark, "That isn't what they told us last year."

The school still maintains its co-educational nature, women as well as men presenting their problems and as anxious as any to get hold of the latest kinks in the industry.

Prof. Monahan was the speaker of the morning and while he had a subject assigned to him, he immediately asked his audience what problems they were particularly interested in, so that practically all the time before dinner was given over to an informal discussion of a number of subjects.

Many of the questions had to do with cod liver oil, quite commonly used in the industry now. Prof. Monahan explained that this kind of oil is made not simply from cod livers but from livers of other fish as well. He recommended no special brand, indicating that one took a chance in buying any variety, there being no special rules as to judging quality. The honesty of the manufacturer seemed to be the best index offered.

The use of cod liver oil was recommended to control the blood spots in eggs. The ration suggested was a pint a week to 100 hens. It developed that there were a number of local poultrymen feeding oil.

Cannibalism amongst poultry was another subject considered. A slight filing of the beak was recommended by the speaker. A "pupil" suggested the use of an emory wheel in this connection, an idea which seemed to be a new one, even to the professor, who may use this as a talking point on the next circuit. One of those present said that his remedy was feeding newspapers torn to bits. Of course everyone was anxious then to know what paper the gentleman took.

Paralysis came in for some discussion, although not as much time was devoted to it as in former years. Mr. Monahan said that while we thought we had had a seige with it in this section, still in New Hampshire it has been raging a great deal worse, the mortality running as high as 50 per cent. The most the speaker would say was that worms greatly aggra-

Chairman of Thrift Committee at Providence

The following taken from the Providence Journal of March 7 shows the activity of Francis S. Allen in the Thrift campaign conducted in the Commercial High school of that city.

Through special campaigns and banking contests a decided effort is being made by High schools to stimulate interest in bank deposits among the pupils. Such a campaign was launched last week at the Commercial High school, Providence. Francis S. Allen was chairman of the faculty Thrift committee; bank clerks were appointed from each of the 58 home rooms in the school. Of 2,023 pupils registered, 1,507, or about 75 per cent, started a savings account during the week. Nineteen rooms reported a 100 per cent response. Although the campaign lasted but one week, the subject of school savings had been faithfully brought to the attention of the pupils during the previous month by the Thrift committee.

The matter will be continued for the rest of the term by means of bimonthly bulletins, blackboard notices, charts, etc.

Belchertown Defeats Lathrops

By Noel

The Belchertown basketball team won its fourth straight game of the season Wednesday night on the Town hall floor, when the fast Lathrops of South Deerfield were taken into camp by the close score of 36 to 33. The game was close and interesting from start to finish and was featured by the briliant teamwork, passing and keen shooting of both teams. The Lathrops are one of the best teams which have ever played here and proved it by the hard struggle which they put up, but they did not have anything on the Belchertown quintet, for it takes a mighty good team to beat the brand of basketball that Capt. Em Grayson and his men played Wednesday night. Many local fans admitted it was the best game they had ever seen played here.

The game was opened with a foul toss by H. Parsons of the Lathrops, who was followed with a similar toss by his teammate, Parker. Capt. Grayson then broke the ice for the home team with a free try. The visvated this disease.

Prof. Monahan had to answer almost every question on the calendar—and then some. "What causes hens to lay larger eggs some days than others?" and "What causes hanging wings and dragging toes?" are samples of those that caused a ripple of laughter. To some questions the speakers gave the refreshing answer, "I don't know."

Speaking of preventative measures which it is wise to take at this time of year the professor said that a dose of Carbolinium or Protexall applied before the middle of April would do away with all fear of red mites for the season.

Dinner was served at 12.30 by ladies of Union grange. About 35 partook of the repast, swapping chicken stories across the tables meanwhile.

Following dinner R. A. Payne gave an illustrated talk, showing brooder house construction, poultry shelters and the use of poultry appliances. Crop rotation was also pictured. Some of the slides were of local poultry plants; H. H. Witt's system of supplying water was shown and E. L. Schmidt's famous two-story barn hen house was another local one.

Mr. Payne strongly recommended the growing of rape for green feed. He suggested that one-fourth acre be planted for every 1,000 chickens, that it be sown in drills and acid phosphate be used as a starter. It was stated that a pound of seed would plant one-fourth acre.

Open air shelters was another talking point. He preferred the Tolman house and offered to send plans to any interested.

Prof. Monahan's concluding address was on "Brooding and Rearing of Chicks." In order that grain dealers should not be faced with 40 different formulas for chicken mash, the speaker stated that the following was offered by the college as a "standard" mixture:

100 bran
100 flour middlings
100 oat flour or ground oat meal
50 meat scrap
50 powdered buttermilk
25 bone meal

This can be fed all through the growing period.

A good word was given for the use of fluid milk, especially as it is made by our own neighbors and using it helps local business. The gallon size of inverted crock for feeding milk was recommended. Ways of utilizing milk cans as fountains were shown. The speaker had nothing but disgust for those who used small fruit jars and feed hoppers, thus multiplying unnecessarily their work.

The professor recommended hopper feeding of both mash and scratch grains to chickens a few days after arrival, but not for poultry.

When some of the audience meekly suggested that exercise for chickens used to be the big idea, the assertion was made that there was much less danger of contamination of the feed by the hopper method.

Two or three brooder stoves to a house was advocated this year. This was to give added security in case one stove should go out and also make it possible to drop out a stove as warm weather comes on. It was stated that when chicks are small, the outside circle of wire netting should be at least two feet from the outside of the hover.

Care as to sanitation was especially advocated, the speaker stating that ofttimes attention given thereto made all the difference between success and failure.

The "closing shot" was a beseeching appeal not to fuss and fiddle with doll house equipment, thereby using up all one's time and energy, but to go at the business in sensible fashion. One difference exists, Prof. Monahan said, between eastern and western poultrymen, and that is that an easterner makes more fuss over taking care of 300 chicks than a he-man on the Pacific coast does in raising 3,000, or a she-woman 30.

Many of the poultrymen lingered to get an added point or two on their particular problem that had not been fully discussed.

As before stated, there was a good response to the visitors. One of the speakers told the writer as he was packing up his grip that this was the poultry town of the county, both as to numbers and volume of business. So, although carriages have given way to chickens, we are still doing business.

itors then started off with a rush and baskets by S. Parsons, Hayes and Van Petersilge gave them the lead which they held for the remainder of the half. The guarding of both teams was so close that very few shots could be taken from under the hoop. The home players then tried long distance shooting and were quite successful, as some of the most spectacular shots were dropped in by Grayson, Williams and Austin. The first half ended with the Lathrops on the long end of the count, 19-16.

The home team, which seems to have the habit of staging a comeback in the closing period of its games, soon took the lead when the second half opened, with Grayson, Williams and Bridgman breaking through the Lathrops defense for pretty field goals. But the visitors were not to be outdone, and by nice teamwork, kept within a few points of the local team's score, once tying the score at 23 all. The feature of the game was contributed in this half, when Grayson managed to dribble through the entire visitors' defense, but missed on his attenpt at a field goal.

Referee Mulholland of Springfield deserves great credit for the way in which he handled the game.

Capt. Grayson and George Williams did the best all around work for the home team, accounting for 25 of the 36 points between them. The guards, Jack Fairchild and Charlie Austin, played a hard game and broke up many of the visitors' passes. Bill Bridgman and Connie Lynch, alternating at right forward, also played well, the former caging two double-deckers. Hayes and S. Parsons shone up well for the Lathrops, but the entire team must be given credit for the hard game they played.

To Play Thursday Night

Manager Parent of the Belchertown five announces that there will be a game in the Town hall next Thursday night at 8 o'clock. The team has not been selected as yet, as several teams are in line for games here, but another good game is in store for local basketball fans. Belchertown will have the same lineup as in previous games.

Ford

Costs More to Build—Is Worth More—Yet Sells for Less

If any other manufacturer endeavored to produce a car similar to the Ford according to the high standards of the Ford Motor Company, it would be impossible to offer it at anything like the present low Ford prices.

If the Ford Motor Company would substitute ordinary design for the basic Ford features, Ford cars could be produced and sold for less than the present Ford prices. Yet by so doing, Ford simplicity, durability and reliability would fall below the standard insisted upon by the Ford Motor Company.

Just think! 13,000,000 model T Ford cars have been produced since 1908—almost as many automobiles as were built by all other manufacturers combined. In 1925, almost 2,000,000 Ford cars and trucks were built and sold—and plans for 1926 call for the production of even more than 2,000,000.

It was the superiority of Ford design in 1908 that established Ford leadership. It is this same Ford design, improved but basically unchanged, that is continuing to make the Ford car the outstanding leader among all automobiles.

Boy Scout News

The Boy Scout work, and play, of last Wednesday was a continuation of that of the week preceding. After school the Scouts met at their new quarters on the Turkey Hill road. There is more enthusiasm being shown as evidenced by the slight increase in attendance over last week. As yet the name of the camp is pending. We hope that by the time our next letter goes in we may have the name included.

One of the most interesting features at the camp is the pleasure the Scouts take in building fires in the open and cooking their own supper. Boy Scouts sure are a great bunch of eaters. There are precious few crumbs left for the birds after they have partaken of their Wednesday afternoon repast.

The treasure hunt, which was started a week ago last Wednesday afternoon, is still unfinished. We are of the opinion that Scouts McPherson and Green, who hid the treasure, will have to find it themselves.

We are hoping that in a very short time we will have our camp in first class condition, so that it will look like a Boy Scout camp both inside and out.

Watch for the Boy Scout News.

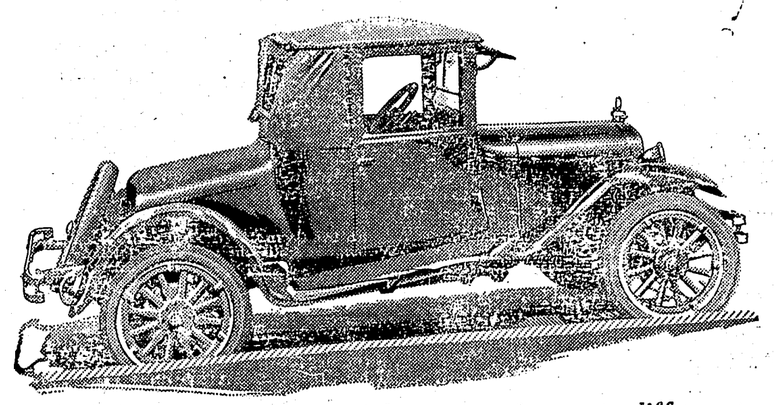
DODGE BROTHERS, INC.

Over a Cliff in this STEEL BODY without injuring the DRIVER



A careless driver . . . A triple somersault over a cliff . . . and this is the car—a Dodge Brothers all steel safety car.

A triple somersault over a cliff with the car you see in this picture! Such was the experience of its owner, who came through the fall uninjured.

After an hour of repair work, he drove the car from Montana to Minneapolis—a more sensible driver and much wiser.

All steel construction saved his life, as it has saved many other lives in the past, and will save thousands more in the future . . . . . .

Dodge Brothers print this advertisement because they believe motorists are entitled to all steel safety and should insist upon it.

That's why Dodge Brothers introduced all steel construction more than eleven years ago—and recently announced additional all steel safety features.

The streets are swarming with 20,000,000 motor cars—millions more are on the way.

Safety is the issue. Armor yourself and your family with steel.

Dodge Brothers Motor Cars—both open and closed—are all steel in the strictest sense of the term. Steel reinforced by steel—framed, braced and buttressed by steel—with all seams solidly and permanently welded together by electricity.

Slim steel pillars replace the old bulky wooden corner posts—permitting unparalleled driving vision—a safety feature of the first importance.

Compare such bodies with the usual wood, or wood-and-metal body, and you will be astonished that every automobile builder has not adopted this advanced safety construction.

Remember, also, that safety is the watchword of Dodge Brothers construction throughout, as witnessed by Dodge Brothers exceptionally large, quick-action brakes, and the exceptional ruggedness and dependability of Dodge Brothers axles, frames, steering parts, and other vital units.

This car will continue to be a "four".

At the regular meeting of Vernon Lodge Wednesday evening, the third degree was worked on two candidates.

Past Masters' jewels were presented to F. Dudley Walker, Jr., and to Carl F. Aspengren, the presentation being made by Worshipful Brother Alvan R. Lewis.

A gold-mounted Parker fountain pen and an Eversharp pencil were presented to H. A. Hopkins, who is in his 27th year of service as secretary. R. E. Fairchild made a pleasing presentation, which was responded to by Mr. Hopkins.

A special meeting will be held April 2 to work the second degree on three candidates.

Farmers Exchange Meeting

There were about 25 present, including several from Granby, at the Eastern States Farmers Exchange meeting in Grange hall, Tuesday evening.

J. K. Westburg, of Springfield, the sales manager of the organization, who has been with it since its inception, had the meeting in charge and gave considerable detailed information concerning the working of the Exchange. He said that it was never stronger financially and the outlook is exceptionally bright.

It was stated that 16,000 farmers in New England and Delaware are being served by the organization, which has 500 shipping stations.

Due to the insistent demand of farmers in Maryland, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, the Exchange has just entered this new field and the first cars are now on the road.

The speaker reported on the working of the new mill at Buffalo, which was purchased last year at a cost of $350,000.

Telling of the growth in patronage locally, Mr. Westburg said that in 1924, 153 tons of grain were shipped to Belchertown, whereas in 1925 the amount was 242 tons. The increase in the whole territory last year was 283 carloads of grain and 120 carloads of fertilizer.

Quality was the key-note of the address of the evening. It was reiterated that feeds of all kinds can be mixed to a price, but that the Exchange is insisting upon quality, regardless of competition.

Nine plates of corn were displayed by Mr. Westburg to bring out the contrast in quality of various offerings. Some were Exchange products while others were grades bought in the open market.

Stress was also laid on the fact that the feed formulas of the Exchange could be absolutely relied upon, the sales manager instancing delays in shipment in order that certain ingredients be not excluded.

Fertilizers and seeds came in for mention. Early ordering of the former was deemed essential. Apology was made for the shape in which some of the fertilizer came last year, and the reason for it explained. Speaking of seeds, Mr. Westburg said that they are now being included in grain cars, thus obviating an extra trip to the station.

The event of the evening was the distribution of the dividends voted at the annual meeting in Springfield Feb. 23. These dividends amounted to one-half of one per cent of total sales for 1925. The calling of the names savored of a Christmas tree party.

The new contracts were explained at this meeting and questions were answered regarding the workings of the Exchange.

The farmers left the meeting with confidence in the organization, which they call their own, and thoroughly sold to the quality idea as propounded by the speaker. The management states that there were 18 local contracts last year with 25 people served.

Dam at Mill Valley

The dam at Mill Valley has been condemned by the county commissioners and will be shortly rebuilt, it was reported yesterday morning. Tuesday a section was taken out of the north end and Wednesday the gate at the south end was blasted out. It is said that the new structure is to be completed in three months.

Ludlow Big Five Plays Here Tonight

By Noel

The basketball game, which was announced in last week's paper to take place on Thursday night, was postponed until tonight, as some of the players on the local team could not be on hand that night. Manager Eddie Parent of the Belchertown five has booked the Ludlow Big Five to oppose his team on the town hall floor tonight. The Ludlow quintet, no doubt, needs no introduction to local fans, as it is well known in this section of the state. The team is made up of former high school and college stars and they are able to give stiff opposition to some of the best teams in western Massachusetts. Cottini and Sullivan are the forwards; Stuart, one of the greatest athletes ever turned out at Ludlow High school, jumps center, and Wallace and Lowe are the guards.

The local team, which has not lost a game this season, expects to add Ludlow to its list of victims. Manager Parent has a team which is hard to defeat and the games should draw the largest crowds ever seen at a game in this town.

Next Monday night, the team travels to South Deerfield for a return game with the Lathrops.

The lineup for tonight is Lynch, Bridgman and Williams at the forwards, Capt. Grayson, center, and Austin and Fairchild, guards. As there will probably be a preliminary game, the big game will be called at 8.15 o'clock.

League Closes Season

The High School Inter-Class Basketball League wound up its schedule last week after ten weeks of fascinating competition, under the supervision of Athletic Director C. G. Moynihan. Although the Senior class won the championship in both the girls' and boys' divisions, yet there was considerable rivalry and class spirit shown by the other classes.

Belchertown Seconds Lose at Enfield

By Noel

The Belchertown second team lost its second game of the season on the Enfield town hall floor Saturday night, when the Enfield Seconds defeated the local team, 41 to 22. The game was fast and rough at times and was opened with floor goals by Bobovitz and Weston of the Enfield team. A free try by Johnny Wood and a field goal by Capt. Piper were the first points scored for Belchertown. Enfield held the lead through the entire game, leading at half-time, 22 to 16.

The shooting of Bobovitz and Weston, Enfield forwards, was the feature of the game, the former caging eight field goals for a total of 16 points, while the latter tossed in five twin-counters and two free tries for a total of 12 points. Capt. Piper featured for Belchertown. Besides playing a nice floor game, he dropped in three field goals and one free try for a total of 7 points. Bob Dodge also played a good game.

This is the fourth time this season the two fives have met and each team has won its games on its own floor. The management of the local team is trying to arrange a fifth game between the two teams to be played on a neutral floor, while the Enfield manager would rather toss a coin, which would decide on which team's floor the game should be played. As yet, the managers of both teams have not come to any agreement.

PATHFINDER TIRES

Here's the real "low-down" on these Pathfinders that people are talking about, wondering, "How so much for so little money?"

Quality was the key note in designing and building these Balloons, Oversize Cords and Fabrics. Tremendous volume makes it possible to give high grade fabrics and compounds. Goodyear tire brains and vast plant equipment make possible manufacturing economies.

Cut open a Pathfinder and you will find it sound to the core—and full of this new Goodyear elastic, durable Supertwist cord fabric.

I sell them as cheaply as you can buy most Unknown brands; for less than the cost of mail order tires that you send away for, wait for, and mount with the sweat of your own brow.

Boy Scout News

Another week has passed and the Boy Scouts are slowly getting under way. I say slowly, because the weather has not been such that we could go ahead with our plans. As soon as the warm spring days arrive, our camp will take on a different aspect. Until then we must be content to accomplish all that is possible in the way of test passing, instructions, etc.

At the meeting last Wednesday, the name "Deerfoot Camp" was suggested as being quite appropriate. The name won approval so I believe the names "Deerfoot Camp" and "Deerfoot Troop" will stand.

The treasure was found this week but not until after the fellows who hid it went over the same route, leaving a trail. The "treasure" was an empty Postum can. Perhaps it can be used as a bait carrier next summer.

Not all of the Scouts have paid their registration fee as yet. Next Wednesday has been set as the last day upon which the late ones may register. Dr. Wilder is collecting the registration fees, so any of the fellows who wish to get paid up may see him.

Two chairs were carried to the camp last week by Scouts Fuller and Schmidt. An article or two each week will soon furnish the four rooms.

Our camp has been visited by Dr. McPherson and Mr. Peck, members of the Council. We hope the other members of the Council will have an opportunity to visit us in the near future.

Watch for the Scout news.

Ford

When You Trade Your Car—

Ford owners are continually being approached by automobile salesmen who wish to "accept" Fords as part payment on more expensive cars.

It is logical that automobile dealers should be eager to trade with Ford owners. No other used car is so easy to sell as a used Ford—because everyone has confidence in Ford quality. And it is not expensive to recondition, since Ford replacement parts are lowest in price.

Most automobiles carry greater discounts to dealers than the Ford—another reason why other dealers may offer the Ford owner a larger trade-in allowance.

But, bear these facts in mind:

The amount of the trade-in allowance you can get is not the most important thing for you to consider. The big thing is the difference you have to pay. And remember, that the higher priced car will not be so easy to dispose of when you come to trade it in.

If you wish to trade your Ford for a new automobile, stick to the car that you know to be dependable, useful and economical. Go to your Ford dealer!

He will give you a fair and liberal allowance for your present Ford and will gladly arrange payment of the balance to suit your convenience.

"22 YEARS OF LEADERSHIP AND STILL LEADING IN PRICE—DESIGN—QUALITY"

Mr. Moynihan can consider the season a most successful one. The spirit, interest and enthusiasm with which the children entered the competition show that. The children learned what good sportmanship, cooperation, fair play and respect for brother players, as well as teachers, mean. This fact in itself proves the value of intra-mural athletics.

It is interesting to note that the Senior boys were defeated in the last game of the season by the much touted Sophomore team. This was the first and only defeat the Seniors suffered. However, good sportsmanship prevailed throughout the entire game.

Piper and Miss Shumway won the individual scoring honors in the boys' and girls' divisions respectively. Piper was pressed closely by Jimmie Keyes, however, while Miss Shumway seemed to have her own way as far as competition was concerned.

The final standings of the league are as follows:

C. E. Field Secretary Speaks

Russell J. Blair, Christian Endeavor Field secretary for Massachusetts, met the local Christian Endeavor society Saturday evening in the chapel. He stressed the importance of coming county, state and international conventions, but his real message was regarding "The Fidelity Campaign" which embodies four main objectives, open confession of Christ, service to Christ's church, loyalty to Christ's church, and fellowship.

The speaker had nothing against social life and forums, but said that these did not take the place of open confession.

Mr. Blair made it very clear that loyalty to the organization is not sufficient; only as the society serves the church of which it is a part, does it fulfil its mission. He said, "If we think just of ourselves, we are doomed to failure." Christian Endeavor literature was displayed and offered for sale.

Brainard Lyman of the Amherst Local Union presided.

Council to Entertain

Next Wednesday, April 7, the Belchertown Boy Scout Council will entertain at supper the Executive Council of Hampshire County. Supper will be served at 6.30 in the chapel, arrangements having been made with Miss Conklin and pupils of the Domestic Science department to provide the repast. It is urged that every member of the council be present.

Girl Scout Party

The Girl Scouts of Troop 2 enjoyed a party given by the Girl Scout Council at Mrs. L. G. Warren's house last Saturday. The girls arrived in two's and three's for fifteen or twenty minutes around two o'clock. When the Scouts were all there, Mrs. Wesley started the party by directing some games.

After one game was played, the guests hunted around for fortunes which Miss Warren had hidden. Some were green hearts for jealousy. One girl got a thimble and was doomed to be an old maid the rest of her days. The others got various comical things.

Then they adjourned to the kitchen to play more games. A number of games put together was called an automobile race. Different parts were things representing filling the tank with gas, blowing up tires, assembling of parts, towing in, and the final race.

The Oriole patrol won the most games for the afternoon and Patrol Leader Barbara Rowland received an aluminum drinking cup for the skill of her patrol.

Cocoa and sandwiches were then served.

The Scouts went home at about four o'clock after a wonderful afternoon they owed to the council.

Belchertown Easily Defeats Ludlow Big Five

By Noel

The Belchertown basketball team won its fifth game of the season, when it defeated the Ludlow Big Five quintet on the town hall floor last Friday night before a fair-sized crowd by a score of 40 to 25. The first half of the game was close and interesting, but the final period developed into a walkaway for the home team.

The visitors started off with a rush and soon took the lead after the game opened with floor goals by Rooney and Sullivan. Capt. Grayson then scored Belchertown's first points by dropping in a floor goal, followed with a similar toss by Williams. Rooney of Ludlow again came through with a double decker, a side court shot, after taking a pass from Cottini. Dyba then dropped in his only basket of the half. The local team now opened up a speedier attack and baskets by Williams, Grayson and Fairchild placed the home team ahead for the remainder of the game. But the Ludlow team kept up its fine work and left the floor at half time only three points behind, the score being 18 to 15 in the local team's favor.

It was in the second period that the Belchertown scoring machine started rolling and then the points came thick and fast. Williams and Grayson were wholly responsible for the heavy scoring in this period, for they were dropping them in from all angles.

George Williams furnished the heavy work for the home team with no less than eleven floor baskets and one free try for a total of 23 points, which was within two points of the entire Ludlow score. George said after the game that they were all "baby baskets". Capt. Grayson was second with five floor goals and two free tries for a total of 12 points. Em played his usual hard game and managed to dribble through the entire visitors' defense several times during the game. Bill Bridgman seemed to have a "night off" for he coud not find the hoop at all, but made up by playing a wonderful floor game. Jack Fairchild and Charlie Austin, the veteran guards, played their usual stellar games.

M. E. Church Notes

There will be special music at the morning service of the Methodist church, Sunday. In the evening the supplemented choir will render the cantata, "The King Eternal."

At the official board meeting Wednesday evening, reports from all departments for the entire year were received. The report of the treasurer showed that nearly all bills are cared for.

During the past year $114 has been contributed to the World Service, an increase of $75 over the preceding year. With the offering next Sunday morning designated to the same purpose, the showing will be even better.

It was voted at this meeting to add to the $50 left the church by the late Mrs. Mary Hinds, a sum sufficient to purchase a Wayside pulpit, to be appropriately inscribed with her name.

This evening will be held the last of the Holy Week services, the subject being "The Cross."

The pastor leaves next Tuesday for the conference in Westfield. On the evening of that day, previous to the opening of the conference, the Epworth Leagues of the Springfield district will entertain the other leagues at a banquet. Blaine E. Kirkpatrick, general secretary of the national organization, will be the principal speaker.
